WRITTEN BY WHITNEY

Anonymous Letters Figured In [Submarine Boat Probe]

AN AFFIDAVIT FROM AUTHOR

Wanted to Call Attention of Congress to What He Considered Efforts of Electric Boat Company to Secure
Exclusive Legislation—An Apology

Washington, May 1.—The investigation into the legislative methods employed by the Electric Boat company,
directed by the house of representatives under a resolution introduced by Representative Lilley of Connecticut, is ended, so far as open sessions of the special house committee which has been conducting it are concerned.

The closing hours of the case were dramatic. Frederick B. Whitney, an attorney at law, admitted that he was the author of the anonymous letters of Feb. 13 and Feb. 15 to the representative of the Detroit Free Press and State Senator Edinborough of Michigan, which have figured so prominently in the investigation. The admission of Whitney was made in the form of an affidavit which was read by his counsel,
Mr. Thurston, who explained that Whitney is ill in the Garfield hospital, this city, and that it would be impossible for him to appear before the committee.

In the affidavit Whitney stated that from 1901 to 1904 he was clerk to the committee on naval affairs of the house of representatives; that shortly thereafter he became second vice president of the Lake Torpedo Boat company, which position he retained until May 19, 1905, and that he is now vice president of the Lake Submarine company, an independent organization.
The reasons for writing the anonymous
letters were given by Whitney as follows:

"That of his own initiation he undertook what appeared to him at the time to be not improper methods to have brought to the attention of congress the methods which he believed had been pursued by the Electric Boat company in the endeavor to secure,
through congressional action, what might be termed exclusive legislation which would shut out competition and prevent the Lake Torpedo Boat company from competing in the United States for submarine torpedo boat construction."

Reference is made to anonymous
communications sent by Whitney to a New York newspaper, and the affidavit continues:
"Said deponent sent said communications and said statements to said newspapers, believing that Representative Loud had voted for an exclusive appropriation for submarines of a certain type, but that he subsequently learned that Loud voted by letter for submarines without condition and he deeply regrets the wrong and injustice done
by him to Representative Loud, who was innocent of all suspicions entertained by deponent concerning him."

Whitney said in his affidavit that when he sent these anonymous communications he had good reason to believe that a resolution would be introduced in the house of representatives for an investigation of the methods of the Electric Boat company and its predecessor, the Holland Boat company. He further says that he sent newspaper clippings to some members of the naval committee and may have sent to Representative Lilley before Feb. 20, 1905, the date of introduction
of Lilley's resolution of inquiry, newspaper clippings, including the figures
of alleged excessive cost of submarines, namely $14,702,996.00, which he attempted to compile from the testimony of Admiral Bowles before the naval committee of the house in 1902.

In conclusion the affidavit states
that Whitney has no personal knowledge from which he could give any evidence to sustain any of Lilley's charges.

Surprise to Stockholders

Bridgeport, Conn., May 1.—Stockholders of the Lake Torpedo Boat company were considerably mystified by the confession in Washington by Fred B. Whitney that he had written the anonymous "submarine" letters. C. D.
Wallace, the only official of the company here, said that Whitney never wrote the anonymous letters by any authorization of the Lake company.
He was in the employ of the company
two or three years ago in Washington, Wallace said, and he had charge of the western office when Lake was abroad.

Siamese Attack French

Saigon, Cochinchina, May 1.—The revolt of the natives at Battambang in Siam, was caused by the agitation of certain Siamese who were discontented because of the recent occupation of the province by France. Robber bands attacked the French frontier posts on several occasions, but were beaten back with heavy loss. Reinforcements have been dispatched to the aid of the French troops.

Mohamnds Will Talk Peace

Peshawar, India, May 1.—The Mohammad tribesmen, who have been quiescent since their defeat six days ago by a British force, are sending in delegates to confer with the British authorities. If the tribesmen accept the terms offered by the British officers the necessity of sending a strong expedition against the Mohamnds will be obviated.

NEW INDUSTRIAL YEAR

Boston Workmen in All Branches of Labor Are Satisfied

Boston, May 1.—The first day of May,
the date of starting new wage and working schedules by the labor union organizations, is notable this year for the fact that for the first time in many years there is no strike on in Boston
in any of the many trades and no prospect of any disturbance of the sort in the near future.

Bridge and structural iron workers and housecarpenters yesterday secured a desired wage increase agreement and are satisfied with the prospects for autumn year. The wood, wire and metal lathers are satisfied with the adjustment of their claims.

The bakers have made additional request for pay for all legal holidays,
which, it is probable, will be granted.
Old terms were renewed with 3000 house carpenters and the men have accepted the adjustment.

President Tuttle of the Boston and Maine announced that no change
would be made in wages on the system
and thus trouble on the railroad is avoided.

The decision of the New York, New Haven and Hartford road not to enforce piece work and bonus systems has been received with especial satisfaction by the employees of the system and everything is satisfactory.

Navy yard employees, Atlantic coast seamen, railroad telegraphers, draw-tenders, cigar factory strippers, and makers, stationary engineers, brewery engineers, coal hoisting engineers and garage cutters have received important concessions, and all are beginning the new industrial year in a most jubilant spirit.

Amassed Fortune, Now Faces Ruin

Boston, May 1.—Patrick Lennox, who amassed millions of dollars, has been declared by a referee involved in the tangles of the firm of P. Lennox & Co. of Lynn. But the aged man, from a sick bed, asserts that he presented his son, James T. Lennox, with the business, and, therefore, cannot be held accountable for $2,027,550 debts. To save his name from bankruptcy Patrick has fought desperately, testifying from a sick bed in the hope of saving his personal fortune from the grasp of creditors. Unless Judge Dodge of the United States district court sets aside the findings of the referee in bankruptcy, Patrick Lennox will again find himself as poor as he was seventy years ago, when he came to this country a friendless immigrant boy.

Lynn Has a Fire Scare

Lynn, Mass., May 1.—The provision market of the J. B. Blood company, one of the largest concerns of its kind in New England outside of Boston, was damaged by fire to the extent of $75-000. A high wind carried sparks to the roofs of tenement houses in the vicinity
and at one time about a dozen of these buildings were on fire. The firemen, however, succeeded in extinguishing
these incipient fires. Panic conditions prevailed until it was seen that the fire was under control.

Liquor Sleuths Must Settle

Auburn, Me., May 1.—In the supreme court, a jury returned a verdict of $389.62 in the case of E. W. Buckley against Ferd E. Stevens and Maxine Beaulieu, Sturgis enforcement deputies. The plaintiff sued to recover $1000 for damages done to his house in Lewiston, occupied by his brother, while in search of liquors. The officers tore down walls in the house in search of secret pipes leading to a hidden tank
which they believed was in the house.

Saloons Go Out of Business

Boston, May 1.—At 11 o'clock last night Worcester, Haverhill and Lynn entered upon the "dry" column. Worcester is the largest city in the United States where prohibition has prevailed
by local vote. In that city, as a consequence of the "no" vote, thirty wholesale dealers, fifteen clubs, and seventy-six saloons have closed. In Haverhill there are about forty saloons, which closed and in Lynn there are about seventy.

Car and Wagon Collided

Boston, May 1.—As a result of a collision between a trolley car and an express wagon on Washington street, Bertram J. McLean, driver of the wagon, was thrown to the ground and suffered a probably fatal fracture of the skull. Joseph E. Saunders, McLean's helper, also suffered serious injuries.
Harry Reisert, a passenger on the front platform of the car, suffered contusions of the body.

Died on a Meat Slab

Fall River, Mass., May 1.—The body of Max Bousky, a Hebrew butcher, was found lying on a large meat table
in his shop, with a gas tube in his mouth
and all the doors and windows closed and barricaded. He left a note explaining that he had committed suicide on account of lack of business, saying that he was penniless. He leaves a widow and six children.

Thirty-Three Men Massacred

Paris, May 1.—A dispatch from Dagama, West Africa, says that a detachment of troops composed of thirty-one native infantrymen and three European officers was ambushed by natives while on a march and every man in the detachment, with the exception of one officer, was massacred. Dagama is a French trading port and military station in Senegambia.

Seizure of Scotch Granite

St. John, May 1.—Customs authorities seized twenty-nine cases of valuable manufactured granite which arrived here on steamer Tritonia from Scotland. Granite manufacturers of St. George made representations that imported stone has been undervalued.

Summer Work on Tariff Bill

Washington, May 1.—Chairman Payne of the committee on ways and means introduced a resolution authorizing that committee to sit during the recess of congress. It is planned to gather information looking toward the revision of a bill for the revision of the tariff. Discussing the resolution, Payne said that its purpose was to enlarge the scope of the powers conferred upon the ways and means committee. "The resolution," he said, "will enable the committee to carry forward with a freer hand the work already undertaken in preparation of a revision of the tariff next year."

Presence of Mind Averts Panic

Baltimore, May 1.—During a performance at The Zoo last night two leopards jumped from the arena, landing among the audience. A boy, Louis Long, was badly clawed about the face and neck, and a panic was averted by the prompt action of Police Sergeant Barranger in closing the exit doors and allowing only one or two of the terrified people to descend the stairs at a time. The leopards were cornered, one in the office of The Zoo and the other in one of the dressing rooms, by trainers.

Washington, May 1.—Secretary Taft will embark at Charleston today on the cruiser Prairie and proceed to Colon, whither he goes at the suggestion of the president to investigate several important questions connected with the construction of the Panama canal, the relations between the United States and the republic of Panama and the boundary dispute between Panama and Colombia. The secretary is expected to return to this country about May 20.

Will Not Yield on Divorce

New York, May 1.—Divorce was scored by Cardinal Logue of Ireland in an address given in connection with the centenary celebration of the New York diocese. "Never can the Catholic church yield on the divorce question,"
he said. "This position of the church is the great safeguard for the republic, for it is necessary to stick to these principles in order to secure the sanctity and the integrity of the family."

Cincinnati Mining and Trading company, of which only two specimens are known to exist, was knocked down for $2175, a record price for an American

PHYSICIANS DISCUSS NEW THEORY

Cooper's Views of Human Stomach Noted
by Medical Men.

A recent article in the New Orleans Item gives an account of the effect upon the medical profession of that city with regard to L. T. Cooper's theory that the human stomach is responsible for most ill health. The article is as follows:

"The astonishing sale of Cooper's preparation in this city has now reached such immense figures that the medical fraternity have been forced into open discussion of the man's theories and medicines.

"The physicians seem to be divided with regard to the young man's success in New Orleans—some being willing to credit him for what he has accomplished, while others assert that the interest he has aroused is but a passing fad that will die out as quickly as it has sprung up.

"In a statement recently obtained from a well-known physician of this city, the position of those in favor of Cooper is well voiced. The doctor said: 'I am not a believer in proprietary medicines, but I must admit that some of the facts recently brought to my attention concerning this Cooper medicine have gone far toward removing the prejudice I had formed against them when I first heard of Cooper's new ideas and medicines.

"Numbers of my patients whom I have treated for chronic liver, kidney and stomach troubles have met me and stated that Cooper's medicine has accomplished wonderful results for them.' I notice particularly in cases of stomach trouble that the man has relieved several cases that were of years' standing and proved very obstinate to treatment.

"I do not wish to stand in the way of something that may be for the public good, simply through professional prejudice, and I am inclined to give Cooper and his preparations credit as deserving to some extent the popular demonstration that has been accorded them in this city."

We sell the Cooper medicines. They are proving remarkably successful throughout the entire United States.—E. J. Murphy.

Good Receipts

Good Cooks

Springtime is the time for salads and the gastronomical world inclines toward this form of table delicacy as at no other season of the year.

"The virtue of a salad lies in the fact that you can make it out of nothing at all," said a famous chef. And out of nothing at all many a fine salad is made.

There was once a woman who made it a practice to serve a fruit and nut salad every day for dinner. She shelled a few nuts and broke them into bits. She added a few olives cut in squares and to this she put some lettuce broken into small pieces, a few tiny stalks of celery and some bits of red pepper and a shredded apple. She poured a French dressing over this and served it for a dinner course.

To many Quincy houses the salad is a stranger, but others could not keep house without it. They contribute the following:

LOBSTER SALAD.

To make dressing, boil two eggs twelve minutes and put them in a basin of cold water for a few minutes till the yolks are thoroughly cold and hard. Rub the yolks through a sieve with wooden spoon and mix them with a tablespoonful of water; then add two tablespoonfuls of olive oil; when these are well mixed add by degrees a teaspoon of salt and the same of made mustard. When these are smoothly united add gradually three tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Take out the finest parts of a lobster and mince them small. Just before serving mince two heads of white heart lettuce, mix it with the lobster and dressing; cut up the whites of eggs and garnish the salad with it. Wollaston.

CHEESE SALAD.

Mash Neufchatel or cottage cheese and shape as robin eggs, rolling in parsley finely reduced. Arrange on lettuce leaves and serve with a French dressing made with one tablespoonful of olive oil, half a tablespoonful of vinegar, one-eighth teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper, stirring with a silver fork till well blended. Serve in tiny molds of currant jelly. This salad frequently takes the place of a sweet dessert at luncheon.—Pilgrim.

SPINACH SALAD.

Chop cold cooked spinach fine and press into small cups. Cut some cold boiled tongue into slices, lay two lettuce leaves together on a plate, put a slice of tongue on them, and on this the spinach turned from the cup. Serve with a tablespoonful of French dressing poured over. Mrs. S.

BOHEMIAN SALAD.

Mix together equal parts of shredded raw white cabbage, tender celery and hard-boiled eggs and a mixture of chopped hickory and English walnuts; mix thoroughly with mayonnaise dressing and stand aside until needed. Steam whole white cabbage leaves until tender, place on ice until thoroughly chilled; arrange on a platter and fill each leaf with the salad mixture; garnish with yellow chicory leaves and spread a little extra dressing over the top of each portion.

CREAM SALAD DRESSING.

Two teaspoonful of mustard, two teaspoonfuls of sugar, one teaspoon of salt; rub till smooth, then add two well-beaten eggs, one-half cup of sweet cream or milk, two-thirds of a cup of vinegar; stir till well mixed. Cook over hot water till thick, then add a piece of butter the size of an egg. Washington Street.

EGG ON FISH SALAD.

Take the remains of any fish that is left from dinner, either baked or boiled, free from skin and bones; pick with a fresh dressing and set on the ice. At serving time put a spoonful on the heart leaves of lettuce, and half a hard-boiled egg to each spoon of fish, either chopped, sliced or cut in quarters, and arrange to look like a daisy. Add spoonful of any good boiled dressing and serve at once. This is rather a way to use left-over fish than a regular salad, and it is a very nice if you add as much diced boiled potatoes as you have fish. Mr. H calls it cold fish hash, but he never passes it by.

I wonder if you ever tried my way of buying fish. When I buy a fish for I buy one weighing five or six pounds, have it cut up and the bones taken out, and have the bones, head and thin pieces sent home. Then I fry the best and boil all the rest, and carefully pick out all the good and make chowder with that and the water it was boiled in, or else use the boiled fish for salad. H. B. H.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

Budget—1
Light-vessel, number 90, for the Light-House Board, Department of Commerce and Labor, U. S. Government, one of the four being built at the shipyard, is rapidly nearing completion. From present indications it looks as if she would leave the works on Tuesday, although there is much to do on her before she will be ready.

Two roll shafts are being forged and rough machined at the shipyard for Buell and Mitchell.

J. H. Hoffman is having five screens made at the shipyard.

A very singular thing occurred on board the S. S. Bissley while that vessel was loading the turbine engines along-side of the long concrete wharf. An electric wire for supplying current to operate an electric winch located in the forward hold used in stowing the different parts of the turbine came in contact with the steel deck plating and burned a hole in it as easily as though it had been so much paper. A number of expert mechanics were immediately put to work repairing the deck and when they had finished it would have taken a pretty keen eye to have detected where the deck had been damaged by the electric wire.

The bureau of navigation reports 80 vessels of 59,316 gross tons built and officially numbered in the United States during March. Of this proportion ten of 50,497 gross tons were built on the lakes. These figures, while emphasizing the preponderance of shipbuilding on the lakes in comparison with the coast, are nevertheless misleading, says the Marine Review. They represent the launchings of three months rather than of one.

A committee representing the New York Maritime Exchange waited upon the President recently to urge a pardon for Capt. W. S. Van Schaick of the General Slocum. Capt. Van Schaick is undergoing a 10-year sentence for negligence in connection with the Slocum disaster. The committee was referred to the attorney-general for a report upon the case.

EDITORIAL.

The International Congress on Tuberculosis will meet in Washington next fall, September 21 to October 12. This will be one of the most important gatherings that has ever been held at Washington or in this country. Delegates will be present from every part of the world, from every civilized country. The greatest leaders of the present time in science and medicine will gather at Washington to discuss the subject of tuberculosis. It is to be a gathering not only of physicians, but one in which every department of the government will be represented, and one in which the laity as well as the medical profession are deeply concerned. It is quite in accord with the recent awakening of this country to the ravages which tuberculosis is doing in our midst that this Congress should be held with us this year, and we hope to demonstrate to the world that this country, which has long been the leader in industries of all kinds, is not behind in attacking a problem so important as this.

TODAY'S COURT.

The case of Louis Goodhue of Braintree for assault on Isadore Berger was continued until June 1, with the understanding that it will then be dismissed without attendance.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and trying the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O. New England Alliance.

Delegates from Quincy, Wollaston, Braintree, Randolph, Milton and Boston attended in large numbers the New England Women's Alliance at Hartford, Conn., fifty branches in all being represented by 168 delegates, and some from outside New England. There were two sessions—forenoon and afternoon—in which every minute was filled with interesting reports and excellent addresses. Mrs. Atherton of Boston presided. Addresses were made by Mr. Sunderland (an address of welcome), Mrs. Low of Brooklyn, the national president, Mrs. Davis of New York, the national secretary, Mrs. Fiffeld and Miss Lillian Freeman Clarke of Boston, Mrs. Keyes of Concord, Mass., Mrs. Noyes of Mattapan, Mass., Miss E. M. Foster of Cambridge, Mass., the president of the Women's Missionary Association of the Universalist church, Mrs. Sunderland, and others. The meeting was a great success in every way.

High School Concert.

The announcement that the annual High school concert will be held at Quincy Music hall came as a surprise, but the facts are that no more public gatherings can be held in the school hall until certain changes are made which will make it safe in case of emergency. The law was passed some time ago by the State inspectors, but now they say the exits must be wider, and some other changes. It may not be possible to hold the graduation exercises there next month.

Fortunately, however, Music hall is better adapted to a large audience which is expected at the concert next Tuesday evening, when an excellent program will be presented. A Boston quartet will assist and Rossini's Stabat Mater will be presented.

—Wednesday, June 24, will be alumnae day at Wellesley college with reunions by the classes '83, '88, '93, '98, '03, '05 and '07.

The Indomitable is fitted with turbines and her contract speed is 25 knots.

St. Petersburg, May 1.—A dispatch from Tabriz states that orders have been received from Teheran to organize a force of 10,000 troops to punish the Kurds. Recently Kurdish tribes have been pillaging the villages around Urmiah, in Persia, Armenia, and, according to reports, have massacred several persons.

Rioters Killed Mayor

The judicial authorities are investigating the incident.

Japanese Cruiser Sinks With About Two Hundred Men

MAJORITY OF OFFICERS LOST

Vessel Was Flagship at Battle of the Yalu and Also Took Part in Sinking Russian Fleet—Of Class Unique to Japanese Navy

Tokio, May 1.—Cruiser Matsushima of the Japanese training squadron was sunk by an explosion off the Pescadores islands, between the west coast of Formosa and the coast of China.

The death list has not been ascertained, but according to best reports about 200 are dead. Captain Yashiro was among those lost, as were most of the officers.

Admiral Yoshimatsu's report of the disaster to the Matsushima states that it was caused by an explosion in the stock magazine at 4:08 a. m., while the Matsushima was anchored off Makanz.

The cruiser sank until only her bridge was visible above the water. Boats from other cruisers saved 141 of the crew, including some officers, but the majority of the officers perished.

It is feared that the sons of Baron Chinda, vice minister of foreign affairs, and Field Marshal Oyama, who were cadets, are among the lost.

The ill-fated Matsushima belongs to a class of three curious vessels, the others which appear to have been with her at the time of the disaster being the Itsukushima, and Hashidate, built at La Seine, France, in 1889, 1890 and 1891. They are of 4277 tons displacement and 16.7 knots speed.

They are protected cruisers, pure and simple, inasmuch as they simply have an armored deck 1 1/2 inches in thickness with a celluloid belt for protection, and 5 inches of armor protection above the engine room hatches.

The peculiarity of these little ships is in their armament, the main element of which consists of a big 12-inch Canet gun, which in its time was the most powerful weapon in existence. The gun weighs 66 tons, and fires a 990-pound shell with a velocity over 2300 feet a second, and a muzzle energy of 35,200 tons. This gun is mounted, in the case of the Matsushima, amidships, in a barbette protected by 12-inch steel armor, covered with a 4-inch hood, and communicating with the magazines by hoists protected with 12 inches of steel. In addition to this gun an intermediate battery of twelve 4.7-inch rapid-fire guns is carried in broadside. There are also four above-water torpedo tubes. The other two vessels carry the 12.5-inch gun on the forward deck, and the intermediate battery consists of eleven 4.7-inch guns.

There are no vessels in the world that compare with these rather nondescript cruisers, and it is difficult to assign them their true fighting value.

The Matsushima was the flagship of the commander of the Japanese fleet at the battle of the Yalu. She also took part in the Russo-Japanese war. She was instrumental in November of 1904 in sending three Russian torpedo boats that were attempting to escape from Port Arthur to the bottom, and was engaged in the battle of the Sea of Japan in 1905.

Honor told an investigating commission that as manager here of the Leyland steamship line Sanders had stirred up all kinds of trouble between white and negro laborers on the river front. When Sanders furnished a statement declaring Honor's testimony to be "ignorant rubbish" a challenge from Honor followed.

Stranger Misunderstood Orders

Cleveland, May 1.—A New York flyer was passing through the Erie yards and as it neared a switch where an inbound passenger train was on a siding a yard switchman called to a stranger who was standing near the switch to step back. The man understood the switchman to say "turn the switch." Grabbing the switch lever, the stranger caused the train to dash onto the siding. The baggage cars and both engines were wrecked and four persons were seriously hurt.

The Social Realm

It's little I can tell
About the birds in books;
And yet I know them well,
By their music and their looks.
When May comes down the lane,
Her hairy lovers throng
To welcome her with song,
And follow in her train:
Each minstrel weaves his part
In that wild-flowery strain,
And I know them all again
By their echo in my heart.

MAYOR UPHELD

In Removal Of C. H. Johnson From the Board Of Assessors

The supreme court handed down its decision this morning in the case of Assessor Charles H. Johnson against Mayor William T. Shea.

The court upholds the decision of Justice Rugg and dismisses the petition.

In its decision the court says: The Charter vests all executive powers with the Mayor, and while the amendment to the Charter related to the assessors in various matters, it did not strip the Mayor of his power of removal.

Mr. Johnson was removed by Mayor Shea from the Board of Assessors in February and John A. Dugan of Ward Six was appointed to fill the vacancy.

Ward, the chief ranger, and his daughter, Miss Mary Ward, led the march. They were followed by Mayor Shea and Miss Nellie Collins, David R. Wollaston Man Wins The Prize

Willard Emerson Keyes of Wollaston, Mass., was declared yesterday to be the winner of the national competition under the auspices of the Chicago Madrigal club for the best poem suitable for a madrigal composition says a dispatch to the Boston Herald. Mr. Keyes' poem, submitted under the key name of "Beranger," was entitled, "I Know the Way of the Wild Bush Rose," and was joyfully hailed by the three judges, William Morton Payne of the Dial, D. A. Clippinger, musical director of the Chicago Madrigal club and Wilbur Nesbit, a newspaper man, as a conspicuous contribution to the literature of madrigals. For its delicacy of theme, for the cumulative effect of its lines, and for its strong stimulus to the musical imagination the prize poem was declared to easily outrank its competitors.

NEW ENGLAND WOMEN

Shake Hands With President and Mrs. Roosevelt

BELONG TO WORKING CLUBS

Chief Executive Thinks Their Purpose a Happy Medium Between Drudges and Those Who Strive For Enjoyment Alone

Washington, May 2.—President Roosevelt expressed his views regarding working women's clubs in addressing 600 New England women who earn their own living and who are in Washington sight-seeing. Both President and Mrs. Roosevelt gave a cordial greeting to the workers and shook hands with them.

Incidentally it was known that the girls belonged to the National League of Women Workers, and that a convention was supposed to be in progress here. The convention, however, was left to the kindly administrations of about a score of officers. The girls were out for a good time, and they had it.

About fifty of the girls are from Boston, and another half hundred from other cities and towns of Massachusetts. The Boston delegation is headed by Miss Edith M. Howes.

The visit to the White House and the reception by the president was the greatest feature of the visit for the girls. They clutched their admission cards close to their hearts as they passed through the White House corridors.

The president made a short speech to them, in which he lauded the working girls as one of the mainstays of the country. He said:

"I would not be it to hold the position that I do hold. I would not be a good American if I did not take a peculiar interest in exactly the kind of club which is represented here today.

"I think it is highly typical of our people that we should be able to gather together in organizations for social and intellectual betterment; and interested though I am in such organizations of men, I am even more interested when they are managed by and controlled in the interest of women, and particularly working women, working girls.

"If I were asked to point out what in my judgment was the fundamental difference between the United States and any European country, even the most advanced, I should say that the fundamental difference in our favor was the different attitude taken here toward women; the greater chance that the woman has for combining with a life of duty the chance of self-improvement.

"Of course, in any movement for betterment there are always dangers. I do not know very much about women's clubs, girls' clubs, but I do about men's clubs; and thoroughly though I believe in them, I now and then meet a man who mistakes the means for the end, whose life is led as an adjunct to the club, instead of the club being an adjunct to his life.

"I suppose there are occasional instances of this kind in the women's clubs. In any movement it is always a little difficult to combine the two principles of doing your work well and yet of having as good a time as is compatible with doing your work.

"There are always a certain number of people who never try to be anything but drudges, and a certain number of others who make having a good time the be-all and end-all of life; and I think these working women's clubs strike the happy medium as well as any organizations that I know. I believe in them with all my heart."

STEEL NETS FOR WARSHIPS.

Device to Protect Vessels Against an Enemy's Torpedoes.

A successful demonstration of a steel net that will protect warships from torpedo assaults was recently held in Narragansett bay, says a Newport dispatch. Battleships of the United States navy are to be equipped with the nets at once and the cruisers and other vessels as rapidly as possible.

The test was directed by naval officers under instructions at the torpedo stations. The resistance of the nets to Whitehead torpedoes was regarded as sufficient demonstration of their utility. The result was applauded by the officers.

One of the torpedo nets which are being made for the navy was taken to the testing ground. It was held suspended by two launches, and the torpedo boat Morris was brought into action for the demonstration.

Running at full speed, the Morris fired a Whitehead torpedo within 800 yards of the net at a speed of thirty knots. The torpedo struck the net, rebounded and glanced away from the steel meshed obstruction. The net swayed and quivered under the shock, but was not damaged.

When the net was examined it was declared to be powerful enough to resist all torpedo attacks in action. It was declared that the speed of the battleship or cruiser protected by these steel vessels would not affect the resistance offered by the net.

The battleship fleet now preparing for its journey around the world may be equipped with these nets before the start for Suez.

CHANCE FOR TEACHERS.

Good Positions For Young Women Who Won't Fall in Love.

Frank R. White of the government public school service in the Philippines has come to the United States on a peculiar mission. Mr. White is in Washington to gather together about 250 men and women who are willing to go to the Philippines to become teachers. He had a conference recently with the officials of the insular bureau at the war department and will have interviews with the civil service commission in regard to selecting persons who are willing to teach.

One peculiarity about his mission is that Mr. White wants teachers who will teach the Filipinos and who will not fall in love with young army officers and government employees in the islands. The position of teachers pays from $800 to $1,500 per annum, and Mr. White is desirous of taking a majority of young men if he can get them. Mr. White has been in the school service in the Philippines for over six years. He went to the islands from Nebraska and has made a success of his work in the islands.

When he gathers together 250 teachers he will personally conduct the party to the islands and install them in their positions. He considers the male teacher more reliable from the standpoint of the matrimonial risk than the female teachers, but he is willing to try the young ladies and hopes to have a full cargo of both sexes ready to sail in a few weeks.

BAN ON "LITTLE TENTS."

Priest Bars "Merry Widow" Headgear From His Church.

"Hats with broad, spreading brims and tall, waving plumes—'little tents,' they may be called—are out of place in church."

This is the decision of the Rev. Anton Kuhls of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church in Kansas City, Kan., and he has placed a ban on "The Merry Widow" hat.

Father Kuhls believes that women can dress with taste without indulging in every fad. Last summer he barred elbow sleeves, saying their place was in the kitchen, over the washtub. The young women of his church were not surprised, therefore, when the venerable priest denounced "The Merry Widow" hats.

"Do not wear them in this church," he said. "They are out of place when worn with the crucifix. Hats with a brim spreading over two feet must not be worn. Those in the rear cannot see the sanctuary. Any one coming to church with such a hat will be requested to leave it with the sexton."

Maine's Timber Output.

The timber output of Maine last winter was 900,000,000 feet, and the indications are that these figures will be about equaled this year. The scarcity of labor prevented operations to a large degree.

Nature on the Job.

Nature's very busy now—Not much time for play. Getting ready for the plow And the planting day; Has to clear away the frost From the earth so numb; Not a moment to be lost Ere the Maytime come.

Calls the sun up earlier, Puts him hard at work. Every sunbeam is astir—Not a chance to shirk; Keeps him working later, too, In the twilight hours; For there's such a lot to do For the coming flowers.

Has to fold up all the wraps Winter's left around; Cages the vagrant, chilly snags That would freeze the ground; Has to wake up all the bees, Start the leaves along; Get up breakfast for the bees—Pretty hungry throng!

Make things ready for the birds, Who have started north, And the grass for grazing herds Must be sprouting forth. Nature's quite the busiest Worker far and near—Must have ready all her best When the May is here!

NO POSITIVE DENIAL

Reports That Grover Cleveland
Is In Critical Condition

FAMILY DOCTOR IS RETICENT

Says That Patient Is "All Right," but Will Not Deny That He Suffers From Cancer—Mrs. Cleveland Has
"Nothing to Say"

New York, May 2.—Considerable anxiety was occasioned by widely circulated rumors that the condition of former President Grover Cleveland, who has been ill for several weeks at a hotel in Lakewood, N. J., had assumed a grave phase and that slight hopes were entertained of his recovery.

The Evening World gave prominence to reports current at the offices of the Equitable Life Assurance society, of which Mr. Cleveland is a voting trustee, that the former president's physician had diagnosed his illness as cancer of the stomach and had decided that there was no hope of the distinguished patient's recovery.

Positive denial of these statements was not obtainable. Dr. Joseph D. Bryant, who has attended Cleveland for years, said that his patient "was all right" and that all his reports from Lakewood were favorable. In answer to a question as to whether Cleveland was suffering from cancer of the stomach, Bryant said he could not, as a physician, make public the diagnosis in the case of any of his patients. Any information on such a subject, if it were to be given to the public, should come from the family, he said.

At the Lakewood hotel it was said that Cleveland was making very satisfactory progress and it was denied that his case had assumed a serious aspect.

The rumor as to Cleveland's state of health attracted unusual attention because of the reticence observed since it became known about ten days ago that the former president had remained at Lakewood after the hotel at which he is stopping had been closed for the season.

At Lakewood several efforts were made to secure an authorized statement regarding Cleveland's illness from the hotel authorities, or through them a statement from Mrs. Cleveland, but the same answer, "nothing to say," was all that was given, though several inquiries were made.

Some of the friends of the former president, who have seen Mrs. Cleveland, say that she has stated to them that there is nothing serious the matter with her husband, but they also say that she appears much worried regarding his condition.

It is known in Lakewood that as yet no local physician or additional nurses have been called into the case, and Dr. Bryant only visits Cleveland every other night.

Evidence Against Paper Combine

Washington, May 2.—Testifying before the house select committee on wood pulp and paper investigation, Merrill McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, said that, although he had a five-year contract, with one year yet to run, with the International Paper company, the price had been raised from $1.85 per 100 to $2.20. Further evidence was submitted in support of the claim that there is a combination or agreement in restraint of trade among the several groups of papermakers.

Stock Wrongfully Used

Hartford, May 2.—Frederick L. Bishop of this city, whose preferred United States Steel stock has been located at a trust company in New York, where it is said to have been put up as collateral by the firm of T. A. McIntyre & Co., which suspended recently, has been working hard to locate the securities. He sent seventy shares to McIntyre & Co. to be transferred. Bishop says that the firm had no authority or right to use the stock as collateral.

Suicide of a Banker

Manassas, N. J., May 2.—Morgan D. Magee, president of the First National Bank of Manassas, killed himself by shooting in the head while standing on a dyke in the Manassas inlet. When his death became known the bank closed its doors. Magee is said to have worried over the health of a son and some personal investments.

Woman Burned to Death

Ware, Mass., May 2.—Mrs. Owen Tiffany, aged 60, was fatally burned by the explosion of a kerosene lamp. It is not known just how the accident occurred, as there was no one in the house at the time but her invalid husband, who was upstairs. The body was discovered by her daughter when she returned home.

To Wed at 73

Portsmouth, N. H., May 2.—Thomas Bradley of Newburyport, who is nearly 73 years of age, is soon to take for a bride Bertha Hatch of Springvale, Me. Bradley, with his wife-to-be, called at city hall and got a marriage license, but declined to say when and where the ceremony would take place.

Actor Uses Pistol on Self

Middletown, N. Y., May 2.—James H. Wallick, a former actor and owner of the play "The Bandit King," committed suicide in a hotel in this city by shooting. Wallick owned a farm in Middletown.

Welcoming
a Wife.

By Lulu Johnston.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Little Miss Merrington hurried from the postoffice clutching tightly the precious letter the clerk had just handed her. She had not needed to glance at the foreign stamp to tell that it was from Harvey Rial. The clear, bold handwriting of the address had told her that before the letter had been removed from the box in which it lay, together with the local paper.

There was a flush on the kindly little face not due to the spring breezes, but to the hope which had risen in her heart. Twenty years before she and Harvey Rial had been engaged to be married. A lovers' quarrel and pride too stubborn to confess fault had resulted in Rial's marriage to Margaret Bond.

Then Miss Merrington had settled herself uncomplainingly to a life of spinsterhood, rejoicing that her father's provision for her future did not make it necessary for her to marry in order to find a home and taking pleasure in the hundred little acts of kindness which had made "Little Miss Merrington" a village institution.

All too soon Rial had discovered his error. His new idol's feet had turned to clay. Margaret's tongue was as sharp as her face was fair, and, with stoic resignation, Harvey Rial had settled himself to lifelong penance for his error.

The thought gave him and Miss Merrington something in common, and, though neither ever alluded to the matter, there was a silent bond of companionship that was none the less sweet because it found no expression in act or word.

Now, then, two years had passed since Margaret had died, and Rial had taken his son to Europe in the hope that travel might benefit his health. Since then letters had come by every steamer—not the romantic epistles of youth, but entertaining stories of travel, infused with a tender sentiment that was implied rather than expressed. There was always the note of longing for home, with a hint that he wished Miss Merrington to share home with him.

The last letter had told that Ralph was well enough to return, and it was probable that the letter she now softly patted in her pocket would name his date of sailing.

Miss Merrington hurried into the neat "front room" and with trembling fingers slit the cover.

"I've told you all there is to tell about London," wrote Rial. "This is just to say that I am sailing tomorrow. We are taking a ten day boat for the sake of the sea air, and this letter goes by one of the liners. And now for the surprise I promised in my last. I am bringing home a bride. May I not ask you to see that the old house is opened and made fit to receive her? We should be in Fairlands five days after you receive this. That should give you plenty of time to prove yourself the model housekeeper. I leave all the arrangements to you, dear friend, and I know that nothing will be left undone to make welcome the new Mrs. Rial. I will tell you all about it when I arrive."

That was all, scarcely a page of the familiar handwriting, but the light died in Miss Merrington's eyes, and the beauty of the spring day faded.

For an hour or more she sat quietly in her chair, the letter in her lap untouched. She had felt sure that when the time came Harvey would speak the words that should make her the happiest little woman in all the world, and now he had married another, some foreign woman whose youth and beauty had proved a subtle attraction.

She could not altogether blame him. She was forty. No man would care to marry a woman past her prime. It was but natural that he should seek some younger woman.

And yet had Miss Merrington faced the tall pier glass standing between the front windows she would have found reflected there a face unmarked by lines of care, but lighted by the glow of earnest brown eyes.

She had scarcely lost her youth in the placid, helpful life she led. Her cheeks were still smooth and unwrinkled, tinted as softly as the petals of a blush rose. Her hair was soft and brown, with never a hint of gray. The sensitive, tender mouth with its constant smile was as appealing as a child's, a mouth surely made for kisses.

The gray maid with her announcement of the noon dinner brought Miss Merrington back to earth. The letter she tucked in her pocket, and as she ate her simple meal she planned the work that must be done to make the big Rial house habitable and homelike in spite of its two untenant years.

Once every week in all that time she had gone to see that all was well, but now that it was to be opened there was much to be done. In work she would find forgetfulness of her disappointment.

At least she would not fail her old friend.

Five days later Rial came. Miss Merrington was at the station platform to greet him, and many curious, half pitying glances were turned upon her as Harvey tenderly assisted down the steps of the chair car the slender form of a woman younger even than his son. All the town knew of this old love affair.

"Ralph stopped in New York to look after a business matter," Rial explained when greetings were over and the three were comfortably disposed in the solitary village hack. "Maida was impatient to see her American home, so we pressed on."

"The house looks very well, if I do say it myself," said Miss Merrington complacently. "I'm sure that Mrs. Rial will like it here."

"It is a lovely town," said the girl impulsively. "I was so afraid that I should not like it."

"Maida imagined that we lived on a prairie and had buffalo and Indians running about," explained Rial. "She wanted to carry a revolver in her hand bag, but I talked her out of it."

Miss Merrington laughed at the conceit, but her heart gave a throb as Rial leaned across to playfully pat the girl's cheek. She was glad that the arrival at the house prevented further demonstration.

Maida was profuse in her praise of the place, and she would not rest content until she had explored every nook and cranny. Not until then was she ready to retire to her room and remove the signs of travel, leaving Miss Merrington free to see that the table was properly set for dinner.

She had slipped out into the garden for some early flowers and was arranging these in a vase when Rial came into the room and with a happy laugh tilted up her dimpled chin and planted a kiss upon her smiling lips.

Miss Merrington started back, with a little cry of pain.

"Is this the way you seek to repay me?" she cried, with flashing eyes. "A new wife in the house just half an hour, and you—you kissed me."

"I could not help it, sweetheart!" cried Rial. "It's so good to be back home after two years in hotels, and you are a part of that home. Will you forgive me, dear, and promise always to be a part of my home?"

Miss Merrington gazed at Rial with dumb anguish in her eyes. Then slowly she turned away to where the French windows gave upon the piazza. With a few quick steps Rial reached her.

"Forgive me, dear, for tormenting you!" he cried. "It was a mean thing to do, but I was only taking a leaf from your own book of the past and proving that jealousy sometimes leads to love. That was why I did not tell you that Maida is Mrs. Ralph Rial."

"Your daughter-in-law and not your wife?"

"I didn't say whose bride I was bringing home," he confessed. "I felt that if you cared you would show it. You do care, don't you, Dorothy?"

The use of the old name broke down Miss Merrington's last barrier of pride. Unresisting, she let him take her in his arms, and it was thus that Maida found them as she came running into the room.

"Now it's perfect!" cried the girl, with a quick appreciation of the situation. "The only thing the dear old house lacked was a mother to welcome the bride, and now—"

"And now the welcome is complete," finished Rial, with his vibrant laugh, as he bent to kiss the soft brown hair.

Told Stanley All About It.

During Stanley's last stay in London he was present one evening at a very swell affair, and the attention paid to him was so annoying that he was delighted when he had an opportunity of slipping away unnoticed. He found a quiet corner in the smoking room and was enjoying a cigar when a spruce young fellow, who, it turned out, was a lieutenant in the navy, came up.

To Stanley's surprise, the lieutenant began to tell him all about Africa, and it soon became evident that he did not know he was talking to the great explorer.

Other listeners strolled in, and pretty soon there was quite a crowd listening to the young man telling the most astonishing things about the dark continent, the Kongo, the shire district, the native races, and so on.

At first Stanley endeavored to correct his mistakes, but the lieutenant knew better, and so he permitted him to talk on. Finally this extraordinary and laughable scene was brought to a conclusion by one of the guests saying:

"But, Mr. Stanley, you told us—"

"Stanley!" cried the lieutenant. "Is this Stanley, the African explorer?"

"Certainly," was the reply. The lieutenant gave one look around, tried to speak, flushed scarlet and then dashed out of the room, followed by a roar of laughter, in which even Stanley joined.

She Was a Joke.

"I have just had a peculiar experience," said a middle aged matron, "that it may be well for others to know. A week ago, while in the parlor of a department store, a refined looking woman came to me in agitation, announced that she had lost her purse and asked me to accommodate her with a little change, which she would return the next day. She carried several parcels. I gave her, I think, 54 cents—all the change I had—and we exchanged cards."

"Yesterday while downtown I was attracted to a crowd on the corner, in the center of which was a woman announcing excitedly that she had been robbed and asking for some small sum to get home. The coincidence impressed me, as I had not heard from my borrower. I handed this woman a dollar. She boarded a northbound Sixth avenue car, I followed. In the neighborhood of Bryant square she got off. So did I. She entered an ice cream parlor. A moment later I entered."

"The woman was there. So was the other woman of a week ago, and they were together and laughing over what appeared to be a good joke. Apparently I was the joke."—New York Globe.

Hard Enough.

"I contend," said the lawyer for the defense, "that a tomato, however well aimed, could not have caused a black eye."

Program Worthy
Of Symphony Hall

The High School chorus has been very fortunate in procuring the assistance of Mrs. Jeannie Crocker Follett, soprano; Mrs. Marguerite Guenberger, alto; Mr. Ray Finel, tenor and Mr. A. R. Frank, bass, to sing the solo parts of Rossini's Stabat Mater which will be accompanied by the High School orchestra, Miss Minnie Louise Hildebrand at the piano.

The program will be divided into two parts, the first part will be rendered by the orchestra and the quartet, while the second part will be the famous Stabat Mater, written by the great Italian composer, Gioacchino Rossini, and sung for the first time by a High School chorus.

This promises to be the leading musical event of the season and from the present indications Music hall will be filled to overflowing, next Tuesday evening, when our musical High school boys and girls make their bow to the public of Quincy with a program worthy of Symphony hall, Boston.

Reception at Woodward

The reception given by the junior class of the Woodward Institute to the senior class at Woodward last Tuesday evening was a very pretty affair. From 8 to 8:30 there was a reception at which members of the junior class acted as ushers.

In the receiving line were: Miss Helen H. Clifton and Miss Grace L. Burke, of the faculty; Miss Marion E. Thomas, secretary of the senior class; Miss Annie W. Ward, president, and Miss Mary E. McGrath, secretary of the junior class.

Dancing followed until 10:30. During the evening Miss Signe Wilbas and Miss Helena Johanson served punch.

A May Basket.

One of the Sunday school classes of the First Presbyterian church, of which Miss Isabelle Michael is teacher, gave one of its members, Miss Evelyn McLeod who has been ill for a long time, a pleasant surprise last evening, by calling at her home on Rodman street and presenting her with a large May basket well filled with fruit and candy and a beautiful book. At Easter she was remembered by them with a beautiful azalea. Evelyn has been a member of this class for sometime and although not able to attend, she is never forgotten. The members of the class are: Ethel Ellis, Ruth McCullough, Helen Kenn, Maggie Kelman, Ellen Joss, Huena McLeod and Marion Chalmers.

Young Lady Missionary.

The St. Paul's Swedish M. E. church are pleased to have as a speaker at the Sunday services Miss Winnie Mildred Gabrielson of Nebraska, the young daughter of the presiding elder of the Western Swedish conference. She is a representative of the foreign missionary society and has a message for all the Swedish people of Quincy. She will speak at the service at 10:30 A. M., the session of the Sunday school, the Young People's meeting at 6:30, and the evening service at 7:30. All are invited.

Woodward Honors.

The graduation honors at the Woodward Institute have been awarded. The valedictorian is Miss Helen Fitz Gerald and the salutatorian, Miss Marion Johnson. The graduation exercises will be held Wednesday, June 17. The valedictorian is but fourteen years of age.

—It is reported that Chelsea assessors will assess money received from insurance companies for property destroyed.

—The May breakfast in Lynn netted $1000. Nearly 4000 attended and were served at 25 cent per plate.

Members of the Quincy Women's club are reminded of the extra meeting at the clubhouse on Tuesday afternoon, under the auspices of the Philanthropy committee. The meeting is for social intercourse; a getting together in a neighborly way and becoming acquainted, so each is asked to wear her visiting card. There with its thrifty poplar trees, shrubs will be an entertainment and tea. Members are also asked to bring their thimble as there is work to be done for Chelsea.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Harper of Syracuse, New York, have been spending a week at Walpole at Mrs. Harper's former home. So brief was their stay they were unable to visit among Quincy friends.

A May party dance was given at Colonial hall last evening by the Isabelle Davis Dramatic club matronized by Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Saville. May baskets were given as cotillion favors and the electric lights were covered with pink shades, which looked like inverted May baskets. It was a very pretty affair and thoroughly enjoyed by the young people.

Mrs. Harry Read of Squantum street received a cable this week from Mr. Read who is in Jamaica, stating his improvement in health and his intention to remain another week.

Mrs. Alice M. Granger of Randolph State regent of Massachusetts and a member of Adams chapter of this city, was this week elected one of the board of nine managers of the General Society Daughters of the Revolution.

Mr. Horace Frederick Spear of Hancock street is enjoying a spring trip to Washington, D. C.

Mr. Andrew H. Wilken of Brookline and Miss Della May Hagan of Brockton were married in Braintree on Wednesday, April 29, by Rev. Frederick R. Griffin, minister of All Souls' church. Mr. and Mrs. Wilken will reside on Union street, opposite the end of Cleveland avenue, Braintree.

Miss Estelle Robinson entertained the Puritana Whist club of Weymouth on Wednesday evening at her apartments at the Quincy Women's clubhouse, Presidents hall.

A very lovely birthday luncheon was given Friday by Mrs. James Henry Stetson in honor of her mother Mrs. Maria Demuth, who makes her home with her. Covers were laid for twelve, about the daintily appointed table which was beautifully decorated with marguerites and Mayflowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boyce returned Monday from a winter spent in the South. They were accompanied by their daughter, Mrs. Hallett, who will pass the summer in Braintree.

Miss Ellen Lassen, formerly of East Braintree, now of East Weymouth, is to sail in the near future for Copenhagen and return with her mother, who is there on a visit. Her friends wish her a pleasant voyage.

Have Faith in Truth.

Have faith in truth. Once it slept in the cradle of a creed, but now, awake, grown strong, vital, dynamic, it walks and works in the open. In the open you meet it face to face, and behold its form in the sunlight. It is able to stand and withstand. It speaks to you from the common thing. It proves its assertion by the present fact. It asks no favors, shuns no criticisms, dodges no doubts. It is willing to meet all, and to demonstrate its fact by its force. Whatever fails and falls is not truth.—Truth is invincible. Have faith in it!—All Souls' Church, Braintree

At Atlantic

The body of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Sawyer, mother of ex-Councilman George F. Sawyer, Jr., was found dead this morning in the old slate quarry off Billings street, Norfolk Downs. Mrs. Sawyer, who has been in poor health for some time, left home Friday afternoon for a walk. Late in the evening when she did not return home her family became alarmed and began a search for her. It was learned that she had left the drug store on the corner of Hancock street and Billings road shortly after 2 o'clock, and had started down Billings road toward home on Faxon road. Here all trace of her was lost. Shortly before 6 o'clock this morning, Alexander McDonald in passing the old slate quarry saw the body of a woman floating on the water. The police were notified, and aid summoned, and the body taken from the water. It proved to be that of Mrs. Sawyer.

It is thought that Mrs. Sawyer in walking toward her home got too near the edge of the quarry and losing her balance fell in. No one was near to assist her and she was drowned. She was 59 years of age.

Mrs. Sawyer resided at Chelsea until about five weeks ago, when she came to live with her son. She leaves a husband, four sons and two daughters.

Forestry Meeting.

The Civic committee of the Quincy Women's club hopes to have Mr. Enos A. Mills speak at the club house some evening this month when men will be invited to be present as well as club members. Letters have passed back and forth between Mrs. Whitcher and the government and it is hoped they will allow Mr. Mills to come to Quincy.

Enos A. Mills of the United States Forestry service is responsible to a certain degree, says the Boston Record, for the commendable interest the club women of the country are taking in the preservation of forests.

Mr. Mills has talked on the subject before many large clubs throughout the United States, and his address about a year ago at a Massachusetts federation meeting was very much enjoyed.

He believes the forestry question to be the most important one before the people of the United States.

"For 20 years I have heard the call of the wild from the mountains and forests of the west," he said. "I have visited the silent places, alone and unarmed, in the flowers and in the snow. Intense and happy days and weeks I have had, with only bark and berries to eat. But what did eating matter? The world was young; the pines were my friends; life out with nature is always great. I know what it is to be alone with the moon upon a high peak. I know the magic spell that holds the lonely wayfarer when on a still night he feels the touch of the summer air while the leaves rustle and listen in the moonlight. * * * Throughout the ages, the trees have been our friends, and in the future's golden days we must be their friends."

Your Kitchen

It is wonderfully convenient to do kitchen work on a stove that's ready at the instant wanted, and out of the way the moment you're done. Such a stove is the New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove. By using it you avoid the continuous overpowering heat of a coal fire and cook with comfort, even in dog-days. The

NEW PERFECTION

is so constructed that it cannot add perceptibly to the heat of a room; the flame being directed up a retaining chimney to the stove top where it is needed for cooking. You can see that a stove sending out heat in but one direction would be preferable on a hot day to a stove radiating heat in all directions. The "New Perfection" keeps a kitchen uniformly comfortable. Three sizes, fully warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

Officers Haley and Patterson of Milton captured two burglars red handed early this morning. It was shortly before 4 o'clock when the officers saw two men walking toward Boston. The two were carrying large bags, and the officers immediately held them up. The bags when opened at the police station contained 38 dead hens and one dead duck, and three live hens. In their pockets were several percussion caps and some fish lines and hooks.

The men, who gave their names as Tony Nicoli and Alonzo Salvatore, were locked up as suspicious characters. This morning Lorenzo Gorella of 4 Bryant avenue, West Quincy, when visiting his hen house found that it had been entered during the night, and 41 hens and a duck stolen. This corresponded with the number found in possession of the two men under arrest.

A little later word was received from William Clark, the East Milton newsdealer, that his store had been entered during the night and a quantity of percussion caps and some fish lines and hooks stolen. These also corresponded with the articles found in the possession of the two men arrested.

They were brought to Quincy and arraigned upon two complaints for breaking and entering and larceny. They were sentenced to a year each in the house of correction for the larceny of hens, and held for the grand jury on the charge of breaking and entering.

Col. John Quincy Paper No 1 Of Quincy Historical Society

To supplement the good work being done by the Quincy Historical Society in honoring the founders of Quincy, the Daily Ledger will print in full the excellent papers presented at the meeting of the society on Tuesday, April 28. The first, on "Col. John Quincy," appears today written by Mrs. Wilson Marsh, which shows careful research for our eponym. During next week two other papers will be printed, one about the middle of the week on "John Hancock," the other Saturday on "Abigail Adams," with others to follow.

"Col. John Quincy Esq., the man whom Quincy delighted to honor in taking his name, in 1792, when he town was incorporated, and then straightway forgot what manner of man he was.

Those who have read the "Three Episodes of Massachusetts History," have seen the stone marking his grave in the old cemetery placed there by the Quincy Historical Society, have seen the tablet to his memory within the church and have heard Mr. Wilson's anniversary address, know the result of research during the last few years to restore to honor the man so neglected, but not quite forgotten.

How true, in his case, that the good men do is oft interred with their bones! For though his name is thus perpetuated, and also caught up and carried forward, like a torch in the hand of a runner, by naming the great grandson who was born as Col. Quincy lay dying, John Quincy Adams, yet the light of this man's character, who "in all points proved himself the faithful public servant, had well-nigh gone out. It remains for this day and generation to enlighten itself and preserve the few records that remain.

There may be those who regret that he was not Quincy-born, for in 1689, the year of his birth, his father, Daniel, was a goldsmith in Boston. But the mere incident of birth in this place or that place, matters little, unless it be a daughter who wishes to attend the Woodward Institute.

Being a boy and born in Boston did not blight his future career in Braintree, for

were Braintree-born and reared. Both their life-work and his was done in and for the town in which Edmund Quincy, his great grandfather, was an original proprietor, sharing with Coddington the large grant of land at Mount Wollaston.

It was in Braintree, (now Quincy) in the Quincy mansion by the brook, that the second Edmund Quincy and the second Joanna Hoar, his grandparents, lived, and there his father was born. It was in Braintree that his mother Anna or Hannah Sheppard was born, and it was through her that the Quincys came to their own again at Mount Wollaston—for Judith, the young widow of the first Edmund had not the means to maintain her estate, so Captain Tyng, the richest merchant of Boston bought it. His daughter married Thomas Sheppard of Braintree, and she bequeathed the Mount Wollaston property to her grandson, John Quincy. Thus the combined Braintree ancestry and inheritance came full circle when, in 1709, John Quincy arriving at his majority settled on his paternal great grandfather's estate kept for him by his maternal grandmother.

His father died the year after his birth, and with or without a scholarship, I know not, he went to college. He was a Harvard graduate of the class of 1708. One would like to know of his

COLLEGE DAYS.

His mother lived until the year he graduated from Harvard but had married again, the Rev. Moses Fiske. One imagines it was thus that John was introduced into ministerial circles, for he took a minister's daughter to wife in 1715. Elizabeth, daughter of Rev. John Norton of Hingham, to whom he gave a fitting bride's present, a Psalm-book covered with Turkey-leather, brought him from Boston by Judge Sewall.

In 1716, he built a house at Mount Wollaston which stood until 1852. In this house, John Quincy entertained his Boston friends who came across the bay in boats. Here were tea-drinking, and there are stories of strawberry parties on Half Moon water long enough for a rawberries island, for then it stayed above tide to grow.

Here, as well as at the other Quincy Mansion by the brook, Judge Sewall may have stopped on his way through the town, for in 1719 he writes, "I set out for Scituate with Scipio. Called at Cousin Quincy's and ate there; had oats for the horses." At another date, "Drunk at Col. Quincy's which much refreshed me." It may have been only tea!

Gaining dignity from marriage and from becoming a householder, he was in 1716, chosen Moderator at town meeting. He must have presided well, for the very next year Major John Quincy, Esq., was chosen Representative.

Then began for him no two-year term with a possible third, but

FORTY YEARS.

In all, twenty-two of consecutive service, and for ten consecutive years, Speaker of the House. "In consideration of his constant application in dispatching the Public affairs of the Province," it was voted the Honorable John Quincy, 4 shillings per day. Was that dollar-a-day a munificent salary for those days?

During this time John Quincy was also major and colonel in the Suffolk militia; was Moderator for years and years of every Braintree town meeting; was a leading man in the church, served as school committee the only time in the early days that the schools were taken out of the hands of the Selectmen and was guardian twenty years of the Puncapauge (Ponkapoag) Indians.

He had, too, troubles of his own, for it was not all smooth sailing in this long career of public service. One, Joseph Gooch, intrigued against him in the militia and though John Adams refused to disclaim a captaincy offered by Gooch, yet there were others not so loyal to Col. Quincy, and he was superseded.

THE INDIANS.

Also there was trouble over the "pest from Ponkapoag," for though the Indians were necessitated to pray for the assistance of Major John Quincy, Esq., for protection from the English neighbors who were "damning them greatly," there was, later, a complaint concerning the non-payment of interest money, and concerning the inferior quality of food and clothing furnished them by their guardians. This time a committee of investigation cleared "Col. John Quincy, Esq." of all charges which, they found to be the work of some malicious person who had suffered in suit at law and been compelled to pay interest money.

I have seen the only papers in John Quincy's hand writing that I know of. They are two accounts of this Indian fund, in which appear the names of Samuel Savel, George Wadsworth, John Spear, Thomas Sheppard, Gregory Baxter and William Spear, as borrowers of this money, which resulted from the sale of Indian lands, the interest of which being used to care for their poor and needy.

Col. Quincy finally asked to be relieved of this charge, because of distance from them. In 1748 the court accepted his final accounting of 636 pounds, 15s, 6d, and he was relieved.

After his retirement at Mount Wollaston, he still showed keen interest in public affairs, for John Adams finds "the old gentleman inquisitive about the hearing 'when he goes to Grandfather Quincy's

on Christmas Day, 1765.

His life closed in 1767 with that of the Provincial Period of which his career was typical. "He was," says Charles Francis Adams, "a good specimen of the sturdy, commonsensical, high-toned class of English gentlemen, born at a time when the stage was small and the atmosphere icy." One might add, there were no footlights.

The portrait of a great man may be a precious inheritance or of little value. It all depends upon the mental picture engraved by the man's character in the mind of the beholder. The only picture of John Quincy remaining to us, is a child's portrait by an unknown artist. If it serve to remind us of the man's sterling worth; of his broad interest in all the vital questions concerning his day and generation, and of his willing ability to serve that day and generation, faithfully to the fullest extent of his power, it will be well for us to look often and long upon this "counterfeit presentment" of the child John Quincy.

For "the child is father to the man," and "he was a man, take him for all in all. We shall not look upon his like again."

BRAINTREE.

One of the most successful and interesting events of the school year for the Noah Torrey school was the mothers' meeting held at the building on Thursday afternoon, April 30. More than fifty mothers and others interested in the school and children, came to the school in the afternoon and visited the different rooms where they had an opportunity to see the regular work of the school. Among the visitors were Superintendent of Schools J. C. Anthony, Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern, chairman; Mrs. Carrie F. Loring of the school committee, and Mr. E. J. Edmunds of Boston.

Rev. Frederick G. Merrill of the Pilgrim church, North Weymouth, preached on Sunday morning at Union church in exchange with the pastor. He spoke with animation and held the attention of his hearers as his address was delivered without notes.

In connection with the monthly parish supper in the South Congregational church, next Wednesday, there will be a very unusual entertainment. The president of the Audubon Society, Boston, and the State Ornithologist, Mr. E. H. Forbush, will give his beautifully illustrated lecture on "Wild Birds, their Haunts and Habits." The lecture will be replete with stories and experiences of birds in their native woods that will be interesting and instructive.

Mrs. R. F. Burleigh of Washington street attended the convention of the Federation of Women's clubs held at Hudson this week. The Philergians were very glad to have Mrs. Burleigh serve as a delegate.

The many friends of Amasa S. Thayer of Washington street are very sorry to learn of his serious illness. He is ill again with pneumonia and at last accounts was reported to be as comfortable as could be expected under the circumstances.

Rev. C. F. H. Crathern officiated at the funeral of Mrs. Edward Pratt, which was held from the residence of Laban Pratt of Dorchester. Mrs. Pratt was formerly a resident of this town.

The Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern and son Charles, take their annual tramp today over the Blue Hills with the Appalachian Mountain club. The party starts in at the West Quincy entrance to the reservation and makes a bee line from Rattle Snake Crag to Big Blue, climbing all the intervening peaks.

There will be a Salvation Army meeting in the chapel at Mayflower Park next Wednesday evening at eight o'clock. Army from Boston will conduct the meeting.

Hollis C. Rand returned this Saturday morning brown as a berry, from a long health trip to Florida and Cuba.

At the meeting on Monday evening of the Royal White Sox, the entire team was measured for their new uniforms. They will be ready in about two weeks.

Our popular advertiser, Col. Henry L. Kincaide, has had extensive alterations made on his place in Quincy, adding among other things, a porch. In the garage he has all the modern appliances not the least of which is a turn table and a chauffeur's room, well appointed. The plans were drawn and the work supervised by F. Edgar Norris.

At the benefit given Thursday evening in Town hall for Mrs. Edward M. Flynn, scores of her friends were present to enjoy the concert and dance. Cuff's orchestra rendered several selections followed by clog dancing by Dan Devine with Charles Pace, accompanist; solo by Mrs. Cooke, song and dance, Charles Pace, solo by Miss Helen Galloway, and last, "little but oh my" Jack Keating with his songs and monologue. Jack came and went many times before the audience was satisfied. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour.

About fifty of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Price tendered them a surprise party at their home on Elmwood Park, Wednesday evening, it being the occasion of the fifth anniversary of their marriage. They were the recipients of many handsome gifts. Vocal and instrumental music, games and readings constituted the evening's entertainment. The members of the choir of the Baptist church attended and gave selections, and there were vocal solos by Mrs. Eva Baker and Percy Forsythe Baker.

Mr. C. O. Miller's new bungalow is fast approaching completion. The large chimney with open fire-place of natural colored brick was built by Mr. F. O. Whitmarsh. The wires for electric lighting are installed. The grounds are being graded and put in order, giving to the place a most attractive appearance.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Summers and family have returned from New York, and have opened their summer home on Norfolk road.

Dr. William Gallagher of Thayer Academy, Mrs. Gallagher and little Rebecca are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Sheppard of Quincy avenue this week. Everyone is rejoiced that they have recovered so well from the attack of diphtheria. Their home at South Braintree has been fumigated and disinfected in a most thorough manner.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Perry, corner Union and Commercial streets, have moved to Maine. They have lived here for years where Mr. Perry was a successful fish-dealer and proprietor of the fish market between Washington and Norfolk squares. At one time he was captain of his own schooner and was familiar with the coasting trade. Their friends and associates wish them a pleasant journey and will miss them for they were genial neighbors.

METHODS OF CABRERA

Have Brought About a Serious Situation in Guatemala

BACKING HONDURAN REBELS

Influential Persons in Guatemala City Wrongfully Executed After Spending Year in Dungeon—Row is Also on With Uruguay

Panama, May 2.—It is reported that Honduras is concentrating her forces on the Guatemalan frontier. Passengers who have arrived here recently from Guatemala say that a revolution was being planned against the Honduran government by General Vasquez, ex-president of Honduras, who is supposed to have the support of Guatemala. This they say, was the reason why Senor Bustillos, finance minister of Honduras, was sent on a special confidential mission to President Cabrera of Guatemala, and why Cabrera, instead of treating with Bustillos, practically imprisoned him in Guatemala City.

After the last war with Nicaragua, Honduras was left entirely disarmed, and should the reports of the Honduran military movements prove true it is supposed that Nicaraguans and Salvadoreans have furnished her with munitions of war.

The situation in Guatemala is reported to be exceedingly critical. The passengers say that among others of the persons reported to have been executed there were Mrs. Castaneda and Mrs. Blanco and Messrs. Herrera, Trigueros, Eduardo Rubio and Antonio Rubio, all of whom belonged to prominent wealthy Central American families.

During the past year all these persons had been incommunicado in the dungeons of the penitentiary in Guatemala City, and the passengers say that it was impossible for them to have participated in the recent attempt on the life of President Cabrera. They add that the executions were considered cruel and unnecessary, and that the relatives of those persons put to death, who are rich and powerful, will not rest until they have succeeded in bringing about the downfall of Cabrera.

Trouble With Uruguay

Washington, May 2.—A long cablegram from the Guatemalan foreign office has been received by Ramon Bengoechea, the charge d'affaires here, giving the government's version of the report that the Uruguayan consulate in Guatemala City had been violated by the Guatemalan authorities.

From this dispatch it appears that the government regarded the Uruguayan consul, Rafael Rodezno, as hostile to its interests; that two men alleged to have been implicated in the last attempt on President Cabrera's life were refugees in his legation; that they were examined by the authorities there, and that the government withdrew the consul's exequatur. The Guatemalan dispatch follows:

"The Uruguayan consul, Mr. Rodezno, since last year has shown himself hostile to the Guatemalan government. At the time of the attempt made against the life of the president, it became necessary to call his attention to the position he had taken in making propaganda against the government by enticing neutrals to become enemies and 'emigrados'."

"At the house of the consulate of Uruguay two of the most notorious criminals were found in hiding, armed with daggers and pistols. They were implicated in the last attempt on the life of the president on April 20 and for their capture the authorities already had given orders."

"Wishing to show special courtesy to the consul, the minister of foreign relations was present at the examination of the two men, which was held with the permission of the person in charge of the house, Mrs. Antonia Sanchez, as the consul was absent at the time. The authorities acted with the greatest courtesy. The government was compelled to withdraw the exequatur of the Uruguayan consul."

Rodezno is said to be a Honduran by birth.

Berkman Captures Socialist Meeting

New York, May 2.—Alexander Berkman, the anarchist, captured a mass meeting of Socialists in Union square and, despite the protests of the Socialist leaders who were on the speaking stand, addressed the assembled crowd. Berkman's address was brief and mild. He was warned by the police officials present, who permitted him to talk, that a fiery harangue would result in arrest.

Dormitories to Cost $120,000

Troy, N. Y., May 2.—The trustees of the Troy conference academy, the Methodist college preparatory institution at Poutney, Vt., met here and decided to replace the dormitory recently destroyed by fire with two dormitories, one for boys, and one for girls. The new buildings will cost about $60,000 each.

British Shipbuilders Locked Out

London, May 2.—The negotiations for a settlement of the shipbuilding dispute have failed again and the lockout notices issued a week ago go into effect today at all the yards of the United Kingdom. Fully a quarter of a million workmen will be directly involved.

BANK DIRECTORS IMMUNE

Errors of Judgment in the Provident Securities Failure

Boston, May 2.—"The losses in connection with the failure of the Provident Securities and Banking company were not due to negligence or inattention on the part of the company's directors, Sidney M. Hedges and William H. Brigham, but due principally to errors of judgment on the part of the two directors."

This in substance is the report filed in the supreme court by Patrick H. Cooney, who acted as master in the suit brought by Receivers Hall and Wood against Hedges and Brigham for the purpose of recovering losses sustained as the result of the management of the bank.

Mr. Cooney, after reviewing at great length the facts in the case, concludes his report by stating that, in his opinion, the plaintiffs are not entitled to recover.

Explorer Rice Returns Home

New York, May 2.—After an eighteen months' expedition in search of the source of the Orinoco river, Dr. Hamilton Rice of Boston returned here on board steamer Madeirense, from North Brazil. Rice's quest resulted in the discovery of the source of the Rio Negro river. The long exploration brought Rice far from civilization and carried him into the dangerous Venezuelan forests, whence he worked his way westward across the Andes mountains to Bogota and back again to the watershed of the Amazon.

"Only" 864 Liquor Sellers in Maine

Washington, May 2.—The statement by Representative Bartholdt before a sub-committee of the judiciary committee that there are 2500 people in Maine paying liquor tax annually was disputed by Representative Littlefield, who declared, and produced government reports to substantiate his statement, that the number is only 864. He further challenged the charge by Bartholdt that there is a great deal of drunkenness throughout Maine, despite its rigid prohibition law.

Would Suppress Bucket Shops

Washington, May 2.—Representative Gillett (Mass.) introduced a bill in congress seeking to suppress the operations of "bucket shops" throughout the United States by prohibiting the sending of telephone or telegraph messages by such concerns. The offense is made a misdemeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment, to be imposed both upon the operators of the shops and on the telegraph and telephone companies carrying their messages.

Completion of Big Subway System

New York, May 2.—Linking the island of Manhattan with practically continuous connection with all points on Long Island, the last section of the Interborough Rapid Transit company's subway system was formally opened when a subway train, bearing members of the public service commission, officials of the subway and members of the city government, ran from Brooklyn bridge station to the Flatbush station.

Train Robbers Got $600

Pittsburg, May 2.—It is pretty well established that the robbers who plundered an express car on the Pennsylvania road did not get over $600, of which $41.71 was in currency. The balance of the plunder was small packages of merchandise, presumably jewelry. Officials of the railroad company and the Adams Express company have but little more accurate information on the robbery.

Bullet Through Boy's Ear

Leominster, Mass., May 2.—John Bagley, 13 years old, was shot in the head and the police are investigating the shooting. Bagley was on a fish cart with James Regan, 14 years of age, while the driver was delivering an order. Regan says that Bagley took a 22-calibre revolver from his pocket, and while showing how it worked it went off, Bagley being shot through the left ear.

Financial Sentiment Improved

Philanthropist Takes Own Life

St. Petersburg, May 2.—Julian Bakk, the Jewish millionaire publisher of The Rech, hanged himself in the bathroom of his home here. His act was due to financial losses, which totalled $2,000,000. Bakk was a self-made man. He was a philanthropist and contributed large sums to the Jewish cause.

Five Months' Strike Ended

Philipsburg, N. J., May 2.—The weavers of the Standard silk mill have decided to declare the strike off which has been in progress here for the past five months. The weavers struck out of sympathy for four loomfixers who were discharged. Twelve hundred persons will go back to work.

TOWN HOUSEKEEPING.

Would Improve if Women Had a Finger in the Pie.

"I never knew the value of a vote in the family until I moved into the suburbs, selecting what I considered an ideally quiet location in a town that put on a good many frills," said a woman writer.

"My first experience was with street repairing authorities. I had some difficulty in placing the responsibility for the dangerous condition of the road that passed our house. At last I got the chairman of roads in the local council to say that he would see that the repairs were made. Fall and winter passed, and when spring came around nothing had been done. I sought him again, only to be put off with excuses. Finally a stranger was thrown from a bicycle almost at our door. His head was cut open on the stones of the hill and dilapidated highway, and the local hospital had to take care of him. Then I made another complaint to the leisurely road department, stating that I should sue the town for damages in case any of my family happened to be injured. The said family consisted only of myself, an aunt and a cat, but the chairman of roads did not know that. He accounted for the delay by saying that the roadmaster had long been waiting for the stone crusher to get to work in grinding stone (gravel he called it). Several weeks after this interview a very leisurely party, consisting of a small fat Irishman and several aged male citizens, went to work on the road. They put no gravel on the thoroughfare, covering up stones with earth scraped from the sides of the road. Every rain of the following summer transformed that road into a swamp, and in the following spring, with the frost coming out of the ground, we were literally wading in mire. When I protested to the chairman of the committee on roads he said very cavalierly in answer to my statement that in that town all the improvements seemed to be made in the neighborhood of the wealthy.

"Ach, it's the rich people that pays the biggest taxes!"

The Mail Delivery.

"Mail is delivered by carriers in some parts of the town, but not in ours. It wasn't any use to protest about that, but when I sent a card to the postmaster asking that all mail be forwarded to the postoffice in the next town, where it was more convenient for us to get our letters, the post card never reached its destination. At least when I inquired about it no record of its receipt was to be found. Postmasters like to have residents get their mail at the local office.

THE ROAD WAS DANGEROUS.

What Women Could Do.

"If women had a hand in the government of that prosperous town, I know that there would be mounted police to scour the outskirts on the lookout for the toughs who terrorize it and the small boys who throw stones at wind-blown empty houses and break electric light bulbs. Women who have to shop in distant parts of the town would see that the roads were good, for in stormy winter weather they are often impassable. They would insist that the snowplows did not neglect some streets in favor of others. Children who live far from the schools would be given suitable transportation in bad weather, or the town would be required to pay the fee to the nearer school in the neighboring village. A suitable gymnasium for the high school students and other accommodations would be provided for the schools. The lighting of the streets would be better, for as it is now in places lights are too far apart, and often the lights are out for a week or so at a time. The old and decrepit citizens who now re-enforce the street cleaning departments would be mercifully put into an old men's home.

"As in most suburban towns, women form the largest and the most intelligent part of the population. To see that the town is better governed and better cared for would be a public service. Women of the middle class have more leisure than men and therefore more opportunity to look after the welfare of the town. Why shouldn't they take an interest in it anyway even if they can't vote? They may find that the intelligent voters will be quite ready to back them and stir inquisitor or indifferent officeholders to do their duty. At any rate, in suburban towns I believe public affairs would be better managed if women had municipal suffrage."

BAD BREATH

"For months I had great trouble with my stomach and used all kinds of medicines. My tongue has been actually as green as grass, my breath having a bad odor. Two weeks ago a friend recommended Cascarets and I can tell you I am willing and cheerfully say that they have entirely cured me. I therefore let you know that I shall recommend them to any one suffering from such troubles." Chas. H. Halpern, 114 E. 7th St., New York, N. Y.

NEW BALL CURVES.

Latest Methods of the Pitchers to Deceive Heavy Batters.

MATHEWSON'S DRY SPITTER.

Famous Box Artist's New One May Prove a Terror to the Sluggers. Richie's Serpentine, or Skidoo, a Fooler—The Knuckle Ball.

It is no longer enough for the baseball twirler to have old fashioned curves and shoots in his repertory. The spit ball showed what could be done with a sphere. This delivery made Chesbro of the New York Americans one of the greatest pitchers in the country for several seasons; it brought to life Harry Howell of the St. Louis Americans, a back number, and placed him among the most dreaded fingers in the business; it put men like Lieb-

HOW RICHIE HOLDS HIS SERPENTINE, OR SKIDOO.

hardt of the Cleveland Americans into fast company; it made the way of the batter far harder than it had been before.

Derision greeted the spit ball when it first was suggested, but the men who have to face it no longer smile. And, with this experience in view, there is no longer a shout of laughter when a new wrinkle is proposed by some pitcher with an investigating turn of mind.

In the hunt for pitching novelties two of the Philadelphia National league club twirlers are taking a leading part.

More's knuckle ball is a most difficult shot to throw. The pitcher requires a big hand, for he must be able to take a powerful grip on the sphere while holding it between his thumb and third and fourth fingers, his two other fingers being bent so that only the knuckles come in contact with it. The ball is thrown with moderate speed and acts like a spit ball. Instead of curving, however, it falls downward suddenly and heavily. Even when it is hit the ball does not travel far. More tried his knuckle ball last year with excellent results.

He has better control of it than ever this year, and Manager Murray expects him to be one of the winning pitchers of the league.

Pitcher Richie's serpentine or skidoo curve is delivered with the ball held somewhat loosely in the hand, the thumb and third finger almost circling it. The ball comes up to the plate straight, but bends away delusively, somewhat after the fashion of Christy Mathewson's "fade away."

If the curve works all right, Richie says, no batter who faces him will have a higher average than .023.

Christy Mathewson of the New York Nationals has a new pitching delivery. Matty calls his new freak ball the "spitless spitter," for he does not moist-ten the ball, yet it breaks like a spitter. He used it in a recent game, and, though it was simply an experiment, it fooled several batters.

The "dry spitter" differs radically from the common spit ball not only because the sphere is not moistened, but because it is a slow instead of a fast ball. Speed and a quick break have been the essential qualities of the damp deliveries, but Matty throws his deliver without any effort. In the recent game the ball floated up to the plate without any force behind it, and just as the batter would take a healthy swing at it the sphere would suddenly waver and drop dead into the catcher's mitt. It was like a piece of paper fluttering along and encountering a puff of wind from the opposite direction.

Trotter Trampast, 2:12/4. Trampast, 2:12/4, is in grand condition at Pekin, Ill. He recently weighed 1,045 pounds and measured 15.2. Matt Williams will be his trainer, notwithstanding all reports to the contrary.

Pacer Brenda Yorke, 2:08 3/4. Brenda Yorke, 2:08 3/4, queen of three-year-old pacing fillies, is in splendid condition and will be hard to beat this year.

CONFESSES TO HOLDUPS.

Alleged Partner of Desperado Who Was Killed Is Captured.

Boston, May 2.—Officer Cavagnaro of the Hanover street station arrested Luigi Arulia, 29, an alleged member of the gang of desperadoes who have been operating in the vicinity of Swampscott, one of whom died at Lynn.

It is stated that when confronted by the evidence that the police had, the man confessed to his part of the series of crimes that have been perpetrated in that district. His confession has cleared up the mystery which surrounded the stabbing of Michael Imperial in the Swampscott woods a week ago, from the effects of which wounds he died in the Lynn hospital Friday.

It is stated that Arulia has been out of state prison only three months, where he served a term of three years for assault with intent to kill Mrs. Rosetti of Malden in June, 1904.

The story that Arulia told the police was that he, in company with Imperial and a third man, now under arrest at Salem, began operations soon after he was released from prison and held up several persons. It was during one of these holdups that Imperial was stabbed.

Old Man Dead—Woman Held.

Stratford, Bow Lake, N. H., May 2.—Mrs. Nellie Collis is held at the county jail at Dover. Officials are investigating the death of Luther C. Critchett, 72, who was found dead at her home under circumstances which the police regard as suspicious. Critchett, it is said, had a roll of $200 when he visited the woman's home, but this is missing, together with a gold watch valued at $50, a suit of clothes and some valuable papers. This is the second suspicious death that has occurred at the Collis home, the first one being last September, when Amos Hall, a man about 70 years, was found dead in the woods.

Greater Boston Asylum Planned.

Boston, May 2.—Dr. J. J. Kelly, chairman of the state board of insanity, backed by his colleagues on the board, has submitted to the legislature a plan for a great metropolitan hospital for the insane with a system of institutions, one to be in the center of the city of Boston. The acquisition of the Boston insane hospital, and its development as a custodial and infirmary branch of a large institution for the insane in the metropolitan district, is recommended by the board in its report made in the senate.

A New Merger Proposition.

Boston, May 2.—Attorney Choate, for the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, has sent to the legislative committee on railroads a brand new merger bill, which he thinks will meet the prevailing situation. The bill provides that upon failure of the railroad to make good upon its promises the state shall have the right to take over the Boston and Maine properties. This is the second merger bill now in the hands of the committee.

Debts Amount to Three Millions.

Boston, May 2.—William A. Stetson, the William A. Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother here successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

PRIZE OF A BOTANIST

Prehistoric Plant Found in Mexico by a Chicago Man.

ADVENTURES IN HIS QUEST.

Professor C. J. Chamberlain Survived Three Earthquakes and a Pursuit by a "Tiger," but Discovered the Dioon, a Plant of the Geological Period.

Thrilling stories were told by Professor Charles J. Chamberlain of the University of Chicago, who returned the other day to Chicago from a botanizing expedition in Mexico with remembrances of three earthquakes he passed through unharmed and an escape from a "tiger" which pursued him for an hour along a desolate mountain trail. The Chicago botanist has also returned with the prize he went to seek on behalf of the Botanical Society of America, the dioon, a species of the sago palm, which will furnish the little sprays of green that are worn in honor of Palm Sunday.

Professor Chamberlain rejoices far more over his triumph in bringing back the dioon than on his success in surviving the earthquake and the tiger, says a Chicago correspondent of the Kansas City Star. The dioon is descended from the geological period and not until recently has it been known that any specimens of that rare and ancient plant were still in existence. But the university has been eagerly discussing stories which have leaked out about the professor's adventures.

"Three earthquakes are about enough for one trip," declared Professor Chamberlain, with a laugh, as he turned from showing a specimen of the dioon, a nut as big as a man's head, to his colleague, Professor Land. "I ran afoul of one at Puebla, another on the railroad between Puebla and Jalapa and the third at Mitla."

"The quake which I passed over while riding on the train was scarcely noticeable to the passengers, although it did much damage to the surrounding country. The shock at Mitla was much more disquieting. It came in the night and woke me out of a sound sleep. The first thing I felt when I woke up was the bed rocking and twisting under me. That didn't feel very pleasant, and it was not at all helpful in the comforting line to hear the brass candlestick on the table at the head of the bed dancing and clattering around as if it were bewitched."

"But the worst experience of all was at Puebla. The first I knew was that the floor began to tilt and undulate. I guess I was too green to realize that the proper thing to do when you get caught in an earthquake is to get out of doors and away from the danger of toppling walls, because I stayed right where I was and grabbed the edge of the door to keep from being swayed over."

"As the floor waved and the walls rocked the dishes and ornaments and pictures with which the store was filled were thrown to the floor, dashing all around me. It certainly kept me pretty busy for awhile dodging the pieces and keeping on my feet. That was the quake which did so much damage to Jalapa. It threw down one house which was being built in Puebla and killed three men, who were buried under the falling walls."

"A little while after the earthquake at Puebla I was riding near Taxtepec one night when I heard a noise made by an animal a little behind me, but a trifle to the right. I pulled out my knife and my guide and I halted and faced the beast. It was black darkness, and we couldn't see six feet in any direction. The guide said it was a tiger and that we had better look out, but when we stopped the tiger did likewise. The chapparal was so dense that we couldn't chase the tiger, and it wouldn't do any good to stay in our tracks all night, so we went on. Then we could hear the tiger stalking after us."

"During the next hour we halted a dozen times when the beast got too close to us, and every time we stopped the tiger slunk back. It wasn't until we got right up to the village that the tiger ceased his pursuit."

The nut of the dioon (pronounced dyo-on), with the accent on the first syllable) which Professor Chamberlain brought back is covered with a greenish gray scale, possessing a fuzzy exterior. Inside every nut are sixty or seventy seeds, which are about as big as a plum, hard and look like old ivory. The only place where the dioon is known to have survived the destructive influences of the centuries is a primitive section of old Mexico, where the natives gather the nuts for the seeds, which they carve into whistles and toys.

Private Railroad For Farmers.

Six miles of railroad track between Shumway and Edgingham, near Matteson, Ill., abandoned about eight months ago by the Wabash railroad because the business did not justify the heavy expenses of maintenance are being used in a novel way by the farmers who occupy adjoining land. Some of the mechanically inclined have constructed a sort of gondola hand car with a long pole as propeller, and twenty can ride on the car at one time. It has been dubbed "the daylight limited" and on market days makes almost regular trips from end to end of the farmers' railroad.

AN ELECTION PRIMER

Pertinent Points About Our Election Machinery For New Voters and Old

THE PROHIBITION PARTY.

When was the national prohibition party organized?

Sept. 1, 1869, in Chicago. In 1872 a national ticket was nominated, James Black of Pennsylvania being the candidate for president. Mr. Black received 5,608 votes.

What is the largest vote ever polled by the Prohibitionists?

That of 1892, when John Bidwell of California received 264,133 votes for president.

Name the Prohibition presidential candidates since James Black.

Green Clay Smith, Kentucky, 1876; Neal Dow, Maine, 1880; John P. St. John, Kansas, 1884; Clinton B. Fisk, New Jersey, 1888; John Bidwell, California, 1892; Joshua Levering, Maryland, 1896; John G. Woolley, Illinois, 1900; Silas C. Swallow, Pennsylvania, 1904.

What was Swallow's vote?

258,536. This was an increase of 50,000 over Woolley's vote.

State briefly what the Prohibition party chiefly stands for.

The following is a part of the Prohibition platform of 1892: "The liquor traffic is a foe to civilization, the arch enemy of popular government and a public nuisance. It is the citadel of the forces that corrupt politics, promote poverty and crime, degrade the nation's home life, thwart the will of the people and deliver our country into the hands of rapacious class interests. All laws that under the guise of regulation legalize and protect this traffic or make the government share in its ill gotten gains are 'vicious in principle and powerless as a remedy.' We declare anew for the entire suppression of the manufacture, sale, importation, exportation and transportation of alcoholic liquors as a beverage by federal and state legislation."

The Observations
In the Daily Walk

The next meeting of the Quincy Day Nursery Association will be held at the Women's Club House on Tuesday, May 5th, at 2.30 P. M.

The annual meeting of the Brackett Charitable Trust is to be held this afternoon at quarter past three at the Quincy Women's club house, the Brackett house, Goffe street.

Water was turned on May first in the drinking fountains and troughs and now the horses are wearing a happy smile once more because they can enjoy a refreshing drink.

Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, rector of St. Chrysostom's church is to preach at the Quincy Point church Sunday evening; subject, "What the church has done for the people."

Next Friday evening the Isabelle Davis Dramatic club is to repeat one of its successes of last season "A Regiment of Two" at First Church chapel, for the benefit of the Sunday school.

A number of residents have received invitations to the graduation exercises of the Emerson school of Oratory, which are to be given next week. Miss Hazel Jennings of Quincy is one of the graduates.

There will be special music at the Point church Sunday evening by the church choir and two interesting speakers. James Duncan will explain, "What the Union has done for the people," and Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg will explain "What the Church has done for the people."

The most up-to-date club in Quincy has recently been established. This club consists of nine young women, mostly of West Quincy, who, after much argument as to the name of their society, finally decided that it should be the "Merry Widows." The next meeting will be held at their secretary's, at Quincy Point. This club hopes to do very enterprising work in the future.

The New England Associate Alliance is to meet in Worcester on Thursday, May 7, in the First Unitarian church, as guests of the Worcester League of Unitarian women. Members attending from this vicinity can take train from South station, Boston, at 8.30 and 9.15 or go by trolley from Park square at quarter of and quarter past the hour. A fine meeting is anticipated, with good speakers. Box lunch at noon.

Mr. Henry M. Faxon keeps right on with the improvement of his property surrounding the Quincy depot and evidently believes that the grade crossing problem will be solved by depressing the tracks. He has made the little plot of land on the Savill street corner a beauty spot with its thrifty polar trees, shrubs and lawn. It is appreciated by lovers of civic improvement.

The Education committee of Milton has taken steps to exclude billboards from that town. A good step, and one which other communities would do well to follow, especially as many are devoted to special brands of liquors.

PRESENTATION PARTY.

Wednesday evening a large party of boys and girls gathered at the home of Elizabeth L. Sullivan, 53 John street, Atlantic, to give her a surprise. There were about 150 in all, many coming from Boston, Cambridge, Quincy, West Quincy, Atlantic and Dorchester. Miss Sullivan is one of the most popular young ladies of Atlantic and during the evening Mr. Robertson presented her with a handsome gold chain and locket. Miss Sullivan, although excited, quickly responded thanking her many friends and hoping they would all have an enjoyable evening. Elizabeth favored her friends with a few songs with Miss Minnie Frazier as pianist. Many games were played and at 9.45 all gathered around the table while refreshment were served. Everybody enjoyed themselves to the utmost.

The Norfolk Conference of Congregational churches will be held on May 5th, Tuesday next, at Campello, Brockton.

MAINE IS WITH TAFT

Resolution Thus Declares, but Delegates Are Not Instructed

A FIGHT FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Overshadowed Convention to a Great Extent—Three Candidates Got Busy and Extended Hospitality to the Delegates at Portland

Portland, Me., May 1.—Four delegates-at-large to the Republican national convention at Chicago were elected at the Republican state convention held in this city and will go to Chicago without instructions to vote for any one of the presidential candidates.

The convention, however, adopted a resolution declaring "that, without attempting to instruct their delegates, the Republicans of Maine, in convention assembled, declare that William H. Taft of Ohio is their choice for candidate for president of the United States." The delegates-at-large and alternates chosen are:

Delegates, Thomas P. Shaw, Edward P. Ricker, John F. Hill and Charles J. Dunn; alternates, Robert McArthur, Fred O. Smith, A. C. Hagerty and George H. Smith.

The convention also chose the following presidential electors: Benjamin F. Cleaves, Virgil R. Connor, Luther C. Maddocks, Henry W. Sargent, Hugh R. Chapin and Charles H. Randall.

The gathering was one of the quietest in years. The platform adopted reaffirmed belief in Republican party principles and endorsed the administration of President Roosevelt. Forrest Goodwin acted as permanent chairman. The state campaign overshadowed everything else political and the candidates for governor seized this occasion as an opportunity to make a demonstration. William T. Haines of Waterville, who favors re submission of the prohibition law; Bert M. Fernald of Poland, whose issue is reform of the system of taxation, and Colonel Frederick E. Boothby of Portland, whose chief issue is in his own personal popularity and who hopes to step in as a compromise candidate in case of a deadlock, were here and entertained many delegates in spacious and well-furnished headquarters.

Maryland Republicans' Choice
 Baltimore, May 1.—The state Republican convention chose as delegates-at-large to the national convention Felix Agnus, William P. Jackson and Congressmen Pearre and Mudd. A resolution was adopted endorsing Taft as a candidate for the presidency and instructing the delegates elected to use all honorable means to obtain his nomination.

Independence Leaguers Won't Fuse
 Birmingham, Ala., May 1.—Alabama leaders of the Independence League met here and elected twenty-two delegates to the national convention of the Independence League to be held in Chicago in July. A resolution was adopted opposing fusion with either the Democratic or Republican parties, no matter who is the candidate of each party.

A Move For Johnson
 Birmingham, Ala., May 1.—A petition with sufficient names attached has been forwarded to Chairman Mallory of the Democratic state executive committee, asking that the name of Governor Johnson be placed on the ticket for the Democratic primary alongside that of W. J. Bryan.

Another Batch For Taft
 Greensboro, N. C., May 1.—The North Carolina Republican convention elected four delegates-at-large to the national convention and adopted resolutions endorsing President Roosevelt's administration and instructing the delegates for Taft for president.

Sixteen Years For Kidnapping
 New York, May 1.—George B. Hoyt of Stamford, Conn., was sentenced to serve sixteen years in state prison on a plea of guilty to a charge of kidnapping. Hoyt pleaded guilty to having enticed the 13-year-old son of Michael Larkin of this city to Stamford, where he kept the lad five months.

Governor Post Takes Vacation
 San Juan, P. R., May 1.—Governor Post has left here for New York on a two months' vacation. He will consult with President Roosevelt concerning the appointment of a native member of the executive council and in the matter of the Catholic church property cases.

Petition Seven Miles Long
 London, May 1.—A mammoth London petition against the licensing bill, seven miles long and three-quarters of a ton in weight, with 650,000 signatures, will be presented on Monday to the house of commons.

But One Bid Received
 Albany, May 1.—Superintendent Stevens of the state department of public parks has awarded barge canal contract No. 45 to Scott Bros. of Atlanta, Ga. Their bid was $467,514.50, the only one received.

Would Sever Marriage Vow
 Rome, May 1.—Efforts are being made by Prince de Chimay to obtain from the Vatican an annulment of his marriage with Miss Clara Ward, later Mme. Rigo and now Mme. Riccardi.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Houdini is proving at Keith's this week that he is without a doubt the greatest drawing card vaudeville has ever known. His new feats, particularly the one in which he is submerged in a big galvanized iron can, are the most perplexing he has yet done in Boston, and he promises still more mysteries for the coming week, the last, by the way, that he will play in Boston for several years. He will accept a limited number of challenges, being particularly desirous of receiving "defies" to attempt stunts of novel nature. Due announcements of his special performances will be made in the daily papers.

BOSTON THEATRE.

In announcing the first stock production of David Belasco's famous play "The Girl of the Golden West" at the Boston theatre next week Manager Morison gives another evidence of his desire to secure for his patrons all that is latest and best in the line of dramatic literature. Manager Morison has exceeded all previous limits in the way of royalties in order to give its first presentation here at the company's productions. In order to present the play under the best possible auspices Manager Morison has contracted for the use of the entire stage outfit designed and constructed under Manager Belasco's supervision for the original New York production.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

By special request, or rather as the result of a score or more of requests, that greatest of all emotional dramas, East Lynne, will be given in an elaborate revival at the Castle Square theatre, the week beginning May 4. As an evidence of the popularity of this play, may be stated that it fell only a few votes behind the winners of last year's Play-goers Contest, and was second in the forty-five plays. The last time given at the theatre, people were turned away at such performance.

Sudden Death Of Motorman

Richard Forest, one of the oldest motormen in the employ of the Old Colony street railway, died at his home on Hancock street at 1.15 this afternoon.

Mr. Forest was taken sick on Sunday, presumably with a throat trouble, and he was put to bed. This morning he was reported as better, and was expected to go out. He had a sudden bad turn this noon, and died shortly after. He was about 30 years of age and unmarried.

Expressmen Active To Get Permits

The indications are that the City Council chamber will be none too large tonight to accommodate those who desire to attend the meeting of that body. The interest in the meeting centers in the granting of express permits. But four of these permits have been granted thus far this year against thirteen last year.

New petitions have been filed by the dozen or more expressmen who were refused a permit at the last meeting of the City Council, and an effort is being made by these expressmen to have the City Council go into a committee of the whole to consider the applications.

There is not a member of the City Council, probably, who has not been seen in the interest of one or more of these expressmen. What the result will be no one can foretell. At all events it would seem that the meeting will be an interesting one.

BOTH MIGHTY FACTORS

What the Union and the Church Have Done for the People.

A Labor Leader and Clergyman Champion Their Avocations
on Same Platform.

A unique series of Sunday evening services commenced on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock at the Point church. The general topic is "The value of the union and the church." The speakers on the opening date were

THE UNION.

Mr. Duncan took for his subject, "What the Union has done for the People."

In opening he congratulated the pastor, Rev. Alfred Ray Atwood, on inviting a representative of labor to speak in his pulpit, and congratulated the church on having such a pastor. He spoke for 45 minutes, and is summarized below:

"The union has taught the people the need for three essentials to competitive productivity, viz: Organization, education and collective bargaining; organization because of the need of joint understanding, to combat corporate oppression and greed; education because ignorance is the source of all evil; collective bargaining because corporation employment has emphatically eliminated individuality in employment and almost completely subdivided or specialized work.

"The union has done more than all other reform agencies combined for the recognition of free schools, free text-books and compulsory education.

"To it is due nearly all the credit for exposing the horrors of the sweatshop system and the enactment of such remedial legislation on this subject as now exists.

"The union has, almost unaided, fought for such laws as are now on statute books prohibiting the employment of children in factory, mill and mine, when they should be in the schoolroom or on the playground.

"Organized labor has reduced the drudgery of every day toll from 12 and 14 hours per day to 8, 9 and 10, thereby giving leisure time to the workers to better the home and its surroundings.

"Through collective bargaining it has enhanced the remuneration of toil from 25 to 100 percent. above ununion conditions.

"Through its uplifting tendency it has made workers more temperate in their desires.

"It has declared for equal pay for women with men for equal work performed, and is the only institution which has so declared.

"The union is a great disseminator of democratic thought, and has done more than it has been given credit for doing in the assimilation of immigrants to American methods and ideas.

"The union meeting to them has been a new or second education, inspiring them with hope when despair seemed to possess them and thereby inculcating a feeling of brotherhood and mutuality of interest possible in no other way.

"In short, the union has taken hold of submerged humanity where the individual was lost in economic chaos and has rejuvenated him and her on a plane of constructive and defensive citizenship which gives back the independence, courage and well-being which were taken from the worker by the change from individual to corporation employment.

"It has bettered home life and therefore has raised the value or worth of citizenship.

THE CHURCH.

Rev. A. E. Clattenburg, who followed, spoke of "What the church has done for the People."

In opening, he said, that the wages of clergymen had not been increased 25 per cent, and they did not enjoy an eight hour day. He therefore felt sorry that the clergymen did not have a union.

His subject was one he felt that he could talk upon for hours and then not half would be told. He said in substance:

"During the early centuries of the church she did not do much direct work for the people to aid them in securing their rights in this world. She instead did all that she could to fit the people for the life that lay beyond, that they might obtain their birthright there.

"The church during these centuries raised the standard of man. She taught men to think more of their brothers. And, it cannot be left unsaid, she was the direct cause of the proper elevation of womanhood.

"Kinds of employment had no ban so long as they were honest. This did away with class distinctions, so far as the church was concerned. It is to be regretted in this connection that all of its members do not mark this lesson the church teaches. The church has ever sanctified honest labor.

"Leaving aside the common things that the church has done for the people, such as teaching them in schools, furnishing for them all the needs for the expression of their God-ward feelings, endowing them with a liberty that could not exist in a Christian country—leaving these great benefits on one side, let us see what definite things the church has done for the people.

"It certainly has not stood back of commercial trusts. It certainly has not acted in behalf of the rich, in contra-distinction to the poor. One man here and there who ought to be showing forth the mind of the church in these matters may have shown forth his own individual mind in the matter. The church should not be accused on account of its agent's desire to be seen.

"The church today is sending fraternal delegates to the labor union meetings. The Presbyterians have a man who does nothing else but attend such meetings and work with the unions to secure these things that the people need and have a right to expect. The Episcopal church has prominent men who are very much interested in the people.

"The church is ever seeking to get into the people's hearts and minds the one true thing; that every one has duties as well as rights; that it is as necessary to do your duties as to assert your rights; that rights should be demanded in love. These things the church has ever been seeking to place in the hearts and minds of the people. If you are not doing your duty to your God, you have no right to expect God to do anything for you. If you are not doing your duty to your fellow men, you have no right to expect them to do their duty toward you. If you are demanding more from other men than you are willing to concede to them, you have no right to expect their concession to you. The church teaches these things when it teaches you to love your neighbor as yourself. If we really thought as much of our neighbor as we do of ourselves, there would not be as much bickering about hours, or about wages. If we could look at the proposition through the other man's eyes, we would be surprised at our audacity in demanding so much.

"It is useless to try to say what the church has done for the people. It works for them in ways too subtle to explain. Suffice it for us to know that the church, following in the footsteps of its most holy master, is heard by the common people gladly. We cannot say as much for some individuals who claim to speak in the name of the church. Unions may come and unions may go, but, brothers, the church goes on forever."

TWO MORE DISCUSSIONS.

On Sunday evening, May 17, the discussion of the question will be continued by Mr. T. F. Wilson and Rev. H. W. Kimball, and the third discussion will come May 31, when the speakers will be Mr. C. W. Hanson and Rev. A. R. Atwood.

Sudden Death Of Unknown Man

A man, who from papers found in his pocket is supposed to be Jacob Berg of Sharon, was taken sick at the corner of School street and Quincy avenue about 9.45 this morning. Dr. Reardon, who was called, ordered the man's removal to the City Hospital.

The man died in Hall's ambulance on Granite street while on the way to the hospital. He was apparently about 60 years of age, had mixed gray hair, and a gray mustache. He wore a mixed gray suit, turned down collar, and black bow tie.

He had a small leather bag in which was his luncheon, a bottle of medicine, and a small quantity of whiskey. There were a number of letters, some addressed to J. Berg, Sharon, and others to Jacob Berg, Canton. There was also a bunch of keys marked J. Berg, Sharon, also a railroad ticket between Canton and Boston and a Boston & Maine mileage book.

The letters with one exception were from carriage builders. The one exception was a letter addressed to "Dear Father" and signed Fannie "L." This was mailed from Winchendon, March 9, and was addressed to Jacob Berg, Box 477, Canton.

The body was removed to Hall's undertaking rooms and the authorities at Sharon and Canton notified.

WENT THROUGH SKYLIGHT

Pair of Jailbirds Had Little Difficulty

In Taking Flight

Newburyport, Mass., May 4.—By sawing off bars of their cells and climbing through a skylight, George Rogers and James L. Fr. both of Lynn, escaped early Sunday from the New-buryport jail, where they had been held on charges of breaking and entering and larceny. They have not been recaptured.

While the cell room guard was absent in the kitchen, the two men broke away the cell bars which they had previously sawed nearly in two, and crawled through an opening, 12 by 7 inches, into the corridor. By piling up tables they could reach a skylight in the roof, and after that they way to freedom was easy. The escape was not discovered until the guard made his rounds. Rogers and Franklin are each about 26 years old. They were being held for the grand jury.

There was much disturbance among the prisoners in the jail on a recent

night and much hanging of tin cups

against the iron work of the cells. It is supposed that the two men succeeded in sawing the bars under cover of this noise. They used a case knife which had been filed so that it had teeth like a saw.

Supposed Work of Firebug

Great Barrington, Mass., May 4.—Six

families lost their homes and were driven to the street in the early dawn,

scarcely clad, by the burning of three tenement houses here, owned by Peter

Cassidy. The fire is believed to be of incendiary origin. Mrs. Thomas

Hennehan, 75 years old, who lived in a house across the street from the burning buildings, died of heart failure as a result of the shock caused by the fire.

All the occupants of the three burned houses got out uninjured. The fire started in a barn belonging to Cassidy.

It is estimated that the total loss is $25,000.

Protecting Public Morals

Boston, May 4.—The thirtieth

annual report of the New England Watch

and Ward society, just issued, shows that there have been 79 convictions of crimes against decency or public policy

during the past year through the efforts of the agents of the society. There have been 5679 obscene pictures seized and ordered destroyed by the courts,

as well as 1573 objectionable figures and 397 immoral books. Gambling machines, valued in the aggregate at $6200, have been destroyed, and $425

in fines imposed.

Orchestra Leader Honored

Boston, May 4.—Dr. Karl Muck, who has conducted the Boston Symphony orchestra for the past two years, returned with the performance of the orchestra Saturday night. Previous to opening the concert Muck was presented with a loving cup on behalf of the orchestra. When Muck appeared to take up the work of the evening the entire audience arose and cheered lustily. Muck has been recalled to Germany by the emperor.

Gas Snuffed Out Many Lives

Boston, May 4.—There were 148

deaths due to inhaling illuminating gas

in Massachusetts last year, according to the annual report of the gas and electric light commission. Of these, sixty-four were suicides, several doubtful

and the remainder accidental. There were also 143 accidents along the same line which were not fatal, but which required hospital treatment.

NIGHT FIRE IN HOTEL

Largest Hostelry at Fort Wayne
Reduced to Pile of Debris

AT LEAST TWELVE KILLED

Examination of Ruins May Reveal
Bodies of Many More—The Flames Spread So Rapidly That Many Guests Barely Escaped Death

Fort Wayne, Ind., May 4.—At least twelve persons lost their lives in a fire which destroyed the New Aveline hotel here early Sunday. The entire interior of the building is a smoldering heap of ruins and how many dead are concealed by the debris can only be conjectured. The hotel register was consumed by the fire and there is no accurate means of determining who is missing. The New Aveline was the largest hotel in the city.

The complete destruction of the interior of the hotel makes the work of recovering bodies a difficult task. A confused heap of charred wood, bricks and twisted girders is piled up between the walls to beyond the second story. Piece by piece this must be removed before the roll of the dead can be completed. Some of the bodies taken out are mangled and charred beyond recognition.

Infantry company D and battery B of the National Guard are on duty and are aiding the fire and police forces to clear away the debris.

The fire was discovered at 3:30 o'clock Sunday morning in the elevator shaft by Night Clerk Hipkins. He rushed to the upper floors, alarming the guests until the flames, which had spread with great rapidity, drove him back. His efforts, however, saved many lives.

The hotel was erected half a century ago and the woodwork was dry as tinder. It burned like matchwood and within a few minutes from the time the fire was discovered the whole interior of the hotel was a mass of flames and the only means of escape left was by the windows. The fire department rescued many by means of ladders, but some, frenzied by the rush of the flames, leaped from windows to the street.

As the flames increased men and women were seen in the windows of their rooms imploring for help. Some did not wait for the assistance of the firemen and leaped to the street. Those who left their rooms before the flames cut off their retreat were able to make their way to the fire escapes and were saved with comparative ease.

There were many thrilling escapes. Scores of men and women reached the ground with nothing on but night clothes. None of the guests had time to save their effects. Drygoods and clothing stores were thrown open to all who needed apparel and they were supplied without question.

A score of women employed in the hotel were in the upper rooms in the rear part of the hotel. Most of them escaped without injury, but some leaped to the alley. During the first excitement many were accounted dead that were later found to be safe. That there are several bodies still in the ruins is the belief of Fire Chief Hibbert and Chief of Police Anckenbruck. The latter places his estimate of dead as yet in the ruins as high as twenty.

The New Aveline hotel, built in 1852, was a six-story building of brick. It stood in the business centre of the city. In 1895 the building was extensively remodelled. The hotel and its furnishings were valued at $80,000.

The framework of the interior was of wood, dried like tinder from a half century's seasoning, and it burned with great rapidity. Within a quarter of an hour from the time the fire was discovered in the elevator shaft, the entire building was wrapped in flames. The whole interior became a roaring furnace, and from basement to roof all was blazing at once. In rapid succession the floors fell to the basement.

FIRE TO BE INVESTIGATED

Blaze in Brooklyn Tenement House Causes Loss of Six Lives

New York, May 4.—An early morning fire in a four-story brick tenement in a thickly populated section of Brooklyn caused the death of six persons and the serious injury of four others. Every member of one family, including the mother and four children, are among the dead. There were many thrilling rescues by police and firemen, and it was due to the work of these guardians of the public that the death list was not larger. A half dozen or more persons who were trapped in the upper stories were saved by jumping into life nets. The financial loss is estimated at $10,000.

Those who met death are: Mrs. Dora Abrams, 62 years old; Sadie Abrams, 22; Carrie Abrams, 20; Anna Abrams, 16; Charles Abrams, 23; Mrs. Jennie Cohen, 68.

The fire started in the cellar of the building at 2:30 Sunday morning. It had gained much headway before it was discovered and three policemen, who arrived on the scene about this time, repeatedly asked their lives in fringing people from the lower floors.

Although there is no evidence of incendiaryism, the origin of the fire was so peculiar that the authorities will make a rigid investigation.

Where Venezuela Excels

New Haven, May 4.—In a lecture before Yale university students, Robert C. Morris of New York, who was counsel for the United States government before the Venezuelan claims commission, said that during Venezuela's whole national existence, for exasperating contentedness she excels, without exception, any other country in the world. But even to any one unfamiliar with that past record, Morris said, the correspondence relating to the five claims now pending clearly shows that the patience of the state department has indeed been sorely tried by the attitude of contemptuous disregard and insolent defiance assumed by Castro's government in regard to them.

Gray and the Nomination

Washington, May 4.—Richard J. Beamish, who is in charge of the George Gray bureau in this city, says that some time ago it became known that Judge Gray would not be a candidate, but that, if nominated, he would not refuse the call of his party. "This stand is well known to all his supporters," said Beamish. "His friends believe they have a right to call upon his services as a Democrat, notwithstanding his personal desires in the matter, and every one having knowledge of the judge's sound party fealty is absolutely certain that if nominated he will accept."

Room for Japanese in Brazil

Berlin, May 4.—Word reaches Germany from Tokyo to the effect that the president of an important Japanese emigration company has just come back to Japan from Brazil with remarkable tales of the Brazilian longing for Japanese immigrants. He declares that the republic desires a huge influx of Japanese as the only effective means of checkmating the growing influence of the German element in Rio de Janeiro.

Soul Mate Had Wooden Limbs

Toronto, May 4.—The "soul mate" Miss Lorena Acre of New York, found through a matrimonial advertisement, had a wooden arm and an artificial leg. The young woman, a prepossessing brunette, told how she had been deceived when she appeared in court to prosecute W. S. Gibson. She alleged that Gibson was jealous and beat her with his wooden leg.

White Star Service to Canada

London, May 4.—The White Star Steamship company has made an announcement of its intention to start a Canadian service in the spring of 1909, with the new steamers Alberta and Albany, renamed Laurentine and Megantic, and the Dominion liners Canada and Dominion.

Woman Suffragist Beaten

Paris, May 4.—Municipal elections, which were fought purely on local issues, were held throughout the country yesterday. Jeanne Laloe, an advocate of woman suffrage, was heavily defeated in Paris.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The United States has agreed to recognize the Russian Bourse committee's certificates fixing the customs value of Russian goods imported into America. The Swedish bark Svanbild, from Pensacola Jan. 14 for Buenos Ayres, previously reported ashore off Brazil, is a total loss. Two of the crew were drowned.

With impressive ceremonial, Mgr. Denis J. O'Connell, rector of the Catholic university at Washington, was consecrated titular bishop of Sabate in the cathedral at Baltimore.

During a heavy thunder shower at Amherst, Mass., lightning broke a water main and for several hours the village supply of water was shut off. The steeples of the Methodist church was struck by lightning.

Dr. Horace M. Holmes, the oldest physician of Adams, Mass., is dead, aged 82. He had been engaged in practice there since 1853. For two years he represented the towns of Adams and North Adams in the state legislature.

Captain Edward N. Greely, who commanded company C of the First Maine regiment and company B of the Twenty-fifth regiment during the Civil war, died at his home at Portland, Me., aged 73.

Newsy Budget

From Shipyard

The four light-vessels under construction at the Fore River shipyard for the light-house board, Department of Commerce and Labor, U. S. government are being equipped with submarine signaling apparatus by the Submarine Signal Company of Boston.

A sheet steel circle is being made at the shipyard for the H. L. Kincaide & Company.

When the entire battleship cruise will reach between 44,000 and 45,000 miles.

The American line has subscribed $2,500 to the relief fund for the families of the men of the British cruiser Gladiator who lost their lives in the collision with the steamer St. Paul last Saturday.

The German Navy League's annual report shows the membership increased from 506,706 members to 1,018,590 members. It is carrying on a campaign of education by giving stereopticon views and lectures in villages.

Captain Watt, of the Lusitania, in an official report on submarine signals, says: "Nearly all my sea life I have been looking forward to getting the assistance of a reliable sound signal. Now I feel that we have got it, and all that is required, in my opinion, is its universal application."

Officers of the Kaiser Wilhelm II, of the North German Lloyd Line, which arrived two days behind her usual time owing to heavy fog encountered in the North sea and the English channel, said it was the efficiency of the submarine signal bell that enabled the liner to take passengers on board at Cherbourg. "There are no fog horns on the French coast," said Capt. Cuppers, commander of the steamship; "and in the dense fog, we had no way of finding the entrance to the harbor, and so had to lie to. Early in the morning we made out the sound of the North German Lloyd tender's submarine bell, fully 10 miles away. All we then had to do was to find her, and this the submarine signaling apparatus made comparatively easy."

CLOSE GAMESMakaria and Wollaston Win
Their Games By Just One Run

Makaria 7; Athletics, 6.

At Merrymount Park on Saturday, Makaria defeated the Athletics of Waltham, 7 to 6.

It was the most exciting game that has been played at the park in many days, the score being 0 to 0 until the fourth inning, when the visiting team scored one run. Makaria made four in the fourth and the Athletics scored again in the fifth and also scored four runs in the sixth, making the score 6 to 4 in favor of the Athletics.

Neither side scored in the seventh. Makaria made one in the eighth and came to the bat in the ninth one run behind.

Capt. Smith was the first man up; he made a hit and Troupe walked, a man on first and second and none out. Penley sacrificed, Smith going to third and Troupe to second, one out. Nicoll at the bat, after taking a couple of strikes, placed a beautiful hit between short stop and second base, scoring Smith who tied the score and Troupe whose run won the game. 'Twas a great finish and well worth seeing.

The game was fast and snappy throughout. Mr. Kenna and Kane each getting two hits, one of Mr. Kenna's being a three bagger. Tupper held them down well, Michael going in the box in the seventh inning did not allow a man to get to third base. Nicoll did the best stick work for Makaria, getting two hits, the last one winning the game.

"Misunderstood, decried, bludgeoned, enjoined, called conspiracy, illegal combination, restraint, even impeded by doubtful court decisions, the labor union emerges from each attack purified, aggressive, determined and more elevated than before, and will keep abreast of civilization by creating new desires, better accomplishments and greater achievements as the needs and aspirations of the people evolve from the departing to new conditions of work, liberty and life."

Sunday School Athletics.

On Thursday evening this week, various Sunday schools will have a chance to compete at the Y. M. C. A. gym in connection with the championship athletic meet.

Sunday school relay races are being arranged between a number of schools, and it is hoped that other schools will enter teams. Individual prizes will be given to winning teams.

Any Sunday school may enter a team composed of boys who are not Y. M. C. A. members, between 12 and 18 years of age. Each boy to run three laps on the track. Entry fee 10 cents for a team.

Regular indoor events will be run to decide the 1908 champions in eight events. The winner of each event will have his name put on a shield as a permanent record to be kept at the Y. M. C. A. building.

Seriously Burned.

Mrs. Emma A. Doane, wife of David G. Doane, and her 17 year old daughter Alice, were seriously burned Sunday morning by a kettle of hot fat overturning on the stove at her home on Bowditch street, East Braintree. Others in the family extinguished the flames by pulling the clothing from them.

VOCAL RECITAL.

A most classical and attractive program will be rendered by Mrs. Edith Cary Page, soprano, assisted by Miss Olive L. Whiteley, violin and Mr. Edward Phillips piano, on Wednesday evening, May 6th, at 8 o'clock in Colonial hall. Mrs. Page is the possessor of a charming voice of dramatic power and flexibility. Miss Whiteley has appeared with the Wollaston Glee club this winter and all who heard her, will remember her ability as a violinist. Mr. Phillips who will be the accompanist of the evening is an artist of rare ability at the piano as well as being a singer of reputation in grand opera in Europe and America. Tickets are on sale at Cox's Pharmacy, Miss Hubbard's, of Mr. Thomas B. Pollard or of the King's Daughters' Quartette.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and trying the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O. Councilman Cherrington offered an order for $900 for grading school lot of Quincy school. To Joint Committee Public Buildings and Finance.

EXPRESS PERMITS.

Councilman Whitton moved reference be withdrawn on reference of application for permits to transport liquor. Voted. Vote doubted. On rising vote motion was passed, 14 voting yes, and 5 no.

Councilman Ferguson offered an order granting N. DiPanfilio a permit.

In reply to question by Charles Moir, Councilman Falconer said that applicant had been convicted once in a liquor case.

Chief Burrell in reply to questions said he believed applicant an honest man, who would obey the law.

Councilman Cherrington moved Council go into committee of whole. Motion lost.

Councilman Hogan asked what it cost to convict applicant in 1905. Chief Burrell replied nothing.

Councilman Whitton—Applicant was not convicted of transporting liquor. He had a chertening at his house. Not a blot against him. He has a clean record.

On roll call the license was granted, 12 voting yes and 8 no. All the roll calls will be found summarized in another column of the Daily Ledger.

Upon motion of Councilman Abele the Council resolved itself into a committee of the whole to hear expressmen and others interested.

Councilman Freeman was appointed chairman and George T. Magee elected clerk.

Henry Gallagher of New York & Boston express felt his company should have a permit. Used three teams in business.

Mr. Gallagher of Expressman's Association and of Gallagher's express, thought four could not properly handle business. Would be glad to withdraw his application if number was to be limited. Should be so that persons granted permits could handle all of own business without outside help.

Charles W. Miller of Expressmen's Association said it would be better to grant more than four permits if any at all were to be granted. Personally was in favor of granting none. Considered all who had been in business two or three years legitimate expressmen. He should say fifteen or sixteen would cover legitimate expressmen. Did not care to name them.

In reply to questions Mr. Miller said that by stretching a point, the Fore River express could be called a legitimate express. For past year Flannigan had associated himself with other persons, and no business was done under name of Fore River express. Understood Lowe had paid Flannigan so much per week for use of his services and teams.

If limited to four permits the business would be so much that there would likely be violation of the law. Thought there was a decrease in transportation of liquor last year. It was because Flannigan did not get a permit last year that he did business through another express.

Councilman Whitton started to ask the Chief of Police questions, when Councilman Moir raised point of order that the committee was to hear expressmen's associations and others. Chair ruled point well taken.

J. A. Sedgwick, treasurer of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, opposed wholesale granting of permits. He wanted liquor transported legally. Were expressmen who were violating law by soliciting orders. Last year was a big improvement. Believed was more than four persons could do, but some of applicants were not worthy. In reply to questions, "speaker" opposed Flannigan.

Until recently there was no Fore River express. Could not prove he was not a legitimate express, but did

ANOTHER LONG FIGHT

Evidence as to Thaw's Sanity
May Be Sought Abroad

HABEAS CORPUS HEARINGS

Question as to Where They Shall Be Held Awaits Jerome's Pleasure-- Thaw, Meanwhile, Will Not Return to Matteawan Asylum

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 5.—Harry K. Thaw's fight for liberty threatens to be almost as protracted a legal procedure as was his fight for life.

When the issue was joined here before Judge Morschauser, in the hearing on the writ of habeas corpus which Thaw's lawyers hope will result in his discharge from Matteawan, opposing counsel talked of the probability of the sessions lasting throughout the summer.

Assistant District Attorney Garvan, who represented Mr. Jerome, asserted that it probably would be necessary to send commissions to London, Paris, Rome and Monte Carlo as well as to Pittsburgh to take the testimony of physicians and nurses.

When Thaw arrived in the crowded hearing room his improved physical appearance was conspicuous. He had gained about twenty pounds since his commitment. His face, ruddy and sun-burned, had lost the unhealthy, pasty look it wore during the trial, and his eyes were bright and alert.

James G. Graham, Thaw's latest counsel, argued that the hearings under the writ of habeas corpus should be held in Dutchess county. He said he did not want his witnesses "intimidated" by District Attorney Jerome.

District Attorney Mack of Dutchess county, on the other hand, held that the expense of the hearing, including the cost of various high-priced expert alienists, doubtless would be great, and that it should properly be borne by the county of New York.

Mr. Garvan agreed with him and said the cost of the state's experts alone during the murder trial had been nearly $24,000. All concerned agreed to recommend a postponement of further hearings until Jerome could make it convenient to be present. Judge Morschauser finally solved the problem, apparently to the satisfaction of all, by deciding upon a postponement until May 11.

Instead of sending Thaw back to Matteawan pending the determination of his fate, the court remanded him to the custody of the sheriff of Dutchess county.

In the county building Sheriff Chandler has a suite of rooms fitted up elaborately for his own use. Thaw is to be permitted to occupy a portion of these apartments, and he will have the privilege of receiving guests there and of doing pretty much as he pleases. He seemed greatly pleased when he learned that he would not have to return to Matteawan.

Will Lead Lonesome Life

St. Augustine, Fla., May 5.—Colonel William F. Stewart, the only officer of the United States army destined to command an abandoned post until the date of his retirement, arrived here yesterday from Fort Grant, Ariz., upon orders to take up headquarters at the abandoned St. Francis barracks here. His command in St. Augustine was of short duration, for last night Stewart received orders from Washington sending him to Fort Grant again. Stewart has left for the isolated post in Arizona.

Grover Cleveland's Sickness

Lakewood, N. J., May 5.—The improved condition of Grover Cleveland permitted Dr. Bryant, his physician, to leave for New York yesterday, and the fact that he did not return here last night was taken to indicate that Mr. Cleveland was not considered dangerously ill. Dr. Lockwood arrived here last night to attend Mr. Cleveland during the absence of Bryant. Mrs. Cleveland remains constantly with her husband.

Suicide of Government Official

Frederickton, N. B., May 5.—William P. Flewelling, deputy minister of crown lands in the New Brunswick government, shot and killed himself in one of the government buildings just as an expert accountant was about to begin an examination of the deputy minister's books. He was 52 years of age and had been in the employ of the government since a young man.

Revolutionists Under Cover

Lima, Peru, May 5.—The whereabouts of Durand and his band of 200 revolutionists is still unknown. A mass meeting was held yesterday in the principal square here, at which speeches condemning the revolutionary movement were delivered. President Pardo replied from a balcony of the palace.

Ex-Bank Cashier Indicted

Lynchburg, Va., May 5.—Samuel H. Taylor, until recently cashier of the American National bank of this city, was indicted in the corporation court on the charge of embezzling $4350 from the Bousack Machine company, a local concern.

To Be President of Bolivia

La Paz, Bolivia, May 5.—Fernando Guachalla was elected president of Bolivia in succession to Ismael Montes, whose term expires Aug. 14 next.

CAR AND MAIL BURNED

Record Run For a Siding After Explosion of a Lamp

Sharon, Mass., May 5.—One of the mail cars of a postal train leaving Boston at 10:45 last night for New York was set on fire by the explosion of a lamp while the train was running through this town and was burned with all its contents. In the car was a large quantity of package mail.

The train was made up of nine cars, including seven mail cars and two cars of the Adams Express company. The burned car was nearly in the middle of the train. When the lamp exploded in the car the burning oil was scattered over the entire interior and a number of the mail clerks had a narrow escape from serious burns. Everybody in the car was compelled to flee to the other cars of the train, the flames bursting quickly from every part of the interior.

The engineer was quickly notified of the accident and made a record run to Sharon Heights to reach a siding. By the time the train arrived there the flames were bursting from the car and were trailing behind, threatening to set fire to the following cars. It required hasty work to get the car unshackled from the train after reaching Sharon Heights, but the task was accomplished successfully. None of the other cars was injured. The train proceeded on its way to New York after a short delay, while the mail car continued to burn. It is impossible to obtain an estimate of the probable value of the contents of the car.

License Measure Defeated

Boston, May 5.—Though it went to a third reading, the bill to permit the state to retain half the fees secured from liquor licenses was killed in the house of representatives by a vote of 83 to 59, sixteen pairs being also registered. Had it gone through Boston would have been compelled to turn over to the state one-half its license fees of $1,500,000, and all the other cities and towns which went "yes" would have received the same treatment.

Overcome by Nervousness

Boston, May 5.—William J. Sanderson, aged 40, superintendent of the Linden Congregational Sunday school, committed suicide in the storeroom at the Davidson Rubber company's plant by shooting through the head with a revolver. Sanderson had been suffering from a nervous trouble for some time. He was prominent in the Linden district of Malden.

Corrupt Lawyer Disbarred

Boston, May 5.—Charles B. Sias, for fourteen years a member of the Suffolk bar, was disbarred by Judge Schofield of the superior court on petition of the Bar association. Sias is alleged to have delivered to a former police inspector $500 to influence corruptly two inspectors to testify falsely and to suppress testimony in disbarment proceedings.

Charged With Incendiarism

Milford, Mass., May 5.—Probable cause was found in the district court in the case of Daniel Fitzgerald, who is charged with setting fire to a barn. He furnished bonds of $1000 for his appearance before the grand jury. Milford has had thirteen mysterious fires recently, and as yet no person has been proven guilty of setting any of them.

Used Gas to Take Life

Boston, May 5.—Mary C. Perkins, a widow, 35 years old, was found dead in her room, having committed suicide by placing a gas tube in her mouth after turning the gas on. Her act is believed to have been caused by despondency and nervous trouble. She was employed as a housekeeper.

Sewall Forces Successful

Lewiston, Me., May 5.—In an exciting Republican caucus here to elect delegates to the Second district convention, the delegates were chosen favorably to Harold M. Sewall of Bath for the congressional nomination to succeed Congressman Littlefield.

Lower Wages and Short Time

Calais, Me., May 5.—Notices have been posted in the St. Croix cotton mills at Milltown announcing a reduction of 10 percent in wages on May 11. The mills are running alternate weeks, due to a dull market. About 500 persons are affected.

Reds Suppressed In Cuba

Santiago, Cuba, May 5.—A strike of miners employed by the Juragua Iron company has been put down by the rural guard. Three hundred of the miners, marching under the red flag, a few days ago distributed handbills commemorating the death of the Chicago anarchists. The company broke up the parade and discharged the leaders. Agitators started immediately to organize a strike. Energetic measures were adopted and the loyal miners are now working under the protection of the police.

Friendly With "Almost" All Nations

Rio Janeiro, May 5.—A message from President Penna to the Brazilian congress says the relations of Brazil are cordial with almost all foreign countries. This statement is interpreted as practically excluding the Argentine, and possibly Peru, from the number of powers enjoying good relations with Brazil.

Sign of Returning Confidence

New York, May 5.—The easement of the monetary situation was sharply reflected in the sale of $28,000,000 worth of municipal revenue bonds, bearing interest at 3 3/4 percent and extending a term of six months. During the winter revenue bonds were sold by Comptroller Metz bearing interest at 6 percent.

SAILOR PRINCE WEDS

United In Czar's Palace to Grand Duchess Marie Pavlona

THE KNOT IS DOUBLY TIED

Rites of Russian Service Followed by Ceremony of Lutheran Church-- Event Unites the Ruling Houses of Two Countries

St. Petersburg, May 4.—Prince Wilhelm of Sweden, second son of King Gustave, the popular sailor prince, who visited America in 1907, was married yesterday afternoon to Grand Duchess Marie Pavlona, cousin of the Emperor of Russia and daughter of Grand Duke Paul Alexandrovich. The ceremony took place at Tsarskoe-Selo and was accompanied by all the pomp and brilliant display of color characteristic of the most stately court in Europe.

In the evening a great state banquet was served, at which toasts were drunk to the good understanding between Sweden and Russia, recently reached in the Baltic agreement, to which Sunday's wedding—the first in modern times between the ruling houses of two countries—puts the seal.

The nuptial ceremony was accompanied by a noisy acclamation, the thunder of salutes being heard almost uninterruptedly throughout the afternoon and evening.

The wedding guests who took part in the ceremony assembled at the great palace at Tsarskoe-Selo. Only Premier Stolypin, the members of the cabinet, the president of the duma and the president of the council of state, the principal ambassadors to Russia and their wives and a few of the highest dignitaries of the empire found place in the small blue and gold chapel of the palace, where the orthodox ceremony was performed. The other guests were stationed, according to their rank, in the various salons and halls through which the bridal procession passed.

The robing of the bride was performed, in accordance with court custom, in the private apartments of the empress. She was dressed by the empress and the dowager empress, assisted by their maids of honor and their ladies-in-waiting. The bride wore on her head a jeweled diadem, and from her shoulders hung a long trained mantle of strawberry velvet, lined with ermine. In the procession the train of this garment was borne by five court chamberlains.

A salute of twenty-one guns and a blare of trumpets announced the start of the procession. At its head came the dowager empress on the arm of King Gustave, the Emperor of Russia, escorted by Queen Olga of Greece, the empress escorted by the Grand Duke of Hesse, and Crown Prince Ferdinand and Crown Princess Marie of Roumania, attended by the court ushers and marshals and other functionaries.

Then came the bridal pair. Behind the young couple marched Prince Nicholas and Prince Andrew of Greece and their wives, Prince Christopher of Greece and Prince Carl of Sweden and his wife. The guests from foreign courts were followed by more than a score of Russian grand dukes and grand duchesses, including the three oldest daughters of Emperor Nicholas, Grand Duchess Olga, Grand Duchess Tatiana and Grand Duchess Marie, the eldest being 13 years old. This was the first time the emperor's daughters have appeared in state.

The grand duchesses, like all the invited ladies, wore the picturesque Russian costume of high pearl-encrusted caps and low cut dresses, with ancient Russian lace embroideries.

After the emperor had been blessed and sprinkled with holy water, he conducted the bridal pair to the altar before the great golden gates of the high altar. The wedding rings were brought from the altar on golden salvers and placed upon the fingers of the bride and the bridegroom by the emperor's confessor. The metropolitan then completed the rites of the Russian marriage service.

While the Te Deum was being chanted an imperial salute of 101 guns was fired. The procession then returned to one of the ante-salons, where the Lutheran marriage ceremony was performed by the Swedish bishop of Lund.

The nuptial dinner was served in the evening. After the dinner the members of the imperial family and their royal guests participated in a polonaise. This stately progress around the great reception hall had something of the nature of the "Hohenzollern torch dance." After this function the guests were driven in state to the Alexander palace, the private residence of the emperor, the bridal pair riding with their sponsors in a gala equipage. At a later hour in the evening the bridal pair took a special train for St. Petersburg, where the honeymoon will be passed.

Trouble Brewing In Peru

Lima, Peru, May 4.—Government troops have been sent out by President Pardo on the receipt of reports here that an insurrection was brewing not far from this city. It was rumored that the insurgent leader, Durand, with 200 of his men, attempted to cut the wires of the electric lighting plant that supplies the current for the lighting of Lima and the suburbs. If an attempt was made it was not successful.

WARM WEATHER NECKWEAR

The Favored Hats of the Season are Their Trimming.

Ah, now we know where we are. The warm weather fashions are at hand, and, bless the powers that be, they are much more sensible than they have been, and also they are far less aggressive than before, particularly the millinery. The hats are so many different shapes that one who did not know might be excused for thinking that the modes of the last twenty years had been sifted over and at least one hat of each year displayed.

There is in many of the new hats a genuine poetic taste shown—for instance, one fine milan braid with the brim bent into becoming curves and angles, but the whole decidedly of the "flat" or Eugene variety, and the crown fairly surrounded five deep with beautiful new leaves of the willow tree, all softened with a white frost. This is a lovely hat for a young face. The frosty green above the white of the hat makes a very artistic combination.

Then we find a white canvas hat stitched again and again so that the brim remains stiff from the stitching. The brim then is turned up and bent into half a dozen curves and back from the face and then topped with a panache of short but fine ostrich tips shaded from white to baby blue. I should have mentioned that all the stitching is done in blue on the white ground. And back into the sixties some clever milliner has delved to bring forth a regular box turban. This is of white rice straw, fine and glossy, and it sits far back on the head. The only trimming is a tuft of black laces in the form of an egret. Just black and white, with a strass and jet buckle to hold the egret. Toques are among the very best and most pleasing of the headwear, and of that we find too many to tell of in detail, but one, for instance, was of black chip as a crown. There was a drapery of shaded violet silk, and this again had a border of green. Along the front the draped silk was drawn and then twisted into two large and long loops carrying the color and its shades. This for a golden haired girl would be a thing of beauty and a joy so long as no one else imitated it.

Very many of the flat hats are left quite straight and lavishly covered with beautiful flowers. Immense roses are on some of them, smaller ones on others, pansies galore and Parma violets for variety. One very poetical hat was arranged so that the brim drooped slightly, as though by its own weight, and around the crown was a mass of beautiful velvet morning glories in all their exquisite variations, ending in the back with long trailing vines and a bud or so. The morning glory always seemed too prosaic and unmanageable a flower to adapt to millinery purposes, but in this hat the whole effect was graceful to a degree. A few hats are faced with velvet, and many are bound around the brim with velvet in some color, but most often black. This throws the trimming out in bold relief, but does not add to the lightness.

It is understood that just now all the pretty and fetching tub dresses and delicate and filmy fabrics for summer are finished and laid away for consumption when the warm days shall come. Gingham is the favorite, and justly so, for waists, which have not lost their popularity yet. They are, as a rule, made simply, as it has been found that such a style is best for many reasons. They have perhaps a few tucks, button down the front, and some of them sport a ruffle of lace or embroidery along the edge. All have the plain band, to which can be affixed any kind of collar, but the high turn-down is the best liked. A natty little bow, of any color or material that the owner likes best, is fastened at the front. Some of the waists have plastron yokes stitched down to the waist and trimmed with a little black soutache braid. The duck and pique and heavy linen ones may have some, but not much embroidery put on, as it is best liked. All the wash waists have regular shirt sleeves, which reach the wrists. Those called lingerie waists may be and generally are lavishly garnished with lace of any kind and in any manner. Sleeves to these waists may be elbow length if thought preferable. Embroidery of every kind, particularly the shadow design, is employed in too many ways to mention, but that and lace will fairly cover most of the summer wear.

Some of the newest cottons and silk and cotton mixtures are truly beautiful. There are checks, zigzags, defined and shadow plaids and any amount of fine and dainty goods and fancy borders in various colors. Dots are scattered over the surface of some, with more and heavier dots to mark the Greek key design. Some have regular cashmere borders in all those colors on a ground of white with black dots. One other had a border of blue with coin spots in black and above that an arrangement of dots that look like open embroidery.

TALK OF THE DRAMA.

"The Wolf," a New Play by Author of "Paid In Full."

A CANADIAN MELODRAMA.

Ida Conquest and William Courtenay Seen in It—Marked Success of "The Servant in the House" Continues. What It Proves.

[From Our New York Dramatic Correspondent.]

There seems to be every reason to believe that "The Servant in the House," Charles Rann Kennedy's bold and inspiring play, will have a long and prosperous life. The attendance at the Savoy has been increasing steadily until the house is now filled at every performance. This fact is particularly gratifying as a proof of the soundness of public judgment. It may be laid down as a rule that a good play well acted very rarely fails. Many good plays, of course, including most of Shakespeare's, to begin with, have been ruined by bad acting, just as many bad plays have been preserved temporarily from oblivion by a brilliant performance. The common managerial excuse for the presentation of contemptible rubbish is that the public wants it.

The prosperity of such a piece as "The Servant in the House" is not only a refutation of the silly talk about the opposition of the public to any entertainment that will make it think or feel, but a demonstration that the theater has higher functions than those to which it has been lately confined.

Arthur Bourchier will act with Mrs. Langtry in "A Fearful Joy," the new farce which Mr. Sydney Grundy has written for the latter.

Miss Lena Ashwell has just produced at the Kingsway theater in London as a curtain raiser before "Diana of Dobson," a one act play named "The Likes of Me," the work of a new dramatist, Wilfred T. Coleby. The scene is laid in a poor quarter of London, and the two principal characters are a couple of waiis.

Eugene Walter, author of the success "Paid In Full," now at the Astor theater, has had produced another play, "The Wolf," at the Bijou theater that has merit.

Mr. Walter's latest play is a melodrama of the Canadian Hudson bay territory. The hero is a French-Canadian who undertakes a vendetta against a man who ruined and caused the death of his half sister. He finds him in the person of a Scottish trader who is scheming to get possession of Hilda, the very girl upon whom he has set his own heart. The trader has the young woman's father on his side, but the hero succeeds in carrying her off after a fight and in the closing act kills his rival in a sensational duel. The piece has been tried on the road with a considerable measure of success, but the story does not on the face of it bear promise of anything better than backwoods melodrama. The principal characters are played by Ida Conquest and William Courtenay.

Melville Ellis, whose musical specialties of "The Gay White Way," now on tour, is a man of varied talents. Known on the stage as a juvenile actor, a vaudeville player and a brilliant pianist, he is also a composer of promise. Mr. Ellis wrote the incidental music for "The Road to Yesterday," several numbers for "The Gay White Way" and two or three of the principal numbers for Sam Barnard's new play, "Nearly a Hero."

George Stone, the comedian, recently figured in a bit of stage business not down on the bill. In Baltimore Stone was in the habit of grasping the bottom of the drop curtain upon one of its numerous ascents at the conclusion of the second act and ascending with it to the flies, making the round trip back to the stage to the huge enjoyment of many and much apprehension on the part of others. At one performance the curtain stopped over thirty feet from the stage, leaving the comedian suspended in space.

Much excitement followed. In a very few minutes Stone realized that his strength was gradually leaving him, and he was about to relax his hold and fall to what must have proved his serious injury when several stage hands came upon the scene, dragging behind them two large bales of straw which they found in Stone's room and which is used in stuffing him for the scarecrow makeup. The loose straw was soon made into a soft pile, into which the thoroughly exhausted comedian dropped safely.

Spring usually finds the whole system run down and more or less out of order. The bowels are sluggish and inactive—the system is debilitated—the blood impoverished. Nearly everybody needs a Spring Remedy. For 57 years True's Elixir has been the standby of thousands at this season, as it is the best possible remedy to arouse the stomach, liver and bowels from their sluggish condition. The Improvement
Of Fore River

Representative Hultman of Quincy
was before the Committee on harbor and public lands of the Legislature on Monday in support of the resolve with his petition directing the Harbor and Land Commissioners to dredge the shoals which have formed in the upper portion of Fore River in the channel excavated by the United States government under Chapter 103 of the resolves of 1905, whereby the State agreed to maintain the channel dredged in the river by the United States government, and appropriating $2500
from the State treasury.

Mr. Hultman stated the facts
briefly and presented ex-Representative Sheppard of Quincy who said that the channel has been filled up at three different places. Conditions are so bad that coal for the witness'
wharf had been held up for a week before it could get in. The State is committed to the maintenance of the channel. Before the State took this action, the witness' firm had spent $3,500 in dredging the channel, and it ought not to be asked to spend any further money on a channel which the government is bound to maintain.
The channel has such a turn in it that the tendency is for a shoal to form at a particular point. No survey of the place has been made with a view of learning the expense, but the pilot, Marcus Wight, estimates that $2,500 would be needed. There is an unexpended advance of $14,000 left from the $25,000 appropriation of 1903, which was made for the dredging of the channel, but the State Auditor says that it cannot be used. It is the opinion of the Harbor and Land Commissioners that further legislation is necessary. There was no opposition and the hearing was closed.

Anniversary of

Quincy chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, observed its fourth anniversary Monday evening at Electa

ness session, during which four candidates were initiated.

The work of initiation was by Mrs.

the council; the other chairs being filled also by the original officers.
The work was witnessed by the grand matron and grand patron, who complimented the past officers on their excellent work.

The festivities opened at 7 o'clock
at which time a banquet was served plates being laid for 75 by Landlord Porter of the Greenleaf. The menu consisted of scalloped oysters, cold meats, salads, etc.

Then the council meeting was held. After the business of the evening Mrs. Fernald was presented with a silver bag, the presentation
speech being made by Mrs. Mary M.
Barncot. A social hour followed,
during which there were interesting remarks by the grand officers and others.

The committee of arrangements
and reception committee consisted of Mrs. Mary P. Tilley, Mrs. Cora A.
Remick, Dexter Remick, Mrs. Susie A.

sued he did not believe in discrimi-

At this point the Committee rose and reported progress.

Councilman Gelotte offered an order granting permit to Andrew S.
Isaacson.

Just Jotted Down
By Ledger Men

The Point people are planning for a May festival.

The wood-lot at the head of Broadway has been cleared of underbrush.

Flags are up on the westerly shore of Fore River, for guides to the dredger.

Elmer Baker has rented the Souther house on Foster street and will occupy it once.

James Fores and family have moved from Washington street, corner of Maple, to Weymouth Landing.

It was on May 5, 1850, that the first lots in Mt. Wollaston cemetery were sold. They were put up at auction.

South street is an accepted street, but the portion of South street between East Howard and North streets is sadly in need of repair.

Have you read the book "Vice Versa"
by F. Anstey? You should, for then you will appreciate the play more fully when it is produced at the parish house
on the evenings of May 6 and 7.

The anthem "Rejoice" was well rendered Sunday morning in the Point church, by the following quintet: Herr Lars Fallback, Eleanor Crane, Mrs.
Smith, Helen Lincoln and T. B. Pollard.

The May meeting of the Mothers' association will be held tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock in Bethany chapel. A good program has been arranged, with singing by Mrs. Ross K. Whiton and a paper by Mrs. Isabelle Davis.

Some dogs are so interested in prolonging their lives and avoiding the dog catcher that they pay their own license fee. Miss Georgiana C. Lane's Irish setter marched into City hall this week with his and insisted on a receipt.

Ten persons united in membership
Sunday with the Washington Street Congregational church. The new members are Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Shirley, Elizabeth Beattie, Mrs. Thomas Smith,
Mr. Crossman, M. E. Davis, Mrs. J. W.
Cummings, Maybelle Means, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fitton.

Part two of the High School concert
program this evening is the Stabat Mater by G. Rossini. The High School chorus of 100 voices will be assisted by a well known quartette. It is in ten parts and promises to be a great success and a credit to our High school.

We have the stock, tools, machinery, and "know how" to do your factorily. We repair the frames, grind

You Will Need an Oil Stove

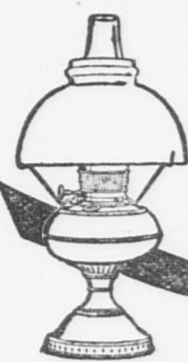

When warm days

to try a New Perfection

Cook-Stove.

Marvelous how this kitchen discomforts—

how cool it keeps the conditions when the coal

fire was burning. The quick concentrated heat of the

John Hancock
Paper No 2
Of Quincy
Historical Society

By Miss Florence Faxon.

Among all the signatures beneath the Declaration of Independence there is one that stands out preeminent. It is large and handsome, and has beneath it an individual flourish, and when it was affixed on July 4, 1776, its writer declared that the King of England could read it without spectacles. I refer to John Hancock, one of the prime movers in a movement which he was to live to see successful, one who lived in the closing decades of the provincial period and whom we will remember as the first Governor of our Commonwealth.

John Hancock, son of the Rev. Thomas Hancock, minister of the First church, was born in Quincy, then the North precinct of Braintree, Jan. 12, 1737. The house occupied a site in front of where the Adams Academy now stands. But he was not to grow up in that Quincy, whose main street was the Plymouth turnpike, beginning at the Milton line with Adams street and vanishing over Penn Hills. A town which besides its side streets, had the inevitable wagon roads leading to the marshes. Quincy possessed only two houses of distinction, Edmund Quincy's house, and Mr. Vassall's, the wealth of these owners having been made by trade in foreign shipping. When his father died in 1744, he left this hard working community, and was adopted by his uncle Thomas Hancock, a rich merchant of Boston.

It was perfectly natural that he should enter Harvard College, and 16 the age at which he graduated, was not then considered very precocious. Dr. Pattee states that later he was graduated from Yale in 1759. Notice please, how close those dates are to the Revolutionary war.

Entering his uncle's counting house he settled down to the routine of business. In 1760 John Hancock went to England—a very serious undertaking in those days—to make the acquaintance of those merchants with whom the house was associated with. In 1764, at the death of his uncle, he became inheritor of the estate, the largest in the province.

Thus our John Hancock became what we must think him of as a rich influential merchant, who in the next eventful years, threw this influence and wealth with the colony in their revolt.

The carrying trade was then of the utmost importance. While each household carried on almost within the four walls, and acres, those industries which clothed and fed it; yet all luxuries—tea, coffee, sugar, etc., must be brought from outside, and so great was the necessity of England, that the English Parliament had years before passed acts decreeing, that the fish, pitch, tar and turpentine must be sent to England, and the largest pines of Maine suitable only for warships, were blazed with the Kings mark.

The passage of the Stamp Act, and the taxes which it represented, bore heavily on Massachusetts, and foremost in the leaders who protested against the action of England are John Hancock, Samuel Adams, and James Otis, and Warren.

Indeed, when Gov. Gage came to Boston he promised pardon and amnesty for all rebels, except Warren and Hancock.

Meantime, while events were not progressing smoothly in Boston, it is to be supposed that the course of true love ran smoothly. For Hancock had duties of a more intimate nature to occupy him. Quincy his boyhood home was not so very far away. It is interesting to think his coming out over the old Plymouth road, and then turning down the Bridge street of today, the approach to our Dorothy Q. house. We are all proud that our city possesses this fine specimen of domestic architecture, and we are all familiar with the fact the the long parlor on the western side was papered in honor of the approaching marriage of Dorothy Quincy, fourth daughter and John Hancock.

But this paper put on in squares was not to witness their marriage—for a shot was fired at Lexington on April 1975 which precipitated events. A price was set on Hancock's head, and he and Samuel Adams went to Woburn practically in hiding. Edmund Quincy went to Lancaster, and Dorothy to Fairfield, Connecticut. Though she subsequently came back. Met after the battle, Mr. Hancock in his coach and four; accompanied (not chaperoned—that word is for the 20th century,) with his aunt took Miss Quincy to Connecticut where in August 1775, they were married.

From their they went to Philadelphia, let us hope with the four horses, for the roads of those days were atrocious, and often the party must have been in the predicament of the automobilist who are at present touring in Alaska.

After the declaration was signed, they returned to Boston, where for 18 years they lived in that beautiful brick mansion on Beacon street, which the older generation remember. Hancock now appears as an aristocrat. At the side of the fine house was built a dining hall, where 50 to 60 guests could be assembled, and if Hancock was disabled by gout he would be wheeled in to dinner. You may see him and his portrait, dressed in the resplendent velvet and lace—of the period, painted by Copley in the Art Museum.

Today this interesting house would not have been destroyed, but in 1859, when the original gardens had long since been built on, although the Legislature suggested the purchase of the house, and recommended the sum of $100,000. In 1863 the land was sold for $125,000, and two houses built on the site. The knocker was given to Dr. Holmes, who placed it on his gambrel roof birthplace in Cambridge. Although two sons were born, neither lived to manhood, and since history records true facts, after her husband's death, Mrs. Hancock married James Scott, a sea captain who had sailed Hancock's ships.

Hancock was the chief magistrate of Massachusetts, and when the constitution was adopted in 1780, was elected Governor, the town of Braintree giving him 95 votes.

In 1792 Governor Hancock signed the act, in which the North Precinct was set off from Braintree, and ordered it to be called "Quincy." Mr. Adams tells us, in his Three Episodes that the name "Hancock" was originally chosen for Governor was then at the height of his popularity, but Richard Cranch, then the foremost citizen, substituted the name Quincy;

his wife being a grand-daughter of Col. John Quincy. But the name does appear in a New Hampshire town, and in one city, and in Boston we see it bestowed on schools, on buildings, and on streets.

From this time, until his death in 1794, with the exception of two years, when incapacitated by ill health, he served as Governor.

His grave, appropriately marked, may be seen by the passers in the Granary burying grounds—where lie also Otis and Samuel Adams.

Fifty seven years seems young, as we count years today, but his death and the century together came to their close,—and with the new century the new order of things.

Henry Cabot Lodge writes that Hancock was not a great man—but one who fitted perfectly with his place and period.

Friendly Churches.

At a recent meeting of the Washington Street Congregational church, a vote of appreciation was sent to the Universalist church and parish of our city, of their pastor, Rev. W. S. Perkins, D. D., together with a statement of regret that he had been called elsewhere; for the parish, community, and city appreciate the worth of such a brilliant speaker and minister. The Point church also extended an invitation to the Universalist parish, for its people to unite with them in worship during the summer vacation and as long as the church may be pastorless. For some time the most friendly feelings have existed between these two parishes, witnessed by the members of the one frequently attending the services of the other, and the two late pastors have had frequent and fruitful pulp exchanges.

Men's Club.

The members of the Men's club of Christ church turned out in large numbers Monday evening for their May meeting. They were entertained by Rev. W. E. Gardner with an illustrated talk on his Southern trip into central Florida, where he passed two months on a pecan plantation. His talk centered about the lumber industry, the turpentine industry and the pecan industry. A lunch was served by Henry P. Farnald.

REYES QUILTS BOGOTA

Colombian President Gets Close to Venezuelan Frontier

A MIXUP OVER BOUNDARIES

Three Republics Seeking Extension of Territory—United States Endorses Colombia's Claim to Jurado, Which Is Disputed by Panama

New York, May 5.—Passengers who have just arrived in New York from Savanilla, Colombia, bring news of the presence of President Reyes at Santa Marta, a Colombian seaport on the Goajira peninsula, over toward the Venezuelan frontier line. During the absence of Reyes from Bogota his brother-in-law, General Angulo, is acting as president of the republic.

The news of Reyes' presence on the coast came as a surprise to Colombians in New York, for it was not believed that he would dare to venture away from the capital. The fact that he has come down to the coast is taken to mean that he is confident with regard to the maintenance of peace in Colombia, for otherwise he would not have left the administration of affairs in the hands of Angulo, who is not a popular man, has few friends and cannot control either the country or the political parties and factions with the strong hand that Reyes has applied so successfully since coming to the presidency.

Why Reyes has come down to the coast cannot be stated with authority, but he doubtless has been impelled to take this step by reasons of considerable importance. He is a man of energy and his presence at Santa Marta is said to be connected with the Jurado incident—the occupation of this town claimed by both Colombia and Panama and recently occupied by Colombian troops—the fact that Senor Restrepo, the confidential agent of the Colombian government to Caracas, recently left that city after having failed to come to an understanding with President Castro with regard to the boundary dispute between Colombia and Venezuela, and the approaching visit of Secretary of War Taft and William N. Cromwell to the Isthmus of Panama.

Two boundary disputes enter into the situation that appears to be developing on the southern shore of the Caribbean. Castro wants a strip of Colombian territory on the east, and Panama, according to the Colombians who came to New York, is seeking to despoil Colombia, of which republic she was a state before the successful revolution of 1903, of certain territory along the Atrato river, which includes the town of Jurado.

Venezuela's claim, or rather demand, is that Colombia cede her a very material part of the Goajira peninsula, down the center of which the present boundary now runs, as well as a certain area in the vicinity of Cucuta. She wants to get possession of a railroad which runs from Cucuta to Encomendras, where connection is had with the Venezuelan line running northwesterly to Maracaibo. The existing boundary was fixed under the arbitration of Queen Maria Christina of Spain. Colombia insists that this line shall stand; Venezuela wants to disregard it and add to her domain. Inasmuch as Restrepo has left Caracas, there is no longer any diplomatic intercourse between Venezuela and Colombia.

On the other hand, Panama is claiming an extension of her boundary. When Colombia heard of these aspirations she sent troops into Jurado to bring this matter to an issue. The passengers from Savanilla corroborated the statement cabled from Panama that Colombia occupied Jurado on the advice of the American government, and this is taken as a clear indication that Washington will support Colombia in the controversy.

Panama, it is declared, would like to embroil Colombia with Venezuela on the eastern frontier, for such an outcome would give her a better chance to force her claim for territorial extension on the western frontier. Venezuela and Colombia have fought over this boundary line before, and should the matter come again to conflict, Venezuelan invasion of the Goajira peninsula might be expected. It is believed that Reyes is at Santa Marta on the peninsula, to prepare to resist any such development. To arrange a settlement of this ownership of the Jurado and Atrato territory is one of the purposes of Secretary Taft's visit to the Isthmus.

JENKINS AFTER GOTCH.

Veteran Wrestler Wants to Meet Champion—Winner to Take All.

Tom Jenkins, America's ex-champion wrestler, is once again on the war-path. He is after the scalp of Frank Gotch, the recent conqueror of Hackenschmidt, to whom Tom lost his laurels a year ago.

Jenkins defeated Gotch in New York a couple of years ago in the most bitterly fought wrestling contest ever held in this country. Shortly after that Hackenschmidt took the American's measure and in doing so injured Jenkins' side. It was while still suffering from this injury that Jenkins took Gotch on in Kansas City and was beaten. Time and again he tried to get Gotch to give him a return match, but without avail. Then Jenkins was appointed wrestling instructor at the Military academy at West Point and went into temporary retirement.

Since Gotch took the "Russian Lion's" measure Jenkins has been lending a willing ear to the call to battle. He says that if Gotch is a champion he knows that he is twice one and that he will not rest until he forces the farmer into a match. He is also willing for the winner to take the entire purse.

KAUFMAN READY TO FIGHT.

California Heavyweight Pugilist Willing to Meet Champion Burns.

"Al Kaufman, the California heavyweight pugilist, is ready to fight again." So says his manager, Billy Delaney. "Kaufman has entirely recovered from the effects of his operation, which was quite a serious matter. The surgeon found a cartilaginous growth at the base of his nose, which compelled Al to breathe through his mouth. The obstruction was not brought on by fighting, as often happens. The surgeon said he had it from the time he was a small child. Kaufman's hollow chest was produced undoubtedly by improper breathing. Now that he can use his nose he may fight in better form."

"After the operation Al went away to the country to rest and build himself up. While he was in the repair shop Al had six or seven challenges. It seemed that everybody wanted to fight him. Before the operation he had the hardest kind of trouble getting a match. After the operation offers came from Boston, New Orleans, Los Angeles, Bakersfield and San Francisco. I never saw anything like it. It was impossible for him to fight then, but he is all right now. Jim Flynn, who challenged him repeatedly, can have a match, or we will fight Tommy Burns. I would suggest that Kaufman and Flynn meet and the winner take on Burns."

Jiu Jitsu Wrestler After Gotch.

Leopold McLagan, claimant of the jiu jitsu championship of the world, recently offered to meet Frank Gotch in Los Angeles for a side bet of $5,000 in a match for the catch-as-catch-can championship of the world. McLagan states that he will guarantee to put Gotch's shoulders on the mat inside of an hour, provided he is allowed to use his own style of throws, which might compel him to alight on his shoulders for an instant to throw his opponent over his shoulders. The big Englishman says he will have the money down for Gotch whenever the latter is ready to accept his challenge.

Nealon With Sacramento Team.

Joe Nealon, former member of the Pittsburgh Pirates, will play first base for the Sacramento team in the California league this season.

Donohue Wants to Become a Magnate.

Jiggs Donohue says this is his last year with the Chicago White Sox. Jiggs would become an American association magnate.

BASEBALL PICKUPS.

Snodgrass, the New York Nationals' young catcher from the Pacific coast, has a great throwing arm.

The Cleveland American league club has turned First Baseman Daubert over to Bill Bernhardt's Nashville club. Pitcher Gus Dorner of the Boston Americans is taking better care of his arm this year than he did last spring.

Outfielder Bell has been loaned by the New York Americans to the Newark club of the Eastern league.

President Murphy of the Chicago Nationals is quite tickled over the Cubs' new ball park. The improvements have been quite extensive and have been made at an outlay of $40,000.

Larry McLean, the Cincinnati catcher, predicts big things for McFale of the Boston Americans. They played together on the Portland (Ore.) team three years ago.

ONLY ONE WAY TO RETAIN HEALTH

Young Man with New Theory Says All Depends on Stomach.

L. T. Cooper's theory regarding the human stomach is rapidly becoming a topic of universal discussion. Cooper claims that the human stomach has become chronically deranged by modern conditions, and that sickness generally is the result.

In a recent interview, while introducing his medicine in a leading city, Mr. Cooper said: "There is just one way, in my opinion, to maintain general health, and that is by building up the digestive organs. The vast majority of Americans today have weak, flabby, distended stomachs. This has been caused by many generations of over-feeding and lack of exercise, until today the entire civilized race is affected. This is the true cause of most of the ill health of today. Little can be done to relieve it until the stomach is once more brought back to normal conditions."

"I am successful because my preparation puts the stomach in sound condition, and as I maintain this is the only way to secure general and permanent good health."

Among many prominent people who have recently become converted to Cooper's theory is Mr. E. M. Howey, of 47½ De Russey Street, Binghamton, N. Y., who says: "I had stomach trouble for about six years. After eating, I would become bloated and have a distressed feeling for several hours. This would be accompanied by heartburn, and I reached the point where I could not enjoy my meals at all."

"I tried different remedies in an effort to find relief, but without success. After taking three bottles of Cooper's New Discovery I am entirely cured. My stomach does not bother me in the least, and I can eat anything I like. I can cheerfully recommend Mr. Cooper's medicine to anyone afflicted with stomach complaints."

Mr. Cooper's medicines are making a remarkable record. We sell them.—E. J. Murphy.

TROUBLES IN INDIA

Thousands of Afghans Attempt to Seize Black Houses

WORK FOR BRITISH TROOPS

Are Hastening Forward to Meet New Developments—Extensive Plot in Another District to Get Rid of Europeans by Means of Bombs

London, May 4.—India is a source of considerable uneasiness to the British government at the present moment. The difficulty with the Mohmands seemed on the eve of settlement when on Saturday, according to reports received here, a new danger threatened in an attempt made by a large Afghan force, numbering from 13,000 to 20,000, which crossed the border, divided into two bodies, and attempted to seize the blackhouses in Khyber Pass, near Landikhotal.

The attacks were repulsed, with trifling casualties on the part of the British, but the Afghans remained in front of Landikhotal, and another body is reported moving into Bazar valley by way of Lisote Pass.

General Willcocks, who is in command of the British forces recently dispatched to quell the trouble, has gone to Jamrud, a fort ten miles west of Peshawar, at the entrance of Khyber Pass, and is hastening forward his troops to meet the new development.

The London newspapers, referring editorially to the serious Indian news, generally agree that as yet there is no cause for alarm or for grave anxiety.

If, as is hoped, the affair is not directly responsible for the attitude of the Afghan border tribes, but they point out that until the affair's attitude is definitely known it behooves the government to be alert and prepared for eventualities.

All frontier telegrams are severely censored at Simla. From Calcutta comes the news of the discovery of a plot to murder Europeans by means of bombs. The conspiracy appears to be of an extensive character, and many arrests have been made. The responsibility for the plot is placed on the natives, a number of incriminating documents having been seized, together with a supply of bombs and other explosives.

The discovery of the plot was made through the arrest and confession of the author of a bomb outrage at Mozufferpur, the capital of the province of the same name in Bengal, in which two Europeans were killed.

Fighting in Egypt

Cairo, Egypt, May 4.—A British subject, Scott Moncreiff, deputy inspector of the Blue Nile province, together with a native official, were assassinated at the instance of a local sheik, who proclaimed himself prophet at Mesalmanich. A small punitive force, led by the governor of the province, was attacked by a band of dervishes. The governor was wounded and two native officers were killed.

Murdered Girl He Loved

New York, May 4.—Enraged because his long journey across the seas had ended in the refusal of his proposal of marriage, William Sekansky, a young Polisher, shot and killed Annie Kockonwa, a 20-year-old Polish girl, in the hallway of a boarding house in Williamsburg. Before he was overpowered by the police he shot and fatally wounded Michael Kirsani, who sought to intercept him in his flight. Kirsani died at a hospital.

An Anti-Gambling Campaign

New Orleans, May 4.—A campaign to abolish racing in Louisiana will be launched before the legislature, which meets one week from today. The attempt will be made to suppress absolutely every form of betting at, or connected with, race tracks. The state's political leaders of both parties have declared strongly against race track gambling.

May Be a New Cardinal

New York, May 4.—Because of the great interest of the century of the Catholic diocese just closed, reports of another cardinal have been revived. The fact that Archbishop Farley will go to Rome in July has also aroused curiosity in this connection. Neither the archbishop nor his friends have given up hope of his getting the red hat.

Fund to Entertain Sailors

Melbourne, Australia, May 4.—Referring to the visit of the American fleet to Australian ports, Sir William J. Lyne, minister of trade and customs, who is treasurer of the reception fund, said that the bulk of the expenditure would be on the sailors. "We are determined," he said, "that they must leave with a good impression."

Philippine Town Destroyed

Manila, May 4.—Antipolo, in the province of Morong, was destroyed last night by fire. Four hundred houses were burned and hundreds of people are homeless. The famous shrine was saved. The fire was caused by lightning. Antipolo has 3500 inhabitants.

Didn't Know Guns Were Loaded

Pittsburg, May 4.—Albert Kleer, 19 years old, is held in custody at Carnegie, following the death of John Young, 11 years old. The boys, with revolvers supposed to be empty, fought a mock duel and Young was shot.

Won't Support Baseball Team

Woonsocket, R. I., May 5.—On account of lack of support the Woonsocket team of the Atlantic league left town yesterday without playing the game with Portland which was scheduled. The opening game of the series was to have been played last Saturday, but as only thirty spectators turned out to view it Woonsocket forfeited the game to Portland. The Woonsocket players will be withdrawn from the city, pending a decision as to a transfer.

Harvard Has Pitching Machine

Cambridge, Mass., May 5.—A new automatic pitching machine has been formally accepted by the Harvard 'varsity' baseball team. It has been installed in front of one of the batting nets on the field and will be used by the squad in their practice. The machine is operated with compressed air, and can pitch both curve and straight balls.

Newspaper Publishers' Evidence

Washington, May 5.—An eight-inch stack of telegrams from newspaper publishers, bearing on the increased cost of print paper, was submitted to the special committee of the house investigating that subject by John Norris. Amplifying these telegraphed statements, Norris presented a mass of figures substantiative of the charges brought against the International Paper company by the American Newspaper Publishers' association. Forty-six newspaper publishers have telegraphed that they are willing to come to Washington to testify.

British Troops Scatter Raiders

Simla, May 5.—The promptitude shown by General Willcocks, commander of the British forces, in rushing his troops to the scene of the disturbances has deprived the Afghan raiders of present danger. He attacked the raiders and drove them back over the frontier, scattering them in various directions. Finding no support from the other tribes, the raiders are dwindling away. According to advices received here, the Mohmands and other border tribes are quiet and engaged in harvesting.

Tornado in Missouri

Springfield, Mo., May 5.—A tornado wrecked the Springfield Wagon company's warehouse, blew down steeples, uprooted trees and interrupted wire service. Many horses and cattle were killed. Damage is reported in several other cities. No lives were lost so far as known, but there was much damage to crops and orchards.

Sailors Drowned in Storm

Newport, Or., May 5.—During a storm on the coast steamer Minnie Kelton shifted her cargo and sprung a bad leak. Later a huge wave struck the vessel and washed her deck and cabin, leaving the vessel waterlogged and unmanageable. Eleven of the crew were drowned, some while trying to launch a boat.

Eleven Perished in Hotel Fire

Fort Wayne, Ind., May 5.—Rain last night stopped the search for bodies in the ruins of the New Avenue hotel, destroyed by fire Sunday, and the death list stands at eleven. The injured are all doing well, except E. M. Matthews, who may die.

Ideals That Are Possible.
As we advance into life out of larger experience of the world and of ourselves are unfolded the ideals of what will be possible to us if we make the best use of the world and of ourselves taken as we are. Let these be as high as they may, they will always be lower than those others which are perhaps the veiled intimations of our immortality. These will always be imperfect, but life is not a failure because they are so. It is these that are to burn for us, not like lighthouses in the distance, but like candles in our hands.—James Lane Allen, "The Choice Invisible."

Nursery Opened
At Police Station

If a stranger had entered the police station about midnight last night he would have thought for a minute that he had made a mistake, and entered a nursery with policemen as nurse maids. The first thing he would have seen would have been Sargeant Barry trying to soothe an obstinate woman who persisted in making her bed on the hard floor. Near at hand was Officer Cahill walking about with an eighteen-months baby in his arms trying to quiet its crying as only a father knows how.

Just a little way off, Officer Holoran was wheeling a baby carriage containing a three-months old child trying as best he could to induce the kid to go to sleep. It was a laughable sight for all but the chief characters in the comedy.

Shortly before, Inspector Goodhue, armed with a search warrant, had visited the residence of James Basconna on Canal street, accompanied by a Mrs. Hinds of Brockton, to search for some goods that had been stolen from a building at Houghs Neck where they were stored.

Goods amounting to $300 in value had been stolen between Saturday night and Monday morning, and it was thought that they might be found at Basconna's house. In this the supposition was right for Inspector Goodhue found three of the missing articles. He arrested Basconna and started for the police station with him. Mrs. Basconna demurred and said if her husband went she and the children would go also, and the whole party followed the officer and his prisoner, Mrs. Basconna carrying one of the children in her arms and wheeling the other in a baby carriage. Arriving at the station, she still refused to leave her husband and said that she would also stay there. Sargeant Barry in a fatherly way tried to remonstrate with her, but all was without avail. She was there to stay and immediately proceeded to establish her camp on the station house floor. Then the children began to cry and Officers Cahill and Holoran came to the rescue.

After a time the mother and children were loaded into the patrol wagon and taken to the Quincy Home for the night.

In court the case of Basconna was continued until Wednesday morning under $500 bonds.

May Party at Quincy Neck.

Mrs. Sarah J. Woodberry of 148 East Howard street gave a May-party on Saturday from 1 to 5 to 22 young friends from 5 to 7 years old. They were prettily dressed in white, with Eppie Samil on as the May Queen, who wore a wreath of rose-buds. The May dinner was served in the rear by restaurant and consisted of chicken salad, chicken sandwiches, ice cream, orange and assorted cakes. Each individual had a pretty May basket placed at their plate. Games and a general good time followed till the little ones were called home, happy and joyous over the occasion, and feeling very grateful to their hostess. It is said to have been the first May party at the Neck since 1856—52 years ago.

Part one at the High school concert this evening will include solos by Mrs. Jeannie Crocker Follett, Mr. A. R. Frank, Mrs. Marguerite Guckenberger and Mr. Ray Finel, also a gavotte by the High school orchestra.

Outside Line to New York.

All rumors to the contrary, notwithstanding, it can be stated positively that passenger service is about to be resumed on the outside all-water line between Boston and New York.

Calvin Austin, president of the Metropolitan Steamship Company, is authority for the announcement. He says that on Monday, May 11, he will once more place in commission on the Metropolitan Line, the two new and magnificent twin turbine steamships "Harvard" and "Yale" which when placed in commission last September attained immediate and extraordinary popularity.

It will be remembered that not alone on their trial trips, but also on regular service, both the "Yale" and "Harvard" made the remarkable record of 23 knots an hour, their average running being not less than 20 knots. The schedule this season will be the same as last. In other words the "Harvard" and "Yale" alternating, will leave New York and Boston every evening (Sundays included) at five o'clock, arriving the following morning at nine o'clock.

The fact that both steamships are luxuriously appointed, fitted and furnished with every accommodation possible, including bridal state-rooms en suite, with bath, speaks volumes for the comfort of passengers, but added to this is the splendid turbine equipment which precludes all vibration aboard ship and ensures perfectly smooth sailing even in rough weather.

The "Harvard" and "Yale" are not alone the swiftest, but also the largest and costliest of the steel turbine steamships afloat on the American seaboard.

Efforts are being made to start a tennis club in Atlantic. No definite arrangements have as yet been made about securing the land.

P. W. Co. barge No. 14 of Portsmouth, N. H., is discharging a cargo of lumber at the shipyard.

The smoke stack of Light-vessel No. 90 was given a coat of black finish paint Monday.

Under the heading of "An Imaginary Scandal" the Boston Journal has the following to say editorially regarding the submarine investigation: "Congressman Lilley has had his turn in the limelight, as he was bound to have at any cost, and now he is on his way down South, defeated and discredited. As a result of the investigation of which he endeavored to make himself the hero, it has been proved that the charges of corrupt practices in connection with submarines and of excessively high profits under exclusive contracts are moonshine and wind.

"The man directly responsible for the circulation of the sensational charges, who concocted them and found Congressman Lilley a willing tool, is sick in a Washington hospital, prostrated, no doubt, over the outcome of his reckless work; but fortunately, he had strength enough to make a deposition to the effect that his suspicions were baseless and his attacks consequently unjustified. He gets out of the mess cleanly and easily enough. So does the too impressionable congressman from Connecticut, who the submarine scandal, which in the beginning threatened to take on serious proportions, turns out to be a case of much ado about nothing. If Waterbury is proud of Mr. Lilley, she should keep him at home."

Everett Haynes of Quincy was thrown from an express wagon on Washington street on Monday in a runaway accident and received a broken nose, a cut on the forehead and bruises. His son who was also thrown to the street escaped unhurt.

The Hemlocks of Quincy defeated the Bigelow Juniors on Saturday by a close score 9 to 8.

New Bill at the Scenic.

The bill this week bids fair to eclipse all past performances. The audience is simply compelled to laugh at the comedy in Robert Morris's black-face act, and is thoroughly entertained by both Carry Ross, who certainly excels in the art of dancing and skipping rope; and Thomas Bateman, who revels in witty and fun-making songs. Fred Bowman in his rube and musical act, concludes the vaudeville part of the entertainment. The illustrated songs sung by Bert Hamer, a well known baritone, and the pictures, alone, are well worth the price of admission.

QUINCY WARSHIPS.

Arrive Today at San Francisco
Sixteen Days,
Of Merrymaking

The Atlantic fleet of battleships was sighted at the entrance to San Francisco before midnight last night, and a million visitors were in the city today to welcome the big fleet under the command of Admiral Evans, which includes the Quincy built battleships Vermont, New Jersey and Rhode Island, and the Quincy built torpedo boat destroyer the Lawrence. The test of the whistles at the Fore River shipyard today was thought by some to be in celebration of the arrival of the Quincy warships at San Francisco. Certainly it is a date the Fore River Company should be happy, and they should let all their whistles screech for an hour.

San Francisco has planned a program of 16 days. The big military and naval parade planned for tomorrow May 7, will be the greatest pageant ever seen in the West. General John A. Koster of the National Guard of California, will be the grand marshal. The parade will be more than five miles in length and it is figured that it will occupy at least three hours in passing a given point. Three thousand soldiers from the Presidio and near-by army points, headed by Brigadier General Frederick A. Funston, will participate.

The day that Secretary Metcalf reviews the fleet, Friday, May 8, fully fifty of Uncle Sam's ships will be assembled in the bay, probably the greatest number of fighting ships of the nation that were ever brought together at any one time.

"Baking day" is to be one of the unofficial events of the celebration. Every good cook in San Francisco will have her chance to add her bit of welcome to the fleet in providing a juicy pie or cake. Some means will be devised to collect the pies and cakes. It is believed that nothing the city could do for the jacks would reach the right spot quite so completely as the pies.

The bill to permit "peaceful picketing" was defeated in the senate on Tuesday. Senator Jenney opposed the passage of the bill, saying that President Campers had directly told the committee that he did not want this bill. Senator Jenney also said the bill would permit the boycott. He voted against ordering the bill to a third reading. The bill will come up for reconsideration today.

Such a good job has been done on Hunt street at Atlantic by Foreman O'Neil that an auto party from Boston took it this morning for the new Metropolitan parkway. When they arrived at the fire station, however, they had to enquire their way.

Carl W. Gram, a graduate of the Quincy High school, now at the Institute of Technology, is entered in the 100 yard-dash, 220 yard-dash, and 220 yard hurdle race at the dual meet between the Technology and Brown college for Saturday.

Squantum Park is attracting the attention of Boston people who are looking for a shore home. It is certainly handy to the city, and an attractive place for an outing.

Do Not Blame The Milkmen

Much has been said during the past few weeks as to the sanitary production and handling of milk as a preventative of disease and a means of improving the keeping quality of this great staple food. While the State Board of Agriculture believes that milk should be produced and handled in the best way possible before it reaches the consumer, it also believes that much of the complaint of poor keeping quality comes because of poor handling by the consumer in his own home. With a view to increasing the knowledge of the consuming public as to the proper handling of milk the board has published its Nature Leaflet, No. 49, on "Care of milk in the home," by P. H. Smith, B. S., of the Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station. This leaflet, with a companion one, on "Milk: its character and value as food," by Dr. J. B. Lidysey, of the same station, can be obtained by applying to J. Lewis Ellsworth, Secretary State Board of Agriculture, State House, Boston.

Mr. Smith says, in opening the subject, "There is no common article of food more uncertain as to its keeping qualities than milk. Even if milk is produced in a sanitary manner, it is kept cold until delivered, and in every way up to the time it reaches the producer has been properly cared for, the painstaking work of the producer can easily be offset through the carelessness or ignorance of the consumer himself. The object of this paper is to present, in a brief and concise manner, some hints of how milk should be cared for (especially during the summer months) after it has left the producer and retailer and is in the hands of the consumer."

OUR HIGH SCHOOL

Complimented
On Success of Presentation of Stabat Mater

As a musical critic at the High School concert expressed it, Quincy is fortunate in having as musical director of its public schools a gentleman like Mr. E. Landis Snyder "a man who has the spunk to undertake something worth while."

The success in music at both the grammar and the High schools of the city has been noted frequently, especially at the graduation season. First, it was in the development of chorus singing, but now there is in addition an excellent orchestra composed entirely of High school pupils who have been trained under his direction, whose members are destined to make their mark in years to come in the musical world.

To present the Stabat Mater by G. Rossini on Tuesday evening was a commendable undertaking for High school pupils and the musical director, and all expectations were realized. It was a particularly difficult production for the orchestra, but only words of praise are heard for their work which was certainly excellent. The chorus of 200 boys and girls was heard in four of the numbers and gave a good account of themselves. They occupied the platform and seats in front of the platform and it was a pretty scene, most of the young ladies being in white.

The school was assisted by the former quartette of the Commonwealth Avenue Baptist church of Boston, every member being an accomplished soloist. Two numbers of the Stabat Mater were given by the quartette, and were much enjoyed, particularly No. 9, Quando Corpus, which was sung without accompaniment and was beautiful. The quartette is composed of Mrs. Jeannie Crocker Follett, soprano; Mrs. Marguerite Guckenberger, alto; Mr. Ray Pinel, tenor; and Mr. A. R. Frank, bass.

Another fine number was the duet by Mrs. Follett and Mrs. Guckenberger. The members of the quartet were heard in solo parts in the Stabat Mater, but were especially popular in the solo selections of part one of the program. Encores were demanded for each number.

A member of the quartet who has sung at several High school concerts, says that none of them ever attempted anything as difficult as the Stabat Mater, and compliments the school and Mr. Snyder on the great success of Tuesday evening. Miss Minnie Louise Hildebrand, the pianist and accompanist, a pupil of the school, is also to be complimented for her work.

The program in brief was:

An Enjoyable Party.

Mrs. Porterfield of Hancock street, gave a party Tuesday evening in honor of her nephew Robert Ida and friend Robert Archibald. Singing and dancing were enjoyed until ten o'clock when refreshment were served. After which a general good time was enjoyed until midnight.

Manhattan's Arbor day is on Friday. Perhaps New York's celebration will give an impetus to civic pride and impress thousands of school children with the necessity of cultivating the ornamental tree. The day has been recognized in New York since 1882, and as Gifford Pinchot, the United States forestry commissioner says, the central idea of Arbor day is the intelligent and appreciative planting of trees by school children. One's hope is in the children.

BAKER FILES RETURN

Hospital Chief Denies Allegations That Thaw Is Sane

COURT'S REMARKS REPEATED

Attached to Return to Writ of Habeas

Corpus as a Transcript-Number of Expert Witnesses at Hearing

to Be Limited to Five on Each Side

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 6.—Dr.

Amos T. Baker, acting superintendent of the Matteawan state hospital, in his return to the writ of habeas corpus obtained by counsel for Harry K. Thaw, denies the allegations in the petition of counsel that Thaw is now sane, and alleges, on the contrary, that Thaw is insane. Dr. Baker has had Thaw under observation during his confinement in Matteawan, following the trial for the slaying of Stanford White.

Attached to the return of Dr. Baker

to the writ of habeas corpus is a transcript of remarks made by Justice

Dowling of New York at the time he committed Thaw to Matteawan. The judge then said that the testimony

showed that Thaw was subject to

manic-depressive insanity, constituting

a ground for his confinement in the Ma-tteawan institution until discharged by due process of law.

The recurrence of these attacks, the court stated, is reasonably, if not absolutely certain, causing danger of assaults or murders being committed by the person who is afflicted by this ailment. In the depressive state of this form of the malady, Dowling said,

there is also danger that a person so afflicted will commit suicide.

District Attorney Mack of Dutchess county states that he has been advised

by Justice Morschauser that the number of expert witnesses to be called in the Thaw habeas corpus proceedings

will be limited to five on each side. Mr.

Mack telephoned this decision to Assistant District Attorney Garvan and also to James G. Graham, counsel for Thaw, in order that they could make their arrangements accordingly.

Mr. Mack states that the law gives the court discretion in the number of expert witnesses that may be sworn in

as to insanity or character. This principle has been followed in a number of cases and fixed in a decision in this county.

Justice Morschauser's decision to limit the number of expert witnesses on each side is taken as an indication of his intention to have the Thaw habeas corpus proceedings, when they are resumed in the supreme court here next

Monday, conducted expeditiously and without extravagant expenditures of the public money.

Raynor Questions Roosevelt

Washington, May 6.—The banishment by order of President Roosevelt

of Colonel Stewart of the army to Fort

Grant, an abandoned military post in Arizona, in all probability will be the subject of inquiry in the senate by Senator Raynor, who wrote to President Roosevelt asking him for full information concerning the case of Stewart, particularly as to the reasons

which obtained in the war department

for not giving him a court of inquiry.

These reasons have not yet been supplied to the Maryland senator.

Prisoners Wanted to Fight

Trenton, May 6.—Convicts at the New Jersey state prison inaugurated a

"yelling" strike in the new male wing,

when all the windows were closed,

preventing them from flirting with a number of girls and women in the street below. The prisoners all joined in the yelling. For a time the prison seemed more like a lunatic asylum

than a penitentiary.

Higher Pay For Health Officers

Washington, May 6.—The senate

committee on public health and national quarantine authorized a favorable report on a bill making the salaries of officers of the public health and marine hospital service the same as officers of the army and giving them

Washington, May 6.—In the house, when the provision of the sundry civil bill was reached, appropriating $180,000 for the purchase of land as an addition to Fort William McKinley, P. I., Mr. Hay moved to strike it out. He maintained there was no military necessity for it, and especially so since the army bill provided $211,000 for additional land for the fort. There was read a letter from Secretary Taft, strongly urging the purchase of the land, based on the recommendation of General Wood. After a long discussion Hay's motion was carried unanimously.

Fatal "Wild West" Game

New York, May 6.—While playing "wild west" with several boys in a back yard here, Frank Green, 8 years old, was shot over the right eye with an air rifle by Joseph Finley, aged 9, and died shortly afterward. Finley was found on his knees in a nearby church praying that "Frankie wouldn't die." A charge of homicide was entered against him. When informed that his companion was dead the boy broke down. The officers turned him over to the custody of the Children's society.

Saved Many Lives—May Lose His Own

New York, May 6.—John Colson, an engineer, was probably fatally burned while trying to rescue the occupants of a five-story burning factory in Brooklyn. Colson ran the elevator to the top floor, where panic reigned among the employees, and aided many of them to reach the ground floor. Making a last trip to see that none was left behind, he was cut off by the flames and was badly burned before the firemen rescued him. The other occupants of the building were uninjured.

Taft Resolutions Defeated

Trenton, May 6.—The Republican state convention to select delegates to attend the national convention at Chicago named a delegation that is undisciplined. The convention also voted down resolutions endorsing the candidacy of Secretary Taft for president and favoring the renomination of President Roosevelt. A resolution favoring former Governor Murphy for vice president was adopted without opposition.

Cassidy Seeks Information

New York, May 6.—State Senator Cassidy, who voted against the anti-gambling bill, was a visitor to the Jamaica race track yesterday. When he was asked if he had anything to say regarding his presence at the track, he replied: "I am trying to understand what is calling forth all this hysteria against the race tracks, and I am seeking personal observation to understand what we are trying to destroy."

The Peruvian Revolution

Lima, April 6.—An official dispatch states that Durand was attacked at Cerro de Pasco, about 130 miles from Lima, by sub-Prefect Negrete, who defeated him. Durand fled in the direction of Huanuco, abandoning his companions and a quantity of arms. It is believed here that the revolution practically is suppressed.

Effort to Break Dowie's Will

Waukegan, Ills., May 6.—Mrs. Jane Dowie and her son have filed suit to set aside the will of the late John Alexander Dowie appointing John A. Lewis his successor. Mrs. Dowie hopes to become the head of the Dowie church. She alleged Lewis used undue influence and that Dowie was not of sound mind.

The Perambulator Now in the South

A very interesting letter has been received by George H. Corliss of the A department from William Dinnie, formerly of the civil engineering department at the shipyard. The letter was written at Charleston, S. C., where Mr. Dinnie is employed in the construction of a large pier at the entrance to the new government dry dock. This dry dock which is entirely of stone has been under construction for the past five years. William L. Miller, the Boston and Brunswick Ga., bridge builder and general contractor, has a contract to do considerable pier work in connection with the new dry dock and Mr. Dinnie is engaged on the work as superintendent.

Mr. Dinnie says in part "The other night a friend and myself attended an entertainment in Charleston and while there we met a fellow who is walking around the border of the United States on a bet. He started from Toledo, Ohio, and came down the coast arriving here on Friday, April 10, hale and hearty. We had a talk with him and he showed me his book in which he keeps his record. I was looking through and sure enough I saw the post office stamp of Quincy. Well, that looked good to me and you bet I gave him the glad hand and told him that was my home. In the book I read in his hand writing of his being at a banquet at the Hotel Greenleaf with Mayor Shea, Chief Burrell, F. A. Spear, George T. Magee of the Quincy Daily Ledger, and Mr. Collins of the Boston Globe. He also mentioned of his getting some address cards from the Daily Ledger office. He has been well so far and will have to walk through some hot cities now as it is getting genuine summer days down here. It was sure good to meet one who came from Quincy, and when I was going he gave me his name. It was Starl Cronley and he said he was known as "Teddy from Texas." I receive the Daily Ledger regularly and certainly look forward to its arrival with a great deal of pleasure.

The L. T. L. will meet in Protection hall, Johnson building, on Thursday afternoon after school at four o'clock. The new kindergarten school at Quincy Point for which Miss Margaret Thomas has been the moving spirit was opened on Monday. AMONG THE CLUBS

A very interesting meeting of the Junior Friday club was held on Monday afternoon with Mrs. Perry Lawton of Foster street. The club's by-laws were discussed, revised and amended, preparatory to the business meeting on May 18th at the home of Miss Georgiana C. Lane. After the business and literary meeting a social hour was held during which the dainty refreshments served by the hostess were appreciatively discussed.

Mrs. Frederick Allison Tupper of Brighton formerly of Quincy and until recently an active member of the Friday club, has been nominated for the vice presidency of the Brighthelmstone club. She is an earnest worker for the good of the club and has held other offices.

Friday club at its closing meeting last week elected the following officers for next year: President, Mrs. C. Theodore Hardwick; vice president, Mrs. A. E. Sproul; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Zenas S. Arnold; executive board, the above and Mrs. Wilson Marsh and Mrs. George G. Saville. The club has finished the study of Florence and next year will take up Venice.

All friends of association work will be welcomed at the "Birthday Party" following the regular business meeting at three. During the afternoon there will be music by a quartet composed of Marion Miller, Dorothy Lowe, Margaret Hunt and Dorothy Sweetland. Piano solos by Miss Margaret Carruthers. Also readings by Miss Lois Williams.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

Several extra meetings have been held this year by the various committees of the Quincy Women's club which have proved very enjoyable. In March the Art and Literature committee had an exhibit of miniatures and silhouettes; in April the Arts and Crafts committee had an exhibit and interesting talk, and on Tuesday of this week the Philanthropy committee held a recognition party which was well attended and enjoyable.

Club members were asked to wear their visiting card pinned in a conspicuous place that they might be easily recognized. The conspicuous place varied and some recognitions were "face to face" while with others it was "back up." The wearing of the cards added much to the sociability.

As each guest entered she received a large card and was invited to join in a guessing contest, answering questions in the order given on the card from quotations etc., arranged about the rooms, the whole telling of "Sweet Williams' Love Story." After all had filled in their cards Mrs. Abele read the story while those in the game followed and saw how far out of the way had been their guesses.

An informal entertainment of piano and vocal solos was given by Miss Sara Thomas and Mrs. Henry W. Tirrell, adding to the pleasure of the gathering. Interest centered in the group about a big table covered with hats and trimmings, where hats were being trimmed for Chelsea. The trimmers were certainly skilful and the result so good that club members were inclined to bargain for a hat for themselves. The hats

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and trying the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. are to be sent to the Chelsea Woman's club which insures their right disposal.

Ice cream and delicious home made cake were served by the committee. Mrs. Abele and her committee are certainly to be congratulated on the success of their undertaking for it was well attended and very social. Everyone looked happy and interested. These kind of gatherings certainly foster a neighborly spirit and mean much to an active working club like the Quincy Women's club.

Mrs. Albert E. Avery, a member of the Quincy club, was on Tuesday elected to the presidency of the Philergians of Braintree.

Members are reminded that they must pay their dues before the annual meeting or be dropped from membership. Mrs. N. S. Hunting is the treasurer.

A lecture by Prof. Griggs, demonstration lecture by Mrs. Mary L. Wade, a fine musicale, a dramatic entertainment, home club talent afternoon and several notable lectures, are already booked for next season and it promises to be the best since the club started.

The annual and last meeting for this season will be held next Tuesday afternoon at half past two at the club house. There will be annual reports, considerable business, and a musical program arranged by Mrs. Hayward of the Music committee, followed by a social tea.

An important meeting of the executive board will be held tomorrow (Thursday) morning at ten o'clock at the club house.

DAUGHTERS OF THE REVOLUTION

After meetings held at the homes of members during the cold weather Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution on Monday afternoon again met at the birthplace of President John Adams and had a very social gathering with several guests present. Braintree members, Mrs. Charles H. Sprague, Mrs. F. Eugene Dyer and Mrs. Susan Wilde were hostesses and arranged the program.

A short business session was held with reports by the secretary and treasurer. It was voted to place flags on the graves of revolutionary soldiers on Memorial day as has been the custom of the chapter. Members at this meeting contributed toward the restoration of the Paul Revere room in his old home in Boston, the work being undertaken by the state society of the Daughters of the Revolution. It was announced that the June meeting would be held at Randolph with Mrs. Patience Braley; Quincy members to take the 1.20 car and South Braintree the 1.45.

In keeping with the springtime season an entertainment was given instead of historical paper, etc., and it was all by young people consisting of speaking by Mabel Borden, Dutch dance by Ester McGill and Joe Beal, and speaking by Joe Beal.

The young people were capital and were so enthusiastically received that responses were given each encore. Miss Borden was very good in her recitations, the Dutch dance was in costume and the bright eyed participants made a hit as did Master Beal in his recitations.

After the entertainment refreshments were served in the parlor consisting of ice cream, cake, coffee, candy and salted nuts.

The table was springlike with its big bowl of jonquils and the yellow scheme was also carried out in the table appointments.

It was a very pleasant meeting although several members were missed, being detained by illness and others had not returned from the meeting in New York.

NEIGHBORING CLUBS.

The next gathering of the Massachusetts State Federation will be for the annual meeting late in May when the New England Women's club will be the hostess. The occasion will be a celebration of the entertaining club's fortieth birthday and of the fifteenth anniversary of the organization of the federation. Dr. Hale's church, the South Congregational at the corner of Exeter and Newbury streets, will be the meeting place.

The thirty-ninth annual meeting of the New England Woman Suffrage association will be held in Park Street church parlors Saturday at 10 A. M. Miss Alice Stone Blackwell will preside, and the presidents of the suffrage associations of the six New England States will give reports of the year's work.

The annual meeting of the New England Wheaton Seminary club takes the form of a May breakfast to be held Saturday noon at hotel Vendome, Boston. Annual reports and the election will be followed by speaking and music. Mrs. Estelle Hatch Merrill will give reminiscences of the formation of the club. Members may bring guests to the breakfast.

The Philergians of Braintree on Tuesday elected the following officers for 1908-1909: President, Mrs. Susan J. Avery; 1st vice president, Mrs.

Lieut. Y. Kamimura of the Imperial Japanese navy was a passenger on the Saxonia, which sailed Tuesday for Liverpool. For the past 18 months the lieutenant has been at the works of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company at Quincy supervising the construction of two steam turbines for the Japanese warship Ibuki, now building in Japan. Lieut. Kamimura was one of the younger officers at the engagement of the Yalu river, in the Chinese-Japanese war. He is a graduate of the Naval University at Tokio, about 35 years old, and speaks English fairly well. The naval officer plans to cross the continent on the Siberian railway, and will visit the battlefields of the Japanese-Russian war. Lieut. Kamimura was asked by the Herald about war between Japan and this country. He smiled broadly, and said he guessed there would be no trouble. With camera in hand, the lieutenant snapped everything of interest about the ship and pier. He was given a rousing sendoff by 17 compatriots, who remained on the Saxonia till almost the minute of sailing.

The new scout cruiser Birmingham, built at the Fore River works left Monday for her first "shake-down" run in Cape Cod Bay. She will be manoeuvred and her compasses adjusted. The cruiser will arrive at the Naval Magazine at Iona Island, New York, on Thursday to take on ammunition and then she will proceed to Guantanamo, Cuba. The Birmingham is the first of the three new scout cruisers to begin general service. The Chester has just been commissioned at Portsmouth and will not be ready for sea for several weeks. The Salem, the third of the trio, is rapidly being completed at the Fore River Works.

A Washington dispatch to the Transcript says: At the meeting of the Board of Construction on Monday plans for the two new battleships of the Delaware type just authorized by Congress were taken under consideration. Tentative plans for the new ships are to be framed only after due consideration has been given recent criticism directed at the navy in general and at battleship construction in particular. Location of armor belt, high freeboard, gun positions, safety of turret design—all will be threshed out by members of the Board in the light of new developments brought out this year. The discussion was confined to a general outline of the ships. One of the battleships will be a flagship, which necessitates planning of the extra quarters in advance. In view of the machinery which will be installed, one of the vessels will be made several feet longer than the Delawares now building. The advisability of this increased length met with the approval of the Board.

BOARD OF TRADE
Discuss Several Subjects at May Meeting Last Evening

A regular meeting of the Board of Trade was held Wednesday evening. President Walter E. Piper presiding. Progress was reported by several of the special committees and three were elected to membership. There was no special topic assigned for discussion at this meeting. After the routine business was transacted there was an informal discussion on a number of topics tending to the welfare of the city. These included the abolition of grade crossings, during which Mr. Branch the Board's representative on the Mayor's committee made a partial report, but conveyed no definite information as to just what the committee was doing. John R. Richards brought up the matter of the unwarranted charges now being made by the railroad at South Quincy for shifting cars. He understood the railroad was trying the new system of charges as a feeler to find out how it worked. While it increased the revenue of the railroad it raised a universal kick from the granite manufacturers when they were obliged to pay $2 for shunting a car into their yards. A special committee was appointed to confer with the railroad in regard to the matter. Notice was received from the Telephone Co. that under the new system laid down by the Highway Commission, no more unlimited telephone service instruments could be maintained in such offices as the Board of Trade. Under the present arrangement the Board of Trade had unlimited service. Hereafter it will be a pay station and nickels and dimes will have to be dropped into the instrument when used. This caused considerable discussion during which the ears of the Telephone company must have burned. The matter was referred to its proper committee. A communication from the Brockton Board of Trade on the Merger question was referred to the committee on public service. Incidentally there was more or less informal talk on the granting of permits to transport liquor, the expressman's side of the question being explained by Gilbert M. Miller of the Abbott & Miller Express Co.

Parker-Richards.
On Wednesday evening Mr. William B. Parker of Quincy and Miss Viola J. Richards of East Weymouth were quietly married by Rev. Dr. Hardy. Mr. Parker is the son of Warren S. Parker of Hancock court, the inspector of buildings of the city, and congratulations of many friends go with him to Maine, for Mr. Parker and his bride have secured a good farm at Cornish, which they will occupy.

LAST TRIBUTE
Street Railway Mourn Loss of Motorman R. F. Forrest

The funeral of Richard F. Forrest, one of the oldest employees of the Old Colony Street Railway was held this morning from his late residence on Hancock street and was largely attended. Services followed at 10 o'clock from St. John's church. The remains were escorted from the house to the church by a very large delegation of the employees of the road.

The funeral procession was headed by car number 672. This was one of the cars used on the East Milton line and run by Mr. Forrest. The car was profusely decorated in mourning. The signs on the ends and side read East Milton. The car was in charge of Motorman Frank Perry, one of the oldest employees of the road, and Conductor Thomas Craig, whose motorman Mr. Forrest was.

Following this came a carriage containing many beautiful floral tributes. These included set pieces from the Employees' union, Asst. Gen. Supt. Conway Supt. Gammons, the clerks at the Quincy office of the company and from the Eagles, as well as tributes from the family and other friends.

The bearers were Starters Thomas Pendergast and Robert Egan, Conductor Edward Dunn, Motorman Herbert Packard, John Noonan foreman of the South Braintree barn, and Thomas Donahue foreman of the East Weymouth barn.

Escorting the hearse were nearly one hundred conductors and motormen in uniform, headed by William Walsh, president of the Street Railway Employees' union, Asst. Gen. Supt. John Conway, Supt. Thomas Gannon and James Parker of the claim agents department. Then came the hearse containing the remains, and carriages containing the family and friends.

The services at St. John's church were very largely attended. Mass was celebrated by Rev. John J. Coan. During the services Schmidt's mass was sung by the choir, and after the services Miss Mary McConarty sang "Face to Face."

The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery, the remains being escorted thither by the employees.

The floral tributes included: Standing cross and crescent of Easter lilies and pink roses, from Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees, America Local 253.

Standing cross of Easter lilies, carnations and palms, from John Adams Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Vice Versa

A Clever Play

Prof. Erastus Osgood scored quite a success on Wednesday evening when "Vice Versa" was presented under his direction by boys of 15 to 16 years at the parish house of Christ church. None of the boys had previously appeared on the dramatic stage, but there were so many amusing incidents in the play, and so much enthusiasm and interest shown, that it went off with a snap.

The cast was:

Dick Bultitude's body H. Hammond Pride

Mr. Bultitude's body Henry W. Boutiller

Dr. Grimstone James A. King

Mr. Shellack (merchant of Canton) John E. Spargo

Clegg (a cabman) Harold Frost

Tipping (school boy) Thomas H. Veal

Chawner (school boy) Robert E. King

Schoolboys William B. Clark

Schoolboys Everet R. Pratt

Schoolboys David J. Littlewood

Dulcie (Dr. Grimstone's daughter) Fred Nightingale

Eliza, (Mr. Bultitude's housemaid) Ellis Young

Louis N. Nicholson

In the cast Dick Bultitude's body is supposed to be inhabited first by Dick Bultitude's spirit, and afterward by that of his father; and Father Bultitude's body is first inhabited by Mr. B's spirit and afterward by the spirit of his son. When Dick's body returns to the school of Dr. Grimstone inhabited by his father's spirit, his schoolmates, the professor and his daughter are mystified.

The boys, however, make it hot for Dick. Dulcie was charmingly impersonated by Ellis Young. He was a beautiful and coquettish blonde, with bewitching glances and ways, and popular with the audience. Eliza's attachment for Mr. Bultitude increased when his body was inhabited by Dick's spirit and he staid at home from business to make "toffee" with her. Mr. Shellack was well impersonated and also Clegg, but it was the school-boys who "took the cake."

Odd Fellows

Anniversary

John Hancock lodge of Wollaston observed the anniversary of Odd Fellowship on Wednesday evening, and provided an entertainment for their ladies which will long be remembered as one of the best ever given in Wollaston. Noble Grand Thomas presided and welcomed the guests. The artists were the Hayden trio, who appeared in a variety of musical numbers, both solos and trios. Miss Eleanor Soule Hayden gave solos on mandolin, xylophone and the chimes, and Edwin Byron Powell pleased with violin solos. Edith Gertrude Wales was the accompanist. The hit of the evening, however, was made by Miss Nina Bearse Wilbur, a dramatic reader and impersonator, who has but few equals. She is a graduate of the Curry school of expression and a very clever harpist. She was recalled time and again, and her encores were even more popular than her original numbers, as she told Odd Fellows stories and gave some very good impersonations. A member of the lodge contributed a tenor solo. Light refreshments were served. The anniversary celebration was a great success.

FOUR MORE CADAVERS
A Total of Nine Dismembered Corpses on Guinness Farm
WERE SHIPPED TO LA PORTE
Assistance of Chicago Police is Sought to Unravel Mystery—Theory That Woman Did Not Perish in Fire Which Destroyed Her Home
Laporte, Ind., May 7.—A possible solution of the Guinness farm mystery, which was deepened yesterday when four additional bodies were found in the barnyard, developed last night when evidence tending to show that the nine dismembered corpses unearthed had been shipped to Laporte, probably from Chicago, came to light.
Testimony of draymen who had carted trunks and boxes to the Guinness home lent color to this supposition. The Laporte police also received information that two trunks consigned to "Mrs. Belle Guinness," Laporte, Ind., are held in an express office in Chicago. Assistance of the Chicago police in unraveling the puzzle was sought at once.
Of the nine cadavers, seven are those of males. All were adults, the two smaller bodies found Tuesday and first thought to be those of children, proving otherwise when the bones were examined by the coroner.
The best clue which has yet been found came to light immediately following the discovery of the last three bodies. John A. Welker, a liveman, and Leo Wade, his employee, told of having carted heavy trunks to the Guinness farm in the summer and autumn of 1906. Clyde Sturgis, employed by another liveman, remembered that he took two similar trunks to the place about a year ago. In addition, several heavy boxes, marked variously "potatoes" and "wall paper," were carted to the house at different times.
Wade asserted that his experience in taking the trunks to Mrs. Guinness was unpleasant. "She wouldn't let Welker and me into the house with some of the trunks," he said. "We put one on the front porch. Another, at her orders, we carried to the house after dark. There was no light in the house and she did not strike one when we entered with the trunk. She led us through two dark rooms into a third and opened another door. But I told Welker I had had enough and we dropped the trunk in the third room and left."
Sturgis said the trunks were old and heavy and strongly corded. "Mrs. Guinness told me to carry them into a cellarway of the house. I started to unload them for her, but she told me to leave them alone and mind my own business, so I got out."

FLEET REACHES 'FRISCO
Great Entertainments Are Planned For the Men on Shore
San Francisco, May 7.—Into the harbor of San Francisco the Atlantic battleship fleet steamed in review of a multitude unnumbered. The flag of the secretary of the navy, flying from the mainmast of gunboat Yorktown, fluttered the welcome of the navy, while the governor of California, the mayor of San Francisco and the people of a hundred towns and cities voiced the greetings of the enthusiastic west.
San Francisco, Oakland and other cities nearby all took a holiday to witness the coming of the fleet. There was a complete cessation of business. More people came into the city Tuesday night and yesterday morning than left during the terror and homeless days following the fire.
The city is gay with merrymaking, and the long program of entertainments planned in honor of the fleet is under way. Streets and buildings were illuminated last night for the first time in the history of the new city, many of the giant skyscrapers that have risen upon the sites of less imposing buildings destroyed being outlined in a fire of electric bulbs.
Official dinners, band concerts and a reception and ball at the Fairmount hotel, with 5000 invited guests, were features of the first evening of the fleet's stay.
Rear Admiral Evans stood on the after bridge of the Connecticut as the famous flagship led the way through the harbor gate. His active naval career is to close on Sunday next, when he formally will be relieved from command. Both because of illness and the death of a favorite grandchild, Evans will be unable to participate in any of the functions planned in honor of the officers.

Hot Stove—Cool Kitchen
How do you expect to endure the broiling days of summer if you prepare all the food over a glowing coal fire?
You need a "New Perfection" Oil Stove that will do the cooking without cooking the cook. It concentrates plenty of heat under the pot and diffuses little or none through the room. Therefore, when working with the
NEW PERFECTION
Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove
the kitchen actually seems as comfortable as you could wish it to be.
This, in itself, is wonderful, but, more than that, the "New Perfection" Oil Stove does perfectly everything that any stove can do. It is an ideal all-round cook-stove. Made in three sizes, and fully warranted. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.
The Rayo Lamp

CHARGED WITH ARSON

Arrest of Two Men in Connection With Chelsea Holocaust

Boston, May 7.—After several weeks' work on the part of the state police, two men were arrested late yesterday, charged with being responsible in part for the great conflagration at Chelsea on Sunday, April 12. The two men under arrest are Jacob Lewitsky, 23 years old, of Boston, and Abraham Wolnitz, aged 30, of Chelsea. Both are charged with arson.

Lewitsky conducted a rag shop which was destroyed by the fire at the corner of Elm and Maple streets, and Wolnitz, it is claimed, was employed by him. The rag shop of Lewitsky is close to another which it is claimed was discovered afire while the original blaze of the Chelsea conflagration was being combatted. It is claimed that the second fire had its inception inside the shops.

Liquor Agency Shuttles Up
Bath, Me., May 7.—The city liquor agency here was temporarily closed today as an outcome of a conflict in the board of aldermen last night over the appointment of a successor to Lucien Lamont, the present liquor agent, whose term expired at midnight. Mayor Hughes announced the appointment of E. P. Kelley to the position, but the aldermen, by a vote of 6 to 1, refused to confirm. After a discussion the question of proper procedure was left to a decision of the city solicitor.

"Big Guns" Will Be Present
Boston, May 7.—President Roosevelt has tentatively promised to be a guest at a barbecue to be held at Revere on July 16, under the auspices of five Republican organizations. It is proposed to make the occasion a ratification of the Chicago convention, and it is planned to have the nominee of the convention for president present. Among the other guests will be the United States senators and governors of all the New England states.

Teachers Resign to Wed
Brookton, Mass., May 7.—There are five resignations of teachers in the hands of Superintendent Bliss of the school department, and one or more additional are expected before the next meeting of the school board. The reason for most of the changes is the consent of some of the Brookton school-teachers to abandon their calling and take classes of one pupil each in the school of matrimony.

Was Poultry Raising Expert
Orono, Me., May 7.—Professor Gilbert M. Gosnell, who won an international reputation from his poultry experiments, and was for twenty-five years connected with the University of Maine, killed himself by shooting. Since the death of his wife two years ago he had been suffering from mental depression.

Three Stores and Station Burned
Buzard's Bay, Mass., May 6.—The railroad station and three stores in the village of Bourne were burned early today. Eldridge's lumber yard also caught fire. A chemical engine sent over from here was the only apparatus which the villagers had to assist them in fighting the flames. The loss is about $20,000.

Alleged Express Robbers
Boston, May 7.—With the arrest at Revere of Harry Lewis and Harry Gordon the police recovered from their house valuables worth, they claim, over $1000, and which it is said have been stolen from several express companies. Much of the property recovered was in the form of jewelry.

Unclaimed Deposits Run High
Boston, May 7.—In 115 of the 189 savings banks in Massachusetts there are unclaimed deposits aggregating $507,392.85 in 1921 accounts, according to the fifth report relating to such moneys which has been sent to the legislature by Savings Bank Commissioner Jay.

Killed by Fall From Bicycle
Pittsfield, Mass., May 7.—Robert A. Byram, aged 14, son of Charles A. Byram, superintendent of schools, was fatally injured by a fall from a bicycle. His skull was fractured and he lived but a short time after the accident.

Child Labor Bill Passed
Washington, May 7.—The senate passed a bill prohibiting the employment within certain hours of children under 14 years of age in the District of Columbia in any factory, workshop, telegraph office, restaurant, hotel, apartment house, saloon, pool or billiard room, bowling alley or theatre, or in the distribution or transmission of merchandise or messages.

Boycott Peking Out
Shanghai, May 7.—The Chinese boycott of Japanese goods, which came about as a result of the humiliation inflicted upon the Chinese people by the Japanese government in securing what the Chinese have considered an unfair settlement of the Tatsu Maru case, will, there is reason to believe, soon die a natural death.

Unsuccessful Search For Steamer
Louisburg, C. B., May 7.—Steamer Douglas H. Thomas has returned here after an unsuccessful four days' search for the British steamer Norwood, which was abandoned last week by Captain Hopkins and her crew of twenty-three men off the Cape Breton coast, and thought possibly to be still afloat.

Commercial Paper an Asset
Washington, May 7.—The Republican caucus of the house of representatives committed itself, by a vote of 115 to 21, to the principle of commercial paper as an asset on which to issue extra circulation in time of emergency. This is in accordance with the Vreeland bill, but the resolution was so amended as to eliminate Vreeland's name from the measure. The caucus decided to recommend the appointment of a commission to consider the currency question and report a bill at the next session of congress. Coupled with this provision was another providing for the immediate appointment of a committee of five members to draft a new bill in accordance with the action of the caucus and along the general lines of the second Vreeland bill.

Still Talking on Brownsville
Washington, May 7.—In the senate, Senator Foraker alluded to a report that Senator Smith had received from the president a letter in which the latter had announced his unchanged belief that the negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth infantry had been guilty of "shooting up" the city of Brownsville, and he asked Smith to produce the letter if it had been received. Smith declined to make the contents of the letter public, saying that if any one should do so the president himself should give it out. Foraker explained that his reason for the resolution was to show that the president had not been in a fit frame of mind to act in the matter.

Cleveland Is Much Better
Lakewood, N. J., May 7.—In order that the public may be kept daily informed of the condition of former President Grover Cleveland, who is suffering from an acute attack of indigestion, Mrs. Cleveland announces that a statement will be issued each night through The Associated Press giving the desired information regarding Mr. Cleveland's progress. He is now getting along nicely and is gaining rapidly.

Houses For Our Legations Abroad
Washington, May 7.—Senator Lodge has secured favorable action in the senate committee on foreign relations on three propositions looking to the purchase of a building in Paris for use as an American embassy. It is his plan to cover every question on which a point of order might be raised. It is Lodge's desire that the United States shall begin at once the policy of acquiring homes for embassies and legations abroad.

Canteen Proposition Defeated
Washington, May 7.—By the overwhelming vote of 167 to 46, the house of representatives again went on record against the re-establishment of the canteen in national soldiers' homes. Perhaps the real sensation of the day was an admission by Mr. Bennett (N. Y.), a member of the immigration commission, that he had, under the old immigration law, "railroaded" the naturalization of many foreigners in one day.

Result of Family Feud
Danville, Va., May 7.—As the result of a bitter family feud three men were shot to death, supposedly from ambush, near Philpott. The victims, who all belonged to one faction, were Samuel Shelton, Charles Dodson and James Holly. The following were arrested on the charge of having committed the murders: William and Grover Massey, brothers, and Heresford and Thomas Spencer, brothers.

Great Falling Off In Deposits
New York, May 7.—Following a shrinkage in the bank's deposits from $800,000 last fall to less than $400,000 when it made its last statement recently, the Interboro bank on Wall street has decided to liquidate the affairs of the institution.

The foreign commerce at the port of Boston for the week ending May 4 does not compare favorably with the figures of a year ago, showing a decided falling off in value, as has been the case nearly every week since the first of the new year. Imports totalled only $1,519,819, as against $2,747,217 for the same time a year ago; while exports amounted to $1,905,106, compared with $2,262,016 the corresponding week of 1907. We are grieved to learn of the suicide of Capt. Harry L. Wentworth, of the Boston and Maine steamer Mt. Washington on Lake Winnepesaukee.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Mrs. West a teacher at the John Hancock school has had a relapse, and is quite ill at her home.
The death of Miss Guild's father keeps her away from her duties, and there is a substitute teacher taking her place at the High school.
Little Miss Rogers of Chestnut street, in her new Indian costume of which she is very proud, attracts lots of attention when she parades the street.
Recognition services for the new pastor of the Swedish Congregational church on Garfield street, Rev. G. H. Palmgren, will be held this evening, when several clergymen will take part in the program. A banquet at 6 o'clock will precede the services.

The Democratic State Convention

The Democratic State convention was held at the Quincy House, Boston, this morning.
A conference was held at 10 o'clock between the Fitzgerald and Williams men and it was agreed that delegates should go uninstructed.
Meanwhile the anti-instructionists were at work for Robert M. Burnell, as delegate at large, in place of George Fred Williams.
Chairman Simpson announced that the committee on Resolutions had agreed to report in favor of Bryne.
It was decided that each senatorial district should instruct its own delegates as to how they should act.
Delegates at large favorable to Bryne were elected.

Congregational Union
The Congregational union of Quincy held a meeting at Norfolk Downs on Wednesday evening in the interests of the local church, Rev. Dr. Hardy of Bethany church of City Square presided and spoke briefly. Other remarks were made by Rev. A. R. Atwood of the Point church, Rev. J. E. Lillback of the Finnish Congregational church, Mr. C. Ralph Taylor, Deacon E. W. Branch and Deacon C. T. Sherman. It was a profitable meeting, as it cheered the Downs and Park church to new efforts.

Men's Club.
The Men's club of St. Chrysostom church were fortunate on Wednesday evening to have Rev. Glenn Tilley Morse of the Church of the Advent, Boston, as a guest, for he read two original stories, and two of Frank Stockton's stories. One of his stories was a continuation of the Peterkin stories so popular a few years ago. Mrs. George Curran gave pleasing piano solos, and the Men's Club quintet sang selections. Refreshments were served and a good time enjoyed.

Whist Tournament.
A goodly number were present and participated in the weekly whist tournament of the Granite City club on Wednesday evening including several from Wollaston. The game was called at 8.30, with nine tables in play. Some good scores were made, but it remained for Warren H. Rideout and Warren Edwards to secure the highest percentages. Refreshments were served after which several games in the new billiard tournament were played.

Brilliant Recital By Mrs. Page

Mrs. Edith Cary Page delighted and surprised her friends who filled Colonial hall on Wednesday evening at her recital. For some time Mrs. Page has been a popular soprano, but of late she has been studying and has made wonderful progress, and a brilliant future is predicted. Her voice has a great range and she has a wonderful control of it. Her selections were as follows:
a. "Pace, Pace, mio Dio" Verdi
b. "Oh, for a breath of the Moorlands" B. Whopley
c. "Love and the world is mine" E. Greene
d. "Flower Songs:"
a. "Pussy Willow" H. Woodman
b. "Daisies" C. B. Hawley
c. "Violets" H. Woodman
d. "Poppies" R. Dekoven
e. "Roses" H. Clough-Leichter
f. "Regina nel Silenzio" Donizetti
g. "The Lark" Liszt
h. "Villanelle" Dell Aquia
i. "More regal in his low estate" Gounod
Queen of Sheba

The Regnava nel Silenzio was particularly pleasing being full of trills and rounds, and skillfully presented. Often the applause was hearty and persistent but Mrs. Page gave no encores.
Edward Phillips, an accomplished pianist, was the accompanist and contributed much to the success of the program.
The violin selections by Miss Olive Llewellyn Whiteley were skillfully executed and popular with the audience. She was induced to give one encore, "Old Folks at Home."
Mrs. Page was prettily gowned in pink with lace trimmings. Her friends are delighted with her success.

Diamond For General Manager

Capt. J. C. Sanborn, manager of Boston Terminal Company retired from active duty April 30. He was born in Northfield, N. H., and came to South Braintree in 1858, starting in his railroad service at the South Braintree station. He has held every position from brakeman, conductor and train master to superintendent and general manager.
At the time of his retirement, it is said he was the oldest active railroad official in the country, having had fifty years of service. It is his desire to travel for a year in this country and Europe, and then make his home with his son, who is in San Francisco, Cal.
On Saturday, May 2, Mr. Sanborn was presented with a diamond ring by employees of the Boston Terminal Co., the presentation being made by Mr. W. R. Babcock, ticket agent as follows:
"Captain, I have been asked to say a few words for the committee here this morning. We have gathered here not as many have been in the past, with fear and trembling, on account of an investigation of some complaint or accident, but with a sense of freedom of thought and speech and with a feeling of love, reverence and loyalty of fellow-men for a gallant leader and superior. You have served the transportation interests with which you have been identified faithfully and well for fifty long years, and have now reached the period, not where your strength and energies have become impaired at all, but when your well merited rest and surcease from toil has been recognized by the trustees of the Boston Terminal Company and the president and board of directors of the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R., who have arranged for a perpetual vacation and holiday while you are still physically and mentally qualified to enjoy it. No longer will the danger whistle on tower 1 disturb your waking and slumbering hours, no longer will the shrill whistle of the locomotive foretell an accident report, no longer will the snow storm give you vision of the "Newton Ticker" with a complaint that his train will not run on time.
We are here not to wring tears, but to "ring your hand and finger as a token of the respect with which all the employees of the Terminal Company hold you. I no w present the slight token and may you live long in health and happiness to enjoy it in "diamond days" on."
Mr. Babcock and other friends: I see by the position I am placed in requires more nerve. When I just heard of what you were doing for me I respectfully requested that it be stopped, but I was told that I had nothing to say, that it was all done. I felt then as I do now, that I was not deserving of it. Friends, for such I feel I can call you, I hardly know how to express my thoughts for this present, but I assure you that I am deeply thankful to you for it and I shall wear this ring, no matter where I am, with a great deal of pleasure and much pride, to think and to feel that I have the respect of the employees of the company.
Let me say that I wish you all, and all those that are near and dear to you, much happiness and future success in life.
Mr. Sanborn is a brother of R. M. Sanborn of the firm of Sanborn & Damon of Quincy.

TOM JOHNSON "SORE" By Narrow Margin

Things Did Not Come His Way
In Ohio Convention

HARMON MEN IN CONTROL

Former United States Attorney General Nominated For Governor—Cleveland's Mayor Refuses to Accept Place on State Ticket
Columbus, O., May 7.—In a tumultuous convention, characterized by intense factional feeling, Democrats of Ohio nominated Judson Harmon of Cincinnati, formerly attorney general of the United States under President Cleveland, for governor, and endorsed W. J. Bryan and instructed the Ohio delegates to the national convention to vote for him for president. A complete state ticket was nominated, former Governor Campbell was endorsed for United States senator, and delegates and alternates-at-large to the national convention were selected.
National issues were left to the Denver convention, and the platform adopted dealt solely with state questions, attacking the administration of various Republican state officers and endorsing especially the initiative and referendum in state and local legislation and the taxation of franchises.
Mayor Tom Johnson of Cleveland, after having met defeat in the opening session Tuesday night, renewed his fight against Judson Harmon for control of the convention, but he was again worsted in one of the most bitter and exciting contests ever witnessed in an Ohio convention. Although his victorious opponents, followers of State Chairman Garber, tendered him two places on the state ticket, Johnson declined to enter into any agreement and strove to prevent the placing of the names of any of his followers on the ticket.
Dramatic scenes attended the nomination of Harmon, whose home delegation was divided for and against him. He was opposed by Albee Pomerene, A. C. Sandles and Isaac R. Sherwood. Mayor Johnson nominated Pomerene as a man who stood upon every plank in the platform, who had always voted for Bryan and "not like some who, in 1896, gloried in the downfall of Bryan." Alfred Cohen, who presented Harmon's name, said his candidate was broad enough to carry the state for himself and Bryan, and declared that Johnson himself was not consistent in the support of Bryan.
During a recess following the nomination of Harmon, opponents of Johnson made overtures for a harmony agreement, but in vain, and when the convention reconvened the entire list of counties was called without drawing any name for lieutenant governor. When the name of James W. Williams was presented Johnson withdrew it, but his authority to do so was questioned and Williams' name went before the convention. David L. Rockwell, a bitter political opponent of Johnson, was nominated for lieutenant governor, however, over Williams and M. R. Chase on the first ballot.
When nominations for secretary of state were called the office went being for some time, but later it was filled by the nomination of J. H. Newman.
Notwithstanding the refusal of Johnson to accept harmony early in the afternoon, as the session of the convention dragged out the tension relaxed and the nominations for attorney general and treasurer of state were thrown to candidates known to be favored by Johnson, and when it came to the selection of delegates-at-large to the national convention Johnson was chosen as one of the "big four" by acclamation.

Quincy's New Public Buildings

Work on the new Coddington school building is progressing favorably. A large gang of men are at work and are hustling. The foundation walls are all completed as well as the brick partitions of the basement. The brick outside wall on the easterly end is also rising rapidly and has reached the top of the first course of windows. From now on one can almost see the building grow.
On Washington street a short distance away is the new Federal building. Here the work has so far progressed that the first floor timbers are in place, and the floor is on. Nearly all of the first course of granite is in position. It is almost a race between the two buildings to see which will be completed first.

Family Reunion.

There is quite a reunion at the home of Mrs. J. E. Sprague of Goddard street. Mrs. Sprague's mother, Mrs. Mary Glines and her sister Mrs. Walter Blair of Springfield, and her brother, Charles H. Glines of Providence, R. I., are here to meet Mrs. John Darby of California, the oldest daughter of Mrs. Glines, who arrived on Tuesday. The family have not been together for nineteen years. Mrs. Darby was formerly Miss Ida Glines of Miller street, West Quincy; who went to California 27 years ago, and whose home is now at San Jose. She hopes to meet many of her old friends while east this summer.

CONNECTICUT FAVORS TAFT

Two Senators Withdraw Names Rather Than Be Instructed
Hartford, May 7.—The Republican state convention closed its two days' sessions here by naming a delegation of fourteen to the Chicago convention. Ten of the delegation are instructed to vote and actively work for Taft, and four members go uninstructed by the district conventions which selected them.
While the convention was evidently as a whole strongly pro-Taft, there was some opposition to the instructing of the delegates, but the opposition was withdrawn when it became evident how strong the Taft feeling was. One of the features of the day was the receipt of a message from Senators Bulkeley and Brandegee, withdrawing their names as candidates for delegates-at-large.
Disagreement in Keystone State
Harrisburg, May 7.—Seven Pennsylvania district delegates were in conference here with fourteen members of the executive committee of the Bryan League of Pennsylvania and President Black of the league issued a statement claiming that Bryan would receive the support of fifty-two delegates from this state and that they would control the state convention. Secretary Meek of the Democratic state committee also issued a statement, in which he said the claim is excessive by forty votes, and that a resolution seeking to instruct the Pennsylvania delegation would be defeated in convention by more than three to one.

Defeated Only By Narrow Margin

House bill No. 1521, by which the State would keep half the liquor license fees, and which had back of it the united No-License and temperance forces of the State, was defeated in the Legislature by the narrow margin of six votes.
If this bill had passed, the State tax of all No-License cities and towns would have been reduced by fully twenty percent, and the bribe of the liquor license fees would have been largely wiped out.
Representative Hultman is to be commended for both working and voting for this important measure and for voting as well for reconsideration.
Representative Coombs also voted for the measure, but was not recorded when the vote was taken on reconsideration.
Since the State took over the expense of the insane and other cases, resulting largely from liquors, it should have more of the revenue from the sales of liquor to help meet expenses, instead of levying a tax on No-License communities.

PORTUGAL'S BOY KING Takes Oath of Allegiance and Is Proclaimed Ruler

Does Not Wear THE CROWN
Promises to Maintain Catholic Religion, Says Ideal Is the Nation's Prosperity, and Ambition the Winning of His People's Love

Lisbon, May 7.—Manuel, the boy King of Portugal, yesterday solemnly took the oath of allegiance to his people and was proclaimed the ruler of the nation. The day was observed as a holiday, and the city was aglow with sunshine and a myriad of flags and flowers.
Through the streets, which were lined with troops and filled with throngs of people, King Manuel, accompanied by the high dignitaries, drove in the state coach to the parliament house. The balconies of the houses along the route through which the procession passed were strikingly hung with tapestries, flags and streamers, and were crowded with women who leaned over the railings to catch a glimpse of the king as he rode by, closely guarded by troops.
The ceremonies occurred in the presence of a brilliant assemblage made up of peers, deputies, court functionaries, members of the diplomatic corps and their wives, the delegates to the international telegraphic conference now being held in this city, the patriarch of Lisbon and all the prelates of Portugal, as well as a large gathering of women of the nobility.
King Manuel, who presented a striking appearance in cloak of velvet and ermine, and who was followed by heralds and pages, was ceremoniously escorted to the throne. On his majesty's right, resting on a credence table, was the royal crown which, according to tradition, King Manuel does not wear and which is consecrated to the Virgin Mary, the patroness of Portugal. With the crown were the royal standards, the sword and the crucifix and the famous missal of Goncalves, the Portuguese missionary.
Holding the royal sceptre in his left hand, the king placed his right hand on the sacred book of the gospels and swore to maintain the Catholic religion and the integrity of the realm, and to observe the constitution and laws of Portugal. After the oath had been taken King Manuel read the following discourse:
"My ideal is the nation's prosperity, and my ambition is the winning of my people's love."
From the balcony of the parliament building Manuel was formally proclaimed king by the grand standard bearer of the realm, whereupon the shouts of the heralds of "Long live the king" rose up and the booming of guns carried the news throughout the city. Upon the conclusion of the ceremony, King Manuel returned to the Necessidades palace.
Grant and Schurmann Disagree
New York, May 7.—With Wu Ting Fang, minister from China, as its chief guest at a dinner, the Lotus club entertained several other men of prominence, among them General Grant of the United States army and President Schurmann of Cornell university. There was a conflict of opinion between the two last named, both of whom made addresses, as to the virtue of preparedness for war as a factor in the promotion of peace.
Great Strides Toward Peace
New York, May 7.—Never in the history of the world has so much been accomplished for universal peace as during the past year, was the declaration made at the annual meeting of the Peace Society of New York by Andrew Carnegie, president of the society, who further praised Secretary of State Root for the able work done in the negotiating and concluding of recent treaties.
No Room For Hindus

Senate Raises Army Payroll
Washington, May 7.—Senator Warren reported to the senate a complete agreement of the conferees on the army appropriation bill, and it was adopted. It makes a flat increase of $500 a year in the pay of officers and of 35 percent in the pay of enlisted men of the army. The bill carries $95,382,246.
Failure of Stock Brokers

Dedham High defeated Quincy High on Wednesday at the park 11 to 5. The game was not Dedham's, however, until the last man was out. For Quincy got men on bases nearly every innings but failed to hit when needed. The Dedham short stop played a star game as also did the center fielder. For Quincy Kohane and Curtis excelled in fielding, while Howe led at the bat. S. Bates was substituted for O'Rourke in the sixth innings but was hit in the head by a pitched ball, his first time at the bat and had to retire from the game.

ACTION IS POSTPONED

Authorities Not Ready to Proceed Against Lamphere

LETTER FROM MRS. GUINNESS

Told a Prospective Husband in Wisconsin How He Could Secure a Wife and Home—Must Have Satisfactory Deposit of Cash or Security

La Porte, Ind., May 8.—Postponement of the grand jury action in the case of Roy Lamphere, accused of first degree murder relative to the burning of Mrs. Belle Guinness and her three children here April 23, was decided upon last night at a conference of officials of La Porte county.

The action was taken on the advice of C. J. Smith, a Chicago detective, who was called here by the local authorities to aid them in solving the mystery of the nine bodies dug up on the Guinness farm this week.

While Ralph M. Smith, prosecutor of the county, had announced in the afternoon that he was ready to proceed before the grand jury, which had been scheduled to meet next Monday, new evidence unearthed yesterday led to a change of plans.

Prosecutor Smith said that the postponement of grand jury action was not due to discovered weaknesses in the case of the state. "We will produce witnesses to prove that Lamphere was seen around the Guinness house before the fire broke out and that he was seen running away later. We shall also prove that fire was set to the place in revenge for actions taken against him by the woman after they had fallen out, and that this disagreement was due to a quarrel over the murder of Helgelein, in which crime Lamphere was implicated, according to our evidence."

Volunteered information has been pouring in on the authorities since the case acquired such notoriety. Among such communications received yesterday was a letter purporting to come from a "Vera Shoren" of Indianapolis. It was addressed to Ask Helgelein and also to the chief of police. The writer says that she has positive information that Mrs. Guinness is still alive and urges that attention be given to the communication.

Specimen of Mrs. Guinness' Bait

Milwaukee, May 8.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Waukegan, Wis., says: A letter which Carl Petersen of Waukegan received from Mrs. Belle Guinness, the alleged La Porte murderess, has been translated from Norwegian into English. It is as follows:

"As some time ago I received from you a letter in answer to my 'ad' in The Scandinavian, I will with pleasure answer the same.

"The reason I waited for some time is that there have been other answers to the 'ad.' As many as fifty have been received and it has been impossible to answer all. I have picked out the most respectable, and I have decided that yours is such.

"First I will tell you that I am a Norwegian and have been in this country for twenty years. I live in Indiana, about fifty-nine miles from Chicago, and one mile north of La Porte. I am the sole owner of a nice home, pretty location.

"There are seventy-five acres of land, also all kinds of crops, improved land, apples, plums and currants. Am on a boulevard road and have a twelve-room house, practically new, a windmill and all modern improvements, situated in a beautiful suburb, worth about $15,000.

"All of this is pretty near paid for. It is in my own name. I am alone with three small children, from 5 to 11 years old. The smallest is a little boy. The two largest are girls, all frisky and well. I lost my husband by accident five years ago and have since tried to get along as well as I could with what help I could hire. I am getting tired of this and I have found that it is not well to trust others with so much.

"It is too much for me to look after things, and things are not as I want them anyway. My idea of them is to take a partner to whom I can trust everything, and as we have no acquaintances ourselves, I have decided that every applicant I have considered favorably must make a satisfactory deposit of cash or security. I think that is the best way for parties to keep away grafters who are always looking for such opportunities, as I have had experience with them and as I can prove.

"Now, if you think that you are able in some way to put up $1000 cash, we can talk matters over personally. If you cannot, is it worth while to consider? I would not care for you as a hired man, as I am tired of that, and need a little rest in my home and near my children. I will close for this time."

McIntyre Hypothecated Securities

New York, May 8.—Members of the New York Stock Exchange do not customarily put up the securities owned by their customers as security for loans from banks, according to a statement by Secretary Ely of the exchange, in reply to an accusation by T. A. McIntyre & Co., stock brokers, who admitted that his firm used the securities of their customers thus and declared that it was a regular way of doing business, although a wrong one.

CHELSEA ARSON CASES

Men Accused of Firing Rag Shop

Are Held in Heavy Bail

Chelsea, Mass., May 8.—Under bonds so heavy that the police do not expect that the prisoners will be able to obtain their release, Judge Bosson held the first two men to be arrested on suspicion of having set the big fire of April 12. The defendants are Jacob Lewitzky, 23 years old, and Abraham Woltzky, 30 years old. The former owned a rag shop, which was destroyed, and Woltzky was an employee.

Both men were arraigned in the Chelsea court. Each pleaded not guilty and was held for a hearing on May 14. The bail in Lewitzky's case was fixed at $15,000 and Woltzky was required to furnish $10,000 for his release. David A. Louie appeared for the defendants and urged that bonds be fixed at an amount which the men could procure, but City Solicitor James was equally earnest in requesting the high bail which was finally fixed.

Lewitzky's rag shop adjoined one which was on fire a very few minutes after the plant of the Boston Blacking company was ablaze. It was only a moment afterwards that Lewitzky's building was in flames, and it is claimed by the prosecution that the fire in Lewitzky's place did not start from the outside. Both Lewitzky and Woltzky are said to have been in the rag shop before the fire broke forth in the place.

IN 'FRISCO'S STREETS

Great Armed Force From Fleet
In a Grand Parade

EIGHT THOUSAND IN LINE

Admiral Evans, Secretary Metcalf, Governor and Mayor Take Part—Efficiency in Landing Big Force Has a Practical Test

San Francisco, May 8.—Eight thousand bluejackets and marines—the largest armed force the American navy has ever put ashore in time of peace or war—were landed from the combined Atlantic-Pacific fleets now lying in the harbor and marched through the streets of San Francisco in the most notable parade the city has ever known.

For four miles and a half the fighting men of the fleets made their way along the streets to the martial tunes of bands and to the cheers that began with the first command to march until the sailors had again embarked in their boats and returned to the battleships and armored cruisers in the roadstead. Twenty-five hundred soldiers of the regular army acted as an escort to the visitors and were liberally applauded.

Rear Admiral Evans, commanding the fleets, and the six other rear admirals in command of squadrons and divisions of it, rode in carriages. Evans was recognized by the thousands and this recognition was marked by steady cheering as his carriage moved slowly ahead of the marching columns.

Secretary of the Navy Metcalf, Governor Gillett of California and Mayor Taylor of San Francisco rode in the parade and afterward reviewed it as it counter-marched down Van Ness avenue. Besides the soldiers and sailors there were large representations from the National Guard and from semi-military veteran and civic organizations. A battalion of high school cadets from Salt Lake City acted as personal escort to Admiral Evans in token of his having been appointed to the naval academy from Utah.

The landing of the great force of sailors and marines involved problems of small boatmanship and executive ability which was at once a test of triumph of efficiency. It was accomplished with a dispatch that knew of no confusion. Sailing launches, gigs and whaleboats, appearing like solid patches of blue, so thickly were they filled, were formed by the various ships of the two fleets into divisions and flotillas and, under command of specially designated small boat captains and admirals, were towed tandem-fashion by steam launches to the landing barges. The bay swarmed with the tiny craft and those who saw the maneuvers of landing marvelled that out of those diminutive boats dancing over the harbor waves so great a force as that which appeared in the procession could grow as if by magic.

After the parade was dispersed the officers were driven over other sections of the city than those already traversed and were shown the progress of reconstruction there.

At the Fairmount hotel Governor Gillett and his staff entertained at dinner in honor of Secretary Metcalf and the flag and commanding officers of the fleet. Admiral Evans was unable to attend, his place being taken by Rear Admiral Thomas, who responded to the welcome to the Atlantic fleet. A number of informal speeches were made.

The Sundry Civil Appropriation

Washington, May 8.—After ten days' discussion, consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill was completed by the house, but before it was put on its passage a recess until today was taken. The bill carries a total appropriation of $106,996,369. The principal discussion of yesterday related to the salary and wage scale to be paid those engaged in the construction of the Panama canal. The committee had inserted a provision providing that such salaries and wages should not exceed 25 percent of the salaries and wages paid in the United States for similar work. The provision was defeated, 10 to 110.

Mexico Invading Guatemala?

Guatemala City, May 8.—Persistent reports are current regarding the presence of Mexican troops on the frontier, and the Guatemalan government has requested the government at Washington to ask an explanation from Mexico. Pushed Boy Into Water

New York, May 8.—Charles Dokouplo, 8 years old, the police say, has confessed to pushing George Kralik, aged 7, to his death from a pier on April 27. Both boys lived in the same tenement house. The police say that a dispute over 2 cents was the motive of the alleged homicide. Dokouplo is being held on a homicide charge. Kralik has been missing since April 27.

COOPER MET USUAL SUCCESS IN PITTSBURG

Received Thanks from Hundreds While in the Smoky City.

The following article, taken from the Pittsburgh Press, describes the results of L. T. Cooper's visit to that city, and the effect of his new preparation as told by people who had become convinced of the soundness of Cooper's theories with regard to the human stomach.

Cooper believes that the human stomach in civilized races has become greatly weakened. He claims that most of the health of the present generation is due to this fact. The article is as follows:

"L. T. Cooper is meeting with the same astonishing success in Pittsburgh as in other cities. For the past few days many thousands of Pittsburgh people have called at his headquarters to talk with him.

"Cooper's prophecy, made upon his arrival, to the effect that before he left Pittsburgh thousands would realize that his theory is correct and would come and thank him for what his medicine had done, is rapidly being borne out.

"On Monday an astonishing number of people called to express their gratitude to Mr. Cooper. Judging from what some of these people had to say to a Press reporter, when interviewed, Cooper's claim that the human stomach is degenerate is distinctly verified. "One of the most unusual statements was made by Mr. C. W. Woods, of 103 South Highland Street. He said: 'For four years my wife was in very poor health. She was weak and thin, with a hectic flush and cough. Physicians said she had consumption, and I was inclined to believe them. It certainly looked as though her days were numbered, and there appeared to be very little ground for hope.

"Shortly after Mr. Cooper came to Pittsburgh I began to hear of wonderful results that had been obtained by persons who had tried his medicine, so I got some for my wife. She had taken it only two days when she was relieved of a tapeworm 42 feet long. She began to improve immediately—has gained seven pounds since she began taking the medicine. She feels splendid and looks very much better. If any one doubts this statement I would be pleased to have them call at my house and verify it."

The Cooper remedies are becoming justly famous. We sell them. —E. J. Murphy.

BRYAN IS ENDORSED

Not, However, Without Some Opposition In the Bay State

CONTEST OVER DELEGATES

Boston Men Objected to Williams Being Named, but He Is Victorious—Police Called Upon to Clear Platform During Big Racket

Boston, May 8.—With some opposition to instructions in favor of William J. Bryan for presidential candidate, although such instructions were adopted finally, and with a more decided contest over the selection of delegates-at-large, the Democratic state convention elected four leaders to represent the state at the Denver convention.

The delegates chosen were George F. Williams, John B. Moran, John W. Coughlin and Daniel J. Dougherty. The alternates chosen were J. P. Kane, W. A. Davenport, T. P. Kenney and E. W. Gallagher.

The platform adopted was in the form of brief disconnected paragraphs dealing entirely with national issues and favoring tariff reform, public improvements, better labor laws, and "constitutional requirements preventing encroachment by the executive upon coordinate branches." The concluding paragraph instructed the four delegates elected at the convention to cast their votes in the national convention for Bryan.

Opposition to the instruction plank in the platform was started by Professor Chamberlain of Clark university, Worcester, but his speech, although extremely vehement, was declared by the chairman to be too late, and an effort made by him to obtain reconsideration was ignored.

The main contest came on the selection of four delegates, and principally over the name of Williams. For two hours Faneuil hall resounded with shouts, cries, speeches and motions from various party leaders and the chairman had difficulty in maintaining semblance of order. At one time he was obliged to call upon the police to clear the platform.

The opposition to Williams was led by a number of delegates from wards 10 and 11 in Boston, but they were not given preliminary opportunity to bring forward any name as a substitute, although a ballot bearing the name of R. M. Burnett in place of that of Williams was held by some of the delegates. The question was fought out entirely on the matter of whether the original slate, as arranged Wednesday night, should be elected by acclamation.

Some of the speeches in opposition to the efforts of the Boston delegates were extremely bitter. Notwithstanding this, however, all the speakers pleaded for harmony and expressed a hope that there would be no repetition of the scenes at Springfield last fall.

The issue came to a head when a roll call was permitted on the question of the choice of the four delegates by acclamation, and this was carried by a vote of 408 to 152. The four delegates were then declared elected and immediately after the four alternates were named without opposition, which concluded the day's proceedings.

Previous to the meeting of the convention there was a spirited contest within the committee on resolutions over the instruction plank. The controversy began Wednesday evening and continued until after the time originally named for the meeting of the convention. A compromise, however, was effected, and while the plank was retained, it was modified so as to apply only to the four delegates elected at yesterday's convention. The Bryan advocates wished the instructions to embrace the entire Massachusetts delegation to Denver.

The convention listened to a long address by Chairman Stinson, who devoted a greater portion of his remarks to an attack upon President Roosevelt and what he claimed to be centralization of the government in Washington and the loss of state power. He declared himself strongly in favor of Bryan as the party candidate for president and said he "had much rather have a perpetual candidate than a perpetual president."

Kentuckians For Taft

Louisville, May 8.—The Taft men were apparently about to put their state of delegates-at-large through without a hitch at the session of the Kentucky state Republican convention when their program was endangered and the state at one time apparently broken. After hours of disorder, wire pulling and suspense, the Taft men finally won and elected delegates-at-large instructed for Taft to the Chicago convention.

Roosevelt Is First Choice

Salt Lake City, May 8.—National issues figured but slightly at the Republican convention. The 473 delegates cheered mightily a resolution declaring President Roosevelt the first choice for the presidential nomination and William H. Taft second choice. The delegates to the Chicago convention are uninstructed.

Taft Gets Wyoming Delegates

Lander, Wyo., May 8.—Wyoming Republicans, in state convention, nominated Frank W. Mondell for re-election to congress and instructed the six delegates to the national convention to vote for William H. Taft.

Good Receipts

Good Cooks

This department today is devoted mostly to recipes for home-made candy, and will be followed next week by recipes for puddings, and the following week different ways for cooking fish.

BAKED BEAN SOUP.

In response to request in Ledger of April 24 I give this receipt which our family appreciates:

One can tomatoes, few slices carrot, pieces green pepper, one sliced onion, 2 sprigs parsley, bay leaf, stalk celery or celery salt. Simmer 2 cups baked beans in stock or water, put through sieve and add to above. Cook, season, add piece of butter and strain and serve. E. M. P.

PANOCCHA.

Have ready shelled a quantity of pecan nuts. Put one pound of dark brown sugar and half a cupful of cream into a saucepan; stir over the fire until it melts and boils, and forms a soft ball when dropped into cold water. Take from the fire, add half a pint of pecans, stir until the sugar is granulated, and then drop it in little cakes on oiled paper. O.K.

PEANUT BRITTLE.

Select freshly roasted peanuts. Shell, skin and split in halves of sufficient number to yield one and one-half cups. Then spread the nuts evenly over a shallow, greased pan. Put one cup of genuine dark molasses and one cup of brown sugar in the chafin of the chafin dish. Add one tablespoon of vinegar and one generous tablespoon of butter and boil until the mixture becomes crisp on being dropped into cold water. Add a scant teaspoon of baking soda, mix thoroughly and pour over the nuts. Stand in a cold place, where it will harden quickly, and when very hard break into pieces. Home-made peanut brittle surpasses the factory brand.

PULLED CANDY.

Put six cups of light brown sugar with three cups of water, and cook until it is thick. It will become brittle if a few drops are put into cold water. When you are sure that this stage is reached, add the finely grated yellow peel of two lemons and one-half cup of butter; do not stir, but boil until the brittle stage is again reached. Remember the admonition against stirring while cooking. Cool, stir and pull until nearly white, then cut into sticks and small pieces. Sweet Tooth.

BUTTER SCOTCH.

Two cupfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of water, a piece of butter the size of an egg, boil without stirring until it hardens on a spoon. Pour out on buttered plates to cool. M. A. R.

WALNUT CREAMS.

For these and for date creams and vanilla chocolates the cream is the same, so it is well to plan quantities accordingly. For a pound each of dates and walnuts use the whites of three eggs beaten stiff with three tablespoonfuls of water. Beat in sugar for a soft cream as soft as can be worked. Flavor to taste with vanilla. Roll into balls the size of small marbles, flatten each ball slightly with the fingers, keeping its roundness perfect, and then press the half walnut firmly and carefully down upon it. Put another half on the other side if you wish. It is well to have some with but one-half walnut and some with two, to suit those who prefer either more sweet or more nut. The great care with nut creams should be to have them neat in appearance. Ragged edges, irregular bulges, any appearance of haste or bungling makes them look slovenly. Billings Street.

SALTED ALMONDS.

Shell, pour boiling water over and let stand two or three minutes. Slip the skin off by gently rubbing in the fingers. Place on flat dishes in the oven till they are of a pale brown color, stirring so they will grow evenly. Cool, then put in a dish with unbeaten white of egg. Remove them carefully from the egg, spread on the plates, sift fine salt over them and return to the oven. Stir frequently until entirely dry.

Chocolate almonds may be made in a similar way. After they are without sugar, dip in the white of egg, sift over them powdered sugar, partially dry them and then dip in melted chocolate, as you would dip creams. They will need to be dipped several times. Senior.

FRANCIS JOSEPH'S JUBILEE

Has Reigned Over Austria-Hungary For Three Score Years

Vienna, May 8.—The heads of the princely houses of Germany, led by Emperor William, assembled in Vienna to present their congratulations to Emperor Francis Joseph on the occasion of the diamond jubilee of his reign as Emperor-King of Austria-Hungary and to inaugurate a series of festivities with which the jubilee is to be celebrated throughout the dual monarchy.

Emperor William made a speech, in which he tendered Emperor Francis Joseph the congratulations of those present upon the sixtieth anniversary of his reign. In conclusion he said: "With overflowing hearts we offer homage to the noble ruler, the true ally and the mighty guardian of peace, upon whose head we invoke the richest blessings of providence."

Emperor Francis Joseph said: "In this act of cordial attachment I may, I think, discern a solemn manifestation of the monarchical principle to which Germany owes her power and greatness. Austria-Hungary's strength also is to be found in this principle. Such a great assemblage of German princes around me is at the same time a most eloquent confirmation of the close and indissoluble alliance which has existed between us for nearly thirty years."

Jerome Secured One Conviction

New York, May 8.—District Attorney Jerome was on the witness stand all day yesterday before Commissioner Hand, who is investigating charges of dereliction in the conduct of the district attorney's office under Jerome's administration. Of it, Jerome, on questioning by Attorney Pierce, counsel for the complainants, stated that insurance companies were justified in making campaign contributions in 1906. A lit between Jerome and Pierce over their respective abilities calmed the session and Pierce got Jerome to admit that out of three cases which the district attorney has personally tried in five years only one has resulted in a conviction.

Autopsies For Students' Benefit

New York, May 8.—William R. Bailey, professor of sociology at Yale, came to New York with a party of 100 of his students on his annual trip of observation in connection with the course known as "American social conditions." The party visited first the Bellevue morgue, where they witnessed several autopsies. Then they proceeded to Blackwell's island to visit the city hospital, the penitentiary and the Metropolitan hospital.

Prince Under Perjury Charge

Berlin, May 8.—Prince Philip zu Eulenburg was confronted yesterday by two witnesses who testified at the Harden trial at Munich that the prince had been guilty of abominable and illicit relations with them twenty-five years ago. As the prince in the Harden trial at Berlin swore to his complete innocence of the practice insinuated by Harden, the present action against him is based upon the charge of perjury.

Use of Drugs Is Decreasing

Philadelphia, May 8.—The theories advocated by Rev. Dr. Worcester of Boston in the treatment of mental and nervous disorders were strongly advocated here by Professor Shoemaker in an address before the American Therapeutic society. Shoemaker declared that environment has a far-reaching and important influence in therapeutics and the tendency to use drugs is decreasing.

Cleveland's Condition Not Alarming

Lakewood, N. J., May 7.—"Mrs. Cleveland says that her husband continues to improve in health and that his condition is in no way alarming," said Manager Becker of the Lakewood hotel, when asked as to the condition of the ex-president, who has been ill here for several weeks. When asked if Dr. Bryant was still here, Becker said that he was.

Miners Want Higher Wages

Halifax, May 8.—One thousand miners of the Acadia coal company at Westville and 800 employed by the Intercolonial coal company at Stellarton have applied to the minister of labor for the appointment of a conciliation board. These men asked for an increase of 15 percent and the companies declined.

Discussion on Forest Service

Washington, May 8.—The forestry provision of the agricultural appropriation bill was before the senate several hours yesterday. Senator Teller denounced that service as unwise and its administration as arbitrary, while Senator Dewey spoke in advocacy of the extension of the work of the forest service.

Schooner Turned Turtle

North Sydney, N. S., May 8.—The Grand Bank fishing schooner Mary W. S. foundered in Fortune bay. The crew were saved. The vessel was proceeding on her way to the fishing grounds when she was struck by a squall which completely turned her bottom up, shortly after which she sank.

Four Dead in New York Fire

New York, May 8.—Four persons were killed and twelve injured in a fire, believed to be of incendiary origin, which destroyed the five-story tenement house at 101 Orchard street. The dead are Eva Berg, 53; Samuel Sach, 10; Hattie Koplemann, 2, and an unidentified man.

The Weather Forecast

Albany, Saturday, May 9. Sun rises—4.29; sets—6.52. Moon sets—1.41 a. m. High water—5.45 a. m.; 6.30 p. m. Rain and cool weather will continue in New England.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

James F. Paige, assistant-foreman of the steam engineering department, and Mrs. Paige, were tendered a reception by the Neponset Brotherhood in Trinity chapel, Neponset, Wednesday evening, prior to their sailing for Japan, where Mr. Paige will superintend the installation and operation of the four large Curtis (Fore River) reversible marine steam turbines for the first-class cruiser and the first-class battleship of the Imperial Japanese Navy. One set of these turbines have already been started for Japan on the S. S. Baley and the other set will be ready for shipment probably in August. Mr. and Mrs. Paige expect to be gone about two years. Several letters to prominent Japanese were presented to the couple by Mr. Matsuki of Boston.

Sixteen nickel steel shafts are being forged and rough machined at the shipyard for the General Electric Company.

Mr. Gerrior of the B department is having a shaft machined in the machine shop.

Capt. F. Stanhope Hill, secretary of the Massachusetts Naval Training School, will retire May 15, after fourteen years of service.

It is announced that the examinations for assistant paymasters in the navy, originally set for June 6, had been postponed to June 29. This will give an opportunity to graduates of colleges and universities to take the examinations. They will be held in Washington. There are seven vacancies in the corps of assistant paymasters at this time.

Light-vessel No. 90 which has been hauled out on the marine railway at Baker's Yacht Basin, in order that the bottom of the ship might be scraped and painted, is again back at the shipyard to receive her finishing touches.

The Fore River Jr. football team will play a game with the J. A. A. Jr. team Saturday afternoon at Ward Two playgrounds. Game will be called at 3.15. As this game is one in the cup series an interesting contest is looked for. The Fore River, Jr., team has as yet not been defeated this season in the cup series.

The fence has been removed from the Thorne estate on Clive street and will be replaced by a short box hedge which will improve the appearance largely.

Invitations are out for the dinner May 15 in honor of the birthday anniversary of Francis A. Spear, chief of the Knockers' club. Covers will be laid for sixteen.

An inquest was held before Judge Avery this morning on the death of John Finn of Brockton, who was killed by the cars near Capen's bridge in Braintree some weeks ago.

Mr. Raymond, the superintendent of construction at the Federal building, denies that there will be any race with the new Coddington school-house. It is not the practice of the government to do work that way.

Another meeting of the Congregational Union will be held the last of May at the Finnish Congregational church of West Quincy and on June 28 at the Quincy Point church. Other union meetings will be held in the hall and a good banquet next winter.

Reports from the Atlantic Real Estate agency state the encouraging fact that all summer cottages at the Atlantic beach with the exception of one have been let for the summer. Also that there has been no dropping off in the demand for property in Atlantic.

Mrs. Alice D. Sanborn of this city was on Thursday reelected secretary and treasurer at the annual meeting of the New England Association Alliance at Worcester. Mrs. Alma Faunce Smith of Manchester, N. H., formerly of Wollaston, is the new president. The Worcester League of Unitarian Women entertained the delegates very hospitably.

Miss Edith C. Gallagher, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Clifford Gallagher of Russell street, passed away on Thursday.

A Boston paper reports that Fred Coburn, about 25 years old, of 29 Park street, Milton, was struck by an outward bound Worcester electric Thursday night on Boylston street, Brookline. He was taken to the Massachusetts General hospital, suffering from a fractured leg and an injury to the right hip. His condition is not serious. Coburn was crossing Boylston street, near the corner of Chestnut Hill avenue, when the accident occurred. The motorman claims he did not see Coburn until the latter, with umbrella raised, stepped in front of the car which was moving slowly at the time. Coburn was struck by the fender, fell back against the dasher and was then thrown forward to the track ahead of the car. A quick stop was made and the car did not strike him a second time. The injured man was treated in Dr. Channing's office until the police ambulance arrived.

Check for $5,000.

District Deputy Grand Master French of the 24th Masonic district made an unofficial visit to Rural lodge on Thursday evening and explained at length the plan of the Grand Master for the Masonic Home, which it is proposed to build. The worshipful master will appoint a committee to solicit funds for the home among the members of the lodge. The lodge received a check for $5,000 from the executors of the will of Nathaniel Hunt, which will be applied to the charity fund.

The Second Night.

The followers of Sir Galahad had another good audience on Thursday evening at their second presentation of "Vice Versa," although it was a stormy night. The play was even better than on the opening night, and again Ellis Young as Dulcie was the favorite. H. Hammond Price as Dick Bultitude emphasized his former success. Both evenings there were musical selections by the Y. M. C. A. Mandolin and Guitar club and by Wendell Luce, which were always applauded.

The hacks and carriages, used by Bisson Bros. in their depot carriage work will be sold at auction by Auctioneer Olney May 14.

Divisions 5 and 18, A. O. H., will be consolidated on Saturday evening, and it is expected that about 75 new members will be initiated, swelling the membership to over 300. County President Cox of Hyde Park and some of the State officers are expected, and plans have been made for a gala time.

UNCLE JOHN 72

Republicans and Democrats Join in a Tribute to E. E. E.

Washington, May 8.—A touching tribute was paid by the house of representatives yesterday to Speaker Cannon, on his 72nd birthday.

The usual roll call on taking a recess at the close of the day had proceeded for some time when it was interrupted by Mr. Clark (Mo.). "Mr. Speaker," he inquired, "is not this the 72nd anniversary of the birth of Speaker?"

The speaker seemed taken by surprise and modestly bowed that it was. "Well," remarked Clark, amid applause from every quarter of the chamber, "I wish to say we all wish you many happy returns." Cries of "speech," "speech," followed and the speaker, leaning on his gavel, said:

"Except by unanimous consent, it ought not to be in order for anybody to interrupt the roll call, but in the absence of objection, I sincerely thank the gentleman from Missouri—my friend, personal friend, as I am his political opponent—for his kindly remembrance on this, the 72nd anniversary of my birth. I sometimes wish I could forget it and everything else could. But," he continued, "after all, it is some compensation for being 72 when friends remember the birthday with kind words and thoughts."

"Many years' service in the house of representatives authorizes me to state that so far as I know or believe there is no greater legislative body than this, or those bodies which constitute the congress of the United States, and after these years of service I want to say that the personnel of the Sixtieth congress, in my judgment, is quite equal to the personnel of any congress I have served."

After referring briefly to filibustering in the house, Speaker Cannon continued: "And there is one thing in this house and one thing that belongs to the civilization that we have in the United States that is worthy of note—we don't, in our contests, strike below the belt. If he does not, he strikes, and is forgotten. I thank you again for this kindly remembrance. The clerk will now call the names of those not answering on the first call."

Then followed another unusual incident. On motion of Mr. Macon (Ark.) the roll call was vacated "in honor of the speaker's birthday," and the house took a recess.

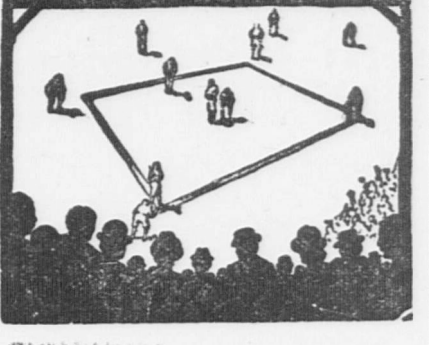

Hundred Men in Peril

New York, May 8.—Buffeted by seas which a howling southeaster sent surging over the shallows of Short beach until she was broken up amidships, the four-masted ship Peter Rickmers is in a position of extreme peril. The vessel is being swept from side to side by white seas, only her jiggermast remains and on board are her crew of forty odd men and the sixty wreckers put aboard Wednesday to jettison the cargo of coal oil and to kedgie the big Dutchman out into deep water. Once lines were flung across the boat, but the wind and seas swept them away.

Raising Ocean Mail Subsidies

Washington, May 8.—The senate committee has adopted the Gallinger ocean mail subvention bill as an amendment, adding it to the postoffice appropriation bill in the form in which it was passed by the senate. It authorizes the postmaster general to pay for ocean mail service in vessels of the second class on routes to South America, the Philippines, Japan, China and Australia the same rate now applicable to vessels of the first class, and for service on vessels of the third class the rate applicable under existing law for vessels of the second class.

BASEBALL

At base ball on Wednesday the Quincy school team defeated the Wollaston school 9 to 8. The Quineys had a little the best of it from the start, but it was a tie at the end of the fifth innings.

The score by innings was:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Quincy	1	3	0	4	0	1	—	—	—
Wollaston	1	1	1	3	2	0	—	—	—

Duggan for Quineys scored three strike outs and gave four bases on balls. Church who pitched four innings for Wollaston did not score a strike out, but gave eight bases on balls. Conway who went in to pitch in the fifth struck out five men in the two innings.

Coddington juniors defeated the Cranch juniors at base ball on Thursday 9 to 3.

The Makaria Fraternity base ball team will meet the Newton Y. M. C. A. at Merrymount park on Saturday afternoon at 3.30. Michael and Smith will be the battery for the home team and Cutting and Coolidge for the visitors.

The Social Realm

A touch of frost in the morning air,
A sudden sense that life is fair;
The glad, wild note of a happy bird
From the tall bare boughs of the poplar heard,
Ere he shakes his wings to mount on high
A glorious stretch of wind-swept sky,
And a heart that catches the lift and swing
And the joy that is life and love and spring.
—Outing Magazine.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Kincaide have been making several improvements in their already beautiful home on Whitney road. Besides an attractive automobile house and cement driveway to it, a new porte-cochere extends from the front piazza over the driveway. The painters are now contributing to the effectiveness of the whole.

Mrs. Hattie Gurney of Beale street entertained the Atlantic whist club Wednesday evening and made the affair memorable with elaborate decorations and environments of the far East. The entire house was trimmed with Chinese hangings with a touch of the "spooky" atmosphere of that nation. Many of the guests were in costume which added to the general bright effect. A typical Chinese supper, preceded the game of cards. Prizes were taken by Mrs. Henry Von Emden and Mrs. Charles Cherrington.

The New England Associate Alliance at its meeting at Worcester on Thursday again elected Mrs. John W. Sanborn secretary and treasurer, showing appreciation of her previous services in that capacity.

UNITY CLUB BANQUET

Toasts to The Hero The Villian And Others

From a literary standpoint, a social standpoint, an artistic standpoint or as viewed by an epicure, the banquet of the Wollaston Unity club last evening was a great success. It was held in the Unitarian church at Wollaston, and attended by over fifty ladies and gentlemen.

A reception from 6 to 7 in the church auditorium was followed by a banquet in the basement served by Hendrie of Dorchester. The tables were very attractive with fresh daffodils, daisies, lighted candles and artistic settings. The place cards were hand painted by Miss Elizabeth Thayer and also announced the subjects of the toasts, and were very attractive.

An excellent menu was served in good style. It included bouillon, olives, radishes, sliced tomatoes with French dressing, roast chicken with dressing and gravy, rolls, a variety of delicious ices, cake and coffee.

Mrs. Robert E. Park, the president, presided at the post prandial exercises with grace and ability, and presented an unusually attractive program, making a short address, and producing each toast with witicism which was the keynote of all the responses of the evening.

Miss Blanche McIntyre of Cambridge responded to the toast, "The Hero." It was the every day hero of whom she spoke, and she provoked considerable merriment.

Walter E. Simmons responded for "The Heroine." He told a story of George and Geraldine, and in fact several stories, and had a tribute for Mrs. Park and compliments for the ladies in general.

Mrs. John Litchfield responded in rhyme for "The Villian." Most everybody she contended was a villian, but concluded that Father Time was the greatest villian of all.

Willard E. Keyes who recently won the National prize for a nadrigal composition, responded for "The Adventuress." He told of his experience with an adventuress on the stage while he was a dramatic critic in the West.

Dr. E. R. Johnson responded for "The Comic Man," and he certainly told some very comic stories met in every day life, concluding his remarks by saying that the man worth while is the man with a smile, even if everything goes wrong.

Miss Florence Faxon responded for "The Inate Parent." She had discovered that parents today did not expect to have their say. She told of her observations as a teacher and was bright and clever. When she sent a note to a mother asking why Johnnie was late to school, she received the reply "I hope, Miss Faxon, you will get married some time, and have eight children; then you will know why Johnnie is late to school."

Frederick H. Bishop responded for "The Stage Child" and treated the subject seriously. The child was always a study, he said, and held the centre of the stage. He spoke of different characters like Little Lord Fauntleroy, and of variety, the bullies, love's young dream, true love, child traits and child character.

Miss Gertrude Greene had the denouement and unfolded a marvelous tale which she said she found in the archives of the Unity club, a very bright thing.

The following verses entitled, "All the world's a stage," written by Mrs. M. Agnes Dalrymple Bishop, was then sung to the tune of Heidelberg by all present:

Here's to the hero on life's stage,
Give him our loud applause;
Here's to the villian, let him rage
He must obey the laws;
Here's to the heroine, sweet and pure
Always our love is hers;
Here's to the child with a place secure,
Which public acclaim confers.
Here's to the fellow, who plays the clown,
He is forever dear;
Here's to the father with cruel frown,
Who loves though he looks severe;
Here's to the adventures, lover and sage;
Here's to life's players all;
Here's to the drama in every age,
Now let the curtain fall.

Music concluded the program of the evening and included a beautiful piano solo by Miss Gertrude Lacey, and a charming solo by Mrs. W. E. Keyes. Everybody congratulated Mrs. Park on the very enjoyable evening.

Abigail Adams
Paper No. 3
Of Quincy
Historical Society

The third of the series of living pictures presented at the meeting of the Quincy Historical Society on April 28 is printed today. The subject was "Abigail Adams" and the author H. H. Schumacher.

Class distinctions had among the founders of the United States government, no greater advocate than John Adams. This descendant of New England yeomen, nurtured within him a distinctly aristocratic spirit, which was betrayed in later years by his handsome colonial mansion, his family portraits, and the granite sarcophagi, which he erected over the graves of his ancestors in the ancient such is the distress of the neighborhood that I can scarcely find a well person to assist me in looking after the sick.

(25 Sept.)—"Woe follows woe, and one affliction treads upon the heels of another. My distress for my own family having somewhat abated, it is excited anew upon that of my dear mother. She has taken the disorder and lies so low that we have little hope of her recovery."

(29 Sept.)—"It is allotted to me to go from the sick and almost dying bed of one of the best of parents, to my own habitation, where I again behold the same scene. You can more easily conceive than I can describe what are the sensations of my heart when absent from either, continually expecting a messenger with the fatal tidings."

Mrs. Adams remained in Braintree during the entire Revolution. Her husband, being appointed a commissioner to the French Court, crossed the water in 1778, accompanied by his son John Quincy. At home she was occupied with the most practical and trying affairs. She writes to Mr. Adams: "I have studied, and do study every method of economy. I cannot get hard money for bills. You had as good tell me to procure diamonds for them; and when the bills will fetch but five for one, hard freed from the more pressing cares and anxieties, happy in the constant companionship of her husband, surrounded with objects, which catered to her refined taste in art and living, her position of "Great Lady" of the village may well have been enviable. She died in 1818.

"In every relation of life a pattern of filial, conjugal, maternal and social virtue." From a mural tablet to her memory, in the First Parish church in Quincy, Massachusetts.

Flaws in Anti-Trust Law

Washington, May 9.—Professor Jenks of Cornell university, who was before the senate committee on the judiciary to advocate the enactment of the bill of the National Civic Federation for the amendment of the Sherman anti-trust law, was closely cross-examined by senators. As a result many flaws in the measure were pointed out. In a general discussion between the witness and Senator Dewey it was conceded that the steel corporation furnished the greatest example in the country of "a watered stock corporation."

Teachers to Be Humiliated

Chester, Pa., May 9.—As a manifestation of the bitterness with which many people regard the Chester Traction company and the men who took the places of the motormen and conductors when they went on a strike several weeks ago, the pupils of the Morton avenue school refused to attend the sessions yesterday because two teachers, Miss Anderson and Miss MacFarland, rode on the trolley cars manned by strikebreakers. Mothers of the children went before the school board last night and were promised that the teachers would make an apology to the children and make a public apology through the press.

Increased Pay in the Army

Washington, May 9.—The officers and enlisted men of the army won their fight for increased pay when the house of representatives agreed to the conference report on the army appropriation bill. An appropriation of $7,000,000 was made for the purpose, $5,000,000 of which will go to the enlisted men. Nine hundred and forty-two officers on the retired list also will benefit by the increase.

Crocker Wins Big Race

London, May 9.—The victory of Richard Crocker's Rhodora in the thousand guinea stake at Newmarket, following the success of the American horse Rubio in the Grand National and Norman III in the two thousand guinea stakes, makes a notable sequence of American triumphs. Rhodora is still lacking in condition, but she covered a mile in 1 minute, 43.35 seconds.

Cup Feature Cut Out

Paris, May 9.—The committee having in charge the New York-to-Paris automobile race has decided, as a consequence of the abandonment of the run through Alaska and the crossing of Bering strait, not to present a cup for the feat, but instead to give three prizes, $1000, $500 and $200 respectively, to the first three machines arriving in Paris.

Coercion Act's Death Near

London, May 9.—By a vote of 201 to 7, the bill repealing the Irish coercion act of 1887 passed its second reading in the house of commons. Chief Secretary for Ireland Birrell declared the coercion act to be unconstitutional and intolerable. He maintained that any attempt to govern Ireland by coercion would be political insanity.

Inquiry Into Disaster Postponed

London, May 9.—The admiralty has decided to postpone its official inquiry into the collision of the second-class cruiser Gladiator and the steamship St. Paul until the civil action brought by the admiralty and the American line has been concluded, in order that these cases may not be prejudiced.

Lynching of Tennessee Negro

Nashville, May 9.—Elmo Harvard, 18 years old, a negro, arrested at Puttaski for an attempted criminal assault, was lynched by 300 unmasked men. The men broke open the jail and carried the negro to a bridge and hanged him. Several shots were fired into the negro's body.

Suggestion of the Unemployed

burial-ground at Quincy (Old Braintree).

He early laid a firm foundation for this future greatness by marrying a descendant of the Massachusetts Quincys, than whom, none of the Colonial gentry held higher their heads. The Quincys had their family mansion, and a line of ancestral judges and colonels, made immortal by the most noted artists of their day, while the ancestors of our second president were yet farming.

Abigail (Smith) Adams, who was born in Weymouth, Massachusetts, 1744, was the daughter of the Rev. William Smith of the First Parish church; and granddaughter of that Colonel Quincy, for, whom our town was named. The parishioners of the Rev. Mr. Smith do not seem to have been very well pleased with his daughter's choice. "They did not consider Mr. Adams a sufficiently good catch for the daughter of one of the leading lights of the colony."

The future President took his bride to Braintree, and established her in a small farm house, which like the "cottages" of the time was neither beautiful nor very comfortable. Here, however, Mrs. Adams performed the numerous duties of a New England housewife, and expresses herself as most content. Later she was obliged, in the absence of her husband, to manage the entire farm alone.

This separation occurred in 1774, when John Adams was sent to the Continental Congress. From that year until 1784, when they joined each other in Europe, husband and wife saw comparatively little of one another. That Mrs. Adams felt the gravity of the country's position, is shown in a letter (16 Oct. 1774) to her husband. She writes: "The threatening aspect of our public affairs, the complicated distress of this province, the arduous and perplexed business in which you are engaged, have all conspired to agitate my bosom with fears and apprehensions."

In her later correspondence and diary she describes the battle of Bunker Hill and the burning of Charlestown, as seen and heard from "Penn's Hill" in Braintree. In the first year of the war "pestilence" added another hardship to the lot of Braintree people; and here is an example of what this New England lady underwent with courage and fortitude. She writes (8 Sept. 1775):

"Our house is a hospital in every part, and, what with my own weakness and distress of mind for my family I have been unhappy enough. And money will exchange for ten. I scarcely know the look or taste of biscuit or flour for this four months; yet thousands have been much worse off, having no grain at all."

'Up to the time of the acknowledgment, by England, of the Independence of the United States, Mr. Adams's residence was so unsettled as to have made it seem impracticable for his wife to join him. In 1784, however, she made the thirty days voyage to England; and within a year they settled in London. Her letters home and her diary for this period are fascinating reading. She expresses her views of European life and society frankly; and in so doing betrays a mind of insight and well balanced judgment.

That she in every way graced the formal position, which she was obliged to occupy while abroad, is well known. Although she had "no wish to join in a scene of life so different from that in which (she had) been educated," yet put to the test she most happily showed how American simplicity and European court life could be combined.

She sums up her stay abroad thus: "I have learned to know the world and its value; I have seen high life; I have witnessed the luxury and pomp of state, the power of riches, and the influence of titles, and have beheld all ranks bow before them, as the only shrine worthy of worship. Notwithstanding this, I feel that I can return to my little cottage, and be happier than here; and if we have not wealth, we have what is better integrity."

"This experience of diplomatic life, admirably fitted Mrs. Adams to be the wife of the first Vice-President and later "First Lady of the Land." The anecdote, which relates that she made use of one of the state rooms of the unfinished White House to dry clothes in, is suggestive of how little high life had been able to affect the Puritan virtues of her character.

Always deeply interested in her husband's affairs, the political disturbances and the criticism of his administration caused her to look forward to retirement with positive pleasure. They returned to Quincy (Old Braintree), but not to the farm house. Mr. Adams had purchased the "Vassal estate," the confiscated property of a wealthy West Indian trader; and in this mansion, which has since been the house of three generations of her descendants, Mrs. Adams spent the remainder of her life.

NOTES TO SENATORS

President's Action May Precipitate Republican Conference

DECLARES HIS SUPREMACY

Denies That He Is Under Obligation to Grant Discharged Negro Soldiers or Colonel Stewart, Whom He Banished, Any Court of Inquiry

Washington, May 9.—Three members of the United States senate have received letters from President Roosevelt within the last few days declaring his supremacy, as commander-in-chief, in all matters of control of the army and the navy. The letters have created intense feeling in the senate and it is not unlikely that they will precipitate a conference of republican members.

The letters in every case are in defense of his course in discharging without honor the negro soldiers he believes were guilty of "shooting up" the town of Brownsville, Tex., and his action in banishing Colonel Stewart to an abandoned military post in a deserted part of Arizona.

The third letter came yesterday to Senator Stewart of Vermont. A few days ago, during the debate on the Brownsville case, Stewart asked a question indicating that he had doubts as to the wisdom of granting the president the power of passing on the innocence or guilt of ex-soldiers applying for readjustment. In view of the fact that it appeared that the president still believes all of the negroes were guilty of complicity in the affray.

The senator was surprised to receive from the president a letter bearing on both the Stewart and the Brownsville cases. Attached to the communication were letters to Senators Rayner of Maryland and Smith of Michigan. The one to Rayner asserts chiefly the president's right to deal with an officer in such manner as he pleases, as commander-in-chief, while the one to Smith is confined to the Brownsville affair and reiterates the president's belief that he dealt with the case as conditions demanded.

The president goes farther still in his letter to Stewart. He declares that from the question he asked in the debate Stewart appears to be proceeding under a misapprehension of the duties of the President of the United States relative to the army and the navy. He quotes the law as he understands it, and denies that he is under any obligation to grant the discharged negro soldiers or Stewart any court of inquiry.

Several paragraphs are devoted to a discussion of Stewart's case and his faults which have brought him into disrepute in army circles. The president adds that in every community there is maulin sympathy with murders, and the Thaw case in New York is cited by him as an example.

The senators who have received letters from the White House have not decided whether they will make them public. All have been asked to do so. Senator Smith declined, on the ground that it would be improper, and Rayner is preparing to use the letter to him in a speech which he will make to the senate denouncing the action of the president in banishing Stewart to Fort Grant, Ariz.

Senator Stewart showed the letter he received to several of his colleagues, but thus far has made no disposition of it. Several senators say that the letters will have the effect of complicating the proposed legislation in the interest of the innocent members of the battalion of negroes discharged on account of the Brownsville affray. There are two bills before the senate looking to that end.

It is generally believed that the Republican senators will hold a caucus for the discussion of the entire question, including the president's letters, early next week.

For Eve's Daughters.

Answering the Teacher's Question—Why the Family Wasn't Cordial—George Meredith and the Woman's Movement.

The answer in the book was that the farmer saved some of the seeds from his grains and vegetables to plant them the next season, but when the teacher put the query to her class she forgot that it was composed of very up to date youngsters.

"Why doesn't he eat them all, children? Now you may answer, Tony," she said to a bright Italian boy whose hand was waving before her.

"Cause he get sick if he eat too much," replied Tony.

"Oh, now, that isn't the answer. What do you say, Lily?" to a little girl whose hand was beating the air like a windmill.

"He'd get the appendicitis," Lily replied triumphantly, while the other children listened enviously as the star scholar rolled out the long word.

Then the teacher gave it up and answered the question herself.

In her address to the young women of Bryn Mawr college on "Social Legislation and Need of the Ballot For Women" Miss Jane Addams declared that women must feel that they are responsible for many unsatisfactory conditions in the industrial world before any permanent reforms can be effected.

George Meredith, the greatest of living English novelists, was recently interviewed at his home, Box Hill, Surrey, by William T. Stead. Meredith lives all alone, happy among his birds and flowers and regarding all human things through the mellowing perspective which eighty years of experience affords the good and great. Very inspiring are the words of this master analyst of human nature in regard to the woman question. Said he, "What nature originally decreed men are but beginning to see—namely, that women are fitted for most of the avenues open to energy, and by their entering upon active life they will no longer be open to the accusation men so frequently bring against them of being narrow and craven."

The religion which permits people to go into church and ask favors of the God of mercy while they allow one of his creatures to stand outside two or three hours in torture, head jerked into the air with a checkrein and a tail bobbed off so that the animal isn't able to whisk off annoying insects, doesn't seem to be a very effective kind of religion. And certainly their owners must have the faith that moves mountains if they really believe that the good Lord is going to pay any attention to their petitions under such circumstances.

Miss Isabel Hagner, secretary to the president's wife, is paid only $1,400 a year. Her duties are many and her responsibilities great. She practically has charge of all the White House entertaining and must thoroughly understand all the intricacies of Washington social life. She looks over lists of guests and decides on menus and decorations. Her tact and knowledge of the jarring factions in the capital have enabled her to advise Mrs. Roosevelt so that her reign as mistress of the White House has been exceptionally successful. The president's secretary, although of no more vital importance to the White House family, is much better paid than this clever and charming young woman. Perhaps in the day when equal pay and equal work are something more than a rallying cry for women the secretary of the first lady in the land will be as well paid as that of the first gentleman.

Miss Florence Nightingale, the "angel of the Crimea," who is still alive and clear brained at the age of ninety, has been showered with honors by her grateful countrymen, but has all her life been denied the only privilege for which she has asked them—the ballot. This remarkable old lady says: "You ask my reason for believing in woman's suffrage. It seems to me almost self evident, an axiom, that every householder and taxpayer ought to have a voice in the disposition of the money we pay, including, as this does, interests the most vital to a human being." It would be an appropriate tribute to Miss Nightingale's greatness if before her death the boon she asks might be conferred upon her by the English government instead of the empty honors of medals and the freedom of its cities.

Some people say they object to giving woman the ballot because the poor frail sex is not able to go out and fight in wartime. A dispatch states that the police of Dublin, in Russian Poland, with much difficulty have captured a fierce band of highway robbers composed entirely of women. These were absolutely fearless in their attacks upon travelers and gathered together a rich supply of loot. Such was their fame that no man alone dared to stand up against them. In Russian Poland the frail sex seems to be less frail than it is supposed to be elsewhere.

The Women's Henry George league of New York passed resolutions protesting against Justice Brewer's recent decision in regard to women restricting the number of hours a woman may work. CAROLINE WETHERELL.

Grade Crossing
Hearing Monday

The hearing on the abolition of the grade crossings at Saville and Water streets scheduled to be held Monday morning at City Hall has not been postponed and will be held.

When the hearing is called, however, an attempt will be made to get a continuance for the reason that the Mayor's Committee have not as yet perfected its plans.

Mayor Shea this morning said that the plan that the city was working on called for a depression of the tracks at Saville street and that a plan along this line was being worked out.

The plan for Water street is not ready as yet. At this point the committee is working along the lines of a plan that will call for carrying Water street over the tracks by an overhead bridge.

Neither of these plans are fully completed as yet and it is the desire of the city to have the hearing postponed until such time as they shall be ready.

High School
Hall Changes

Before the hall at the High school can again be used publicly a number of changes will have to be made to meet the requirements of the State police. These are largely in the exits. As they are now, the main doors leading from the corridor to the hall are so arranged that should anyone by design or spirit of fun so desire, the doors could be locked from the inside. This would mean that in case of a fire it would be a difficult job to get out. The bolts and locks on the doors must be changed.

Another change ordered is the door leading into the brick fire escape well at the rear of the building. This door is a foot narrower than called for in the plans, and does not meet the requirements of the State police.

There is an order now before the City Council calling for an appropriation for better fire exits in the public school buildings, and the exits at the High school are among the items included in the amount estimated.

Quick Work.

A man who gave his name as Tony Fick was arrested at the Fore River this morning for the larceny of copper. The man came down from Boston with several teams that were carting off old junk. Tony saw a piece of copper that took his eye and when he thought no one was looking he put it under the seat of his wagon. An hour later he was fined $5 in the district court.

COUNTRY MINISTER

The Dramatic Play By The Loyal Ladies
A Great Success

The Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor No. 1, celebrated its seventeenth anniversary last evening in its time-honored way by an entertainment and dance at Music hall.

The entertainment included the presentation of the well-known drama "A Country Minister," which was given under the direction of John Troupe, who had so drilled his company that the play ran very smoothly and went off without a hitch.

The characters were impersonated by well-known South Quincy people, and so well did they act their parts that there was frequent outbursts of applause.

The principal character, that of Rev. Ralph Underwood, "A country minister," impersonated by William Troupe. Helen C. Troupe, as Helen Burleigh from the city, was all that a city young lady is supposed to be, and Jerusha Jane Jenkins, the postmistress, by Miss Anna R. Giles, was just as inquisitive as to the contents of mail that passed through her hands as such people actual are in country places.

Roxy, a fresh-air kid, in Miss Louisa Driscoll; Granny Grimes, in Georgianna Michael, and Fanny, the hired maid, in Miss Jennie G. Grassick, were also well up in their parts.

The male parts in the play were also well impersonated by A. J. M. Cowe, Jr., J. Ernest Collins, John Capiccoli, Fr. d. A. Malcolm, John Giles, Irving Kemp and John Moir.

The play was a long one and it was nearly 10.30 when the curtain was rung down. Dancing commenced shortly after, opening with a grand march led by Mrs. Rattie Norrie, the floor directress, and Joseph Flaherty, followed by Effie O'Hara, the assistant floor directress and Mayor Shea, and upwards of seventy couples.

At midnight during a brief intermission supper was served in the annex.

Those in charge of the floor and arrangements were as follows:

Floor Directress—Rattie Norrie.
Assistant Floor Directress—Effie O'Hara.

Aids—Jennie Norrie, Margart Hall, Sarah Summers, Hattie Smith, Annie Norrie and Helen Troupe.

Committee of Arrangements—Minnie McNeil, Margaret McDonald, Jeanie Mitchell, Jennie Steinbrenner, Lizzie McIntosh, Elsie Martin and Lillian Duncan.

Had Eight Quarts
In His Pockets

There have been many complaints from the officials of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. about parties who get into the works or stand about the gates and sell liquor to workmen. Complaints have been made to the police and they have been on the watch for the parties.

This morning officer Lyons, who is on duty in that section, had his attention attracted to a man acting in a suspicious manner about the gates, and after watching him for a time, placed him under arrest for violation of the liquor law.

The man gave his name as John Harkins and said that he lived in the Cogan block on Cherry street. When searched eight quart bottles of whiskey were brought to light that he had about his clothing.

He was sent to the police station where he was booked on a complaint for keeping and exposing liquor for sale. He will be arraigned in court Monday morning.

High School Reception.

The class of 1909 of the Quincy High school tendered a reception to the class of 1908 last evening at the High school. The reception was held in the gymnasium which was decorated with flags for the occasion. Those in the receiving party were Leslie L. Cleveland, head master, Mrs. Charles H. Stone, Mrs. Melvin T. Holbrook and Mrs. John F. Roache.

Dancing was in order from 7.30 to 10.30. The march was led by Corliss Berry, president of the class of 1909, and Miss Bessie Brooks, and Harold Marsh, vice president of the class of 1909 and Miss Edna Thomas. Punch was served during the evening.

Man and Wife
Go to Jail

James Bascone and his wife, who were arrested by Inspector Goodhue for the larceny of clothing from Mrs. Susie Hinds, were severely sentenced in the district court this morning.

It was alleged that Bascone and his wife took about $300 of clothing that were stored in Chapman's barn at Houghs Neck. Some of the goods missed were found at Bascone's house on Canal street, but a large portion of the goods were missing. It developed, however, that Mrs. Bascone, after her husband had been arrested, in the hopes of saving him, burned the clothing in the kitchen stove.

The officers went down to the house and found corset steels, buckles and buttons in the stove which seemed to bear out this testimony. They also found a lot of ladies' wearing apparel of fine quality which did not belong to Mrs. Hinds, and for which owners would like to be found.

In court this morning the man was sentenced to eight months in the house of correction and the woman was fined $25. Both went to jail.

Salem Gas Case.

The Salem Gas Light Company brought proceedings in the United States Circuit Court this week against Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners and Attorney-General Malone, seeking to have its order to reduce the price of gas to inhabitants of Salem and Peabody held void and to have the defendants restrained from enforcing the order.

On petition of the mayor of Salem, filed Dec. 24, 1906, and of certain consumers, filed Nov. 6, 1906, says the Transcript, the board ordered the price of gas reduced from $1.20 per cubic foot to $1.10. The company claims that the order is equivalent to the taking of its property without compensation, and it submits figures tending to show that the reduction will be burdensome and unjust.

The net cost of the manufacture and distribution of gas in 1907 was $97,013.57 and an increase of ten per cent. for 1908 is made.

The amount of gas sold in 1907 was 116,808,660 cubic feet; in 1908 the total may be 128,489,460 cubic feet. At $1.10 per foot the gross income would be $141,338.40. Deducting an estimated net cost of $104,392.05, leaves a balance of $36,946.35, excluding losses of depreciation, etc. Allowing a depreciation of five per cent. on the property and 3 1-2 on the mains, the balance is reduced to $9,397 which applied to dividends will yield 2.69 per cent. on the par value of the capital stock.

Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary.

The annual business meeting of Women's auxiliary to Y. M. C. A. was held Friday afternoon in Association hall. Mrs. Herbert Pinkham, who has served the auxiliary so faithfully the past year was reelected. Other officers elected were: Recording secretary, Mrs. J. H. Sedgwick; corresponding secretary, Miss Addie Parks; treasurer, Mrs. Frank W. Crane. The reports read showed that the past year had been a successful one.

The meeting was followed by a birthday party under the direction of Mrs. E. W. Sheppard. As the birthday bags were being received and the money counted a pleasing entertainment was furnished by Mrs. S. I. Wood, consisting of readings by Miss Louis Williams, piano solos by Miss Margaret Carrothers, and singing by the Junior Quartet under the leadership of Mrs. Edward Miller. Refreshments were served by Mrs. A. H. Gilson chairman of the refreshment committee. It was a delightful surprise when the announcement was made that $80 had been taken in during the afternoon.

—An exchange says Woburn druggists are much disturbed because they cannot sell alcohol or liquor even on physicians' prescriptions. They have been refused licenses by the License Board which goes out of office May 30, and the City Council cannot act until next month. An appeal has been taken to the State Board of Registration in Pharmacy, but it will be opposed by the mayor. The city is so dry that cracks in the earth resembling those caused by earthquake shocks have been discovered in one section.

NECKThe Season
Early at This Popular Resort
By the Seaside

The Houghs Neck Associates are firmly determined to make our popular resort a clean place this year, and to induce a new desirable class of summer residents. For the past few years so-called clubs, composed largely of toughs, have abounded. They have been a very undesirable class of residents and have given the beach a bad name.

These clubs, however, will find it hard to locate this year, for the associates, many of whom have cottages to let, have entered a hide-bound agreement not to let their cottages to one of these clubs. Each member is to constitute himself a committee of one to work for the best interests of the section, and all they want is a little co-operation by the city.

One of the helps will be in the way of better police service, which has been promised. Another thing they want is that the streets be well lighted, believing that this will aid materially in breaking up the gangs that usually congregate in dark places.

The season at Houghs Neck is about ready to start. The real estate men report every cottage let. This season promises to be an unusually prosperous one for the tradesmen.
One hundred and eight new cottages and stores have been completed during the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walther and family of Jamaica Plain have taken possession of their cottage "Recreation"
on Great Hill for the summer.

J. F. Miller and family of Jamaica Plain have arrived and will be at the tage "Crest Haven" on the hill.

hurst" on Great Hill.

the mascot cottage on Bay View avenue.

There will be a benefit dance tonight for the Houghs Neck orchestra at Pandora hall.

Jason L. Harvey has purchased a new 40-foot launch.

Walter W. Finch and family of Roslindale have taken possession of their cottage on Charles street.

ton street.

Mr. and Mrs. George Foster and family of Roxbury are in their cottage on River road.

John Merriam and family will be in

Charles L. Prescott has removed to Hingham.

Thomas W. Berry and family of Roxbury have moved into the "Ethel

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Max of Boston have leased the "Western cottage"
on Charles street for the summer.

Mrs. Elizabeth O'Toole of Dedham will be at the "Mabel cottage," Shennen street for the summer.

Arthur J. LaBrecque has leased the "Perry cottage" on Winthrop street
for the summer season.

A. M. LaBrecque and family are at 1259 Sea street.

Fred Brooks of Brockton is building a home on Delaney avenue.

E. H. Tognis is at the Straine cottage, Great Hill.

One of Weymouth's business men had a narrow escape from drowning at Sheppard's wharf Sunday afternoon. He was in a power boat and while lifting the flag and staff from the bow of the boat a sudden lurch threw him into the water and only the quick work of Gordon Floyd and John Wilder saved him from drowning.

The much-talked banquet of the little friends of Edward, Theodosia, Greta and Robert Park of Third hill, Wollas-ton, is being held this afternoon. Mr.
and Mrs. Robert E. Park, in building their new house, were thoughtful for the children, and the playroom with miniature furniture is the envy of all the young people of Wollaston.

Mrs. Joseph G. Spear of Brain-tree is at home after spending several weeks with her sister in Roslin-dale. Friends are glad to know of the improvement in her health.

Mr. and Mrs. Alden A. Thorndike have closed their town house in Boston and are now at Braintree for the spring season.

Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Kiernan (Miss Helen M. Cogan) announce their safe arrival at New Orleans after a delightful ocean trip. The return trip includes short visits at Atlanta, Ga., and Asheville, S. C., and by the fifteenth, they will reach their future home, Raleigh, N. C.

The engagement is announced of Miss Eliza Kneeland Tower, daughter of
M. S. Benjamin L. M. Tower, of Cohas-set, and Mr. Roy B. Baker, son of Dr.
and Mrs. William H. Baker of Waltham.

A fine presentation of the play "A Regiment of Two," was given last evening in First Church chapel by the Isabelle Davis Dramatic club. It was a benefit performance for the Sunday-school.

Mrs. N. Gleason Torrey, Mr. and Mrs. L. Thurlow Torrey of Braintree who have been in Los Angeles, Cal., two or three months, are homeward bound. They will visit Santa Barbara, Monterey, Santa Cruz, San Francisco, Salt Lake City, Colorado Springs, Denver and Chicago.

Abigail Smith Chapter Daughters of the Revolution of Weymouth are to hold their last meeting of the season
on Wednesday at the Dorothy Q.
house. Mrs. Albert E. Avery of East Braintree is regent. Afternoon tea will be served from three until five o'clock.

Dr. and Mrs. John F. Welch were at home on Thursday evening to the teachers and scholars of the Quincy Mansion school. About fifty enjoyed their hospitality, and it was a delightful occasion for all. Miss Marjorie Welch is a student at the school and the entertaining of fellow-students and teachers in her own home was a great pleasure.

Monday evening, the members of the Matrons' whist club met with Mrs. W. F. Woodsum of Braintree.
The evening was very enjoyable and passed quickly.

Abigail Adams chapter, D. R., of Weymouth will hold its final meeting of the season next Wednesday afternoon
at the "Dorothy Q." house at Quincy.
Tea will be served from three to five o'clock.

Mr. Bray's condition has been serious for several weeks. He was probably one of the best known inventors
in devices for lacing shoes, which lead to the manufacture of tubular rivet
and lacing studs.

He was native of Turner, Me. His first invention was a machine for producing seamless metal boxes.

He has been prominently identified with the Newton hospital, his last gift being the Founders Memorial building erected at a cost of $60,000 and presented by him completely furnished on May day. He was too ill at that time to attend the dedication exercises.

Fire Drill.

There was an exhibition last evening of a deluge nozzle in front of the Central Fire station on Quincy avenue. One of the steamers was stationed near the corner of School street, and the other near the corner of Scammell street. A line of hose from each steamer was connected with the deluge pipe, and an immense volume of water was thrown from the deluge pipe into the meadows.
Such a volume of water would drown
out and quickly flood a building.

TRANSGRESSING LAW

Supreme Court Decision Against the New Haven Road

HOLDINGS IN TROLLEY LINES

Claim of Massachusetts That They Are Invalid Is Upheld Except In Case of the Springfield Street Railway-- Decision of Great Importance

Boston, May 9.—An important opinion was handed down Friday afternoon by the full bench of the supreme court, affirming the information filed some time ago by Attorney General Malone against the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, in which he claimed that the New Haven road, either directly or indirectly, and contrary to law, owns or controls the Worcester and Webster street railway, the Webster and Dudley street railway, the Springfield street railway, the Berkshire street railway, the Worcester and Southbridge street railway and the Blackstone Valley street railway companies.

In its opinion the court says that the New Haven road, through the direct purchase and ownership of the street railway corporations by its creature, the Consolidated Railway company, transgressed the law as to all the street railway companies mentioned in the information except the Springfield street railway, and that it is still transgressing in the same way as to the Worcester and Webster and the Webster and Dudley companies.

The court says that some of these companies have been dealt with directly by the defendant by votes of its directors while they were acting as directors; that the defendant's president is president of the Consolidated Railway company and of all the street railways, and that he receives no compensation for the performance of those official duties except his salary as president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford road.

As to the Springfield company, the court says the stock was acquired through the action of the Consolidated company, whose directors voted to acquire it and pay for it on a plan outlined by the president, Charles S. Melton, which was the establishment of a trust to cover the issue of $3,000,000 guaranteed trust certificates and $1,500,000 of 4 percent debentures of the Consolidated company.

This, the court says, was the origin of the Springfield Railways companies, which was established by the Consolidated company as a part of a plan to control and hold the stock of the Springfield Street Railway company.

Lee, Higginson & Co., were called subscribers and were parties to the purpose of disposing of preferred shares to be issued by the new association, and under the arrangement they were to offer $225 in cash and $150 in preferred stock of the Springfield Railways companies for each share of the Springfield Street Railway company, and for the proceeds of all the shares which they disposed of in this way, and which they underwrote, they were to account to the Consolidated Railway company.

The court says that if the underwriting of Lee, Higginson & Co., be deemed a purchase by them of the preferred shares, the Consolidated Railway company is still indirectly the owner of the shares or has at least an interest in them.

The Springfield Railways companies, the court holds, is not a corporation, although the parties, by their contract, sought to obtain many of the advantages of a corporation without its liabilities, and the association must be wound up and liquidated at the end of twenty years and eleven months, according to the terms of the agreement, and if there are profits in the enterprise the Consolidated Railway company will be entitled to the whole of it.

The court goes into the history of all the subsidiary companies and finds that, except in the case of the Springfield street railway, the defendant company transgressed the law in taking over the properties and still does so in the cases of the Worcester and Webster and the Webster and Dudley companies.

Rochette Released on Bail

Paris, May 9.—Henri Rochette, the French promoter of financial institutions and mining enterprises, who was arrested on a charge of swindling on an enormous scale, has been released in $40,000 bail. Rochette asserts that he is able to successfully carry out his financial plans. The complaint against him alleged that he stole over $12,000,000 through the medium of his various companies and societies.

Cheering Reports From Cleveland

Lakewood, N. J., May 9.—Further encouraging reports come from the hotel where former President Cleveland is still confined by illness. Mrs. Cleveland is the authority for the announcement that her husband is doing excellently. It is expected that plans will be made to remove Mr. Cleveland to his home at Princeton as soon as normal May weather arrives.

Over Half a Million Liabilities

New Orleans, May 9.—A schedule of the debts of the cotton firm of Gussoni & Co. shows liabilities of $576,584 and assets of $114,857. The firm was adjudged bankrupt by an order of the federal court.

KILLED BY A SENTRY

Army Convict Shot While Endeavoring to Escape From Fort Burlington, Vt., May 9.—While making a break for liberty from the guard line, Patrick Ryne, a convict at Fort Ethan Allen, was shot and instantly killed last night by Private Mellory of the Fifteenth cavalry. Three other men, including convicts Hootz and Butler, and Private Strom of B troop, Eleventh cavalry, who was on duty as a sentry over the two convicts, made their escape, but were later recaptured and taken back to the fort.

Ryne, at the time of enlistment, gave his place of residence as New York city. He is said to have an uncle who is a priest of the Roman Catholic church in New York and a brother who is studying for the priesthood in that city. He was put into the guard-house for being drunk and disorderly and about two months ago endeavored to escape by jumping through a window. He was arrested as a deserter and was sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment.

Clergyman Asked to Change Faith—New Haven, May 9.—If Rev. Henry S. Dawson, an Episcopal clergyman of Canton, Ill., will change his faith and become a member of the Roman Catholic church, he will receive a large portion of the estate of his cousin, Miss Alice T. Booth, in accordance with the provisions of her will, filed in the probate court here. The estate is said to be worth about $7000.

Won't Discharge Receivers—New Haven, May 9.—The affairs of the National Steel and Wire company were represented as being unsettled by counsel in superior court when a motion came up for discharge of the receivers. Judge Reed declined to enter an order to this effect, as it was shown that a number of suits to recover on claims are pending, totalling about $600,000.

Old Trade "Drummers" Gather—Portland, Me., May 9.—The annual meeting of the Quarter Century Traveling Men's association, composed of New England commercial travelers who have been on the road twenty-five or more years, was held here last evening. I., May 9.—Fort Kearney, commanding the west passage of Narragansett bay, and Fort Wetherill at Jamestown, which have been under construction for some years, have been turned over to Commandant Howe of the Narragansett defense district by the United States engineer officer in charge here.

Failure of Cleveland Bank—Cleveland, May 9.—The Euclid Avenue Trust company has made an assignment to the Cleveland Trust company. No statement relative to liabilities or assets is given in the assignment deed. It is understood that the deposits amount to between $1200,000 and $1300,000. President Madigan says that every depositor will be paid in full as soon as outstanding loans can be realized upon and that the failure was brought about by inability to make collections.

Weather Affects Trade—New York, May 9.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that weather conditions have exercised much influence this week on retail trade in seasonable merchandise and dealings at the leading commodity exchanges. Low temperature checked the demand for lightweight wearing apparel in a market that was already backward, and heavy rains started reports of damage to the crops, yet there was no evidence of serious injury.

Woman an Alleged Murderer—Watertown, N. Y., May 9.—Mrs. Sarah Brennan of Brownsville was murdered and her body was hacked to pieces and removed to her home, according to the verdict of Coroner Pierce, who has concluded a protracted inquest. He finds that the killing was done by Mrs. Mary Farmer. The police aver that they have obtained a confession from her. Mrs. Farmer is now under arrest.

Receiver For $4,000,000 Estate—Atlanta, May 9.—Forrest Adair of this city has been appointed receiver for the estate of the late Walker P. Inman, valued in the neighborhood of $4,000,000. This action follows closely the appointment of receivers for the cotton firm of Inman & Co. of Augusta, in which one of the heirs at law to the Walker P. Inman estate was a partner.

NOVEL TROTTING RACE

Readville's $50,000 Handicap Event and How It May Work.

FIFTY FEET PER SECOND.

Distances Certain Horses Would Have to Travel—Handicappers May Spoil Race—Will Mark New Era in Harness Racing.

The New England Breeders' association's $50,000 handicap dash race for trotters to be held at Readville, Mass., on Aug. 22 is exciting no end of comment and commendation, and there is much speculation on the probable outcome.

The slowest horse or horses will start on the scratch, or, in other words, will be required to trot a mile and a quarter. All other starters are placed behind the scratch horses in the order of their handicaps. An official handicapper will review the entries on Aug. 18 and determine the proper handicap for each. The handicapper will take into consideration the form of the horses as evidenced by their performances preceding the race regardless of records. For instance, if Sonoma Girl, whose record is 2:05 1/4, is constructively beaten by, say, George G., whose record is the same, the handicapper will make certain allowances for her defeat and place her at a point which is calculated to offset the advantage George G. has shown to have over her. To be more explicit, if in the judgment of the handicapper George G. is capable of beating Sonoma Girl fifty feet in a mile she will start that distance in front of him. Every second of advantage that one horse is regarded as having over another is equalized by giving the slower horses fifty feet the advantage at the start.

Figuring that one or more horses will start on the scratch (these being 2:15 horses) and that the records of the horses at starting time of the race are as at present, the following table furnishes an example of the handicaps. It is given for no other purpose, however, than to give an idea of how the handicap will work:

No. of feet back of 2:15 trotters.	Distance covered.
Major Delmar, 1:59 1/4.....	7,302
Sweet Marie, 2:02.....	7,250

Copperfield, 2:14 1/2.....	6,825
Directum Penn, 2:15 1/4.....	6,600

The essential object of handicap racing is to place all horses engaged on as nearly an equal footing as possible. As many changes of form are likely to occur between the opening of the racing season and Aug. 18, when the handicaps are to be announced, the finest possible judgment must be displayed by the handicapper. It will be his duty to keep a hawk's eye upon the work and the races of all the candidates, take the carefulest note of their public and private form and in especial look out for those that are being kept under cover. His task will be no easy one.

Naturally the horses will have to finish in front of the grand stand, and in order to do this the scratch horses must be started from the three-quarter pole. As in Europe, the start will be a standing one, and if the European system is followed a series of electric bells placed opposite each horse's station will be rung to announce the start. Unlike the European trotters, our horses are not trained to start from a standstill, and this as well as the fact that they must be started on the turn may occasion a lot of trouble.

So far as one can determine without an actual test, fifty feet per second is likely to prove a just and equitable handicap.

Can George G., Highball and Sonoma Girl give such trotters as Margaret O. and Jack Leyburn 150 feet advantage and beat them?

Again, can Margaret O., Jack Leyburn et al. give a first class 2:12 trotter 187 feet and a beating?

ANOTHER BODY FOUND

Coroner Thought It Was Remains of Two Persons

DID NOT CONVINCE SHERIFF

Latter's Opinion Prevailed After Examination of Latest Growsome Relics Unearthed on Guinness Farm—The Case of Lamphere

La Porte, Ind., May 9.—One more body has been added to the death roll of the Bella Guinness farm, making a total of ten corpses and skeletons exhumed in the yard, besides the four bodies found in the ruins of the farmhouse which was burned on April 28.

Coroner Mack at first announced that the grave opened yesterday contained one complete cadaver and several bones of a second skeleton, but later he said that what he had first believed to be additional thigh and arm bones belong to the first body recovered. The authorities predict that further gruesome discoveries will be made.

Resumption of excavations at the Guinness farm again drew an immense crowd of spectators. The rush of visitors has become so great that liverymen have established a regular omnibus line from La Porte to the farm. Hundreds of men and women made the trip by this means and added to the throngs who walked or came out in private vehicles.

The announcement by Mack that two bodies had been discovered served only to increase the rush of curiosity seekers. The scraps of humanity were found in the barnyard, which had already given up nine cadavers, and were discovered under circumstances similar to those which prevailed on Tuesday and Wednesday. About four feet below the surface the excavators encountered bits of bone and burlap and a few strokes more of the spades and hoes revealed a skull, a decomposed torso and leg and arm bones.

This corpse was by far the least preserved of any of the ten growsome relics. Besides the usual traces of lime, the body showed that a less skillful hand had dismembered it. The legs had been severed about the knee joint, but the bones were splintered. The shoulder blade was shattered in cleaving the head from the body. The skull was lying near the pelvis. Nothing but a jumbled heap of decayed flesh and crumbling bones was left to indicate the identity of the person. It was thought, however, that the corpse was that of a woman, for a pair of women's oxford shoes and the metal frame of a woman's purse were found in the grave.

When an attempt was made to place the bones in the position which they had filled during life, a divergence of opinion occurred between Mack and Sheriff Smutzer. The coroner maintained that several of the pieces belonged to another body. The sheriff refused to be convinced of this, asserting that his experience as an undertaker had taught him enough to show that but one body had been uncovered. This view finally prevailed with Mack, but it was not until last evening that he made it a matter of official record.

While the investigations were going on at the farm Prosecutor Smith, aided by Deputy Sheriff Marr, was collecting additional evidence concerning Lamphere's alleged participation in the deaths of Helzelein, Mrs. Guinness and her three children.

Lamphere yesterday sent a request to his attorney asking the latter to send to the farm of John Wheatbrook for a trunk which Lamphere left there when he was arrested after the burning of the Guinness house.

But before this word had reached the attorney the trunk had been seized by the police. It contained a number of letters written by Mrs. Guinness to Lamphere, after the latter had taken employment at the farm of Wheatbrook, seven miles north of La Porte.

Mrs. Guinness wrote to Lamphere, urging him to return to her farm and to "bring your sweetheart with you if she has money enough." The identity of the woman is a mystery, and neither does Mrs. Guinness mention the amount deemed necessary for her reception at the Guinness farm. Along with the letters were found several women's finger rings.

Arrest of Guinness Suspect

Utica, N. Y., May 9.—Detectives Niess and Donovan of Syracuse arrived here this morning on the New York Central with a woman answering the description of Mrs. Bella Guinness, the alleged Indiana murderess. She was arrested on the train and gave her name as Mrs. L. A. Heaton of Chicago.

Battle in Portuguese Guinea
Lisbon, May 9.—Official dispatches from Portuguese Guinea say that an expeditionary column was attacked by a native tribe. The onslaught was violent and the enemy was armed with rapid-fire guns. The fighting lasted for nine hours, at the end of which the natives were repulsed with heavy loss. The column had two men killed and many wounded.

West Talks About the Baseball Fans and Tells a Yarn—Other Topics.

If you meet a man on the street these days whose face is beaming with smiles and whose whole attitude betokens a light, cheery heart, take out your little memorandum book and jot him down as a dyed in the wool baseball fan, for the fans are the happiest people along the line just now, and well they may be. Nightly meetings of the different branches of the Fans Club society are held all over the country. Many suggestions are offered for the improvement of the game, merits of the different players are discussed, and many other subjects pertaining to the game are taken up by the society.

Every baseball player in the profession should be thankful for the existence of the fans, even if they are prone to deride poor plays in a manner distinctly unlikable and to continually offer suggestions as to the proper methods for pennant winning. The fans are the real simon pure enthusiasts. They worship baseball and baseball players even as a Chinese laundryman bows to Joss and chop suey, and they keep alive the traditions of the old time days when Mike So-and-so held the Swatters down to a single hit in the thirteen innings and when in the ninth, with three men on bases and two out, two strikes on him and in the deciding game of the year, Eddie Bang it sent the ball over the center field fence for a home run, winning the pennant for the Fantown Braves.

On the 13th of March Randolph journeyed down to the sleepy old New England village where the Dicksons homestead spread its comfortable wings behind sheltering elms, now leafless and sighing mournfully in the east wind. Within doors all was cheeriness and comfort, with soft lamplight and blazing fires.

When Hannah had cleared the dinner table and departed, Randolph threw himself into a huge easy chair before the fire in the dining room and looked up at the pictured face of Mistress Mowbray. He compared her face with that of another Elizabeth Mowbray, a cousin of Harry Dickson and also a descendant of the lady in the picture. It was an old story now, ten years old. He and Beth had quarreled, and she had returned his ring and gone back to her home in the south. They had never met afterward, but he had never forgotten.

Randolph placed not the slightest credence in the story of the apparition of Mistress Mowbray, but the idea of spending an uninterrupted evening before the portrait appealed to him. Unable to longer withstand the glance of the tender eyes, he buried his face in the upturned palms of his hands and gave himself up to unhappy musings.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"It is the portrait of my ancestress, Mistress Elizabeth Mowbray," remarked Dickson to his assembled guests. With one accord the four persons seated at the table in the great dining room turned and looked at the picture.

Framed in gold, it hung over the chimney piece, reaching almost to the lofty ceiling. It depicted the life size figure of a beautiful young woman in a pale gray gown in the fashion of a century past.

A large gray plumed hat rested on her dark hair, and about her shoulders was a loose rose pink cloak caught together by one slender hand, while the other held a plummy spray of white lilac.

Dickson arose, glass in hand. "To Mistress Mowbray, always young, always beautiful and"—he paused and added, with a mischievous glance at his wife—"ever silent!"

There was laughter from the men and a merry protest from Mrs. Dickson as they drank the toast and resumed their seats.

"Rather an unfair advantage to take of Mistress Mowbray," objected Mark Randolph, with a glance toward the portrait.

"I am sure that Harry's insinuation is quite unjust," said Mrs. Dickson, with spirit. "Family history relates that Elizabeth Mowbray possessed a very pretty wit!"

"I suppose there is a story connected with the fair lady?" insinuated Searles, with a smile at his host.

"There is," admitted Dickson cheerfully. "There is some tale about the ghost of Mistress Mowbray, who is said to step down from her portrait and walk about this room, leaving a fragrance of white lilac in her wake."

"Have you witnessed this apparition?" asked Randolph, with interest.

"Never," replied Dickson, helping himself to walnuts, "but I will admit," he continued, with a quizzical glance at his pretty wife, "that I have detected the odor of white lilac in this room!"

"When does the ghost walk?" asked Randolph.

"Invariably on the 13th of March," replied Dickson, leaning back in his chair and looking fixedly at the portrait. "We have never seen the apparition, but some of the servants claim to have seen it. It has so happened that we have never been at the hall on the 13th of March since our honeymoon. I recollect that we came downstairs one morning on the 14th of March and detected a strong odor of white lilac. As the conservatory was empty of plants and as there were no flowers of any sort in the house, it was rather a—"

"A shock!" interpolated Mrs. Dickson, with decision. "It was a positive shock to smell the odor of white lilac that morning, especially as old Hannah had regaled us with the story the night before."

"And so you have never waited up to see the ghost walk?" queried Randolph as he opened the door for his hostess.

"No. To tell the truth, we always run away," she laughed. "Suppose you come down on the 13th of next month and watch for Mistress Mowbray. Hannah will take care of you, and then you can report to us the result of your investigations."

"Agreed," he said readily, and as she left the room he returned to the table and remarked to the others, "Any volunteers to keep me company?"

"Not I," returned Searles quickly. "I shall be south about that time."

"And we," said Dickson lightly, "will be in Egypt!"

"I had forgotten that," said Randolph. "Nevertheless I shall accept Mrs. Dickson's invitation to run down here and make the acquaintance of fair Mistress Mowbray."

He was looking at the picture with dreamy abstraction in his eyes.

"You admire my beautiful ancestress, then, Mark?" Dickson shot a keen glance at his friend.

"Yes," was the low response. "She reminds me of another whom I once knew."

On the 13th of March Randolph journeyed down to the sleepy old New England village where the Dicksons homestead spread its comfortable wings behind sheltering elms, now leafless and sighing mournfully in the east wind. Within doors all was cheeriness and comfort, with soft lamplight and blazing fires.

When Hannah had cleared the dinner table and departed, Randolph threw himself into a huge easy chair before the fire in the dining room and looked up at the pictured face of Mistress Mowbray. He compared her face with that of another Elizabeth Mowbray, a cousin of Harry Dickson and also a descendant of the lady in the picture. It was an old story now, ten years old. He and Beth had quarreled, and she had returned his ring and gone back to her home in the south. They had never met afterward, but he had never forgotten.

Randolph placed not the slightest credence in the story of the apparition of Mistress Mowbray, but the idea of spending an uninterrupted evening before the portrait appealed to him. Unable to longer withstand the glance of the tender eyes, he buried his face in the upturned palms of his hands and gave himself up to unhappy musings.

Hour after hour was tolled by the tall clock in the hall, and when the bell chimed 12 Randolph roused himself with a slight start from the half doze in which he had indulged.

Involuntarily he gazed at the portrait, and a great wonder came into his eyes. He wheeled his chair away from the fireplace and stared. He rubbed his eyes, looked about the softly lighted room and stared again.

There was the same youthful figure, with its gray plumed hat, gray gown and rose pink cloak caught together by one slender white hand. It was all as it had been before save that now there was life in it—life in the soft brown eyes and in a certain tremulous movement of the pink bowed lips.

With white face and unbelieving eyes he watched the figure step slowly down from the frame, and he saw the movement of the purple velvet draperies that formed the background.

She stepped upon the wide mantelpiece, which was devoid of ornament, and made an imperious gesture with her hand, and as she did so he was conscious of the heavy scent of white lilac from the branch she carried.

"My good sir, pray assist me to the floor," she said in a low, vibrant voice.

As in a dream, Randolph hastily fetched a chair and supplemented its height with a hassock. With grave courtesy he extended a hand to the lady on the mantel, and as she gave him the tips of her fingers he felt the warmth of flesh and blood.

Lightly she stepped down, gathering her skirts gracefully about her dainty gray shod feet, and presently she stood beside him, looking timidly at him from beneath the shadow of her long lashes.

"My God!" he muttered, staring from the vision before him to the empty frame above the chimney piece.

With a quick movement the girl slipped the pink cloak from her shoulders and removed the gray plumed hat from her crown of dusky hair. "It is only I, Mark," she said wistfully.

"I—don't understand—yet." He passed a hand over his dazed eyes.

She stepped forward and pressed upon a carved portion of the mantel. Instantaneously there was a movement, and the painted canvas swung into place with a little click. There was Mistress Mowbray in her accustomed place above the shelf, and beside him was—Beth.

"It is one of Harry's jokes," she explained in a low, breathless tone. "He wrote me a month ago and asked me to come here and enact the apparition of Mistress Mowbray. It was a favorite pastime when we were children, for there is a secret stair behind the chimney, and the portrait is really a door which opens upon it. Harry said that a 'skeptical friend' would spend the night of the 13th here and asked me to play the part. I was reluctant to do such a thing, but Harry has been very kind to me—and I consented. They did not tell me who the 'skeptical friend' would be, and it was a surprise to me—when I looked down upon your upturned face."

She leaned against the tall back of a chair with down bent head and quivering lips.

"And you could have gone back—and away from me again—and I never would have known," he said, a vague wonder dawning in his eyes.

"But you stayed—you made yourself known to me—you came down to me! What do you mean, Beth?"

She lifted her head slowly and looked at him through misty, joyous eyes, and he understood.

Hannah's voice broke crisply upon the blissful silence. "A cablegram, Mr. Randolph!"

Mark tore open the yellow envelope. "It is from Harry," he said, gathering his love into his arms, "and he says, 'Bless you, my children!'"

He worked for it.

Some years ago there lived in Arkansas a man named Reynolds, who owned a narrow gauge railroad from Malvern Junction to Hot Springs. It was partly due to the fact that he had put by a neat little fortune and partly to his habit of wearing an enormous diamond shirt stud that he had won the nickname of "Diamond Joe."

It was Diamond Joe's boast that no one had ever stolen a ride on his little twenty-five mile road, and not content with telling this to his friends he offered a reward of $100 and a suit of clothes to the man who could do it.

One clear moonlight night a man came into his office, dripping from head to foot.

"Is this Mr. Reynolds?" he asked.

"Yes," replied the owner of the narrow gauge, involuntarily glancing out to see if it was raining.

"Well, I've come for that suit of clothes and the $100. I've beat my way on your road, Mr. Reynolds, in the boiler tank of the engine. It was hard work keepin' my head above water, but I did it—and I guess I earned the prize."—New York Times.

The Ale Stake.
With the opening up of England by the Romans hostilities sprang up for the convenience of travelers. As time went on the selling of liquor became so lucrative that wherever the traveler broke his journey his thirst might be quenched. This naturally produced competition among the many tavern owners, especially in the large towns, who vied with one another as to the means of attracting the thirsty. It was in these circumstances that the "ale stake," or pole, to which was attached a furze bush, first came into prominence. In 1375 these signs became so great a nuisance that a law was passed to the effect that "ale stakes" projecting more than seven feet over the king's highway were prohibited, a fact which gave rise to the proverb that "good wine needs no bush." There are very few of the old signs in existence nowadays.—London Graphic.

Dr. N. S. Hunting is having a house built on one of his lots on Whitney road, the one next to Henry L. Kincaide's, near the courts of the Quincy Tennis club.

Th John Hancock and Lincoln school teams met again yesterday in a closely contested game, but the Hancock proved to be the winners, beating the Lincoln team by a score of nine to eight. The game was played in the John Hancock school yard.

Erastus Osgood, impersonator, assisted by the Y. M. C. A. Mandolin, Banjo and Guitar club, have been engaged to furnish entertainment at a reunion of the Pine Tree State club to be held in Colonial hall next week. On Friday evening, May 15, Mr. Osgood and his band of musicians are to give a concert in Brintree under the auspices of the First church.

The second annual social of St. Chrysostom's Branch of the G. F. S. is to be held in Brasee hall, next Wednesday evening, 8 until 12. The affair last year was a great success and those who attended are pleasantly anticipating this one. Miss Beatrice Butler of Atlantic is chairman of the committee in charge. The matrons are Mrs. A. Edwin Clattenburg, Mrs. Howard D. Fowler and Miss Nichols.

The passing away of Richard F. Forrest on Monday at his home on Hancock street was so sudden as to greatly shock his family and friends. He had been receiving medical aid for several weeks for bronchial trouble, and although the family physician was called Sunday evening, his family were utterly unprepared for his death. Mr. Forrest was a man whom everybody honored and respected, and he will be greatly missed. His love and devotion to his brother James during his long illness, and who died last January, is well known. His mother, sisters and brother have the keenest and heartfelt sympathy of a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Coursing blood and the call of the outdoor world! Only the very brightest of fiction can now hold the interest—such a story, for instance, as the complete novel in the May Lippincott's: "The Pirate of Alastair." Rupert Sargent Holland, the author, will be pleasantly remembered as the writer of that clever book, "The Count at Harvard." He has invested his new tale with a healthful outdoor atmosphere. Lippincott's always excels in the matter of short stories, and this month is no exception to the rule. There are a number of charming poems and "Walnuts and Wines," devoted to original jokes, jingles, and anecdotes. The May Lippincott's should be a "winner."

Dramatics at Atlantic.

"The Elopement of Ellen" was the title of a pleasing play given at Atlantic last evening by the Atlantic Athletic Association. The several characters in the play were portrayed by Henry Swanson, Cliff Hill, David Moffat, Alan Arthur, Miss Maud Read, Miss Ardella Barber and Miss Gertrude Hill. In addition to the play the following well known artists contributed: Miss Julia Barber, contralto; Miss Helen Green, violinist; Miss Maud Alletzhauer, cellist, and Miss Bertha Jenness, pianist.

Tilden Wins

A very close game in the billiard tournament at the Granite City club was played yesterday between President Henry F. Tilden and George W. Jones. The two kept fairly close together until near the end when the score stood Jones 97 and Tilden 91. It was Jones' shot and with but three to go it looked easy for him. He missed, however, and Tilden came in and making a run of nine and won the game amid great applause by the spectators.

Newsy Budget
From Shipyard

The board of directors of the Associated Association of employees of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company met at noon yesterday and organized for the year beginning May 4. J. J. Nolan, foreman of the hull engineering department, was elected president and W. R. Haysom, foreman of the copper shop, vice president. At the annual election last month, J. F. Gallagher, foreman of the sheet iron department, and Leon Chappell, foreman of the brass foundry, were elected to the board of directors, Messrs. Hollywood and Gibb retiring.

The association was organized May 1, 1903, and enters upon its sixth year in a flourishing condition. It has disbursed over $48,000.00 in death and accident benefits to employees of the company, furnishes ambulance service to injured members, has installed an excellent X-ray machine in the company's hospital, furnishes the ice supply each year for the shipyard during the summer season, besides having returned to members substantial dividends in the form of abated assessment. Over 3100 of its members have been paid benefits. J. A. Sedgwick is secretary-treasurer of the association and Dr. H. W. Gross the surgeon.

The committee of the House of Representatives at Washington investigating the Electric Boat Company will insist that Representative Lilley produce all documents demanded by Monday.

Archie Yule, a former mail boy at the shipyard, is now working in the mold loft.

The navy department has issued an order transferring Lt. Comdr. M. M. Taylor, from the Wabash, Boston, to duty fitting out the U. S. S. Salem, now under construction at the shipyard, and as executive officer when commissioned.

The April export figures for the port of Boston show the enormous decrease of 1,000,945 bushels of grain sent to Europe from Boston last month, compared with April of 1907. During April of this year the total grain shipments aggregated 621,605 bushels. Last year the figures were 1,628,550. The first four months of this year show exports of 3,549,621 bushels compared with 5,759,521 for the same period a year ago. This is a loss of 2,218,900 bushels.

The new British armored turbine cruiser Indomitable has beaten all warship records, making 28 knots on the measured mile on the Clyde, and keeping up 26 1-4 knots under continuous steaming.

Niles-Bement Pond Co., and the Pratt & Whitney Co., manufacturers of shipyard machinery, both give notice of a quarterly dividend of one and one-half per cent. preferred, May 15.

Finnish Service at Bethany Church.

The service at Bethany church Sunday evening will be of great interest. The Finns who have established a strong church in West Quincy, and who are doing an exceptionally fine work among the hundreds of their countrymen in the city, will join with the Bethany church in a union service. The Finnish choir will furnish the music and sing some of the popular church hymns of their native land. Rev. J. E. Lillback, pastor of the church, will give an illustrated lecture on Finland. These lantern photographs will show that Finland is one of the finest scenery in the world, and is in no wise so destitute of the great institutions which make for a nation's greatness. Next year this country will celebrate its freedom from Sweden and its unfortunate alliance with Russia. The public is cordially invited to this service.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and trying the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O. CAPT. GEORGE EDGUMBE.

The Free Press of Burlington, Vt., speaks very highly of Capt. George Edgumbe, who died recently at Wollaston.

Mr. Edgumbe was born in Burlington August 3, 1833, the son of George and Grace Edgumbe. He resided at Burlington until a young man, when he went to New York city for a few years. He then went to Nashua, N. H., and during his residence there he represented the city in the State Legislature. He served in the 10th New Hampshire volunteers in the War of the Rebellion, enlisting from Nashua. In 1872 he returned to Burlington and was in the employ of the late E. W. Chase for some years, after which he went to Montpelier, and was engaged in the shoe business for some time. Going from there to Boston, he engaged as traveling salesman and was employed as such for some 25 years by Hathaway, Soule & Harrington, traveling through the West.

Mr. Edgumbe was a man of excellent character and of a very genial disposition making many friends. He was very domestic in his tastes and fond of his home. In politics he was a democrat. He was a Mason, being a member of Washington lodge, Burlington chapter and council, and of Burlington commandery, K. T., and of Apollo Temple of the Mystic Shrine of Boston. He had many friends in this vicinity who will be pained to hear of his death, and who will sympathize with his relatives in their bereavement.

Mr. Edgumbe is survived by a wife, two sisters, Mrs. Mary M. Hendee of Pittsford, and Miss Lucia Edgumbe of Burlington and a niece, Mrs. G. Frank Hendee of Pittsford. The interment was at Nashua, N. H.

EASTERN STEAMSHIP TRAFFIC.

The early days of May are here and summer so close at hand that the average individual is already planning for either his annual vacation or at least a day's outing. Realizing this the Eastern Steamship Company is fully prepared to accommodate the increasing traffic which falls to every arm of the service. Its varied ocean excursions, embracing all the points on the Maine coast, and St. John, New Brunswick as well, with its luxuriously appointed steamers are calculated to fulfill every requirement.

Granting that one has time for just a few days' rest and recreation, no greater treat can well be offered than that afforded every Monday on the International Division, by a trip on the "Calvin Austin" from Boston to Portland. This perfectly appointed swift, sailing "White Flyer" leaves Union wharf every Monday at 9 A. M. for St. John, arriving in Portland, (Franklin wharf), at 4 P. M. Once there, if you wish you may, without leaving the wharf, step on board the boat on the Portland Division and secure your passage or state-room for the return trip to Boston, the boat leaving the same evening at 7 and arriving the following morning at about 5 o'clock.

To those who know, and their number is fast increasing, these day trips to Portland just now are the most highly appreciated of all the Eastern Steamship excursions, and the patronage is greater this season than ever before. The regular week day night trips between Boston and Portland, with sailings from either port are also very popular. The boat from Boston on this Portland arm of the service now leaves Union Wharf instead of India Wharf as formerly, and the sailing time is 7 P. M.

On the International Division the "Calvin Austin" makes two trips a week between Boston and St. John, one on Monday and the other on Friday, but does not stop at Portland on Friday's trip. The Bangor Division affords four sailings a week, Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, from Foster's Wharf at 5 P. M.; and the Kennebec Division for Bath and all the Kennebec landings has sailings from Union wharf every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 6 P. M.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

What has every indication of being one of the best all-round vaudeville bills ever presented at Keith's is the program arranged for next week. Among the names prominent on the list are those of Rock and Fulton, Harry Gilfoil, Sidney Drew and company, Cameron and Planagan, The Finneys, Lew Hawkins, and the Toni Jack Trio. William Rock and Maude Fulton present a genuine vaudeville act in the best sense of the term. They are both wonderful dancers, while Miss Fulton is a most charming singer of the soubrette type. Their act has been one of the great hits of the present season in New York.

Tremont Theatre.

"The Man of the Hour" is now in its fifth month of remarkable prosperity at the Tremont theatre, which means, of course, widespread popularity. This week it will have reached a total attendance of nearly 200,000 persons in Boston, and a record of about 155 performances. The plot of "The Man of the Hour" tells a stirring story involving love and politics. Alwyn Bennett, a young man of wealth and family, is in love with Dallas Wainwright, the niece of a man at the head of most of the big corporations of his community. She refuses to consider Bennett's suit unless he will abandon the idle life into which his fortune has led him. Bennett is elected mayor of a large city, and the strong scenes of the play arise when he defies the authority of the political boss and attempts to be independent. A corrupt measure of great value to Wainwright has passed the Council and is up to the Mayor for approval. Horrigan commands, and Wainwright pleads for his signature. Torn by a conflicting impulse of his awakened ambition, his love and his conscience, the young Mayor finally votes the bill without regard to the cost. The complications arising from the love affair and the varied experiences of municipal political life give the play its great hold on the auditors.

Boston Theatre.

Few successes of the season at the Boston theatre have been more pronounced than that which has attended the production of David Belasco's "Girl of the Golden West." It was a daring thing to do to make a contract for this production at this time of the year and at the almost prohibitive terms demanded in the shape of royalty. However Manager Morrison's judgment in the matter of the value of plays has again been vindicated, for the sale of seats has been so excessive that a second week for this production has been determined upon. The return of Eleanor Gordon to her duties in the company, after her short rest, has added a strong interest to the performances this week as her impersonation of "The Girl" marks the highest point of her career at the Boston theatre. She identifies herself with the character so completely that she completes the realism of her scenes most effectively and commands the constant interest of her audience.

Hollis Street Theatre.

"The Lion and the Mouse," the most notable success in comedy-drama that has appeared within a decade, will be the attraction at the Hollis Street theatre beginning Monday, May 11th. When Charles Klein selected the money question and the oppression set in motion by the big financial powers of the day as the basis of his play he chose a theme that had not hitherto been pressed into service by the playwright, and the idea was developed along absolutely original lines. He not only treated this sociological problem in a forceful, intelligent and convincing manner, but he also produced a play of compelling human interest, brisk in action, replete in dramatic incident and admirable in character portraiture. Perceiving the splendid possibilities of a drama centering about a "lion" of finance, Mr. Klein proceeded to picture him as we all know him—his brusqueness, his power, his little vanities and his shrewd common sense; against him he has arrayed a fine type of American womanhood justly incensed at the humiliation placed upon her father by this money king and his coterie of corrupt politicians. With fine ingenuity the author has introduced a love story between the girl and the son of her enemy, and this gives rise to some of the most effective and convincing dramatic situations that have been seen on the stage in many years.

C.

Being of a studious disposition he is a self-made young man and has many friends who will greatly miss him. They all wish him success.

News Agent Burned Out

Again about 9:30 Sunday evening
sparks from a locomotive set fire to one of the houses on Franklin place owned by Charles H. Spear causing an alarm from Box 37. It was promptly extinguished with little loss.
The alarm from Box 38 at 10:15
Sunday night was for a lively blaze
in the news and variety store of William J. Rieple on Liberty street near the Main block. The fire, which probably started from a cigar
or cigarette stub, had made good headway when discovered, and was blazing fiercely when the department arrived. Water was soon being thrown into the building, and had a telling effect for the fire was soon
under control. The stock of the store, however, had been practically ruined by fire, smoke and water, entailing a loss estimated by Chief Williams to be $300. The loss on the building he estimates at $500 or a total of $800.

Division 5 and 18 Now United

Two divisions of the A. O. H., namely 5 and 18, were amalgamated on Saturday evening at Hibernian
hall, Franklin street, the occasion
calling out a large attendance of members of the order.

Division 5 met in the upper hall and Division 18 in the lower hall. As soon as routine work was completed,
Division 18 with its 134 members
marched to the upper hall and surrendered its charter to County President J. E. Cox.

Then came the conferring of degrees.
The four degrees were conferred upon a large class by the well known degree team of Randolph.

During the exercises Irish songs were sung under the direction of John A. Hodge, chorister, assisted by a double male quartette.

The officers of the Randolph degree team were:
Patrician, Edward Long.
Bard, Michael P. Sullivan.
Oracle, Joseph P. Kellier.
Scribe, Joseph H. Foster.
Grand Guard, James E. Hodge.
Guards, M. M. O'Sullivan, Timothy
O'Leary, J. B. Denen, Edward Mean-
ey, D. T. McGagan, J. H. Meaney, E.
P. McMahon and F. E. Mahoney.

Many members of the order from other divisions in the State were present, also the following invited guests: Mayor William T. Shea and Capt. John H. Dillon, Suffolk county president. The degree team from Randolph was highly complimented on its work.

After the exercises a banquet was served, at which there were addresses by Mayor Shea, County President
Cox, Capt. Dillon, and President
Michael Barrett of the new division
5. This is now one of the largest divisions in the state.

The plans of Radcliffe college

MONEY FOR K COMPANY

Spanish War
Volunteers
To Receive
$62 Each

Commencing today the payment of an amount approaching $200,000 to soldiers of Massachusetts who served in the Spanish war will be commenced.

Among the regiments to be benefited is the Fifth, which included
many Quincy boys.

This regiment will be paid on a basis of $62 each. Of the other regiments the Ninth will receive $18
each, the Eighth $20 each, the Sixth $22 each, and the Second $16 each.

CAPT. H. L. KINCAIDE.

The Ninth will be the first to be paid and about a week will be required for each regiment.

The Fifth regiment was one of the first to volunteer and the companies rested in their armories for days.

K Company of the Fifth, was at that time located at Braintree, and a very large portion of its members were Quincy boys. Probably a goodly number of the boys to receive $62
each are now in Quincy, and can find ready use for the money.

The Fifth regiment served two weeks as coast guard at Gloucester.
It then went to Camp Mead, Pa., afterward to Greenville, S. C. Several times it was ordered to Cuba, but in each instance the order was countermanded. After being nine months in the service the regiment was ordered discharged.

According to Lieut. Col. Henry L.
Kincaide, who was the first captain of Co. K, fully 80 per cent of that company will receive a benefit although not all will come in for the full $62.

In April, 1898, the regiment offered its services for duty at any place the government desired to send it for service. All those who signed the rolls at that time are entitled to and will receive the full $62. It was some time after the regiment volunteered its services before it was mustered into the regular army at South Framingham.

The $62 is the accrued regular army pay from the time the regiment volunteered its services until it was

After the company volunteered its services it continued to take in recruits and it is these men who will receive less than the maximum amount. Their pay will be pro-rata, dating from their enlistment to the actual mustering in to the regular army.

The regiment left Boston for Framingham June 30, where it remained in camp until Sept. 11, when it went to Camp Meade. It was the only regiment to leave the state with its companies recruited to the full army strength of 106 officers and men. Its long stay at Framingham made it perfect in drill and discipline.

The company returned to Quincy,
April 3, 1899, and their home coming was made a matter of history by a royal welcome extended to them by the citizens of Quincy and a grand parade held that day.

there was a goodly number at our popular resort on Sunday. There were many new arrivals Saturday

The boat that has been running between Boston and Houghs Neck for the past four years will be discontinued this summer. The management states that the inability to make

Adirondack Reforestation.

Many men will get employment by the reforesting of the Adirondack preserve. The State has purchased from Germany 950,000 seedling trees.
They include 450,000 two, and 500,000
three years old. The two-year-old seedling trees have been put in a new nursery to remain one year, when they will be planted. The 500,000 three-year-olds, with 600,000 that the State already had in its nurseries, are now being planted in the forests, making a total this year of 1,100,000 seedling trees to be planted, twice as many as have been planted before in this State in any one year. At present there are about forty men employed in the nursery and at least 100 in the planting fields in the forests. With so much additional planting to be done this force will have to be increased materially.

A MECCA FOR CURIOUS

Vast Crowds Flock to the Farm
of Alleged Murderess

PICNIC PARTIES ON LAWN

Lemonade Stands, Lunch Carts and Postal Card Venders Strongly In Evidence--Investigation For More
Victims of Mrs. Guinness Is Halted

La Porte, Ind., May 11.—All roads in La Porte county yesterday led to the farm of Mrs. Belle Guinness, alleged murderer of at least ten persons, whose bodies have been unearthed in the barnyard, and now thought to have been burned to death with her three children
in a fire that destroyed her farmhouse on April 28. Upwards of 15,000 sightseers visited the place before sunset of the first Sabbath to pass since the news of the mystery. Nearly every able-bodied resident of La Porte went to the farm, and railroads and trolley lines brought about 4000 non-residents to the city.

Mayor Darrow found it necessary to issue stringent orders that the Sunday closing law be strictly enforced. Hotels and restaurants were overrun with patrons. Every conveyance in La Porte was pressed into service in an attempt to provide transportation to the farm, which is a mile north of La Porte.

Hundreds, however, were forced to walk. Nearby villages reached by electric railways were almost deserted while citizens hastened to La Porte to satisfy their curiosity. Strangers had no difficulty in finding their way to the death farm. The constant stream of carriages, cabs, omnibuses, automobiles, motor cycles, bicycles and farm wagons afforded unmistakable directions to those compelled to walk.

There was nothing in the attitude of the crowd at the farm to indicate that they were visiting a place where gres-some tragedies had taken place. Jokes and laughter were heard on every side
and exclamations of joy from successful relic hunters were numerous. Family picnic parties grouped themselves on the sloping lawn under the fine pines and cedars which dot the dooryard, or found resting places beneath the flowering apple and plum trees of the orchard. Children were numerous, and many groups had a baby
cab as a nucleus.

Along the roadside were several lemonade stands and lunch wagons.
At the gates were vendors of souvenir postal cards, and those bearing a group picture of Mrs. Guinness and the three little ones who met death with her found ready sale. During the rush to La Porte in the afternoon several farm horses, frightened by automobiles, started to run away. A buggy was upset and a woman suffered a broken arm. Pickpockets did a thriving business while the throng waited for homeward-bound trains. One saloonkeeper was arrested for opening his bar on Sunday.

Investigation of the farm for more bodies halted yesterday. The sheriff and other officers were forced to become spectators also. Several visitors, however, were seeking information concerning missing friends or relatives,
and some further information regarding the positive identity of the victims of the farm resulted from their inquiries.

The most definite information came from Olaf Lindboe of Chicago. He said that his brother, Thomas, worked for Mrs. Guinness three years ago and that the last letter from Thomas said that Thomas intended to marry Mrs.
Guinness. Olaf wrote to Mrs. Guinness later and she replied that Thomas had gone to St. Louis and that she had had no word from him. Olaf Lindboe has not heard of Thomas since. He viewed the unidentified corpses, but was unable to find any likeness to his brother in the bundles of bones and flesh.

Sheriff Smutzer will continue his investigations at the farm today. The first object of search will be the heaps of ashes and other refuse in the cellar of the ruined house. The ashes and cinders are to be carefully sifted and then sluiced by a miner to discover the gold fillings which are said to have been in Mrs. Guinness' teeth. The floor of the cellar may also be dug up and additional excavations may be made in the yard, where ten cadavers have been unearthed.

The Panama Conference

Panama, May 11.—Secretary Taft has concluded conferences covering numerous topics relating to the treaties which it is desired to negotiate between Colombia, the United States and Panama. It is stated that a tentative accord has been reached upon important points
and that decision with reference to the others only awaits special inquiries now in progress. The result of the conferences, it is announced, is satisfactory to all parties concerned.

Disaster Narrowly Averted

Washington, Pa., May 11.—The passing of a shifting engine which the
would-be trainwreckers had not counted upon undoubtedly averted a serious disaster to a flyer from St. Louis to Pittsburgh. An obstruction was placed on the tracks in such manner, experienced railroad men say, that nothing could have saved the fast train had it not been discovered. The switching engine ran into the obstruction and was ditched.

MORAN LEAVES FIELD OPEN

Bay State Democrats Looking For a Candidate For Governor

Boston, May 11.—The Post says:
Exit John B. Moran as a Democratic candidate for governor! Enter whom?
The question can be answered by saying that at present there is no Democrat of standing in the party who has even admitted that if the nomination
was thrust upon him he would accept it.
The announcement in The Post yesterday that District Attorney Moran
had made up his mind because of ill-health that he would not be a candidate relieved the situation somewhat. The conservatives were perfectly willing that Moran should have the Democratic gubernatorial nomination if he wanted it, but now that he is out, if the party is in any kind of shape, there will probably be plenty of material to draw from.

Now that Moran has said that he would be in no condition to go to the Denver convention as a delegate-at-large, one of the alternates will be chosen to take his place.

Among those who are freely mentioned as possible candidates for the governorship are ex-Congressman Thayer of Worcester, Henry M. Whitney of Boston, Senator Vahey of Boston, Charles S. Hamlin of Boston, John W. Cummings of Fall River and Frederick J. Stimson of Dedham.

Independence Leaguers U-pledged

Boston, May 11.—The entire Massachusetts delegation of the Independence League to the national convention
at Chicago was chosen at the state convention of the party on a platform which leaves the delegates unpledged or uninstructed as to presidential candidates. The platform adopted denounced both Republican and Democratic parties and dealt largely with the transportation question in New England and a severe criticism of the New York, New Haven and Hartford
railroad, especially in regard to the proposed merger of the Boston and Maine railroad.

Nine Men Badly Hurt

Boston, May 11.—Nine men employed in making the connecting link between the old and new elevated structures at the corner of Washington and Castle streets fell eighteen feet with the breaking of the staging
on which they were working and all were badly injured, while one of the men, Joseph McPhee, may die. Eight of the men were taken to the city hospital. The street below was free from passers at the time, so that only the workmen were injured.

Tragedy In Hospital For Insane

Providence, May 11.—Alfonso W.
Davis, aged 45, slashed his throat with a piece of window glass at the Butler hospital for the insane and died two hours later. Davis was taken to the hospital Sunday—morning from his home in Stonington, Conn. In the afternoon he became rebellious, and while an attendant was struggling with him
in an effort to calm him, he picked up a piece of glass from a window that had been shattered by him and made a deep gash in his throat.

Punished For Violating Injunction

Lewiston, Me., May 10.—Fred Tucker of Rumford Falls was sentenced in the supreme court to seventy-five days
at hard labor in the county jail for violating an injunction restraining him from allowing a building which he owns to be used as a resort where in toxicating liquors are dispensed. It is alleged, illegally. It is the first time the courts in Maine have sentenced a person for violating an injunction of this kind.

Quick Verdict and Sentence

Calais, Me., May 11.—Nicholas Wallace, a farmhand, was convicted for the murder of Andrew Higgins, a Balley-ville farmer, aged 70, and was promptly sentenced to life imprisonment in the state prison. The jury reported a verdict thirty-five minutes after retiring and sentence was imposed within five minutes afterward. The motive for the crime was declared to have been robbery.

A Reward For Mollory

Burlington, Vt., May 11.—Private Thomas Mollory of troop D cavalry,
who was exonerated for shooting Private Patrick Rynne, a convict, while attempting to make his escape from Fort Ethan Allen, has been made a lance sergeant. This position is next to sergeant, and he will be made a sergeant when there is a vacancy.

Derrick Boom Broke

Bridgeport, Conn., May 11.—By the breaking of a derrick boom at the new Steeplechase island bridge, Dominick Erzela was instantly killed. Michael Forto was perhaps fatally injured and Charles Brown is suffering from less serious wounds.

Hanged Himself In Attic

Boston, May 11.—Edmund A. Higgins, aged 35, committed suicide by hanging with a rope fastened to a skylight in the attic of his mother's home here. His mother could ascribe no cause for the act.

Two Men Shot to Death

Watertown, N. Y., May 11.—The crash of a charge of buckshot through a window upon a party of card-players killed Jerry Apple in his little cabin on Apple's island, in Black lake. Albert Crowder fled from the cabin and he was shot dead in his tracks. Mrs.
Royal Dunning, Apple's daughter, and another of the card-players fled in another direction and escaped in spite of several charges aimed at them. Royal Dunning has been arrested and charged with murder. Dunning and his wife had quarreled.

CAUGHT UNPREPARED

Decision Against the New Haven
Road Was Unexpected

NO LOOPHOLE OF ESCAPE

Complication Resulting From Conflict
In Jurisdiction Between States Presents a Serious Aspect—Sixteen Trolley Roads Involved In Finding

New Haven, May 11.—The text of the decision of the five judges of the Massachusetts supreme court on the matter of the holdings of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company in the Massachusetts trolley roads excited considerable surprise among the railroad officials here, owing to the radical character of the finding.

It had been at first supposed that the Springfield street railway system is excepted from the finding and that this, and possibly some other features of the opinion, might leave a loophole of escape for the New Haven company.

This proves to be incorrect, and the text of the opinion, as interpreted here in railroad circles, indicates that it applies to all the sixteen trolley roads in Massachusetts now held indirectly by the New York, New Haven and Hartford company. The terms of the finding apparently apply also to the Boston and Maine under the section of the Massachusetts railroad law which prohibits a railroad corporation from holding the stock of any other railroad corporation.

That policy, apparently, however, lies among three expedients—first, an appeal to the federal tribunals, which would tie the case up probably for two years or more; secondly, some kind of an all-round agreement with the Massachusetts authorities through the legislature; or, finally, new legislation in Connecticut of a nature to strengthen the position of the company. The second of these two plans now seems the most probable in deference to the sentiment of Massachusetts. It is, however, by no means sure.

From the legal viewpoint as seen by lawyers here, whether they are connected with the railroad company or not, the most serious aspect of the case is the complication which apparently results from the conflict of jurisdiction between Massachusetts and Connecticut, the company being incorporated in both states, which differ decidedly in their lines of railroad policy. Unless some compromise is reached in Massachusetts or the question of constitutionality is decided by the United States supreme court, it is feared that the divergent questions raised under the double incorporation in two states may lead to serious complications.

Of the positive forms of settlement the one which is at once most favored and regarded as the most likely is that which was proposed by the Massachusetts commission on commerce and industry of leaving the trolley roads in possession of the New Haven company, with state representation in the control, under an act to be drawn up by the Massachusetts board of railroad commissioners. The whole situation, however, is regarded in railroad circles here as complicated, serious and in some respects critical.

May Declare For Roosevelt

San Francisco, May 11.—An unusual situation will present itself when the Republican state convention meets at Sacramento next Thursday. Republican voters of California, by unofficial ballot at the primaries last week for the selection of delegates to the state convention, declared their preference for Roosevelt over other candidates, and it may be that the Sacramento convention will carry out the wishes of the voters and instruct for Roosevelt.

Claims of Mulai Hafid

Berlin, May 11.—Two delegates from Mulai Hafid, with a petition that he be recognized as the Sultan of Morocco, have arrived here. They state that according to the Moroccan law whoever is master of the two chief cities, Fez and Morocco, is Sultan of Morocco. Nobody in these two cities, they say, refuses to recognize Mulai Hafid as sultan.

President's Outing Ended

Washington, May 11.—President Roosevelt, Mrs. Roosevelt and John Burroughs, who have been spending several days at Pine Knot, Mrs. Roosevelt's country place, near Charlottesville, Va., returned to Washington last night. The president expressed himself as greatly pleased with his outing. He appeared to be refreshed by his stay at Pine Knot.

Prison in Grip of Fatal Disease
Kiev, May 11.—A frightful epidemic of exanthematic typhoid is raging in the city prison. More than 200 deaths so far have occurred and practically all of the inmates are infected. The authorities are withholding details.

A Mysterious Tragedy

Philadelphia, May 11.—Mystery surrounds the finding of the body of a well-dressed woman on a clay bank in the extreme southwestern section of the city. The body was that of a rather pretty woman, apparently about 35 years of age. The police could find no footprints made by a woman that would show how the unknown made her way over the muddy ground. They did find prints of a man's feet and suspicion that the woman may have been carried to the place was strengthened by the fact that the woman lay carefully covered by the coat belonging to the woman's suit of black cloth.

Socialists In Convention

Chicago, May 11.—With a whirlwind of oratory, delegates yesterday opened the national convention of the Socialist party. The first session developed indications of a clash between city Socialists and farm Socialists. The issue is whether the Socialist party shall make a special appeal to farmers to join the Socialist party. When the convention concluded its day's work the question was still under discussion. Eugene V.
Debs and William D. Haywood seemingly are the leading aspirants for the presidential nomination.

As Fairbanks Would Have It

Chicago, May 11.—Vice President Fairbanks was the guest of honor at the dedication of St. Stanislaus Polish Roman Catholic parochial school, the largest institution of its kind in the United States. In his address he said that he would rather see the people spend their money in building great schools and churches than to see them
spend it in unduly expanding armies and navies.

Fatal Tenement House Fire

New York, May 11.—In a tenement house fire Annie Bates, 19 years old, a domestic, was suffocated and three persons were injured. The girl became confused in the thick smoke which filled the halls. The prompt work of a patrolman in assisting tenants from the tenement saved many lives. Most of the occupants escaped in their nightclothes.

Baby Takes Military Oath

Madrid, May 11.—Prince Alfonso of the Asturias, the infant son of King Alfonso, who was born May 10, 1907, was enrolled in the Spanish army at the royal chapel yesterday. The little prince was attired in the uniform of a private of "the king's own regiment"
and was carried by the queen to the altar, where the military oath was administered.

Journalist Kills Himself

Hot Springs, Ark., May 11.—Charles Matthias, a journalist of prominence
and for a number of years editorial writer on the Chicago Chronicle and recently on the staff of the Chicago American, committed suicide at a local hotel by shooting. Matthias had been suffering from nervous troubles for years and was often despondent.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

During the month of April there were 114 vessels of all kinds built in the United States, with an aggregate tonnage of 63,176 tons gross. Among the number is the steamer Commonwealth, of 5980 tons gross, that was built for the Boston Merchants line.
The shipbuilding figures have just been made public by the Bureau of Navigation in its monthly report. In the list are many large steam vessels built of steel. Of such there are eight, each of which has a tonnage of 4500 and over. The largest is the Harry A. Berwind of 6634, built at Ecorse, Mich.

The committee on merchant marine and fisheries of the House of Representatives at Washington has recommended the passage of a bill exempting from the necessity of keeping passenger lists, all domestic vessels plying between terminal ports not more than 300 miles distant each from the other. The purpose is to relieve excursion steamers and passenger vessels of the Hudson river and Fall River lines class from recording and preserving the names of passengers.
If the bill is enacted the masters of such vessels will be required to merely keep account of the number of passengers carried on each trip.

Lieut. L. S. Cox, Jr., has been transferred by the Navy department from the Hancock, New York, to the Wabash, Boston, to duty in connection with preparing for service the crew for the new scout cruiser Salem.
The House of Representatives has passed the omnibus bill to authorize additional aids to navigation in the lighthouse establishments. The bill appropriates $759,650, and provides various light stations, buoys, tenders, etc., in various parts of the country.
The bill authorizes an allowance of one ration a day for each keeper, on the basis of 30 cents per ration, and the committee reporting the bill estimates that this will mean an additional outlay by the government of $175,200 annually.

Expedition Against Mohmands

Calcutta, May 11.—Advices from Peshawar state that the Mohmand tribesmen are still giving the British authorities considerable trouble. Major General Willcocks, with two brigades of British and Indian forces, has been ordered to proceed with punitive measures and will take the field immediately against the Mohmands.

Cleveland Gaining Strength

STRUCK BY BIG WAVE

Naptha Launch, With Nine Persons Aboard, Keel Over

FIVE ITALIANS ARE DROWNED

Two of Them Had Their Savings on

Their Persons, and Intended to Return to Italy in a Few Days—Small Chance of Bodies Being Recovered

Newburyport, Mass., May 11.—

Caught by a big wave as they were crossing the bar a mile and a half off Plum island, at the mouth of the Merrimack river, nine men who were on a pleasure cruise in a naphtha launch owned by George E. Bailey of this city were capsized and five of the men were drowned and their bodies swept out to sea by the ebb tide, while Captain Bailey and three others were picked up by passing boats. The men drowned are: Bernard O. Parisso, aged 43; Pietro Milone, 36; Ricco Schena, 19; Joseph Colombo, 25, and George Plumbis, 25. The rescued were: George E. Bailey, aged 43; William Bailey, his son, 18; Frank Teague, 18, and Thomas Keenan, aged 35.

The five men who were drowned were Italians. Parisso and Milone have families in Italy and were intending to go home in a few days. Parisso had $500 with him and Milone had $100 on his person, all in cash, which was lost with the men.

Keenan, who was rescued, was in a serious condition and had to be worked over for a long time before being brought to.

The men were all employed in the Ellis shoe shops in this city, eight of them being under Bailey, who is foreman of the lasting department in the shops. The four who were rescued are Americans.

The men assisted Bailey in launching his boat for the season Saturday night and were promised a cruise yesterday by the owner as appreciation for their help. The men went out at noon. It was ebb tide and there was a strong east wind which kicked up a choppy sea off the bar, which they successfully negotiated on the outward trip. The men were out but a short time when they turned to come in.

The launch had reached the north shoal when a big wave struck the launch and keeled her over. All the men were thrown into the water. The Italians were unable to save themselves, though two of them clung for a time to Keenan. Keenan tried to rescue the men, but was unsuccessful, and became so exhausted he could barely cling to the boat himself. Bailey and the three others clung to the boat, however, and in a few minutes were picked up by Andrew Gyan in one boat and Jack Wood and Walter Bradley in another.

The lifesavers at Plum island had seen the upset and came out in the surfboat and immediately took the men to the island, where restoratives were applied. All but Keenan rallied quickly. Keenan, after being revived, was put to bed.

The launch was swept swiftly out to sea and was picked up later and towed to Rockport. There is little chance that the bodies of the men drowned will be recovered. They went down in about sixty feet of water, and as there was a strong ebb tide they were probably carried far out to sea and will not drift ashore.

Lack of Spiritual Intensity

Baltimore, May 11.—The feature of Sunday at the quadrennial general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church was a big temperance meeting at the Lyric at which Governor Hanly of Indiana was the principal speaker. The governor said that what the Methodists of the present day need is intensity; that they are not as spiritual as in years gone by. He declared that had they the spiritual intensity that marked the early days of the church the whole country would become converted in less than a year.

Suicide While Bride-to-Be Waited

New York, May 11.—Isaac Williams, formerly a cotton broker but more recently connected with a bonding company, committed suicide by shooting in his home here. Williams, who was 31 years old, killed himself a few hours before he was to be married. His bride-to-be learned of his death only half an hour before the time set for the wedding. Williams is said to have sustained losses in the financial stringency last fall.

Unlucky Season For Fishermen

St. Johns, May 11.—The burning of schooner Gasconne of Fecamp makes a total of ten vessels lost from the French fishing fleet since the beginning of the present season. Tempests were responsible for the loss of the others. All were abandoned and their crews, who found refuge on other vessels, have been sent back to France. The crew of the Gasconne have arrived at St. Pierre.

Conditions "Quieter Than Usual"

Manila, May 11.—Disarming of the Basilan Moros is progressing without serious trouble. The Lano districts are quiet. Major General Weston, who has returned to Manila from an inspection of the entire district, reports that conditions are quieter than usual. He pronounces the recent operations to have been police rather than military.

Who Gave Harkins The Liquor Money?

John Harkins, the man arrested in front of the Fore River Ship Building office on Saturday morning with his pockets full of bottles of whiskey, claims that he is a victim of circumstances. He had been in Quincy but a short time. Saturday morning he says that he was given $2.25 to go to Boston and get some whiskey and beer, and that he was handing the packages to owners when he was arrested.

Harkins said that he, his wife, and seven-year-old child had walked from Pawtucket to Boston and then to Quincy looking for work.

At Harkins' house on Cherry street the officers found his wife and child. All the provisions in the house were a half loaf of bread and a pork chop. All the money they had was thirteen cents. The man whom Harkins claims gave him the money has disappeared.

According to Harkins' story, he came to Quincy that morning on the 8 o'clock car. As he went back with his bundle on the 9 o'clock car with Officer Lyons he must have got his supply at Neponset or near by.

Caught in the Act.

Thomas McLaughlin, who claims to have no home, was arrested by Officer Dwyer of the Metropolitan Police at 3 o'clock this morning while trying to break into a store building at Milton.

The officer had his attention attracted to the man and watched him. He permitted the man to go ahead with his job until about ready to enter when he nabbed him and placed him under arrest. In court he was held in $1,000 for the grand jury.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and trying the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Makaria 2; Newton Y. M. C. A. 0.

On Saturday there was fast, gilt-edge ball at Merrymount park, when Makaria defeated Newton Y. M. C. A. 2 to 0. The game was full of good features. Not a base on balls was given only two bases stolen, each side getting a 2 base hit, nobody hit, no wild pitches, no passed ball and such good pitching seldom seen at Merrymount Park. Both pitchers were left handed and Catling has a motion that fooled three runners between first and second base. Makaria got only 6 hits off him, while Newton was only able to hit Michael five times safely.

In the second inning with only one man out Hanson hit for two bases. Coolidge got first on error and Hanson went to third; Coolidge going down on to second on the first ball thrown. It looked bad. Hanson started to steal home, and Coolidge started to steal third. Troupe and McKenzie playing him between bases when Hanson started for home; Troupe made a grand stand throw to the plate nailing him by a narrow margin. Day flied to McKenzie closing the inning.

Makaria scored first in the fourth. Nicoll hit safely; Smith was out on grounder to first, Nicoll going to second; Troupe made first on error and started to steal; while he was played back and forth Nicoll scored and Troupe was tagged out.

In the sixth, Nicoll hit past second with one out and by the only base stealing in the game, stole second and third, but died there, the next two men being unable to connect with Cotting. Cotting showed good judgment, striking out three men in both the third and sixth innings.

Makaria scored their other run in the eighth. Michael bunted, first being unable to handle the throw from pitcher; McKenzie bunted and catcher threw ball, Mac being safe; Nicoll bunted but was thrown out at first, Michael going to third and McKenzie to second; Smith made a long drive to right field who caught it, but Michael scored. Troupe hit to pitchers who threw him out at first.

Even and Nicoll both batted well, each getting two hits, while Hanson did best stick work for Newton, getting two hits one a two bagger. Below is the full score:

Just Jotted Down By Ledger Men

Work resurfacing the upper part of Liberty street is progressing rather slow.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace F. Spear of Hancock street have returned from a trip to Washington.

The new polishing mill and cutting plant of Prout Bros. is all completed and in working order.

The one hundred or more blocks of granite cut by Kavanagh Bros for the Pilgrim monument at Provincetown
will be shipped this month.

The alarm from Box 37 at 7.29
this morning was for a fire on the roof of one of Charles H. Spear's houses on Franklin place, caused by a spark from a locomotive; damage $25.

The two granite fountains cut by Fred L. Jones for the estate of John D. Rockefeller in New York were shipped this week. The job was all polished, and was a very handsome piece of work.

It is said at the Quincy Adams
depot that the new electric crane
will probably go into service before the first of the month. The grounds have been graded and paved, and the electric wires to operate the crane
will be run this week.

Forbes Craig & Co. have secured
the contract for a soldiers monument
to be erected in a Rhode Island city.
The job will consist of two bases and a die, to be surmounted by a bronze statue of a soldier. The bottom base is 8-6 by 8-6 and the die will be polished.

Milne & Hector say that when the additions to their granite plant is complete that they will have one of the most modern plants in the city.
The new additions is 50 by 60 feet,
and is already for the machinery.
Several polishing wheels will be put in, also pneumatic tools installed and a powerful travelling crane.

GUNNESS DEATH FARM.

Efforts to Establish Identity of Woman Who Was Burned

FINDINGS IN TWO AUTOPSIES

Andrew Helgelein and Miss O'sen
Both Met Unnatural Deaths—Hair
In Hand of Man Gave Evidence of a Severe Death Struggle

La Porte, Ind., May 12.—Mrs. Belle Gunness' farm has failed to reveal new mysteries, but progress has been made towards solving the puzzles already involved in the homestead
which has witnessed the tragic deaths
of at least fourteen persons.

Heavy showers have made further excavating impossible, but between the downpours Sheriff Smutzer and Louis Schultz worked on the apparatus with which Schultz is to sluice the ashes in the cellar of the Gunness house, which was burned on April 28.
The heavier pieces of debris and the bricks were cleared from the south
half of the basement, and mining operations will be started in earnest as soon as possible. This operation is to find evidence bearing on the identity of the woman's body found in the debris of the burned house and supposed by some to be that of Mrs. Gunness.
Mrs. Gunness' teeth being said to have been gold-filled.

Dr. Meyer has sent to the coroner his findings resulting from the autopsies
of the bodies supposed to be those of Andrew Helgelein of Mansfield, S. D., and Jennie Olsen, the foster daughter of Mrs. Gunness, who disappeared in 1906. Meyer reported that a mass of hair had been found in the clenched fist of Helgelein and that the fingers grasping it had been severed above the first phalanx.

Dr. Meyer's report on the bodies of Helgelein and Miss Olsen declared that both met unnatural deaths. In the case of the young woman the condition of the corpse precluded any possibility of determining the manner in which she was murdered. Decay, caused largely by lime, destroyed the tissues,
so that the organs are scarcely susceptible to chemical analysis and there is not enough flesh left to show evidence of wounds. The crumbling skull revealed none.

Helgelein's body had been in the ground only a few months at most and it gave evidence of a death struggle.
The clenched hand, which contained hair, had been mutilated and the other hand had been severed at the wrist.
Of this body the official report says:

"From the findings it is evident that the man died an unnatural death,
but at whose hands, or how, cannot be determined by the examination so far.
The hair in the hand is likely from the head of his murderer, or the stomach
may show what poison, if any, killed
him."

Dr. Meyer, commenting on this statement, said: "It would perhaps have been more accurate if I had said 'from the person of his murderer' instead of
'from the head.' The hair is short and of a reddish brown tinge, and was found matted between the first and second fingers of the hand, the bulk of it being in the upper part of the palm."

"Three Victims a Month" Oklahoma City, Okla., May 12.—"I believe that the Gunness house claimed three victims a month during the time that I was there, but I had no knowledge of any of this business,"
said Emil Greening yesterday. "Mrs.
Gunness always kept whisky and it might be that she used poison in this.
I never heard a shot fired, although there were lots of times that a gun
could have been fired and I should not have heard it. There were pistols all over the place, at least a dozen watches and numerous pocketbooks scattered about."

Mrs. Gunness Not a Mother
Chicago, May 12.—According to stories told in the suburb of Austin, where Mrs. Belle Gunness formerly resided, she was not the mother of any of the children who bore her name, but all of them were adopted by her. Andrew Olsen, a cousin of Mads Sorensen,
the first husband of the woman, said:
"It was common talk among the neighbors and even among her relatives that the children were not actually hers,
but were adopted in infancy."

Possible Victim From Norway
Christiania, May 12.—News of the wholesale murders at La Porte has caused a sensation here. It is thought that one of the victims may have been Olaf Jensen, 23 years of age, who at one time lived in Christiania. Two years ago, attracted by Mrs. Gunness' marriage advertisements, he left Carroll county, Ind., whither he had gone
from this city, and went to La Porte.
He has not been heard from since, and his friends are now seeking to have the American legation here institute inquiries as to his whereabouts.

FLYING RECORDS EXCELLED

Wright Brothers Make Average of Forty-Six Miles an Hour Manteo, N. C., May 12.—After a series of preliminary tests extending over the last two weeks, the Wright brothers, Orville and Wilbur, of Dayton, O., made their most successful flight in their airship and practically demonstrated that aerial navigation by the use of an engine is an accomplished fact.

In their flights at Kill Devil hill the Wright brothers very easily made long gains over distances heretofore flown
by man in machines heavier than air.
The distance of the flight, computed by the telegraph poles of the United States weather bureau sea-coast wire,
was 27-16 miles, almost a mile in excess of their best previous record.
Starting from the foot of Kill Devil
hill, the machine did not again touch ground for three minutes and seven seconds, making the 27-16 miles.

Its course was directed north, almost parallel with the beach for 1-3-8 miles,
then it was turned west, passing around a sand hill for 5-16 miles, after which it was circled southeast, back toward the starting point for 3-4 miles. It was then made to alight easily on the ground, the average time made by the machine on the flights being computed at 46.774 miles an hour.

Collision of Elevated Trains
New York, May 12.—Twenty-five persons were injured by an accident on the Third Avenue elevated road last night. A train was discharging passengers when another train bound in the same direction whirled around a curve and crashed into it. The trucks
of the second train jumped the track.
Terror-stricken passengers jerked open
the car gates and scrambled from the cars over the ties, narrowly missing Ammerman of the second train, was placed under arrest. It is believed that the accident was due to a failure of the block signal system.

Will Be No Reconciliation
New York, May 12.—An early disposition is to be made of the case of Mrs.
Elsie F. Vanderbilt, who has instituted suit for divorce from Alfred G. Vanderbilt, according to an announcement by Referee McClure. Since the institution of the suit the mother of Alfred Vanderbilt has gone to Europe. It was reported that her trip was undertaken to bring about a reconciliation which would result in a withdrawal of the divorce proceedings. The announcement of the referee is taken to mean that Mrs. Vanderbilt failed in her mission.

Ireland Will Have New Colleges
London, May 12.—The house of commons last evening passed the second reading of the Irish university bill by a vote of 344 to 31. The minority consisted of Irish unionists and non-conformist radicals. The central idea of the project is to found by royal charter
two new universities in Ireland, with branches in Dublin and Belfast. Dublin university is to be composed of three constituent branches. The existing Queen's college at Belfast is to constitute the proposed new Northern university.

Solons In Extraordinary Session
Albany, May 12.—Both houses of the legislature met last night in extraordinary session under the proclamation
of the governor, heard a special message from him recommending several subjects for their attention and adjourning until today. The abolition of the protection of public gambling at race tracks is not among the subjects recommended by Governor Hughes for the consideration of the extraordinary session.

Contest Over Negro Delegate
New Orleans, May 12.—With instructions to vote for Secretary Taft for presidential nominee, the Republican state convention elected four delegates
at-large to the national convention, one of whom, O. B. Kennedy, is a negro.
There was a sharp contest as to whether a negro should be named among the delegates. On a test vote the anti-negro faction lost, 49 to 462, and they then withdrew from the convention.

Tornadoes In Oklahoma
Woodward, Okla., May 12.—At least eight persons were killed and scores of others injured in several tornadoes in northwestern Oklahoma. Telephone communication is entirely cut off from the storm-swept area and the only other means of getting information is by stage. The disaster seems to have consisted of a succession of tornadoes occurring between 5 o'clock a. m. and 1 o'clock p. m.

International War on Opium
Washington, May 12.—The president transmitted to congress a letter from Secretary of State Root counselling
the immediate beginning of an international investigation into the opium question in the Far East and recommending that congress appropriate $20,000 for this country's participation therein.

The Agricultural Appropriation
Washington, May 12.—The senate passed the agricultural appropriation bill, carrying an appropriation aggregating $12,142,146. For making permanent improvements in the national forests $1,000,000, instead of $500,000,
as provided by the house of representatives, was appropriated.

HOW TO TELL IF YOU HAVE WORMS

THE REMEDY THAT QUICKLY EXPELS THEM

The common symptoms of worms in children and adults are: Pale face with occasional flushing; indigestion accompanied by an unnatural appetite at times; foul tongue and offensive breath; itching nose; vomiting; grinding of the teeth during sleep; swelling of the upper lip; hard swollen bowels; griping or colic pains; also convulsions and many other unaccountable nervous symptoms, which, if not checked in time, lead on to something more serious.

TOOK DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR AND GOT WELL

SOMERVILLE, ME.
Dr. True, Dear Sir:—
For more than three months one of my children had been troubled with spells of vomiting and symptoms of fever nearly every week, together with canker-sores about the nose and mouth. I obtained, about two weeks ago, two bottles of your Elixir, and before the first bottle was exhausted the sores were entirely healed, and no appearance of his vomiting or fever-spells has ever returned. I really believe that the lives of thousands of children suffering from worms or canker might be saved by a timely and judicious use of your Elixir. Yours truly,
J. L. HAMMETT.

This is only one of hundreds of such testimonials. This marvelous remedy has been made and sold by Dr. J. F. True & Co. for fifty-six years, and all that time without but words of praise have been bestowed upon it. This is what Mr. Wing thinks of it.

Dr. True, Dear Sir:—
For the past seven years I have constantly kept a supply of your Elixir in my house, and it never failed to give prompt relief. It has been a great blessing to my children, and unsolicited I give you this tribute of gratitude, hoping the merits of your unrivaled family medicine may be widely known and appreciated. Very respectfully yours,
CHAS. E. WING.

Even though worms may not be found present Dr. True's Elixir tones up the stomach and liver. Read what Dr. J. Haley, of Brunswick, thinks of it:
"It is a safe and effectual remedy. For worms it has no equal, and is an excellent remedy for canker of the mouth and throat."
Dr. True's Elixir is sold by druggists everywhere at 50c., 10c. and 10c. per bottle. The booklet, "Children and Their Diseases," will be sent free by simply addressing Dr. J. F. True & Co., Auburn, Me. We have a special treatment for tape-worm. Send for free book.

HARMONY MOVEMENT

Republicans Realize Its Necessity to Insure Success

TAFT ON THE FIRST BALLOT

Plan Being Worked Out to Squelch Roosevelt Sentiment, Which Might Cause a Stampede at Chicago Convention—Knox Supporters Hold Off
Washington, May 12.—Republican leaders in congress are working earnestly on a plan to prevent any break at the Chicago convention which might disrupt the party or endanger defeat at the polls in November.

Conferences have been held at both ends of the Capitol among such men as Senators Alrich, Hale, Allison and Crane, and Representatives Payne, Sherman, Tawney and Jenkins; in fact, meetings of small groups from this list have been of almost daily occurrence for more than a week. They have been directed to one end—a nomination on the first ballot, by which they mean William H. Taft. While no definite result has been reached, they believe their efforts will be successful.

Most of the men figuring prominently in this movement were numbered against Taft early in the campaign, but party policy and the necessity for harmony, which have been manifest in Republican ranks since the disastrous result of the Blaine-Cleveland feud, have awakened a demand that personal desires be subordinated to the will of the majority.

That the efforts of the group of leaders back of the harmony movement have not been barren of results is indicated by the fact that to a number of the conferences have been called men who are backing the candidacies of Vice President Fairbanks, Speaker Cannon, Senator Knox or Governor Hughes.

No attempt is made to disguise the fact that the real impetus to such a concerted movement in the interest of Secretary Taft is the refusal of Roosevelt sentiment to be snuffed out and the danger of such sentiment spreading to an extent that it might be difficult of control at Chicago. At the same time it is said the movement is not hostile to President Roosevelt, who admittedly occupies the position of command of the Taft forces. He has made it perfectly plain that nothing can come of the renewed calls for his renomination, which have been made in Texas, Utah and California, because he is prepared to reject any proffer of support, no matter how extended.

The uttermost limit of endeavor of the Republican leaders who are striving to harmonize party difference is to eliminate all candidates for the nomination except Taft, but it is not anticipated that all of the candidates will readily agree to this proposition. Supporters of Knox particularly are said to oppose the plan, and one of the other candidates is holding forth so strongly that there is no immediate demand for agreement. At the same time there are leaders in Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania and New York who are parties to the movement with the knowledge of the favorite candidates from those states.

The selection of Taft as the beneficiary of the harmony faction is because he is the only candidate who has sufficient instructed votes to promise an early nomination. The argument of the harmony faction is that if Taft fails to obtain the nomination on the first ballot and the allies should be able to hold out against him, it would mean a convention of many ballots.

These leaders have little doubt that in such a contingency the Roosevelt third term sentiment would threaten a stampede, and though they have little doubt the president would not hesitate to squelch any action looking to his renomination, the effect of such a stampede could result only in the campaign for the election of the candidate, whoever he may be, is one of the arguments used to draw the so-called allies into the harmony program.

Republican leaders concede that their majority in the house is likely to be materially reduced at the fall election, and they fear that unless all factions are brought together before the Chicago convention they may lose their majority altogether. One of the side plans being discussed favorably is the renomination of Fairbanks as vice president on the ticket with Taft, which they assert would remove Indiana from the doubtful column and make it safely Republican.

It is believed also that with the Republican forces solidly aligned, Taft could easily carry Illinois, and the harmonizers are willing to consider Cannon's re-election as speaker by a Republican house. There is a movement on already to bring about the renomination of Hughes as governor of New York, and an effort will be made to bring Taft and Foraker together, which, it is thought, would make Ohio safer.

HEARTILY ENDORSE COOPER REMEDIES

Dealer and Patient at Hallowell, Maine, Make Statements Under Oath

In connection with the intense interest manifested by the public at large in the theory of L. T. Cooper as to the human stomach being the source of nearly all ill health, the statements of Mr. W. D. Spaulding, of Hallowell, Me., one of the oldest and best-known druggists in that state, and of Mrs. Frederick Harvey, a well known nurse living in the same place, will be interesting to thousands of persons who are today suffering from ailments directly traceable to the stomach. The fact that these statements are made voluntarily, under oath, removes all element of doubt. The statements follow:

"HALLOWELL, MAINE, July 20, 1907. 'TO THE COOPER MEDICINE CO., DAYTON, OHIO.

"Gentlemen:—The policy at Spaulding's drug store is to gain the perfect confidence of the public by never recommending any medicine or treatment until its virtues have been fully established. The Cooper Remedies were to us an unknown quality, we were very skeptical of their medicinal value, and it was not until several of our customers had received such beneficial results from their use that we could no longer doubt their value that we consented to take the agency for the Cooper Remedies in this territory, heartily endorsing the same.

"Herewith we give the testimonial of a lady whose case came under our personal observation from her being a regular customer, and she says:—

"Gentlemen of the Cooper Medicine Co., Dayton, Ohio: It is with pleasure I recommend your New Discovery medicine, of which I have taken the contents of three bottles, and can today eat anything without inconvenience to myself. For a number of years I had suffered intensely with severe headaches, sour stomach, indigestion, pains in my side, and complications which made it exceedingly hard for me to accomplish even my household work. Physicians had given me dozens of prescriptions, which failed to accomplish a cure or even relief. Your New Discovery medicine advertisement attracted my attention, and I purchased a bottle of the medicine, which I took according to directions and before it was half gone, I felt very much better; when I had taken the contents of two bottles I gained courage to eat many things which for years I had denied myself, and found they caused me no ill effects. Today, after having used three bottles of the New Discovery, I can eat anything and feel that I am a well woman once more, and therefore would advise anyone to take Cooper's New Discovery, for I feel sure it will cure them."—Mrs. Frederick Harvey, Hallowell, Me.

"We endorse the above testimonial, under oath, as being correct.

"W. D. SPAULDING.

The Cooper remedies have proven eminently satisfactory wherever introduced. We will be pleased to explain their nature to anyone wishing to know about them. We are agents.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

There will be another launching at the shipyard on Thursday. This time it will be Light-vessel No. 93, the last of the four to be launched at the shipyard for the Lighthouse Board, Department of Commerce and Labor, U. S. government.

New shafting is being erected in the South gallery of the machine shop extension for a new bucket cutting machine.

Fifty trolley wheels are in process of construction for travelling cranes. The General Electric Company is having eighteen nickle steel shafts made at the shipyard.

Repairs are being made to building No. 59. The total number of arrivals of vessels of all classes at the port of New York during the month of April was $15. The total number of arrivals from foreign ports was 368, and from domestic 447.

There has been presented both in the senate report and before the house committee a long list of American steamships available for carrying of supplies and materials to the canal zone. This is a service for which a large part of both the Atlantic and Pacific coast fleet is fairly well adapted. It is estimated that these American ships included in this list will suffice to carry two or three times over all the freight now being sent out to Panama.

Adjournment of Congress Near
Washington, May 12.—At a conference between the leaders of the house and senate it practically was agreed that congress shall adjourn May 23. Unless something unforeseen should occur, the house will for the remainder of the time devote itself to the two remaining appropriations bills, the general deficiency and the military academy, and a discussion of the financial question, thereby enabling the senate to catch up with the house on the several supply measures now in conference.

Bryan and Johnson Not Chummy
Chicago, May 12.—William J. Bryan and Governor Johnson of Minnesota left for Washington yesterday on the same train on the Pennsylvania railroad. Up to the time the train left, while each was aware that the other was aboard, the two men had not met. Both are on their way to Washington to attend the conference called by the president "to conserve the natural resources of the country."

ESCAPED FROM A FORT

Two Prisoners and a Guard Flee, but One is Captured

Portland, Me., May 12.—Two military prisoners and their guardsman escaped from Fort McKinley in a sensational manner. The prisoners were Henry Caine and Felix Shannoski, both of whom were serving eighteen months' sentences, and the guard was Arthur Donovan.

The three men got to a steamer on the way to this city, but one of them, Shannoski, was recognized by Post Chaplain Newson and just as the boat neared the dock the prisoner leaped overboard. He was unable to swim, but was picked up by a passing motor boat and taken to the police station. The other two men got away.

Cheers Drowned Bands' Sound

Boston, May 12.—Greeted with a tremendous ovation that brought tears to his eyes and a glow of health to his cheeks, wan and thin after his long illness, Governor Guild made his first public appearance yesterday to review the parade in observance of the 121st anniversary of the Fusilier Veterans' association. Standing on the steps of his home, the governor saluted the colors carried by the fusiliers and escorted by their military guests, while the cheers from the crowds on the opposite sidewalk at times drowned the sound of the two big brass bands.

Held on Murder Charge

Boston, May 12.—Rafaele Ruppaci, an Italian, aged 23, was arrested at his home here last night for the police of Newton, where there is a charge of murder against him.

Newton, Mass., May 12.—Rafaele Ruppaci has been wanted in this city since May 24, 1907, when Luigi Marra was shot and killed. Two men are alleged to have been concerned in the affair. One of the men was arrested last October.

Auto Plunged Through Fence

Meriden, Conn., May 12.—A forty-horse power car owned by James H. White, in which were White, L. H. Barber, Ira F. Burnett, and the chauffeur, Edward Ives, was overturned, and Barber and Burnett were seriously injured, the former probably fatally. The steering gear became locked and the heavy machine dashed into the ditch beside the road and crashed through a fence.

Against Parcels Post System

Boston, May 12.—The parcels post system was condemned by nearly every speaker at the annual convention in this city of the National Association of Retail Grocers of the United States. President Kramer gave an address in which he attacked the parcels post plan vigorously, and said that, if adopted, it would drive every merchant insane, especially those living in rural districts.

No Junk Shops in Chelsea

Chelsea, Mass., May 12.—Junk shops in Chelsea, in whose district the conflagration started that wiped out a third of the city on April 12, must go, according to a vote of the Chelsea board of aldermen. Leave to withdraw was given all applicants for license. As this city is the junk and rag centre of the east, considerable opposition was manifested to the aldermen's action.

Mills Increase Running Time

New Bedford, Mass., May 12.—The nine mills of the New England Cotton Yarn company in New Bedford have increased their running time by four hours a week. The mills have been on short time since last fall, due to the extreme dullness in the cotton yarn trade. There is also more machinery in operation at the company's mills in Fall River and Taunton.

Convention of Railroad Employees

Boston, May 12.—Eight thousand union members in the United States and Canada were represented by 120 delegates at the opening of the fourth biennial convention of the International Brotherhood of Railway Employees here. In his report to the delegates President McNeil said that the organization is today in the best condition in its history.

Stole to Settle Debts

Boston, May 12.—On the charge of stealing a New York yacht club cup from a local jewelry firm, Alexander B. Mills, a clerk, was sentenced to eighteen months in the house of correction. Mills told the court that he took the cup, which was valued at $125, to pay his indebtedness to loan companies. When recovered by the police the trophy was in pieces.

New Town Hall For Clinton

Clinton, Mass., May 12.—At a special town meeting it was decided to construct a municipal building to replace the one destroyed by fire on Dec. 7, 1907. Town Without Fire Apparatus Mexico, Me., May 12.—While Herman Martinson was packing his household goods preparatory to removing from this town, his house caught fire from the explosion of a kerosene lamp and was burned, together with a tenement house nearby, also owned by Martinson. The loss is $8000. Mexico has no fire apparatus.

New Arrivals
At Beach Daily

A special meeting of the Houghs Neck Associates will be held in Brown's hall tomorrow evening when important matters will be considered.

Saturday will be opening night at Brown's summer ball room, when Kutz orchestra will furnish the music for the dancing.

A great many families arrived Monday for the summer. Four new cottages were started this week, and two new stores have been completed.

This year has been a record breaker in the building line here. There has been more houses and stores built here since January first than have been built in any other part of the city. Real estate has increased over ten per cent, and the rents have increased twenty-five per cent. Never before has Houghs Neck been boomed so much. The coming of the gas is responsible for a large part of the increase in valuation.

The efforts of the Houghs Neck Associates have been very successful. It was largely through their efforts that the gas is being installed; they have obtained better car service, more lights, better police protection and they are responsible for the small number of clubs that are at the Neck. Their splendid work in having the twenty-five cents charged for carting coal to Houghs Neck removed, will save the residents many dollars in the future.

The commissioner of public works tells an officer of the Associates that the two cells for Houghs Neck were on the way, and would probably be installed in two weeks. Having two cells installed in the basement of the fire station will do more to stop rowdiness than anything else. In the past years the officers were obliged to take their prisoners to Quincy. On account of the time and trouble taken, the officers would not make many arrests. The cells will do away with this, making it easier for an officer to make an arrest.

Edward F. Williams and family of Roxbury have arrived and have possession of their cottage on Great hill. Rufus Billings and family of Roxbury are on Island avenue, Great hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Tirrell of Quincy are at their cottage on Great hill.

E. F. Kneeland of Cambridge has finished his new cottage on Sea avenue, Great hill. The cottage is located on the north side of Great hill, overlooking Quincy bay. Mr. Kneeland and his family will occupy their new home this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Robbins will entertain today the Physical Culture Whist club with a sail on the yacht Emeline, after the sail there will be a shore dinner followed by a dance at the yacht club.

R. Y. Woodbury of Dorchester is building a fine large cottage on Great hill.

Percy Taber of Quincy is making extensive alterations on his cottage Golden Rod, Bell street.

J. H. Sullivan and family of Roxbury are staying at the Mabel Franc, Sea avenue.

Alfred La Brecque is now the Houghs Neck correspondent for the Daily Ledger, and desires the cooperation of all residents of Houghs Neck.

Supper at Atlantic.

A May supper will be given in Memorial church on Wednesday, May 13, from 6 to 8 o'clock under the direction of Mrs. Nichols, chairman, assisted by nine other young ladies, Mrs. Von Emden, Mrs. Miles, Mrs. Vance, Mrs. Fox, Mrs. Larsen, Mrs. Willey, Mrs. Jenkins, Mrs. Lilley and Mrs. Beede. The supper will be served in the church proper and will be out of the usual in the menu, which will include all kinds of salads, ham and a good old-fashioned strawberry short-cake which will be made in individual patties by the chairman.

TODAY'S COURT.

Joseph McLaughlin was fined $15 for assault on Augustus Blondie at Quincy.

The continued case of John Harkins of Cherry street, for violation of the liquor law at Quincy, was called, and he was fined $50.

LAYING OF CORNER STONE

Twenty-One American Republics

Represented at Ceremony—No Congratulations From Venezuela or Paraguay—Roosevelt Praises Root

Washington, May 12.—Under auspices of high patronage and beautiful spring weather, the cornerstone of the proposed home for the international Union of American Republics, or, as Secretary Root aptly called it, "a temple dedicated to international friendship," was laid here. Three thousand persons, including representatives of political, official and social life in Washington who had seats on the stands composing a great quadrangle, were interested spectators of the ceremony.

The decorations were in keeping with the occasion. Flags and colors of twenty-one American republics floated in the breeze over the grand stands, while the coats of arms of these countries were displayed at many places about the stands. Over the speakers' portion of the president's stand were the colors of the United States and Brazil, the latter in honor of Ambassador Nabuco.

During the ceremony the flag of each of the twenty-one countries represented was hoisted aloft by a bluejacket from the Washington navy yard and attached to a wire, and when the last one had been placed in a position the group made a line of emblems which stretched from one end of the court to the other. As they were being hoisted by the Marine band played strains from the national airs from the particular country the flag represented.

On the president's stand were seated the cabinet, the supreme court, the diplomatic corps and members of the senate and the house. Director of the Bureau Barrett introduced Secretary Root as the presiding officer. Cardinal Gibbons made the invocation and there were addresses by President Roosevelt, Secretary Root and Andrew Carnegie, Senator Nabuco, Brazilian ambassador, and the reading of cabled messages of congratulations from the presidents of the Latin-American republics. Bishop Cranston pronounced the benediction.

President Roosevelt told his hearers, when the portion of his speech relating to that subject was reached, that he was glad to hear them applaud mention of the battleship fleet. He believed in peace and arbitration, he said, but he also believed in the nation keeping in such trim that it would be a temptation to no other nation to wrong us. Further on in his remarks the president declared that he had known no greater achievement of his success, which has come, is the result of his devoted labor to bring closer together all the republics of the new world and to unite them in the effort to work valiantly for our common betterment and for the material and moral welfare of all of us who dwell in the Western Hemisphere.

When Barrett read cablegrams of congratulations from the presidents of the American republics it was noticed there were no responses to the invitation to contribute to the symposium from either President Castro of Venezuela or the president of Paraguay. There was no public explanation of Castro's failure to send a dispatch, while Paraguay is not represented in the governing board of the bureau.

After the speech-making and the reading of the congratulatory cablegrams, the president and others who had participated marched to the centre of the court, where the cornerstone was ready to be placed in position. President Roosevelt was given a trowel decorated with the colors of the American republics. Taking several trowelfuls of mortar, he placed the mortar on the stone where the cornerstone was to rest. The participants then returned to the stands.

Not Done With American Ice

New York, May 12.—The application of the American Ice company for the right to inspect the minutes of the January grand jury which investigated the company was denied by Justice Davis in the supreme court, on the ground that it would be improper to permit the company to inspect the minutes in view of the fact that the matter is again being presented to a grand jury.

Battered Man Dies in Hospital

New York, May 12.—Fred Cassigan, a salesman living at Boston, died at Bellevue hospital last night. Cassigan expired in convulsions. He was brought to the hospital from a court prison and was found to have sustained a broken nose, several fractured ribs and internal injuries. He had been lodged in the prison on a charge of alcoholism.

Yacht Met With Storms

Digby, N. S., May 12.—After being buffeted and tossed about by severe storms on the Nova Scotia coast, the American yacht Valemore, from New London, Conn., for Chicago, put in here in a badly battered condition. Hale Thompson of Chicago, her owner, and George Perry of the same city are on board.

COOKING BY GAS.

How to Avoid Disagreeable Odors and Light the Range.

If there is a constant smell of burning when cooking is going on examine the burners. They are probably filled with sediment from "boil overs." This especially applies to the housewife whose kitchen is more or less dark, for unless that is an unusually light place it is difficult to see sufficiently well to keep the burners perfectly clean, says Forgetmenot.

For the woman whose troubles arise from the odor of cooking the remedy lies in having a small pipe between the range and the chimney to carry off the odorous gases. A large bowl of water placed near will also help to prevent odors of cooking penetrating the house. The smell of gas when a rubber tube is used—no leak being apparent—is usually caused by the tube itself having become saturated with gas. New tubing is the only remedy.

The lighting of the burners is a very simple matter if properly understood. Turn on the gas for six seconds before applying the match. This permits the air to escape from the pipe and makes the burner show a clear blue flame from the first. If a white flame appears on first lighting, turn off the gas immediately and try again. The dull, roaring sound means the gas flame has leaped back inside the supply pipe.

When having the gas range put in be sure to see that the supply pipe is large enough to allow sufficient gas to enable all the burners to be used at the same time. This is very necessary. It is annoying to discover you can't boil two kettles when the oven is in use. See also that the oven is large and commodious and that there is plenty of room on the top for boiling, frying, etc. It is poor economy to use a gas range that is too small. On the other hand, should your family be small and large joints things unknown don't have a huge oven.

It is the oven, with its many burners, which makes gas stove cooking expensive. For this reason think out your meals carefully and bake as many things as possible at the same time. Custards, for instance, if small will cook when the gas has been turned out, and fruit, etc., may be stewed in earthenware jars while the joint is cooking.

How to Prepare a Chicken Dinner.

Cut up a nice yellow chicken, cook until tender, have plenty of gravy, thicken with flour and an egg stirred together. Make a pan of nice baking powder biscuits, bake them, turn chicken and gravy in the biscuit pan, let the biscuits soak the gravy. Serve in the pan with a napkin wrapped around it.

How to Relieve Choking.

To relieve choking break an egg in a cup and give it to the distressed one to swallow. The white of the egg seems to catch around the obstacle and remove it. If one egg does not answer the purpose try another. The white is all that is necessary to use.

COMING TO THE FORE. Annual Reports Show Quincy Women's Club To Be Well Organized.

That members of the Quincy Women's club enjoy the business end of club life was emphasized on Tuesday afternoon at the annual meeting, when one of the largest meetings of the season was held. Mrs. George W. Morton, president, called the meeting to order promptly at half past two and monthly reports were read by the secretaries. The corresponding secretary read letters from Mrs. Chandler W. Smith and Miss Elizabeth Johnson expressing their appreciation of being made honorary members of the club, also a letter from the faculty of the Quincy Mansion school in response to letter sent at the time of the service in memory of Horace Mann Willard.

Announcement was made of 200 tickets for the biennial convention of the National Federation in Boston in June, to be distributed June first in the order in which application was made for them. Mrs. Hunting, Mrs. Bishop and Mrs. Morton will have charge of the distribution. Mrs. Morton, Mrs. Olney, Mrs. Whitcher and Mrs. Bishop were appointed delegates to the annual meeting of the State Federation in May 28 at the South Congregational church, Boston, with the New England Women's club as hostess. It would celebrate the 40th anniversary of the N. E. club and the 15th of the State Federation.

Members were urged to use their influence in passing a bill on tuberculosis through congress.

Considerable interest was taken on reconsidering the vote of a few weeks ago against joining the National Federation. There was a lively discussion for and against, participated in by Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Whitcher, Mrs. Sanborn, Mrs. Marsh, Mrs. Bumpus, Miss Randall, Mrs. Hayward, Mrs. Hardwick and it was finally voted to lay over until fall.

An appeal from Chelsea asked for needles, thread, thimbles, etc. Notice of June breakfast by Day Nursery association was read and cooperation asked for.

The following club hymn received from an active member was read by the president:

TUNE "FAIR HARVARD"
We meet here today, where a dearly loved home
An altar to memory up-rears,
Once more to commune with the spirit of hope
And the spirit of faith without fears
To blend this fair light with the spirit of right
Through the length and the trial of years,
May we ever press forward, nor ever turn back,
Till our angel of judgment appears.
O judgment of mortals that knows us always
And presses us close in the throng,
Be gentle with us in all failure or loss
That may come to the weak or the strong;
For the day must be bright that has every-thing right
And the day must be dark that is wrong,
But God shall know best how to crown all the works
That His love and His mercy prolong.
Irene Chipman Tirrell.

Interesting and varied annual reports were given as follows:

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Shows Membership of 350 Maintained and a Waiting List.

The Quincy Women's club has held thirteen regular meetings but not an unlucky number for there has been a good average attendance.

Those most largely attended were Nov. 12th at which Dr. Brackett was the speaker. Jan. 28th the musicale, Feb. 25th the Arts and Crafts exhibition and demonstration and March 10th the Reciprocity afternoon. There have been extra meetings for the club planned and carried out by each of the following committees. The Arts and Crafts, Mrs. Overholser, with an exhibit of the crafts of different societies, the Art and Literature, Mrs. Park on Miniature Painting with exhibition of silhouettes and miniatures, the Civic Betterment, Mr. John Nolen on "Village Improvement," the Education, Miss Brownlee on "Moral Training of Children," and Recognition afternoon by the Philanthropic committee. The Civic committee held also a meeting in the interests of the Health committee of the State Federation concerning suppression of Tuberculosis. Business meetings have been held each month before a regular club meeting also Executive Board meetings, which have been well attended.

Our club membership of 350 has been kept filled and there is a waiting list of about 20. We were sorry to lose our president, because of her removal from the city but we have made her an honorary member of the club and also added to our honorary list Miss Elizabeth Johnson the real founder of the club who furnished the Visiting Nurse and Education committee, rooms and put the work of the Education and Civic Betterment committees on a financial basis by giving up the Home Science association and turning over to them the Assembly and May Festival.

We have been saddened by the death of two members, Mrs. Bates and Mrs. Slade, whose memory still remains with us.

The club sent its president as delegate to the annual State Federation meeting and has sent delegates to the quarterly meetings who have returned with interesting reports.

The club has invited the clergy, the teachers, the physicians, the city officials to be by turns its guests, also representatives from all Norfolk County Women's clubs at the Tuberculosis conference and also officers of many neighboring clubs as guests at its Reciprocity meeting. There have been four open meetings to which the public were invited. The Vacation club and Day Nursery held meetings at the club house and the spirit of cooperation and neighborliness is being fostered by the department of work of the various committees. The club has sent $50 to Chelsea, $50 to the Biennial committee and paid $200 towards the salary of the Visiting Nurse beside providing her with rooms, service and telephone and carrying the general club expenses.

The year has been one of varied activity in many directions.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Corresponding Secretary Always Ready to Serve Members.

The corresponding secretary should be as the heart of the club, acting for it, on all occasions, serving as its visiting card. In discussing etiquette and insisting that no greeting, message of condolence or any written word be added to the name upon ones visiting card, a writer says "Your card is you," stating thus tersely that the dignity of the card is preserved only as it stands by itself, the mute expression of all that its owner would say, were she present in person. In a sense like to this your corresponding secretary is you. This is realized fully by her and whenever any joy or sorrow enters into the life of a club member if it be known to the secretary, your loving message is sent. This is the most precious duty that falls to her lot. Whenever the Quincy Women's club should be recognized or represented, it is the secretary's pleasure to see that the club is in evidence.

The continuous work is greatest at the beginning of the two years, when each member has to be addressed in sending out preliminary programs and notices. Three hundred and fifty addresses alone take time to write. Throughout the year there are at least eight meetings of your Executive Board for each of which your secretary sends out twenty-three postal notices. By giving out the year book to members at meetings, the number to be mailed was lessened greatly.

Answers to individual questions and the sending out of tickets is part of the secretary's duties and whenever a member resigns, it is her effort to persuade her to transfer her name to the waiting list, rather than to drop out entirely. It is a small matter to write a resignation but it is a great help to the secretary and seems more dignified than to be dropped for the non-payment of dues.

The membership remains (350) at the close of the year with few hints of resignations and many cordial expressions of the clubs value. The waiting list has many anxious to enter its active work.

The correspondence with the members of the club has been very pleasant. It grows more so, as one after another learns that she qualifies the secretary to act for her, when she tells any incident of joy or sorrow to the one, who wishes to notice such events. The telephone, also, has brought many friendly messages and made the members nearer.

There has been little outside correspondence as the President, Chairman of the program and other committees attend to most of this, but when any letters have been exchanged, as on "Reciprocity Day" they have been delightful reminders of kindly interest in our club. Letters from our newly-elected honorary members Mrs. Chandler W. Smith and Miss Elizabeth Johnson and from the faculty of the Quincy Mansion school, read to you this afternoon, have particular interest.

The bills for postage are incorporated in the treasurer's report.

"The one message to each member is, get acquainted with your secretary. Let her know about yourself and any member, who needs comfort or appreciates congratulations, suggest ways in which she may serve you and feel an individual responsibility for her work as representing you.

With thanks for help rendered by many kindly thoughts and a plea for more of this in the year to come, I have the honor to be, your corresponding secretary.

M. Agnes Dalrymple Bishop.

ART AND LITERATURE.

Interesting Exhibits—Classes to be Organized Next Fall

The Art and Literature committee have in reality had four meetings in charge during the club season, two regular meetings, one in November and one in April and two special or extra meetings.

The November program being a lecture requiring the use of the stereopticon, was given in the Unitarian chapel. The subject of this lecture was "Tiger Lands" by Dr. William Lord Smith, who gave entirely personal experiences illustrated by slides made from photographs taken by himself in Corea and Java.

The committee next arranged an exhibition and sale of water-colors by Mrs. E. C. Bumpus. This was very successful from an artistic point of view and also added an appreciable amount to the treasury by Commission from the sale of several of the water-colors.

On March 17th a fine loan exhibit of miniatures both ancient and modern was held. The committee was very fortunate in being able to obtain the loan of many valuable examples of the art. Mrs. Robert E. Park of Wollaston gave a very clever paper on miniature painting old and new, which was instructive as well as exceedingly bright and interesting. Chocolate was served at 4.30 and although the wind blew and the snow descended every one present pronounced it a most successful and enjoyable afternoon.

We were especially favored having with us at our last meeting April 28th Miss Caroline Ticknor the author of "Miss Belladonna" and "The Hypocritical Romance" who charmed all by her personality and by the delightful manner in which she told us of her visits to the homes of Anne Thackeray, Ritchie, Henry Dickens, the niece and nephew of Jane Austen and Du Maurier.

The committee offered lessons in charcoal but were not able to form a class. During next winter we hope to have other exhibits and possibly form classes in sketching and of a literary nature.

Caroline E. C. Saville, chairman.

ARTS AND CRAFTS.

Classes a Success Socially and Financially—Much Accomplished.

The Arts and Crafts committee is composed of nine women who formed a working committee and agreed to confine their club activities to their own committee work,—the chairman having learned in other clubs that though a woman's name may adorn the list of many committees she works in one.

Oct. 16, we met and organized with Mrs. F. F. Prescott as secretary and Mrs. F. J. Moore, treasurer. Our meetings have been many or few as our work demanded. In February we met four times preparing for our public meeting while in March we rested.

Under our care have been held three meetings the second and third being open to the public. Dec. 10th Miss Lillian Dearborn gave a most entertaining and interesting talk on, "Some phases of Arts and Crafts work." Her talk was illustrated by beautiful specimens of her own work and some of her Milton pupils, in metals, enamel and leather. A fine musical program was given under Miss Coe's direction. Owing to a severe storm but few were able to enjoy the afternoon.

Feb 11th our second meeting, both the weather and attendance were all that could be desired. The first part was a musical, a noted soloist from Brookline, assisted by a pianist and sweet singers from our own club gave us all great pleasure. Miss Coe arranged the music for this meeting also. Part second was a sight-seeing trip up stairs. An exhibit of lace, needle work, enamel, metal jewelry, wall paper and posters being loaned by friends. These were arranged in the Educational room. Baskets and stenciling were in the Civic committee room and many kinds of handicraft in the two rooms, called the Arts and Crafts rooms. Rug weaving, palm hat weaving, raffia tying, brass and bobbin lace were demonstrated.

April 21st was held an extra meeting which was our third. Mrs. Overholser, chairman of the Arts and Crafts committee for the Federation of Women's clubs of Massachusetts, being the speaker. Mrs. Overholser illustrated her talk with work from eight different societies; one of the most interesting being weaving by the blind. Their form and color were almost perfect, this was noticed especially in the peacock feathers woven in a table cover. Baskets made of pine needles by the Deerfield workers was another unusual and interesting work. Something of the history of both work and worker were told, as the articles were shown.

The music of solos by piano, voice and one whistling were well received by the audience. We had an exhibition of local work, and Mrs. Overholser was kind enough to say "that the stenciling done by our club women was the most beautiful she had seen." A rug shown by Mrs. J. G. Worster made by her grandmother many years ago was worthy of a place in a museum.

We have conducted three classes. We feel that they have been a success both socially and financially. The class in millinery is so well pleased, that they wish to resume their work in September. The classes in stenciling and brass, were taught by members of the committee. We designed and had printed five hundred tags for our work. Have purchased and decorated curtains for the door between our rooms. Stenciled a set of curtains for a friend of the committee. Have bought and refinished four chairs, two we upholstered and two put in rush seats. Have bought a show-case to protect our goods, have made and stenciled table covers for our work tables and curtains for the Civic Betterment room.

On Recognition day we contributed thirty-six hats and three large boxes of millinery trimmings through the courtesy of Mr. A. W. Bennett, a wholesale milliner of Boston.

That our loom has been in use is shown by the fact that during the past year fifty-four rugs and pillow covers have been woven.

Receipts from classes, loom, post-cards, work, etc., have been $89 and expenditures $50 leaving $19 to our credit.

Blanche G. Blanchard, chairman.

CIVIC WORK.

An Improved Appearance Noticed in Our City.

Women's clubs formed for the mutual benefit of its members are a potential influence for good in any community.

Committees appointed for special purposes show marked advancement along particular lines while a civic committee with a broader field and interests apparently diversified is practically unlimited in its operation. Its influence for good is measured not so much by the number of its members as the interest which they manifest in the management of its affairs. The civic committee of the Quincy Women's club is especially favored in having assigned to it women qualified to ably represent the several sections of the city with credit to themselves and honor to their club.

The past year has been fruitful in accomplishment of much that has been good and the institution of plans which promise to be better in their fulfillment.

Along social lines should be mentioned the Quincy Assembly which brought together the best in Quincy society and added materially to the funds of the committee. Economics were ably treated by the Honorable Carroll D. Wright in a largely attended and very enjoyable general meeting and an illustrated lecture by Mr. John Nolen of Cambridge, complimentary to gentlemen friends of the club was given in the chapel of the First church.

The practical work of the committee is best shown in the improved appearance of our city. In this work the committee is encouraged by the kindly co-operation of many private individuals, notably Mr. Henry M. Faxon, in the improvement of property adjacent to Quincy station and by the officials of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railway, who have assured us of their willingness

Of Quincy
Historical Society

John R. Arnold contributed a valuable paper on President John Adams, born in Quincy, at the recent meeting of the Quincy Historical Society and the Daily Ledger takes pleasure in printing it in full.

Shortly after the Revolution, there came a time when Americans began to take stock of the statesmen and soldiers who had made and fought it. Historical writing was at that time represented in this country by what I may call the cherry-tree and hatchet school. Their method of appraisaristocrat in him to give color to the charge.

Finally, he was very far from tactful in the way in which he spoke of his contemporaries. He may have been right, or wrong, when he denied that Washington was a first-rate statesman, or that Patrick Henry was a great orator; but he was certain to be misunderstood and disliked for saying it.

In addition to these personal peculiarities, he has been dealt hardly in the process of comparing him with certain other great men of his time, notably Jefferson and Hamilton. Where Adams' solid abilities were but half remembered, and, indeed somewhat resented, Jefferson, who united to talents no greater in themselves a warm confidence in the ordinary people, won popular gratitude and fame. Hamilton, it is true, had less confidence in the masses than had Adams. "Your people," he once said, "is a great beast." Yet his extraordinary financial achievements have given him a reputation which has been denied to Adams, a man who worked with as much single-mindedness of purpose, but did no one thing quite as great. It is this which leads the modern biographers of Hamilton to use language concerning our great fellow townsman, which might, I fear, shock some loyal Quincy people.

John Adams.

ing the great men of the generation just past was extremely simple. They lumped them altogether and put them up on exhibition as a job lot of illustrious patriots. Had anyone suggested to them that Washington was greater than John Adams, or John Adams than Israel Putnam, they would have answered him like the divinity-student who was asked to name the twelve minor prophets;—it was not for him to draw distinctions between those holy servants of God.

This state of mind has begotten a reaction; and by this reaction the lustre of some of these heroes has unavoidably been more or less dimmed. Among those who have thus suffered is John Adams and he has suffered moreover

IN THREE WAYS.

First, from certain peculiarities of his own character.

Secondly, from comparisons with certain other men of his time.

And finally, from a misunderstanding of his achievements.

The peculiarities of character to which I refer were his inflexibility and his tactlessness. It was the first of these qualities which caused him, when being shown certain holy pictures in an old monastery in Spain to omit making the sign of the cross; and this in such brusque fashion as to cause the custodian to exclaim, "Can it be that the gentleman is not a Christian?"

It was this same quality which prevented his being really popular, outside of New England with the mass of the people. To the end of his life he never put complete confidence in their political capacity; and, what is more, he had not the least scruple about telling them so. He believed, honestly, that political power should be kept in the hands, as he expressed it, of "the rich, the well-born, and the able";—and his political enemies remembered his words and used them against him.

Then again, he was accused of coldness. This was very far from just, for, from the time when he astonished the Turkish ambassador in London by the amount of tobacco he consumed, to the time when, at nearly ninety years old, he could still find a good story for every occasion, and every friend, he showed a keen appreciation of the ordinary comforts and

HUMORS OF LIFE.

Yet there was just enough of the

As the sum of it all

ARE WE TO ADMIT

that this depreciation is just? Are the admirers of Hamilton and Jefferson to have their own way for good and all? I believe we can answer no to both these questions if we look straightforwardly at John Adams' achievements, not being misled, as so many have been by their lack of picturesqueness and brilliancy. This at least is what I see in his career.

There are four main scenes. First, the revolutionary patriot, member of the Continental Congress, envoy to France, Holland and Spain; one of a body of men, not always wise perhaps, but still men who risked their lives, not to say their necks, for a cause; who stood it out through extremities of defeat and poverty, when mere fair weather politicians would have run howling for mercy; who made mistakes of judgment, but never lost sight of their main end, and never, save in rare instances, sacrificed it to any private gain.

Secondly, there is the Massachusetts statesman of the trying transition time, whose name lives particularly in connection with his greatest work, the present Massachusetts constitution. John Adams, Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin composed the sub-committee who prepared the first draft for the convention. There is some dispute as to just how the credit for the work should be divided between the two Adams, but there is no dispute in giving the highest praise to their joint production, a document which stands today the oldest written constitution in use on the earth, and one of the most satisfactory.

Thirdly, there is the statesman of the new nation;—Vice-President and then President during four troubled years, when all Europe was in a boiling ferment and would not have been altogether sorry to drag us in too. It is difficult to give too high praise to the combination of diplomacy and defiance which through all the weary mazes of French claims, and English counter-claims, brought us at last to an HONORABLE PEACE.

Finally there is the old man, living out a long and honored age in his native town, sought out by all the men of high position in his own country and by distinguished foreigners like Lafayette and the Duke of Weimar; reconciled to his great political enemy Jefferson and so regarded by his fellow townsmen that we are told that ministers who came to preach in his church brought their best sermons and had a certain consciousness in their demeanor, as if they were officiating before royalty. In a country where men come into public life late and are worked so hard that they usually die early, such a scene is as pleasant as it is rare, and a fitting and majestic close to the life about which it centered. It is the life, it is true, of a man of character rather than of action; of integrity and patience, rather than of brilliancy; but it seems to me that it can be only a short-sighted and one-sided judgment that denies it to be great.

A Famous Regiment.

It is doubtful if any other one regiment furnished an equal number of distinguished officers during the civil war as did the Second United States Cavalry. Among the officers were Albert Sidney Johnston, colonel; Robert E. Lee, lieutenant colonel; William J. Hardee, brevet lieutenant colonel; George H. Thomas, major; Robert E. Lee and A. S. Johnston became generals in the Confederate army, and Hardee became lieutenant general. Thomas became a distinguished general in the Federal army. Among the captains were Earl Van Dorn, E. Kirby Smith and N. G. Evans, all of whom became generals in the Confederate army. I. N. Palmer, George Stoneman and R. W. Johnson held the same positions in the Union army. Among the subalterns John B. Hood, Charles W. Field, Chambliss and Phifer became southern generals, and R. Garrard and others attained the same place in the northern army. Captain Evans left the United States' service before Colonel Robert E. Lee did, and when they parted at Fort Mason, Tex., Colonel Lee said: "I'm sorry to give you up, Evans. Don't know what may happen before we meet again. Perhaps they'll make you a general."

Helping Him Out.

Mr. Lord looked so grave one evening that his wife, a very young one, noticed it and asked what was the matter.

"I suppose business is troubling you," she surmised shrewdly. "If you've struck a snag, why don't you tell me, and perhaps I may be able to help you?"

After more affectionate adjuration Lord admitted that his payroll bothered him.

"I've made it up as far as the workmen go," he said, "but if I pay the stenographer there won't be a penny left for Davis and me. Davis says he can't stand that. He must have some money this month."

Lord's wife was momentarily grave; then her face brightened.

"Why don't you give the stenographer a month's vacation," she suggested eagerly, "then divide what there is with Davis? It seems to me," judicially, "that would be fair all round."—Youth's Companion.

The Story of Starlight.

"Once there was a group of sportsmen who were all quite broke," said a Jockey club official. "They must, however, get in to the races, and one at a time they presented themselves at the paddock gate.

"I am the owner of Starlight," the first said. He was well dressed and imposing. They believed and passed him in.

"I am Starlight's trainer," said the second. His red face and bluff manner bore out his story, and they admitted him.

"The third man, small and thin, next appeared.

"Starlight's jockey," he said shortly and hurried through the gate.

"The fourth and last man of the group was very shabby indeed.

"Well, who are you?" they said impatiently when he presented himself.

"I am Starlight," was the meek reply."—Los Angeles Times.

Navel Oranges.

Possibly not every one has heard the anecdote about the dear old mother whose son had been promoted to be first lieutenant in the navy. He sent her a box of fine navel oranges from Florida and this brief note:

Dear Mother—Just a handful of navel oranges, something you will find especially choice. Devotedly, JACK.

Speaking of Jack to some guests at the house a few nights later as they were enjoying the oranges, she remarked: "Just the very best boy in all the world, dear, dear Jack. What a splendid sailor, and every inch an officer! But he never could learn to spell. Just think of a lieutenant spelling navel with an 'e' and a small 'n.' Isn't it embarrassing to a mother? Still it sounds all the same when you speak it."—New York Press.

"The Morning Tub."

A few years ago a sister of mine called in to see an old lady who lived in a little cottage in Lincolnshire and in course of conversation happened to mention that she had a cold sponge-down every morning.

"Law, miss," said the old lady, "and does your mother know?"

"Yes, certainly, and she quite approves."

"Well," said the old lady, "Ah washes ml faace livery daay, an' Ah washes ml neck once a week, but Ah've niver bin washed all over since Ah was a baby."

This good lady lived to the ripe old age of ninety-three.—Cor. London News.

The Lotus Eaters.

The race of people to whom the name "Lotus Eaters" was applied was a Lybian tribe, known to the Greeks as early as the time of Homer. Herodotus describes their country and says that a caravan route led from it to Egypt. The lotus still grows there in great abundance—a prickly shrub bearing a fruit of a sweet taste, compared by Herodotus to that of the date. It is still eaten by the natives, and a kind of wine is made from its juice.

Superfluous.

Copy Reader—How will it do to head this story "A Growing Scandal?" City Editor—Cut out the "growing." That's redundant. A scandal always grows.—Chicago Tribune.

A Stowaway.

She (on the Atlantic liner)—Did you observe the great appetite of that stout man at dinner? He—Yes. He must be what they call a stowaway.—London Telegraph.

YOU COULD See This CITY GROW

If Your Dollar
Circulated in Quincy.

Why Do Country Boys
Flock to Big Cities?

Most small towns are short of young men. As a rule there are plenty of agreeable girls who would not object to matrimony; there are plenty of old people and enough babies to go around. But the boy—oh, where is he?

The boy, the young man, has gone to the city, where he imagines there are opportunities. To him the old home town is dull and stupid. He sees no future for himself there. Both for social and financial considerations he rushes off to the great city. Very frequently he finds that he is lonelier there than at home—nearly always so; and even more frequently he finds that riches do not grow on ten story walls.

BUT STILL HE GOES TO THE CITY.

In going there the boy simply follows his daddy's dollars. For years his daddy and his mother and his big sister and his Aunt Mary Ann have been mailing their money to the big city for Mail Order bargains.

Result: Home merchants don't thrive, grass grows in the streets, no jobs are to be had, no opening for a new business, and the young man goes to the city because it is a place where people have traded at home and built up their own community and provided opportunities for outsiders as well as for themselves.

IF YOU WANT TO KEEP YOUR BOY AT HOME BUILD UP YOUR TOWN SO THAT HE CAN BUILD UP HIS CAREER AMONG HIS HOME FOLKS.

Birthday Party.

Shirley Marie Brown, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H.
Brown, celebrated her fifth birthday
Tuesday afternoon, from four to seven o'clock at her home, 4 Goddard street. Seven little friends, Dorothy Dawson, Morris Wilson, Amelia Mc-Laughlin, Ethel and Mabel Thompson, Cordelia and Dorothy McLennan helped make a jolly time. Miss Lillian DeYoung kindly directed the games and music which were thoroughly enjoyed by the little ones. A delightful collation, including the traditional cake and candies, with May baskets and other floral decorations, not forgetting the ice cream, bonbons and other dainties dear to the childish heart, was a most successful feature. Little Shirley was the recipient of many pretty gifts from her little friends and also from other friends and relatives, and is justified
in the belief that being five years old is great fun.

More Light
At Houghs Neck

The City Council Committee on Streets paid a visit to Houghs Neck on Tuesday night, to see for themselves the need of additional street lights in this section. The Committee was to leave City Hall at 7.30, but at that time a heavy shower was in progress, and it was half hour later before a start was made.

The shower had passed by the time
the beach was reached and while a few stars were out the moon had not come through the clouds, so that the committee had a fine opportunity to see what was needed.

The main street is the only one that is lighted, and once outside of that the committee were plunged into inky darkness. It was necessary to pick their way with the greatest of caution,
as the holes in the street full of water,
and the rocks were a constant source of danger. That there is a great need of street lights on these streets there could be no question, and it did not take long to convince the committee that such was the case.

The street lighting committee of the Houghs Neck Associates acted as pilots for the party, and after being guided about in the darkness for a time they were steered to the top of Great hill,
where a stop was made at the residence of A. F. Baird, chairman of the lighting committee. The party were received by Mrs. Baird, who proved a charming hostess. Mrs. Baird, assisted by several other ladies, served the guest with a lunch. The committee returned to Quincy by a trolley car.

New Exalted Ruler.

William R. Thomas was duly installed
as exalted ruler of Quincy lodge of Elks on Tuesday evening. The ceremony of installation was performed by Lawrence
H. Sullivan and suite of Boston lodge.
In addition to the installation several were initiated and others were elected to membership. During the evening Daniel J. Deasy, the retiring exalted ruler, was presented a life membership card in a solid gold case. The presentation on speech was by Lawrence H. Sullivan. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Flying Fish.

At one time it was widely credited that flying fish possessed the power to accelerate their passage through the air by flapping their "wings," as their enormously elongated pectoral fins are sometimes called. Had this been proved these fish would have actually shared with bats, birds and insects a power which has been denied to all other living creatures. But men of science are now agreed that the motion of the fins sometimes seen when the fish
leaves the water is merely a continuation of its swimming movement and in no way aids the passage of the fish through the air. The method of the fish's flight is this: It rushes through the water at high speed, curls itself into the atmosphere and, spreading its huge winglike fins, glides rapidly forward until its momentum is exhausted.
Then it drops back again into the water. So great is the impetus gained that these fish under favorable conditions will "fly" for a distance of 500 feet. But when once the impetus is exhausted the fish is quite unable to sustain itself in the air by muscular effort.—Scientific American.

Where the Joke Lay.

He was an Englishman, taking a trip
on a Welsh excursion steamboat, and he was watching a group of Welsh colliers larking with one another, when they suddenly seized one of their companions and swung him to and fro.
The victim shrieked in terror as the ringleader shouted:

"Now, boys, overboard with 'im!"

So real was the horror of the collier that the Englishman jumped up and interfered successfully. The collier picked himself up and backed to a safe seat next the Englishman, who sternly reproved him for uttering such nerve shattering cries.

"It was only a joke, and you must have known it," he said.

The collier wiped his forehead.
"Iss, I knowed famous it was a joke," he retorted, "an' that's why I did screech blue murrurr. Eu don't know the boys, surr. The joke with them was to chuck me overboard. Thank eu kindly for stoppin' 'em!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Didn't Want to Tell.

The late Professor Greene, author of Greene's Analysis and the English Grammar with which so many have wrestled in their school days, was one of the most genial and fatherly of men.
During the later years of his life he was professor of mathematics and astronomy in a New England college.
There was in one of his classes a somewhat slow witted though studious
young man, whom we will call Jones.
On a certain occasion after Jones had repeated carefully the text book statements about the effects of the motions
of the earth and was trying to remember what came next in the book the professor interposed with:

"Were you ever in the shadow of the earth, Mr. Jones?"

Jones (slowly)—No, sir.
Professor—Where do you spend your nights, sir?

Jones didn't want to tell.—Universalist Leader.

to co-operate with our committee in their efforts to further improve station surroundings. The committee appreciates the prompt compliance of the commissioner of Public Works with a request to place receptacles for rubbish, of which the public was quick to make use.

The most extensive enterprise engaging the committee was the setting of two hundred trees on Codington and Sea streets. This was made possible by generous contributions from abutters toward defraying the cost of the trees, the actual setting of which was done by the department of Public Works under the able personal supervision of Commissioner Bainbridge. The club-house grounds have been plowed, which is the first move toward a general improvement of club house surroundings while in the club house a room has been completely furnished for the special use of the civic committee. At Atlantic the sub-committee have been instrumental in securing a general cleaning up of private property and they are especially grateful to the department of Public Works for the excellent condition of streets and public grounds.

The committee is at present engaged in setting shrubbery upon the grounds of Atlantic station and they are encouraged in the hope of securing the removal of the obnoxious board signs now standing on the easterly side of the station.

One of the largest general meetings under the auspices of this committee was devoted to a discussion of tuberculosis, the meeting being addressed by Dr. Arthur Cabot, chairman of the Anti-tuberculosis Association of the State of Massachusetts, Mrs. Rufus P. Williams, Chairman of the Health Department of the General Federation of Women's clubs, Dr. Elliot Washburn, Medical Inspector of Norfolk County, and Drs. John A. Gordon and N. S. Hunting, of Quincy. That the citizens of Quincy may more fully realize the alarming extent of tuberculosis now prevailing in our city, it is planned to have in the near future an exhibit demonstrating care and prevention of this most dreaded disease. It is hoped that Quincy will profit by the marked success attending the adoption of plans for systematic money-saving by pupils in public schools. Efforts are now being directed to that end.

Grateful acknowledgement is made to Mrs. Herbert Lawton, for a delightful afternoon musicale at her home and the substantial amount of the proceeds applied to the funds of the committee.

Mention should be made also of a dancing and whist party held at Atlantic by the sub-committee for that section of the city. With the inspiration of past achievements and plans already in hand with every assurance of their accomplishment, the club may look with confidence for continued advancement along the lines of social, ethical and economic improvement of our city.

Continuing along the broad and liberal lines adopted by the club, the community at large may be helped to realize that while Quincy may take pardonable pride in its history and while its citizens may rest content in the enjoyment of its many natural advantages, the living up to the traditions of its aristocracy and a realization of the growth of its industries, there is room for improvement even in its low death rate, its high tax rate, and its civic pride. And while we may boast of its permanent place in history and its desirability as a place of residence, it is only the city clean and the city beautiful that inspires and holds the love of its citizens.

On hand, $107.40; Received Musicale, $75.00; Assembly, $105.00; Atlantic Party, $60.00; Mrs. Livingstone, $5.00; Tree Fund, $52.25; Total, $434.65.

EDUCATION.

Vacation Schools Maintained—Home Gardens Encouraged, Etc.

The Education committee organized July 6th, with chairman and sixteen members. Have held five meetings during the year for the transaction of business. The first work to be taken up was the Summer Vacation schools.

The Sloyd classes with Mrs. W. O. Wellington, chairman and Mr. Charles Sampson instructor. Twelve sessions were held from July 8th to Aug. 2d. Owing to the large number of boys enrolled and the small supply of benches, the work was divided into two classes of one and one-half hours each. The average attendance was very satisfactory, the boys keeping up their interest throughout. The interesting exhibition of Sloyd which attracted so much attention at the Children's festival on April 25, showed great increase in character and quality of work.

The girls' vacation club under the management of Mrs. R. R. Freeman, held twelve sessions beginning July 9th. The meetings were held Tuesdays and Fridays from 9 to 11.30 A. M.

On Friday, Aug. 16th, an entertainment was given by members of the club, for the benefit of parents and friends, refreshments were served and an opportunity given to inspect the sewing accomplished by the girls during the summer. Owing to an unfortunate accident Miss Faxon, our capable and much loved sewing teacher was obliged to resign her position after three lessons and Miss Kelley was secured as her successor of whose efficiency and kindness we cannot speak too highly. It had been customary to give the children a picnic after the exhibition but this year a tour of Boston in one of the sight-seeing automobiles was substituted to the satisfaction of all. The membership of over sixty was surprisingly large owing in no small degree to the attractive place of meetings and central location. The girls of the Vacation club also brought flowers and carried them to the Hospital each session.

The home gardens under the direction of Mrs. Wilson Marsh, is a branch of the educational work which should be encouraged. All children should live out of doors as much as possible, and be encouraged to have little gardens of their own to study and care for. Every effort in the direction of home gardens is not only a benefit to those who enter the contest but is a pleasure to every one in the home. Children's gardens are to be encouraged this summer as usual and seeds have been furnished the children for a small sum and prizes are to be awarded for the best results.

The dates allotted the committee on the club calendar were for Jan. 14 and April 14th, the first lecture was by Mrs. Isabelle Davis on "Voice and Gesture" which proved very interesting to the large audience present. The speaker for the afternoon of April 14th was Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead, of Boston, so widely known by her great labors for the spread of peace and arbitration.

An extra meeting on Dec. 4th at High school hall, was given complimentary to Quincy teachers. The speaker, Miss Jane Brownlee, of Toledo, Ohio, a lecturer and teacher of wide experience, who spoke upon the subject of "The Moral and Civic Training of Children."

The Children's festival on April 25th at Quincy Music hall, was a financial success realizing about $180, and the money is to be used for summer work. The Education committee is working along broad educational lines and among the children. We are indebted to Superintendent of Schools Frank E. Parlin, the Unity Circle of King's Daughters, Miss Elizabeth Johnson, and others, for kindly cooperation.

HOSPITALITY.

A Cordial Welcome and Many Guests Entertained.

Our committee consisting of twenty members, have endeavored to entice the spirit of hospitality at each meeting. To produce this end we deemed it advisable at the beginning of the year to sub-divide our work so as to have a specified group at each meeting. The committees have been most efficient in their various capacities, namely a receiving, introducing and serving tea. At all excepting open meetings custodians have been furnished for each door. During the year the club has entertained 166 guests at their eleven teas; we have kept well within our appropriation. Further details regarding receipts and disbursements of our committee will be found in the report of our treasurer.

Fannie M. Sheppard, chairman.

HOUSE COMMITTEE.

Answer Some Questions Relative to the Clubhouse.

The House committee's report for the year 1907-1908, is all embodied in the financial statement of the treasurer. There is no need for a repetition of the various amounts of money expended, but the chairman asks your consideration for a little statement of what might be called the position of the Quincy Women's club, from the standpoint of a disinterested outsider, and for some recommendations for the coming year, 1908 and 1909.

The questions, "Who owns the Club House?" "What is the Brackett Charitable Trust Incorporated?" "Why do we not save our money and build a Club House?" have come to the writer so many times during the present season, that it seemed advisable at this time to repeat what was thoroughly understood by the original 200 or more women organizers of the Quincy Women's club.

Taking the questions in order: "Who owns the Club House?" The Brackett Charitable Trust Incorporated holds it in trust.

"What is the Brackett Charitable Trust, Incorporated?" The Brackett Trust, Incorporated (according to provisions of chap. 125 of the Revised Laws of Commonwealth of Massachusetts) is constituted for the purpose of establishing and maintaining a building or place to be used by the literary, educational, benevolent, religious and charitable societies of Quincy in this Commonwealth, or its vicinity, or by one or more of them, for the purposes of its or their organization and for the purpose of otherwise aiding or advancing literary, educational, benevolent, religious or charitable work or interest in said Quincy and its vicinity.

List of incorporators April 8, 1905, Jeffrey A. Brackett, Boston, George D. Burrage, Brookline; George B. Dewson, Quincy; John A. Gordon, Quincy; Elizabeth Johnson, East Braintree; Delcavare King, Quincy; Alice D. Sanborn, Quincy.

Property held in trust and leased to Quincy Women's Club for five years from May 1, 1905, is assessed on a valuation (1905-1906) of $12,250.00. Between 42,000 and 43,000 feet of land. The building thereon is insured for $13,000.

(3) The third question remains open for your final decision, May 1, 1910, whether you wish to release without rental or to build or own another house in a different locality. In order to hold property either acquired or inherited, the club must either be duly incorporated or authorize a Board of Trustees who shall act for it.

Now for the recommendations: In the opinion of the present chairman for your House committee, the club should establish a sinking fund. To this should be credited annually any unexpended balance at the end of the fiscal year.

Second, the fiscal year should have a definite date for closing, and no accounts should be carried over. I had hoped that these amendments would be definitely presented either by the treasurer or the auditor. Each of these officers must have experienced great inconvenience in the past from the arrangement as it stands in the charter of the club.

Further amendments should be made to Article I, section 3, regarding membership fees. The committee on elections, Mrs. Z. S. Arnold, chairman, will I hope, consider the wording of such an amendment before also the time of the election comes around in 1909.

The committee also recommends that Article VI regarding guests be so amended that any entertainment or afternoon held outside the house should be an unlimited guest afternoon, proceeds to be for club purposes, or as may be decided by executive board.

The committee also recommends the following improvements for the coming year:

1. The building of a sloping platform at least sufficiently large to hold a piano, speaker's or president's table and that of the recording secretary.

2nd. The hanging of drapery at the archway in reception hall and doorways from the entrance hall into the drawing room.

3d. Some simple ventilating device for the assembly rooms.

4th. The building and locating of a suitable rack for umbrellas.

5th. The placing of a granolithic pavement at the carriage entrance way and a suitable covered way.

6th. Carpeting the main stair case.

7th. Providing adequate lighting of the assembly rooms.

8th. Putting running water on the street floor of the club house.

9th. A guest registration book should be provided.

The care of the grounds comes by special request, under the jurisdiction of the Civic Betterment Committee, and what has been done and what proposed, will be reported by the chairman, Mrs. Whitteher.

10th. The furniture and fittings in the house should be insured and accurately listed.

We have been successful financially the account for the year being:

Alice D. Sanborn, chairman.

MUSIC.

Fortunate in Having So Much Talent Among Members.

This committee has furnished music for each regular meeting of the club, for the musicale of January twenty-eighth, and for two extra meetings, the lecture by Miss Brownlee, on the evening of December fourth, when the Mendelssohn trio sang and for the recent thimble party given by the Philanthropy committee. We are fortunate in having so much musical talent right among our own club members, the Mendelssohn trio, with their accompanist, and the double quartet, all members of the club. Of the thirty-one musicians who have appeared before the club, the past year, seventeen are residents of Quincy, and a majority club members. We extend thanks to the chairman of the Arts and Crafts committee, who kindly furnished the means by which one of our committee was enabled to secure Mr. Clarence H. Wilson, baritone in the quartet of Harvard church, Brookline for the meeting of February eleventh, to the Philergian Ladies' quartet of Braintree, who furnished music for Reciprocity day, to our capable accompanist, Mrs. Sampson, for her services throughout the season, and to the club members for their cordial support and appreciation.

Susie Wales Hayward, Chairman.

PHILANTHROPIC WORK.

A Conference of Charities Follows Each Meeting.

The Philanthropic committee numbers thirteen, representing five wards of the city. Ten committee meetings have been held during the year, and three open meetings at the club-house. Juvenile delinquents and charity organizations have been the chief subjects considered.

At the October meeting Mrs. Andrews, a worker in Boston, explained the Juvenile court system of that city. The following month Mr. C. H. Johnson, our truant officer told of his understanding of conditions in this city. On the succeeding month we were able to compare our conditions with those of other like cities through an address by Mr. Davis, the probation officer for this district, representing the State Board of Charities. Mr. Spear, our local probation officer, kindly sanctioned any investigation or assistance and extended an invitation to any session of the Juvenile Court here.

As there is something lacking in the home environment of almost every juvenile delinquent our ambition is to provide a volunteer probation officer for each boy, believing that the friendly attention and interest of such is most needed.

For the past four months, a conference of charities has been called following our regular committee-meeting. These conferences have been attended by ten to fifteen ladies representing different charitable organizations. Three from each ward have been elected to form a board for investigation of needy cases. Several cases have been reported and satisfactorily disposed of. At our next meeting June 2d, which will be held here at three o'clock we hope to have with us one of Mr. Brackett's co-workers to assist and direct us for further work. Any interested will be most welcome to this meeting. Although we realize that this is but a very small beginning towards an associated charities yet we believe it is a start and that the habit of regular monthly conference must surely develop into greater and better accomplishments in time.

Our city home has been visited and we hope to soon arrange some kind of regular entertainment for the inmates, a need of which seems evident. At our January meeting, Mrs. Locke, representing the National Society of First Aid to the Injured, told us of her work and it is our belief that she will be able to form classes from our club, in the fall, when the subject will again be presented.

On Aug. 10, twenty from a Working Girls' club connected with Denslow House, were entertained at the club house. We provided music and refreshments and the mid-summer attractions of the house and its grounds were enjoyed to such an extent that we too sensed the beauties of our club home in a new way.

Our second public effort was for the club meeting of Nov. 12th, when Mr. J. R. Brackett spoke on Charity Organization work to an appreciative audience which more than filled our rooms.

The last open meeting was a Recognition Party on May 5th, when an attempt was made to promote friendly intercourse among our club members. Hat trimming had been solicited for Chelsea sufferers and through the kindness of the Arts and Crafts Committee a most attractive display of hats is ready for your disposal today.

THE YEAR BOOK.

Considered the Best Issued by Twenty Clubs.

Your Printing committee has very little to report. With the exception of the printing of simple notices, the biennial Year Book has been the only work of this committee. Four hundred and fifty were printed. The committee may be pardoned for quoting form a letter received by a member of our club. The president of the Pawtucket Woman's club writes: "I have looked over twenty Year Books and consider yours the best of all."

Alice Maud Arnold, Chairman.

ATTRACTIVE PROGRAM.

Outlined by the Program Committee for Coming Year.

The Program committee has been increased recently by the addition of two very efficient members, Mrs. Robert E. Park of Wollaston and Mrs. Seth Ellis Pope of Atlantic. During the past year fourteen meetings (including today) have been held, of which nine were lectures, one a musicale, one reciprocity afternoon, one a demonstration by the Arts and Crafts committee and two were opening and closing meetings. Eleven teas were furnished during the season. Several extra meetings of great interest were given by various committees, which will be spoken of by individual chairmen.

Last year, the chairmen of the several committees, together with the Program committee, labored under the great disadvantage of being elected to office late in the spring, and so it was not possible for them to get the next season's program in shape for printing in its complete form in the Year Book. This year, of course, no such condition prevails. An effort has been made to make next year's program more varied in character, and it is hoped that each member will find something in it to attract her. Extra meetings will be given on Equal Suffrage, First Aid to the Injured, also it is hoped to give a Children's day when all the children of club members will be entertained. The program as outlined will be as follows:

Oct. 13. Reception to Officers, orchestra, business, social and tea.

Oct. 28. Civic committee — Edward Howard Griggs. Tea.

Nov. 24. 10. Visiting Nurse. Open meeting. Tea.

EXCEEDED HIS RIGHT

President Wrongfully Inflicted Punishment Upon Stewart

THAT IS RAYNOR'S OPINION

The Case of Exiled Army Officer is Brought Before the Senate—Chief Executive Sharply Criticized For His Action in the Matter

Washington, May 13.—Senator Rayner of Maryland addressed the senate on his resolution directing the president to order a court of inquiry to investigate the case of Colonel Stewart of the coast artillery.

Colonel Stewart was "exiled" to Fort Grant, Arizona, on charges. Rayner declared at the outset that he was not taking the action for partisan advantage. After next December, he continued, Stewart will be the ranking colonel of both field and coast artillery. The senator said that Stewart was located at an abandoned military post, with only two human companions, a caretaker and a teamster. He was twenty-five miles from a railroad and seventy-five miles from a surgeon.

"He could not summon the surgeon without first communicating with the war department in Washington," said Rayner. "He could not communicate with any other post or office except through the Washington authorities."

Quoting one of Stewart's letters in which the latter reminded the adjutant general that every man ought to be presumed to be innocent until proved guilty, Rayner said:

"The colonel is mistaken. The maxim has been reversed. Under this administration every man is presumed to be guilty until he proves himself to be innocent."

The senator read the charges against Stewart. He said they were "trivial." The president had explained to Rayner that Stewart had certain "temperamental infirmities" that made him emphasize his opinions. "In other words," he wanted his own way, said Rayner.

"What a pity that Stewart could not have emulated the temperamental poise of the constitutional commander-in-chief," suggested Rayner, "that poise which has given us the most serene, placid and conservative administration in the history of this country."

Mr. Rayner read his letter to the president stating his purpose to introduce in the senate a resolution demanding an inquiry into the Stewart case and then read the president's reply, interpolating his own comments on the president's words as he went along.

"At present I do not see how a court of inquiry could be of use," the president stated in his letter, "as I do not see how any court could express an opinion which I could pay more heed to than the judgment of Wade, Grant, Murray, Duval and Davis, on whose judgment I have acted."

Mr. Rayner paused in the reading to declare that with a single exception these officers named by the president had been promoted over the head of Stewart to the positions they now occupy.

Continuing, he read the president's letter, saying that the charges against Stewart already had been established and he did not see what more a court of inquiry could do. "This," exclaimed Rayner, "is the president's interpretation of his constitutional prerogative. He has never been paralleled in the military records of American history. I challenge the production of a case that is a parallel to it."

Mr. Rayner declared that the president, as commander-in-chief of the army, was under the control of congress and had no right to punish an officer without a court, and no commanding general had such right. He declared that the president was determined to keep Stewart in exile for three years, when he would be retired on account of age, and he added:

"The president says to him 'stay there or surrender and retire.' No such edict was ever contemplated in the imperial armies of central Europe." He declared that abroad army officers lose their identity, but in the United States the constitution guarantees every man's life, liberty and property unless taken from him by due process of law. "Now, what is a court of inquiry?" the senator asked, and, answering his own question, said: "I know all about them. I had four months' experience with one (referring to the Schley court, in which he was counsel for Schley). I am sorry to say it was packed, but it was a court."

He spoke of the Dreyfus case in France as having been tried before a court, even though witnesses against the officer perjured themselves.

"It makes my blood boil to fever heat to hear the president announce such an outrage against any man," he declared. "If the man is guilty, he should be convicted; if innocent, he should be acquitted; in any event he should be tried."

Unusual White House Function
Washington, May 13.—As a prelude to the conference for the conservation of the natural resources of the country, President Roosevelt gave a dinner at the White House last night to the governors who are here to attend the conference. It was the first social function at which the President of the United States met the chief executives of the various states and territories.

TROLLEY ABSORPTION

Talk of Maine Railways Being Taken by the New Haven Road
Portland, Me., May 13.—Maine is facing a trolley merger situation similar to that existing in Massachusetts, with the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company conspicuously to the fore as the dominating factor in the situation here, as it is there, and the Boston and Maine merger an important element of it.

Because of this Maine merger situation that is now looming up, the decision of the Massachusetts supreme court declaring illegal the trolley merger in that state and holding that the purchase and ownership of Massachusetts street railways by the New York, New Haven and Hartford road is a transgression of the law, has excited considerable interest in this state. It is thought the decision may have an important bearing upon the big trolley merger problem brought to the front in Maine through the operations of a group of capitalists now engaged in the work of consolidating a number of trolley lines in this state into a single system, that is to be absorbed bodily later on, it is said, by the New Haven company.

Fatal Plunge In Icy Waters

Boston, May 13.—Just what prompted Miss Alice C. Loud, a handsome and refined young woman of this city, to go to the lonesome stretch of beach off Fort Winthrop late at night for a dip in the icy waters of the ocean, where her lifeless body was discovered by soldiers, will probably never be known. That she arrived at the beach between 9:30 o'clock and midnight, undressed, and donned her bathing suit on the piazza of a small bungalow is the evidence found by the police. She was to have been married June 1 to Rev. Hiram Vrooman, pastor of the Church of the New Jerusalem, Providence.

Vetoed by Acting Governor

Boston, May 13.—Acting Governor Draper vetoed three bills yesterday. To the senate he sent his veto of the bills to increase the salaries of the justices of the supreme judicial and the superior courts, declaring: "My sole reason for returning these bills at this time without my approval is because of existing financial and business conditions." To the house Draper returned with his objections the bill to pay sheriffs who are masters of houses of correction $2000 additional to their salaries.

Maine's New Congressman

Lewiston, Me., May 13.—John P. Swasey of Canton was nominated on the first ballot at the Second congressional district Republican convention for congressman from that district, to succeed Congressman Charles E. Littlefield, whose resignation will take effect in September next. Swasey received 212 votes, Harold M. Sewall of Bath 123 and George C. Wing of Auburn 17. A motion to make the nomination unanimous was carried.

Driven to Suicide by Worry

Springfield, Mass., May 13.—Richard Hale Smith, 63 years old, chairman of the board of public works of this city and president of the R. Hale Smith Manufacturing company, committed suicide in his office by shooting through the head with a revolver. The cause of the suicide was worry over his business and nervousness induced by frequent illnesses. He was the pioneer of the country in the rubber stamp business.

Fireman Dies of Poisoning

Boston, May 13.—The nineteenth victim of the Chelsea fire of April 12 died last night, when Captain Peter Callahan of engine 4 died of acute blood poisoning. During the fire Callahan was stationed in East Boston. The collar of a rubber coat he was wearing poisoned his neck and he did not recover. Callahan had been in the department for twenty-one years.

Bates Excels in Debate

Lewiston, Me., May 13.—Bates college won her seventeenth debating victory out of nineteen contests by defeating Queen's college of Kingston, Ont., here last night. The question for discussion was: "Resolved, That Great Britain should make a substantial departure from her policy of free trade with respect to imports."

Package of Jewelry Astray

Worcester, Mass., May 13.—It is learned that a package of jewelry valued at several thousand dollars, shipped from an express office at Newton by L. B. Harding, a Boston wool merchant, to his mother in this city, on April 12, never reached its destination. The package contained diamonds and sapphires.

Amherst Student Drowned

Amherst, Mass., May 13.—George H. Clough of New York, aged 21, a member of the junior class in Amherst college, was drowned while canoeing on the Connecticut river. A high wind overturned the canoe and Clough started to swim ashore. He is supposed to have been attacked by cramps.

Unknown Man Drowned

Newport, R. I., May 13.—The body of a man about 65 years old was found washing on the rocks near the naval training station. Among the effects found on the body were a silver watch, $33 in money and a ticket for a passage on the steamer Puritan from New York to Boston via Fall River.

No Light on Manner of Death of Those Found In Them

TOOTH FOUND IN THE DEBRIS

Believed to Have Come From Skull of Supposed Murderess—Interesting Evidence Hitherto Suppressed Is Made Public

La Porte, Ind., May 13.—Evidence to establish the identity of three additional victims of Mrs. Belle Gunness was the most positive development of a day filled with contradictory happenings here yesterday. Both prosecution and defense received setbacks from the discoveries and revelations, but on the whole substantial progress was made toward bringing the case to the stage where it will be transferred to the courts.

The reports of the four persons who conducted the post-mortem examinations on the bodies found in the ruins of the Gunness home, burned on April 28, were given to the coroner's jury yesterday. They fail to establish the manner in which the woman and three children met death and it is probable that the coroner's jury will return an open verdict regarding them.

The procedure in Indiana does not provide for coroner's juries, so the finding will be the individual conclusions of Coroner Mack. Dr. Mack says that he has no idea as to what his return will be.

The prosecuting attorney is not dependent upon the coroner for findings upon which to base grand jury or other court action. The two officials in this case are, in fact, proceeding almost independently of each other.

Prosecutor Smith is still collecting evidence which he asserts will connect Ray Lamphere with the death of Mrs. Gunness and her three children, and in this work he is being aided by the sheriff.

A gold-crowned tooth has been found in the debris of the Gunness home. It is believed to be from the head of Mrs. Gunness. The tooth was found in the debris of the cellar where Sheriff Smutzer was continuing his preparations to begin sluicing the ashes. The tooth is a hollow molar with a gold crown, the metal being indented and to some extent encrusted by cinders. The tooth, however, bears every evidence of having come from the incinerated skull of Mrs. Gunness.

Evidence which has hitherto been suppressed was made public yesterday. It is contained in the report of Dr. Gray, who performed the autopsy on the body which the authorities have claimed is that of Mrs. Gunness. Gray tells of three rings which were found upon the corpse and also reveals the fact that the right hand, hitherto declared missing, is still in existence.

The rings add to the mystery of the case. Two of them contain inscriptions, one being "P. S. to J. S., August 22, 00," and the other, "P. G. to J. S., 3-5, '05." Mrs. Gunness' husband was Peter Gunness, but the identity of "J. S." and "P. S." is a puzzle.

Additional evidence regarding the methods by which the persons whose corpses were found on the Gunness farm met death has been unearthed. Almost two dozen pairs of scissors, bent and curved in the fashion of surgical instruments, are said to have been found in the ashes in the cellar and in addition three knives, two of a surgical character and an unmistakable dirk, were picked up.

The legal forces of the defense have been strengthened by the addition of Ellsworth E. Weir, whose retention followed closely on the arrival of William Lamphere, father of the prisoner.

A Daring Assassination

New York, May 13.—In the midst of a crowd of passengers leaving the Sixth avenue elevated railroad station at Twenty-eighth street last night two assassins with knives lay in wait at the first landing of the stairway, sprang upon one of the descending passengers and stabbed him so severely that he died an hour later. The men quickly escaped. The dead man apparently an Armenian and the police think that was the victim of a Hunchakist plot.

Swamps Should Be Reclaimed

Washington, May 13.—In an address before the national drainage congress, which met here, William J. Bryan said he was heartily in sympathy with the movement for the reclamation of the swamp lands of this country through drainage. Bryan expressed the opinion that the bringing of the swamp lands of the country under cultivation would mean a wonderful addition to the wealth of those sections and to the wealth of the country at large.

Church and School Burned

Cleveland, May 13.—The church and school of the Immaculate Heart of the Blessed Virgin Mary were completely destroyed by fire. Church and school occupied the same building. The total loss is $15,000. The fire was started by a candle which fell in the church, igniting the tapestries.

[Original.]

Enid Ford not only possessed a fortune, but, her father and mother being dead, there was no one to direct her movements in any respect. Walker Brooks was an eligible party, being also wealthy, and, although he was not intellectual and had no object in life, Enid had concluded that their two estates united would involve many advantages. She gave him some encouragement. He proposed and was accepted.

In memory of her parents Enid built a little church in the town where she lived. When it was finished she cast about for some one to take charge of it as pastor. Laurence Keith, a recent graduate of a theological seminary, was recommended and finally chosen for the position.

Keith was one of those young men who from the first indicate that they are destined to make their mark in the world. He had, first of all, that requisite for a pastor, the gift of extempore utterance. When he had anything to say to his congregation he did not halt nor hesitate for words nor become inextricably involved in the construction of sentences.

Being at the head of a church built and endowed by Enid Ford, there were many things constantly arising for them to talk over. They invariably confined themselves to church and charitable interests, seldom if ever dropping into that small talk so natural to young people. Indeed, Mr. Keith treated Miss Ford as the owner of the church of which he was pastor, and Miss Ford treated Mr. Keith as the pastor of the church of which she was owner.

When Mr. Keith had administered the affairs of the church and its congregation a year Miss Ford said to him:

"I am very well pleased, Mr. Keith, with my selection of a pastor for my church. There is, however, one recommendation you do not possess. A clergyman should have a wife. On your salary, I admit, marriage would be unwise, but I can relieve this deficiency. Your salary for the next year will be double what it has been."

Mr. Keith thought a few moments, then declined the raise with the condition, whereupon Miss Ford assured him that there was no condition attached, and he was satisfied. A few more matters of business were talked over between them, when Miss Ford said:

"I have a request to make of you—an invitation to extend to you—and I don't wish you to be influenced in your acceptance by our relative positions. Perhaps I am making too much of the matter, but everything connected with a girl's main event in life, marriage, is the cause of deep feeling to her."

"I can understand that, and it should be so. What is this invitation?"

"Will you marry me?" Mr. Keith looked at the girl in astonishment, then, instead of making a reply, turned and walked back and forth for several minutes in deep thought. Meanwhile Miss Ford looked at him, equally surprised.

"I do not think," he said at last, "that such a course would be well for either of us. In a career such as mine wealth possessed by my wife would be a detriment to me, for my view of wealth is that it belongs to the poor. I have observed that, however liberal rich people are, their wealth is their paramount interest. With this predisposition to hold and increase what you have, I would advise you to marry a rich man."

It is needless to say that Miss Ford listened to this with interest. Mr. Keith had mistaken her entirely. What she intended to ask of him was that he would perform the marriage ceremony soon to take place between her and Walker Brooks. He had supposed that she, being rich, had considered it her part to propose marriage. When he had finished speaking, instead of informing him of his blunder she said:

"What you say is worthy of thoughtful consideration."

A week later Mr. Brooks received a note from his fiancée stating that she had come to the conclusion that she was not the woman she would marry; that she had resolved to spend her income in doing good only and not in pleasure seeking. Mr. Brooks was somewhat disappointed at losing so considerable an addition to his fortune, calculating to spend the united income in fashionable living. But he weighed the matter and decided that he would rather give up Miss Ford's fortune than see it expended in building institutions. He released her.

From this time Miss Ford began to rely on her pastor in certain expenditures which she designed on account of his experience in the line she proposed to spend the money and because of his administrative ability, which was of the first order. It was not long before their interests became identical. Miss Ford furnished the means for good, and Mr. Keith saw that the money went into many a household where it was not only a godsend, but was expended to a practical purpose. One evening after they had been talking of these matters Miss Ford said:

"Mr. Keith, I once gave you an invitation which you declined. Were the situation now what you inferred it to be, your reasons for declining would have been excellent. But since then I have made my calling your calling I see no reason why a fortune held in trust, as I hold mine, for the poor should not continue to go through you to the greatest good. Again I ask, will you marry me?"

The second invitation was accepted. EMMALINE C. BURKE.

VISITING NURSE.

Over 800 Visits in the Year—Over 130 in One Month.

For three years a visiting nurse has been established in Quincy, and at the termination of this, the third year, we have every reason for encouragement. The work has grown steadily from its beginning. The physicians and people in general are realizing more and more the comfort and convenience of having a trained nurse at their disposal.

The very poor, those of limited income and the well to do—all have occasion to require her services.

We are fortunate in being able to retain our present nurse, Miss Estelle Robinson. She has given faithful, efficient and untiring service. Last August many sick babies needed and received her intelligent care. Through the long hot days she labored tirelessly, deferring her vacation until September because she was unwilling to leave the work while her service was so necessary.

138 visits were made during this month, the largest number in any one month since the establishment of the work. Eleven doctors required her services for eighteen patients. 845 visits were made during the year, 48 more than last year and 163 more than the first year, thus showing a steady growth. $175.95 has been received in fees. This is a large gain over last year, when $90.49 was collected.

$640.53 have been received for the support of the work. $546.54 have been expended, leaving a balance of $93.99. There was a balance the first year of $186.24, the second year of $35.57, leaving in the treasury at the present time $315.80.

There has never been a time when the Committee had cause to be over anxious regarding their financial condition. The large contribution from our club together with the generous and voluntary gifts from individuals and societies has made the salary problem an easy one, demonstrating, it seems to me, that the value of the work is recognized and appreciated.

We are appreciative of Dr. Brackett's gift each year of $100, of Miss Elizabeth Johnson's continued interest in the work, her donation this year being 12 sheets, pillow cases and towels for the nurse's room.

We are grateful to the Unity Circle, K. D., for their subscription of $50, to Bethany Circle for its gift of $10 for the supply closet and for the various and generous gifts of individuals.

We appreciate also the efforts of one of our ladies in the collecting and selling of rubber, thereby swelling our receipts to the amount of $26.10.

Indeed we wish to thank most sincerely every one who has helped to support and make successful this work.

Emma F. Welch, Chairman.

WOMAN'S EXCHANGE.

Several Successful Sales—Cooking Lessons Next Fall.

The Woman's Exchange of the Quincy Women's club has just reached its first milestone, therefore this is its maiden report. Formerly the Exchange was a branch of the Arts and Crafts committee but a year ago was made a committee by itself. The work has been conducted by twelve women, nearly all of whom have been able to do active work.

We commenced the year with the following stock in trade:—4 tumblers of jelly, 1 jar of preserve, 1 bottle of grape juice.

A few articles were received the first afternoon and the profit amounted to $2.08, as we received a donation of $6 cents.

We have held 13 sales. Our total receipts for the year amount to $87.40 making an average of $6.74 at a sale. The largest amount received at a sale was $11.44. The smallest amount, $2.08, taken the first afternoon. We have received articles from 30 different consignors, food, fancy and useful articles.

Our commission is 10 per cent on each article sold, thus we have received $8.74.

Feb. 11 we held a candy sale which netted $10.67.

We have had no expenditures, paper, string, bags, boxes and a counter being donated by members of the committee and the club. Our total profits are $19.41.

The sum may seem small but you must remember that we are young and have much to learn.

Another year we hope to have lectures along the lines of practical cooking and feel that if the ladies support us as faithfully with their patronage in the future as they have in the past, we shall be able to do a larger work the coming year.

Mabel S. Badger, Chairman.

POWER FOR GOOD.

Says the President in Her Annual Report.

Certainly the reports to which we have listened so attentively this afternoon, prove that the members of our club since its organization have used every effort in the interests of charity.

I place entertainment also on the charitable side of our work. We enjoy it, and we need it, every heart has its sorrows. Many are such that it is almost impossible to rise above them, and yet we do rise above them with the help of loving friends; I consider the Women's club as one of the helps to this end. Perhaps we are weary, affairs do not run smoothly. What better place than our women's club, with its music, its lectures, its social atmosphere? George B. McDonald has said "If I could put the touch of a rosy sunset into the life of any man or woman, I should feel I had worked with God." Not a bad motto for our club if we keep it in practice.

If we were not a charitable organization this club house would not be exempt from taxation. Consequently we must do all we can towards earning this privilege. Every club takes pride in its philanthropic work. We are very proud of the fact that we have been the means of introducing and establishing a "visiting nurse." This was our first step in philanthropy. We have added to this a sewing-school for girls, sloyd class for boys, "children's gardens," for both boys and girls, and the women's exchange. The "Stamp Savings" system will possibly be our next step in philanthropy. If we supported the visiting nurse only, we should be doing a great work. This we could not afford to do, and we should not if we could. It would be very selfish on our part if we did. The visiting nurse is for the convenience and comfort of every one of our citizens, of all denominations, of all classes and of all nationalities. After donating 200 dollars to her salary we extend the privilege to all to assist in this noble work.

We cannot realize the spirit of gratitude that must emanate from every home she visits, especially from those who are deprived of all care except through her ministrations. Certainly she puts the "touch of a rosy sunset" into the lives of many of the patients she visits. I am sure that all who will, will be the happier for having contributed to bring about such results. Some one has said, "Ceasing to give, we cease to have, such is the law of love." Only those who are actively interested, can realize the arduous work of our committee, not only in carrying on the work, but in raising the money needed for that purpose. It is no small task to find one hundred children, and arrange for seeds to be used in as many gardens. Some one must take many steps through the hot summer days to inspect them, which must be done twice through the season. If there was time, I would like to speak of some of the interesting incidents resulting from the sewing school and sloyd work; of the benefits resulting from our Arts and Crafts department, with its needlework, basket-work, weaving, lace-making and millinery classes. In fact of all our committees the results of which show "touches of a rosy sunset."

Already our city shows "beauties," through the efforts of our "Civic Committee," notably the long lines of trees on one of our most frequented thoroughfares. There are some changes I would like to see brought about in relation to the different committees of the different departments of our club. It is to be hoped that the time will come when a member can serve only on one committee.

There are 73 names in the "Year Book" under "Committees." I shall be glad when I see 73 different names for the greater the number actively employed, the greater will be the interest. However I cannot think that there is lack of interest in this club when we have such a large attendance at every meeting.

Has it ever occurred to you what it costs each member for each of the fourteen meetings represented on our calendar? Our membership fee of $3 when divided into 14 equal parts gives the sum of 21-7 cents which we pay for each meeting, not alone towards the entertainment, but towards all the expenses. The executive board have voted 1-3 of their membership fees for the entertainments next year, which means that you will pay 7 1-7 cents for each entertainment and 14 2-7 cents towards the general expenses, including appropriation for the visiting nurse. We certainly cannot expect many $1 entertainments for 7 1-7 cents. There is room for improvement in every organization and although our club has made remarkable progress during the three years of its existence there are many changes to be brought about before perfection can be realized.

We have already had some compliments worth repeating. One of them "That the Quincy Women's Club is a power for good in our city. Another that among clubs we are ranked third in the state. The president of one of the Rhode Island clubs received twenty year books from as many different clubs. She thought the one from Quincy was the best of the 20 and advised the Program committee of her club to use it as a model for their own year book.

Before closing I would like to express our thanks to Mrs. Nickerson for her arduous work in collecting rubber for the visiting nurse fund, to the "King's Daughters" for contributing so generously to this same fund, also for their assistance at the "Children's Festival," to the Quincy Ledger for the full reports of our lectures, music and work of the department committees, thus giving to our citizens a knowledge of our club work they otherwise would not receive. To all who have assisted in our progress we are truly grateful. Personally I thank you for your patience with my shortcomings and for your encouragement and support during the year. And now it is my sad duty to speak of the members who have been taken from our club by death during the year, Mrs. John F. Merrill, Mrs. Henry T. P. Bates, Mrs. James H. Slade, and only a few days ago, Mrs. W. L. Thompson of Atlantic. Let us feel that they are still with us in their deeds, and believe with Browning that "No work begun shall ever pause for Death!"

Lydia L. Morton.

THE ENTERTAINMENT.

Music a Regular Feature of Meetings Was Not Omitted.

A pleasing musical program was rendered by club members with singing by a double quartet, and solos by Miss Alice Gertrude Coe. In the quartet were Mrs. Henry W. Tirrell, Mrs. Harry Slade, Mrs. N. S. Huntington, Mrs. Frank A. Page, Miss Alice Coe, Mrs. Wilson Marsh, Mrs. Francis Abele, Jr., and Mrs. N. G. Nickerson. Mrs. John F. Hunt accompanied at the piano. The following program was rendered: Quartet, "Spring Song" from Samson and Delilah; solos "Ashes of Roses" Wood, and "The Magic Month of May" Newton; quartet "Spinning Song" from Flying Dutchman.

During the social hour Mrs. Herbert W. Pinkham was in charge of the hospitality, assisted by Wollaston ladies. Punch was served by Mrs. George W. Stone, Mrs. William G. Curtis and Mrs. Charles K. Crane. Sprays of apple blossoms adorned the tables.

Although necessarily a very long meeting it was interesting and profitable and brought to a close a year of varied good works and social hours as told above in the reports which speak for themselves.

AMONG THE CLUBS

The Home club of East Boston is being given credit by all people living in that district, for the fact that never before have fewer children been seen on the streets in that vicinity after dark. For more than a year the club women have been waging a vigorous crusade against children being allowed to play on the streets after seven or eight o'clock, and have appealed to East Boston mothers with quite wonderful success.

Among the many delightful trips that Boston club women have planned for the enjoyment of the visitors who will attend the biennial in June, will be a trip to Plymouth. This will be only one of the pleasant excursions planned.

The Junior Friday club brings its season to a close next Monday afternoon, holding its annual business meeting at the home of Miss Georgiana C. Lane, Presidents hill. Reports will be given and officers elected for 1908-09. The club will study Rome next season.

The club season is practically over for regular meetings although many clubs will hold informal meetings, and outings during the summer. Large clubs will be active in charitable, educational and civic work all summer, in fact some do most of their work of the year at this season.

Tie Result
At Bowling

A hot argument among the bowlers gathered at the Granite street alleys Tuesday night as to who was "Champion" resulted in a six man contest between Messrs. Grant, Wentworth, Anderson, Mattson, Galvin and Sheehy.

Three strings were rolled, each one full of strikes and spares. Galvin was high man in the first, and thought he had a sure thing, but on the last two he fell. Sheehy started off as if he thought he was loading paving, and the manager had to request him to stop it, as would spoil the alleys. That stopped him from making a good score (so he said).

The contest resulted in a tie between Grant and Wentworth, each having 305 pins to their credit. The tie could not be rolled off on account of the lateness of the hour, but will be rolled later in the week.

The scores were as follows:

Grant,	93	114	98	305
Wentworth,	87	103	115	305
Anderson,	79	95	106	280
Mattson,	86	91	94	271
Sheehy,	78	84	97	259
Galvin,	97	80	91	268

Miss Prescott
The Sponsor for Lightship Going
To the Pacific

Lightship No. 93, the last of four of this class of vessels being built at the yards of the Fore River Ship-building Company was successfully launched this morning. The launch was a private one and was witnessed by few outside of the launching party and employees at the yard.

It rained hard at the time of the launch and umbrellas were necessary.

Miss Alice Keith Prescott of Spear street, Quincy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Prescott, was the sponsor, and she carried out her part of the ceremony to the letter. Miss Prescott wore a corsage bouquet of violets and carried a large bouquet of pink roses.

In the launching party were Miss Annie Lincoln Prescott, Mrs. Frank F. Prescott and Miss Grace Spear, all of Quincy.

Others on the launching stand were President Bowles, General Manager H. G. Smith, Henry E. Frick, Commander John L. Gow and Executive Clerk S. A. MacQuarrie.

Mum's extra dry was the wine used to give the vessel its name, the bottle being suspended from the bow by a tri-colored ribbon. It was shortly after 9 o'clock when preparations to send the lightship down the ways was commenced, and at 9:35 all was in readiness to saw away the soul pieces.

President Bowles gave the signal and the planks were quickly sawed through. It was exactly 9:37 when the vessel began to move, and Miss Prescott striking the steel bow of the vessel a blow smashed the bottle. As the sparkling wine ran down the bows, Miss Prescott said: "I christen thee, Swiftsure Lightship No. 93."

The lightship took gracefully to the water almost making a bow. It was immediately towed to the fitting out dock. It will be stationed on the Pacific coast.

Wollaston Channel.

In the Legislature on Wednesday the $10,000 resolve of the Harbor and Public Lands Committee on petition of W. M. Chase was ordered to a third reading as follows:

Resolved, That the board of harbor and land commissioners is hereby authorized and directed to deepen and enlarge the channel dredged at Wollaston Beach under the provisions of chapter 356 of the acts of 1903, so that it shall be not less than sixty feet wide on the bottom and six feet deep at mean low water. For this purpose the Board may expend a sum not exceeding ten thousand dollars.

FOR TEN

Admiral Chadwick
Would Elect
Mayors for Long Terms

The attendance was surprisingly small at the special meeting of the Citizens Association on Wednesday evening, when Admiral Chadwick of Newport, R. I., was announced to discuss "Municipal administration and the new system of the city of Newport." On the platform were President Brown, Admiral Chadwick, Brooks Adams, Mayor Shea and Representative Hultman. A few ladies were in the audience including Mrs. Chadwick.

Mr. Brown introduced as chairman of the meeting, Mr. Adams, who said municipal government was a serious question and underlies the fabric of society. He did not think universal suffrage a failure, but the machinery was antiquated and inoperative. It must be remodelled or society must collapse. He complimented Admiral Chadwick on his part in the siege of Santiago, where he was chief of staff, and wished that he might be as successful in municipal affairs.

Admiral Chadwick in beginning his address said that he should jump into the middle of things by saying that we must frankly recognize that we have made a failure both in representative and municipal government. The restoration or the development of the representative system is the great international political problem of the day. The nearest country that has come to this is Switzerland. He said that he was a firm believer in popular government and that the great mass of us wish to do the right thing.

We shall not be right until we have as full and untrammelled an expression of the popular will as in Switzerland. Our great cities are monuments of bad administration. Is it possible to lay this great trouble anywhere than at the door of want in general intelligence, and of general honesty? We spend about $600,000,000 a year in new buildings and we burn to the extent of $200,000,000. We spend $300,000,000 in establishments for fighting fire and $250,000,000 in payments to insurance companies. We thus throw away yearly with absolutely no return the gigantic sum of more than $600,000,000 with absolutely no return by not being able to grasp what ought to be a self evident economic principle, viz: that it is better to construct a house which will last than one which may burn.

In addition to this folly of our system of house building, we are steadily cutting down our forests to furnish these bonfires. Not only do we do this, but we add to our folly a tariff which excludes foreign timber and puts a premium on our destructiveness.

The New England town meeting for a long time was successful to a high degree. But when towns grow, the subject assumes a complexity greater than the governing of one of our state. The work of a city assumes in fact something of the complexity and magnitude of a nation, and the cities raise sums which surpass the budgets of many nationalities. The government of a great city is thus NO LIGHT MATTER.

In fact it calls for the deepest thought and the highest endeavor of man. It is a business more difficult than that of the railway or steamship company, which works in fixed lines, in which the human element is absent.

The nineteenth century city of America is really in competition with the city of like modernity in Europe. If we have failed, the fault is not our newness. In fact, we had in Washington a hundred or more years ago, a design for a city which has never been surpassed, and no municipality has had intelligence enough to copy it. We have never been able to rise above the most stupid of city forms. It is certainly very odd that we should never have freed ourselves from this essentially stupid checker-board design.

We have failed where Europe has, in so much greater degree, succeeded. To his view this is caused by placing city administration business of the greatest technicality and difficulty in the hands of short term accidental men. Associated with this is the equally unwise course of adopting for cities, our state and federal forms of a president and a lower and upper house, putting aside the appropriating and spending powers, a separation which is necessary also for that great safe-guard, publicity. Our city councils as a rule combine these, thus traversing a principle which it took centuries of struggle to establish, and which today rules in every civilized government.

The whole evolution has been toward the separation mentioned. It would seem that nothing is more fully established than that the same men cannot with safety be allowed to lay the taxes, make the appropriations and spend the money. Our city charters running directly in face of this principle cause us to reap the unnecessary results of its violation.

It is extraordinary that a people of our undoubted business ability should have regarded throughout our municipal history, the administration of cities as most of whom are already overburdened with business cares. They were to do the work in many cases for nothing, and when paid the compensation is so meagre that it is a mere honorarium rather than a salary commensurate, with the work done or expected to be done.

Men must be paid in honor or money or somewhat of both. In addition they must, if of position and character feel that they are not temporary stop-gaps. As we know the honor connected with municipal office is unfortunately not reckoned now at a high figure. In many cases municipal office is allied with an impression of disreputability. When things become so rotten as to suggest that the holding of public office is disreputable it is time for a community to sit up and think with all the vigor of which it is capable.

The business of the modern city is too great to expect that good men will be found of such altruism as to devote, without adequate payment and security of tenure, their whole time to the public good.

If we are to improve we must turn to business methods something like the British, German and other advanced European systems which involve the desiderata, honor and adequate emolument, as well as permanency.

THERE IS NO DIFFICULTY

in getting honesty, zeal and fair ability in any walk of life in which there is a living wage combined with position made secure so long as the tenant is zealous and upright.

A vital point is to avoid placing in the city administration haphazard, ephemeral and untrained men. They must be trained and must be practically permanent. When we consider the enormous and complicated business involved in the administration of a great city, the idea of putting into offices of administration, men of a day, with no experience of administration, with no idea of seeking office but for party purpose, or for the moderate income attached, is not sanity. In fact it is public insanity, and the sooner we pull out of such a custom the better for our reputation, for our character, for the safety of our institutions and for our pockets.

I would suggest the appointment or election of the mayor, of the assistant mayor, and all parts of administrative departments for not less than ten years. Over these men should be a large council, large enough to be fairly representative. This council should have full control of all legislative business. No member of the council should have any administrative functions. In Newport a new system has been established, which while it does not fulfill the condition or permanency mentioned, is a long step towards a better government.

Here we have a body of 195 known as the

elects for three years in whose hands are all legislative powers, and a board consisting of a mayor and five aldermen elected for one year as executives. The Rhode Island rule disqualifies about 1,400 of the total 5,400 Newport voters for voting for the council or any proposition to impose a tax or to spend money. The speaker then explained at length the working of the Newport system.

At the first meeting in January the council selects a chairman, and a large number of city officials, and does a large amount of other business, and then adjourns to await a call to consider the budget. This is reported by a committee of 25 of the council appointed by the chairman. The report of this committee must be printed and distributed to all tax paying voters at least a week before the adjourned meeting.

The referendum and initiative in money propositions are made easy. The council can itself be called together at any time upon the written request of 25 members or upon request of the board of aldermen. The meetings must be with open doors, and its records open to public inspection. It elects all city officials, fixes salaries and defines duties. It may by a vote of two-thirds of all its members remove an official for misconduct or incapacity. Under ordinary conditions there will be three or four meetings of the council a year. Any tax payer, man or woman, may appear before it and address it.

THE MAYOR HAS THE POWER to suspend any city official and bring the case before the whole board of aldermen. If the board sustain the charges, the official is removed. He has ten days, however, in which he may make a final appeal to the representative council.

He also told of the procedure of nomination and election. The aldermen while they must be residents of the ward for which they stand, they must be voted for by the whole city. Nothing of a political nature can appear on the nomination papers or ballots.

Such a system brings back to the people the authority which has been taken away from them by political rings and combines.

Speaking of the so-called Galveston system. Admiral Chadwick said

CUTTERS STRIKE

Because Granite
Manufacturers
Refused to Sign
The Agreement

The anticipated trouble in the granite industry came this morning, when the 900 cutters employed in the granite cutting yards of the city failed to go to work. The trouble arises because of the refusal of the members of the Manufacturers' Association to sign the agreement as decided upon by the National Arbitration Board, composed of representatives of the Manufacturers and Cutters.

On Wednesday, Mayor Shea, anticipating trouble, made an effort to have the two sides agree to leave the matter under dispute to a committee of citizens composed of a representative from the Board of Trade and Citizens Association. While the manufacturers seen expressed a willingness to have the matter settled in this manner, the cutters were not. The cutters claim that the matter has already been settled by the National Board and that they have nothing to gain. Mayor Shea will however make another effort today to see if some arrangement cannot be agreed upon whereby the cutters will return to work.

At the office of the Granite Cutters' National Union this morning it was said that Secretary-Treasurer Duncan was out of town. Officials in the office, however, said that 36 out of the 42 non association firms had signed the bill of prices and agreement, and one association firm, namely McIntosh & Son.

It was also said that in addition to the men out in the association yards that some of the men in the non association yards were out. The reason for this was that it was reported that some of these firms had been threatened by the association firms who furnished them with power for their pneumatic tools, that if they signed the agreement they would be refused power for these tools.

There are 120 association firms in the city, and but one of these has signed the agreement as noted above. An effort was made this morning to see John L. Miller, president of the Quincy Manufacturer's Association, but he also was out of town. At South Quincy it was said that outside of a few apprentices no cutters were at work in the association yards.

The whole trouble is over the clause in the agreement which if signed would prevent a manufacturer hiring a cutter unless he was a member of the union. No matter how good a workman he was he could not be employed unless it was shown that he was a member of the union in good standing. This the manufacturers upon advice of counsel say would be discrimination and would lay them liable to a suit at law for damages should they refuse a man work upon these grounds.

The cutter's claim is that the manufacturers agreed to abide by the finding of the national board, and that if this board had found in favor of the manufacturers no questions would have been raised as to the official make up of the board. But having been adverse the manufacturers are not willing to abide by the agreement they entered into when the matters under dispute were so referred.

MAY BE A NEW TRIAL

New Haven Road Awaits Decree
of a Single Justice

ITS POLICY ON TROLLEYS

Willing to Be "Concessive" to Massachusetts, but Unwilling to Make Absolute Surrender—May Appeal to Federal Law Failing Compromise

New Haven, May 14.—Inquiry in railroad circles here in regard to the decision of the supreme court of Massachusetts against the holding of the trolleys in the state by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, shows that the attitude of the New Haven corporation is likely to depend upon the form of the decree against it.

The decision of the court ordered a decree in favor of the informant, the attorney general of the state, who now must apply for it to a single justice.
The decree in its form may raise an important question or a number of questions and may result, consequently, in a new trial of the case. The position of the New Haven company is therefore a passive one, and it cannot proceed until the decree is made and in a legal sense fully digested.

While no official information is given out, the impression prevails strongly in the New Haven road offices that the company will adopt a pacific policy
and seek results which, while concessive
to the state of Massachusetts, will not involve the absolute giving up of the trolleys or of the Boston and Maine shares.

In regard to the trolleys the railroad sentiment seems focusing more and more upon the plan recommended recently by the Massachusetts commission on commerce and industry. This in brief was the transfer of the trolleys to a new corporation, with shares to be issued on an equitable basis in exchange for shares transferred. Secondly, that the new corporation be forced to dispose of the street railway companies if the board of railroad commissioners certify, say within ten years, that it is for the public interest that this be done. Third, that the state be represented on the board of directors.

There is evidently, however, some disposition on the part of the railroad company, unless a compromise can be arranged, to appeal the whole subject to the federal courts for the purpose of determining the relative jurisdiction
over the matter of the states of Connecticut and Massachusetts, in each of which the New Haven corporation is chartered and which have been very divergent in their railroad policy and laws.

Methods of Tobacco Trust
Newark, N. J., May 14.—In the hearing in the suit brought by the American Tobacco company to enforce a contract
entered into between that corporation
and the R. C. Richardson, Jr., Tobacco company, Perry C. King of Jackson, Miss., a tobacco seller, testified that a representative of the American Tobacco company offered to give him seventy-five pounds of a particular tobacco for every twenty-five pounds he paid for. He testified that the representative told him they were going to force the Richardson people's leading brand out of Mississippi. King said he did considerable business with the American company after that.

twenty-six feet in height flooded without warning down the river, overturn-

small boats and wrecking some river steamers.

brook was found not guilty of the charge of murdering J. N. Lowther, a railroad timekeeper, whom he shot and killed at Alamosa. Holbrook was in Mrs. Lowther's apartments when her husband unexpectedly returned. Holbrook pleaded self-defense and Mrs.

ages for driving him and his family

GOES TO NEXT SESSION

Foraker Has Senate Postpone Vote
on the Brownsville Affair
Washington, May 14.—By determining to postpone until next session the time for considering and voting upon the bills providing for the reinstatement of the negro troops, charged with the "shooting-up" of Brownsville, Tex., in 1906, the senate found a way out of what had promised for some time to be an embarrassing obstacle in the way of the early adjournment of congress
for the session.

After a motion offered by Senator
Culberson to vote on the bill next Saturday had been defeated, 42 to 27, the postponement was ordered as the result of a motion by Senator Foraker, who hitherto has held to a determination to force a vote during the present session.
In the senate he announced his reason for the motion to be the desire to accommodate other senators who wish to speak on the subject, but in an informal statement given out afterwards
he admitted that his real prompting was to be found in the fact that the chances for his bill would be better next December than they would now be. The vote for postponement was 62 to 6.
Five Republicans voted with the Democrats in favor of Culberson's motion.

Democratic Division of Sentiment
Baton Rouge, La., May 14.—Sentiment regarding the presidential race
was shown to be divided in the Louisiana house of representatives when the resolution inviting William J. Bryan to address the body came up. The resolution had been amended so as to include Governor Johnson and Senator Culberson. Then a substitute resolution was offered endorsing Bryan. A motion was then made to lay the whole matter
on the table and this motion prevailed
by an overwhelming vote.

Tract Society Retrenchment
New York, May 14.—Economies in administration were decided upon at the annual meeting of the American Tract society here. The positions of three secretaries—publishing, district missionary and financial—whose salaries aggregated $10,000, were abolished.
Their work will be performed by a general secretary, Rev. Dr. Swift of New York being appointed acting secretary until the election of a permanent holder of the position.

Death of Bishop Horstman
Canton, O., May 14.—Bishop Ignatius
Horstmann, D. D., of Cleveland, died last night from exhaustion, caused by overwork and heart failure. The end came suddenly and unexpectedly.
Horstmann came to Canton on Monday
to participate in exercises of confirmation for three days at local churches.
After mass yesterday he complained of feeling ill. A physician found the prelate in a serious state of nervous collapse.

Success of Wright Aeroplane
Manteo, N. C., May 14.—The Wright brothers' aeroplane made a flight of more than three miles here yesterday.
The airship, carrying both men, circled about the great sand hills and landed within a few yards of the starting point. This is the second time an aero-plane has flown with two passengers,
the first being that of Farnum and Delagrang in Paris, but they flew only a few hundred yards.

Twenty-Nine Men Shot to Death Yekaterinodar, May 14.—The attempt made by prisoners to break out of the government jail here, after making a breach in the wall of the guard-
room with a bomb, was a complete failure,
but as a result twenty-eight of the prisoners were shot to death by the guard, and another of them died of his wounds. Thirty others were wounded, and it is expected that several of these will succumb.

Ten Thousand Persons Drowned
Seattle, May 14.—News of one of the greatest disasters China has ever known, a sudden tidal bore in the Yangtze Kiang which involved the loss of nearly 10,000 lives at Hankow, was brought by the steamer Titan. A bore
twenty-six feet in height flooded with-

MRS. GUNNESS' CRIMES

Authorities Certain That She Killed Ten Persons

BURNING OF HER FARMHOUSE

Not Definitely Established That Mur-derness Perished at That Time—
Clergyman Denies That He Said
Lamphere Confessed Crime

La Porte, Ind., May 14.—Little apparent headway has been made toward solving the mystery of the fourteen deaths thus far discovered on the farm of Mrs. Belle Gunness. While little doubt remains that Mrs. Gunness, either alone or aided, killed the ten persons whose cadavers have been unearthed in the barnyard, there is still no definite evidence as to who, if anybody, killed the four persons found in the ruins of the burned farmhouse. It is not even definitely established that the burned woman's body is that of Mrs.
Gunness.

An unsuccessful attempt was made to identify rings found on the burned corpses taken from the ruins of the Gunness home. Joseph Maxson, a laborer, said he had seen Mrs. Gunness wear a wide ring or two of the general description of the band ring found on the charred woman's body. He was unable to identify the diamond rings,
but Coroner Mack took a deposition
from him regarding his remembrance
of the jewelry.

A threatening letter came to Prosecuting Attorney Smith yesterday. It is a brief typewritten communication, unsigned, postmarked Brooklyn, and reading: "If you don't stop searching for Mrs. Gunness you'll be a dead man in two weeks. This applies to the sheriff, the chief of police and other officials."

In another unsigned letter from Brooklyn to Smith the writer declares that it will be useless to look for "Belle and I" in Brooklyn, as "he" had to spend $3.48 in car fare to go from his residence to the postoffice.

Attempts to identify the watch found on Ray Lamphere when he was arrested on a charge of setting fire to the Gunness house were balked by Smith. The timepiece is said to be a heavy silver case watch. Lamphere has said that the watch was given to him by Mrs. Gunness. Sheriff Snitzer
yesterday recalled that Mrs. Gunness once asked him to arrest Lamphere on a charge of stealing a watch and a suit
of clothes from her house.

Wesley Fogle, executor of the Gun-
ness estate, has filed in court an inventory of the personal property discovered. The value thereof is given as $15,408.80.

Discussion of the reported statement which Dr. Schell was said to have made in Baltimore was general about La Porte. "I never received any information from Dr. Schell regarding the conversations which he held with Lam-phere," said Sheriff Snitzer. "As a matter of fact I was out of town on business the days that he visited the jail, and I never talked with him about those visits. My suspicions were aroused against Lamphere as a consequence of the troubles which he had had with Mrs. Gunness. He pleaded guilty to charges of trespass the first time she had him arrested. He had made threats against her and she feared the man."

Prosecutor Smith curtly denied that Schell had told him that Lamphere had confessed or was ready to do so.

Did Not Say Lamphere Confessed
Baltimore, May 14.—Rev. Dr. Schell of La Porte, Ind., in talking about the Gunness farm tragedy, denied that he said that Ray Lamphere helped to kill the Gunness children, but had no part in slaying any men except Helgelein.
"I have made no statement regarding this or any detail of my interview with Lamphere, except to say that Lamphere's communications to me were wholly privileged, and, unless he shall himself make the statements to Prosecuting Attorney Smith, will be maintained as an inviolable secret." Schell added that, like many others, he believed that Mrs. Gunness was alive, but that he had no knowledge of the fact.
It was merely his personal opinion.

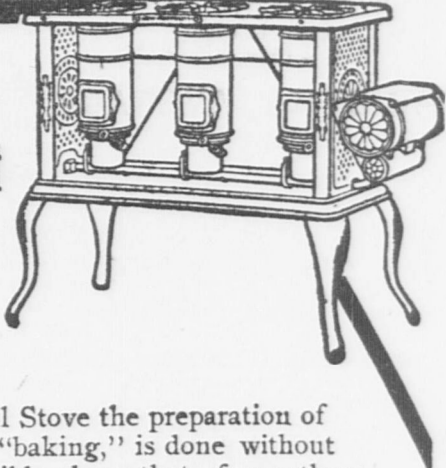

Dispute Was Long and Bitter
Helena, Mont., May 14.—The Montana Federation of Labor, as a result of the referendum vote on settling the strike of telephone linemen and operators in the chief cities of Montana, Utah
and Wyoming, has declared the strike
off. The dispute has lasted more than a year and involved injunctions, jail commitments and great inconvenience to business. The settlement is favorable to the strikers on the whole.

Quadruple Drowning
Campbellton, N. B., May 14.—While working for the Shives Lumber company here four men lost their lives by drowning. They were about 120 yards from the shore. They put out an anchor to keep the boat in a fixed position
while they worked, but the anchor slipped and knocked a plank out of the side of the boat. It almost immediately sank.

Vreeland Bill Expected to Pass
Washington, May 14.—At 4:30 o'clock this afternoon the house will vote on the Vreeland currency bill.
The best information indicates that the bill will be passed by a small majority.

The Crisis on Merger Question

The Boston Transcript comments
editorially on "The Merger Crisis" as follows:

Under the decision of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts which on May 9 was made public, the New Haven Railroad must secure affirmative legislation if it is to retain in good faith possession of its Massachusetts trolleys, in which it has invested thirteen million dollars. It is also generally conceded that this decision applies to its one hundred and ten thousand shares of stock in the Boston & Maine Railroad. The court has thereby cleared the ground amazingly. The anomaly of recent years by which it appeared that the Boston & Maine, a Massachusetts corporation, could not acquire contributing trolley lines (except in the Conway case where specific permission was granted), while the New Haven road, as a Connecticut corporation, through its own devices could gradually gain control over an increasing fraction of the State's trolley roads, no longer exists. The child that lives at home is not to be treated less favorably than the one who lives with a neighbor. Both are excluded in the absence of new affirmative legislation, from playing with the trolley.

But by far the greater effects of this decision lie in its bearing upon the steam railroad merger. No longer is there any argument in favor of the Commonwealth's making a trade with the New Haven in advance of the decision on the theory that if this should be against the Commonwealth
the New Haven's hands would then be free to proceed as it pleased in the control of the Boston & Maine un-hampered by any special restrictions
which might otherwise have been accepted. The steam railroad merger is brought squarely within the scope of the State's legislative power. Even the continuance for another twelvemonth of the prohibition upon the New Haven's voting the stock, which the Cole bill enjoins, would be ineffective as a compromise now, since nothing in that legislation legalizes
the ownership of this great block of stock by the New Haven road.

In short, the New Haven must secure from the present Legislature specific authority if it is to hold either
the trolleys of its Boston & Maine stock. It will seemingly be difficult to obtain that legislation at this stage in the session, particularly in view of the disadvantage in popular debate to which this decision somewhat illogically puts the New Haven.
This is a time for going back to first principles. Is it not entirely probable that the law passed thirty-four years ago, which the Court has now upheld as applicable to these trolley holdings, is unwise and contrary to the broadest public policy? In the Berkshires, for example, it is generally conceded that the New Haven's ownership of the trolleys has been of inestimable public advantage, bringing that service home to localities which could otherwise not have supported it in a generation. A great railroad system can afford to lose on its feeders if it is to profit thereby on its trunk lines.
Experience has proved that the New Haven could maintain trolleys, to its ultimate profit, where they would be impossible under separate ownership for many years to come. From this point of view at least the old law seems clearly a mistake. In the specific case at Conway the Legislature last year decided that it was wise to let the Fitchburg Division of the Boston & Maine own that particular feeder, because in no other hands could it be so advantageously operated. Perhaps the whole theory of our State law attempting a rigid separation between steam and trolley ownership is wrong. That the law still has teeth carries no evidence that it is intrinsically wise.

What is the New Haven to do now?
An important conference is in progress
this afternoon, and it is possible that some new programme, designed to meet the strategic needs of the situation will be soon outlined. But in advance of anything of that kind it is plain that the New Haven must pursue with renewed vigor its effort to secure affirmative legislation. Failing in this, the courts would allow the road a proper period within which to dispose of the properties which it acquired, doubtless in good faith and acting upon supposedly sound legal advice, just as the coal roads have been given time to dispose of their ownership
of coal lands against which a prohibition was lodged in the Elkins act. Where the New Haven still holds the whip hand
—and this should be of great influence in the further deliberations of the Legislature—is in its power to decide to whom and what price all these holdings shall be sold. If William Rockefeller wants to draw his own check for the New Haven's investment in Massachusetts trolleys he could of course hold them, even though he were an influential director in the New Haven. That a syndicate could organize to buy these holdings is entirely clear, and they might be New Haven

men. The situation is the same with the Boston & Maine. Then, there are "outsiders" who are not popular in Massachusetts. The State thus has one weapon and the New Haven road has another.

We believe the New Haven, if compelled to do so, will carry out this decision in a proper spirit, and actually dispose of its holdings. The road is in Massachusetts to stay; it must have the sympathetic support of the people.
Moreover, the arrangement which has just been declared illegal was in indirect form. To resort to further attempts in that line would undermine the New Haven's claim that it had thus far supposed itself acting in good faith. No punishment except that for contempt
would lie against the New Haven continuing in the course which it had been taking, but that punishment no intelligently managed road is likely to invite.
The most unfortunate phase of the present situation is that—if the Legislature should adjourn without action—the New Haven might have to reach a decision as to the disposal of the property before Massachusetts has really had an opportunity to compare such an alternative plan with the road's original project.

This decision does not touch, in the remotest way, the broad underlying question of the desirability either of the acquisition of trolley lines by a steam railroad or of the unification of the Boston & Maine and the New Haven systems. One of these questions has long been before the Commonwealth. A special recess committee, headed by William F. Dana, reported in favor of trolley acquisitions by the steam roads, under certain safeguards; its view was sustained by the Senate, but rejected in the House. The Railroad Commissioners have made clear in their reports that they see no reason why it should not be done. The Legislature's decision in the Conway case is not without relevancy. The Warner Commission report is outlining a plan for a holding company under New Haven
auspices, for these Massachusetts trolleys, gave evidence of its belief that unity of management of steam and electric roads was essentially desirable.
Is it not time that the Legislature passed definitely and finally on this question, so often reported on? Today's decision has cleared the ground
as to the meaning of the old law. Is it not more important to ascertain if this is not the expression of a mistaken policy?

And the steam railroad merger comes next. Massachusetts may give the necessary authority if it so decrees. It is probable that the institution of a suit under Federal law is being held in abeyance awaiting some disclosure of the real public sentiment of Massachusetts, and that if through the Legislature this could be expressed in favor of the merger, it is highly improbable that any effective interference would thereafter come from Washington. It is time the Legislature applied itself squarely to a consideration of the economic arguments in behalf of railroad consolidations. Unless this be done, a great opportunity for improving the entire transportation system of New England
may be forever lost. Seldom have lawmakers been confronted with a more serious responsibility!

Kaiser's Favor Rejected
Vienna, May 14.—When Emperor William came here a few days ago he distributed decorations and orders on every hand. Among those thus honored was President Weiskirchner of the lower house of the reichsrath, who received the Order of the Third Class of the Prussian Crown. Contending that the bestowal of this order was not a personal favor, but in reality a tribute to one of the country's institutions, Weiskirchner has returned the order to the German embassy, protesting that it ought to have been of higher rank, and not the grade commonly accorded to persons of the rank of police commissioner.

Women Seek Franchise
Frederickton, N. B., May 14.—A delegation of women waited on the government yesterday and asked for the right to vote in provincial affairs, as they do
now in civic and municipal elections.
Mr. Hazen, leader of the government, explained that to grant their request
would mean the imposition of income tax upon them, but was met with the reply that they were willing to pay it.
Hazen promised careful consideration of the request.

Lives Lost in Louisiana Tornado Atlanta, May 14.—According to information received in this city, a tornado struck parts of Louisiana yesterday, causing loss of life in Gilliam, Oil City and Belling. Telephonic communication is interrupted, but reports say that Gilliam is wiped out and that a number of lives have been lost. Oil City is also reported destroyed, with a loss of life and a number of persons injured.

Raynor Will Hear From Roosevelt
Washington, May 14.—The prediction is made that the recent speech of Senator Raynor regarding the case of Colonel Stewart may be replied to by the president with vigor. It is explained that the president took the one course
open to him in desirably avoiding any procedure which would result in depriving Stewart of his pay upon retirement.

The Observations
In the Daily Walk

J. A. Winters of Willow street is in New York for two weeks.

Miss Mary Sampson, a teacher at the Washington school, is on the sick list.

Dr. Edwin E. Davis of Chestnut street has returned from a trip abroad.

Fred Lyman has bought a new boat and expects to have her in the water Saturday.

The Lincoln club will present the comedy "Vacation" at Music hall, Atlantic, Friday evening, June 12.

The tenth district Democratic Congressional convention will be held in Municipal hall, Upham's corner Friday evening.

Harry Read of Squantum street has returned from Jamaica where he has been recuperating from an attack of bronchial trouble.

Loring Brothers will launch on Saturday, at the foot of River street, the motor boat they have built the past winter in the Doble barn on South street.

The test of the whistles at the shipyard was continued rather late last evening. Because of complaints the police requested that the test be discontinued, and then it stopped.

Pundit Dr. N. Krishna, Ph. D., the Hindu Socialist, speaks tonight at the Finnish hall, on Arthur street. Dr. Krishna is wealthy, as well as a college graduate and speaks English.

New subjects in the moving pictures and songs tonight at the Scenic. The songs are being sung by Bert Hamer, a baritone with a rich, clear voice, and he is to sing two numbers for the balance of this week that always make a hit wherever rendered.

The East Norfolk Christian Endeavor Union will hold its annual gathering on Monday, June 1, at the Quincy Point church, and the committee and the church have made extensive plans. There will be a social hour, a banquet with addresses, election of officers, and an address by Rev. E. W. Phillips of Rockland.

Charles H. Johnson delivered his popular lecture on "Historic Quincy" at the Presbyterian church, Water street on Wednesday evening before a large and appreciative audience. Next Wednesday evening Mr. Johnson will deliver the same at the historic First church at Weymouth Heights. The total net receipts of the Johnson lecture for the Chelsea fund were $70.25.

District School.

The choir boys of St. Chrysostom's church gave a candy sale on Tuesday evening which was followed by a highly entertaining play called "The District School at Blueberry Corners," given in the Sunday school rooms. The school master, A. H. Briggs, carried off his part with touches of rare fun, and his pupils were each interesting and amusing. Solos were sung by Clifford Bean, Bertie Barker, Thomas Wilkinson, Ray Halt and Undell Pratt. The last four accompanied Mr. Bean as a quartet in the chorus of his song. The affair in general was most successful, both financially and socially.

Express Business
Of Houghs Neck

Mrs. Sophia S. Cobb was found dead in bed on Wednesday at the home of her son E. B. Harrington on Rock Island road with whom she lived. Medical Examiner Jones was notified and gave the cause of death as heart disease. Mrs. Cobb was 88 years of age.

Peter Healy of Island avenue is passing round two cigars instead of the customary one. The reason for this is that twins arrived at his house on Monday. The twins weigh twelve pounds, one boy and one girl. Mrs. Healy and the twins are doing fine. The twins have the honor of being the first twins to be born at Houghs Neck.

The Physical Culture whist club of Dorchester were entertained on Tuesday by Commodore and Mrs. Herbert W. Robbins. After a two hour sail on the bay, on the yacht Emeline, the club was given a shore dinner followed by a dance in the yacht club. There were thirty-five the party.

The Houghs Neck Associates held a special meeting Wednesday evening in Brown's hall. The first business of the meeting was the report of the express committee. Archibald F. Baird, chairman of that committee, made the following report: Gentlemen, I have called upon four express companies in Quincy to see if they would give us a flat Quincy price. One of the heads of the largest companies actually laughed at me, and said that they could not do anything for us. Nicholas Murphy came into my office a last Wednesday and said: I have opened an office at Houghs Neck and intend to do business there the year round. I will give the residents of Houghs Neck a flat Quincy price. This is a business proposition with me and if the Houghs Neck people will support me I will give them a square deal, something they have never had before.

Mr. Baird stated that Mr. Murphy would appear before the Associates at nine o'clock and give a statement. After a considerable discussion a motion was made to lay the matter on the table until Mr. Murphy came. Promptly at nine Mr. Murphy arrived and Mr. Baird introduced him to the body.

Mr. Murphy made the following statement: Gentlemen, I have opened an office here, and intend to run two trips a day to Boston. I will charge you the same rates as charged to the people of any other part of Quincy. You ask me if I only intend to do business during the summer months, in reply I will say that I will give the people of Houghs Neck the same service in the winter as they will get in the summer.

A motion was made that the Associates give Mr. Murphy their support. The vote was unanimous.

A motion was made that Mr. Murphy be appointed on the express committee. Other committees were appointed as follows:

Finance—District One, Ira M. Whittemore; District Two, Jason L. Harvey; District Three, Michael Coughlin; District Four, Frank A. Leavitt; and District Five, J. Gooding.

Ways and Means—District One, Archibald F. Baird (chairman) and William Norteman; District Two, Fred Scott and C. F. Lynch; District Three, E. B. Farmer and Ernest Adams; District Four, Harry Stackpole and Philip Catarius; District Five, Frank Wall and George O'Brien.

E. church, and the church people have been very kind to the family.

She took great interest in both the church and the circle. She leaves two sons, Albert H. and Harry A. and one daughter, Miss Lillie Taber, also grandchildren. Funeral services will be held at Bethany chapel on Saturday at 11 A. M.

Mrs. Mary, wife of Mr. Michael McNally, dropped dead this morning at her home at 19 Hancock court. Mrs. McNally has been in poor health for some time. This morning she arose feeling quite well. A short time later she dropped dead. Heart disease was the cause of her death. She leaves a husband, three daughters and two sons. One of her daughters is a teacher in the Quincy schools, and one of the sons a dentist located at Rockland. Mrs. McNally was 56 years of age.

The tables were spread in the church proper and set with everything appetizing that the season afforded. A large gathering made the supper disappear rapidly and the chairman smilingly promised that the financial proceeds would be announced later.

he desired to say with all possible emphasis, that it appeared to him to be a step backward to the dark ages. Its general adoption would be a move to disruption in our American policy. The system removes from the people the duties of citizenship which every man should share to the fullest degree. Des Moines does somewhat better than Galveston. She gives a broad referendum and initiative, but it is easy to see that the difficulty and expense of a frequent reference to the whole electorate of a large city will go far to nullify the plan.

If we accept the generally received view that a municipality is a joint stock corporation in which each one contributes toward the expenses according to his ability, it is a logical conclusion that all taxpayers should have a voice in choosing their committees and overseers.

Whatever system we adopt, success rests upon the two great qualities of common sense and honesty. Public malfeasance could not be so easily permitted unless the general level of honesty is not what it should be. We have watered the stocks and played the game of grab so long in finance that the moral sense of the country has been blunted. It sadly needs sharpening.

Chairman Adams said Admiral Chadwick would be pleased to answer questions, and several were asked by ex-Mayor Porter, Mr. Adams, Alexander Fryer, Representative Hultman and others, many relating to school affairs, and extravagance in public works. On motion of Representative Hultman a rising vote of thanks was given the speaker of the evening.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and trying the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Electric Service And Freight Terminals

Quincy merchants and citizens should sit up and take notice, for it means much to this municipality if the plan submitted to the Metropolitan Improvements Commission by George W. R. Harriman, consulting engineer, be consummated.

In brief he would have a new corporation take over all the physical railroad property in the Metropolitan district, the state to hold 51 per cent of the stock.

He would electrify the suburban railroad lines so that they would be operated in connection with the present elevated structures, subways and tunnels in Boston, making Park Square a centre of the electrified service of the street car system.

The scheme includes four leading heads, which are: development of docks, development of present and future lines of traffic, financing improvements, and operation of properties.

The plan also provides for a belt line railroad outside the city limits connecting all docks and industrial areas and establishing new terminals. The greater Boston district will have two clearing and forwarding terminals for the distribution of freight. One of these will be located at Readeville, and will embrace the unoccupied territory along Neponset river.

The plan accompanying the report calls for a freight terminal at Squantum. By this plan the belt line passes through Quincy, Braintree. A part of Weymouth and Holbrook.

Chelsea Appreciates Work of Quincy

Following is a copy of the resolution passed by the board of aldermen of Chelsea at a meeting held May 7, 1908:

Chelsea, Mass., May 7, 1908.

The City of Chelsea through its board of aldermen desires to offer in behalf of its citizens, its thanks to the city of Quincy for the assistance rendered to our stricken people during and since the late disastrous fire, and to express its appreciation of the generous and prompt response to our urgent request for aid.

That the city was not a greater sufferer; that its hungry have been fed; that its destitute have been clothed; and that its homeless have been given shelter, we believe to be wholly due to such generosity.

Our heartfelt thanks are yours and we earnestly hope that your citizens may long be spared a like calamity.

In Board of Aldermen, May 7, 1908 Adopted.

Approved May 9, 1908,

(Signed) John E. Beck, Mayor.

Attest: Charles H. Reed, City Clerk.

Swedish Concert.

There was a large attendance Thursday evening at Faxon hall at the Swedish May concert. In addition to the chorus singing under the leadership of Miss Emma Vitting, there were soprano solos by Mrs. E. C. Bloomquist, violin solos by Martin Lind, and piano solos by Master Clarence Lundin. There were also duets by Miss Bertha Carlson and Miss Mary Vitting, and also by N. A. Carlson and Fritz Swanson. The program which was a long one opened with a chorus "Song of Greeting," and closed with David's 126th Psalm, with solo part by Mrs. Bloomquist.

Birthday Remembered.

The office of Probation Officer Francis A. Spear at the district court room was fragrant with the odor of beautiful flowers this morning. It was Frank's birthday, and the flowers were sent by admiring friends as a reminder that they had not forgotten his anniversary. Fortunate also were the offenders who lined up before him, for his heart was filled with joy which he imparted to all. In addition to the beautiful roses and carnations, there was fruit in great variety and cigars. All callers were invited to partake of his hospitality. This afternoon Frank entertains the Knockers' club, of which he is president, at dinner.

Public Library Improvements

Work upon the interior finishing and fitting up of the Thomas Crane Public Library is progressing, with the usual delays and hindrances, as rapidly as possible. The delivery desk, one-half of which went astray in freighting from the west, has been delivered and the whole is now in place.

The entire woodwork of the old hall, including ceiling, is to be done over with turpentine and oil to restore it after twenty-six years to its original tone and finish. This being done, the laying of the carpet and work of the electrician will follow as speedily as may be.

The public by the exercise of still a little more patience, will in the end find that they have a building which will still have the charm of artistic effect, while better fitted for the needs of today; and no doubt realize that they are rewarded for the inevitable going without the advantages of their public library.

Somerville's New Soldiers' Monument

Everything concerning artistic soldiers' monuments is now of interest to Quincy people who hope soon to have a new one. The editor of the fine art department of the Boston Transcript says:

We are indebted to the courtesy of Hon. Charles A. Grimmons, mayor of Somerville, for a half-tone print of the accepted design for the group of bronze figures for the Somerville Soldiers' Monument. The group is composed of two figures, those of a young infantry volunteer starting for the front, with his gun over his shoulder, and of an ideal Victory just behind him, a winged female figure, who, with one arm outstretched, gives encouragement and inspiration to the soldier, while in the other hand she holds aloft the flag. So far as may be judged from the engraving, the bronze group is spirited, interesting, picturesque and of no little plastic effectiveness.

The type of the young Northern volunteer soldier, in the costume of 1861, including the overcoat with cape, is very engaging, the face being particularly strong in its character and expression. The conjunction of this realistic figure with the idealistic figure of the Victory, which embodies the purpose and will power that urges the youth on to the performance of his duty, is becoming more and more, since the example of Saint-Gaudens has so often been crowned by artistic success in this field, the American conception of a patriotic memorial, in which not merely historic facts, but historic principles and standards, are boldly set forth in symbolic forms. Such conceptions, when adequately executed, provide stirring reminders of heroic periods, and stimulating object-lessons in national feeling.

The figure of Victory in this group

strikes us as a very admirable and beautiful plastic expression of the idea intended to be conveyed. The head is, apparently, excellent in its vitality and ardent aspect, while the gesture is full of high significance and gentle dignity. The spread wings and the great folds of the flag contribute to the balance of the composition.

The sculptor of the Somerville Soldiers' Monument is Henry Augustus Lukeman of New York and Stockbridge. He is a native of Richmond, Va., and among his works are the McKinley Monument at Adams, Mass., the music group on the Festival Hall at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, a portrait statue of Robert Livingston, and architectural sculptures for several important public buildings in New York and Montreal.

The Somerville Monument is to be erected in the open place on Central Hill Park, near the famous battery. The base of the monument is to be in the form of a semi-circular exedra, and the bronze group will surmount a granite pedestal in the centre of a platform about twenty-five feet in diameter. The amount appropriated for the work is $20,000.

Burglars Loot Braintree Residence

Two burglars made a big haul on Thursday evening at the residence of O. K. Brigham on Washington street South Braintree square. The family were out for the evening, and when Mrs. Brigham returned about 9 o'clock she was surprised to find the house lighted. She called out, who's here, and thereupon two men dashed out of the house by the front door, and disappeared in the direction of the South Braintree depot.

It developed that the house had been thoroughly ransacked and with considerable success, as a large sum of money, silver ware and jewelry had been stolen. Efforts to capture the men were unsuccessful, but Mrs. Brigham obtained a description of them.

Bunker Hill Day at Spokane.

Former residents of Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and Connecticut, representing practically every county in the six states and composing the New England club of Spokane, Washington, will entertain the officers of the Iowa, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Southern clubs, and New Englanders in general, at an old-fashioned patriotic celebration and banquet commemorating the battle of Bunker Hill, in Masonic Temple the evening of June 17, the anniversary of the historic event.

Hon. William H. Ludden, a native of Braintree, Mass., president of the New Englanders, has named a committee to arrange a banquet, with a patriotic address and a vocal and instrumental program. The address will be delivered by a prominent representative of New England, to be invited to come to Spokane as a guest of the club, and Rev. Dr. E. L. House, pastor of the Westminster Congregational church, who occupied pulpits in five New England states and was chaplain of the Fifth Massachusetts regiment during the Spanish war, will speak on "The Patriotism of the new New England in the Northwest—the Inland Empire."

W. D. Finley, who originated the plan of a Bunker Hill day celebration in the heart of the Inland Empire of the Pacific Northwest at an executive meeting of the New England club, announces there are more than 500 names of former New Englanders on the club's waiting list and that it is expected to have at least 1,000 enrolled members before the close of the year, with ultimately a membership of 3,000.

SITUATION UNCHANGED

Manufacturers
Meet But Are Silent About
Business Transacted

The situation in the granite industry remains unchanged this morning, practically no work being done in any of the yards outside of a few apprentices. The Manufacturers' Association held a lengthy meeting Thursday evening at which the situation was thoroughly discussed. But little was given out as to what action was taken by the Association, but it was understood that it was voted that inasmuch as the Quincy difficulty was in the hands of the National Association, that body be requested to act as soon as possible. The local executive committee was authorized to so notify the National Association.

The clause in the agreement over which the present trouble arises reads as follows:

"It is understood that the provisions of this agreement are arranged for the parties agreeing to the same and the right of employers or employees to discipline their own members or those eligible for same is not questioned. But, before individual action on the foregoing, the question or intended action shall be considered by the local joint committee and any decision that may be mutually agreed upon shall be accepted by both parties."

The interpretation put upon this clause by the manufacturers is that should the association desire for any reason to discipline any of its members it could not do so until the sanction of the joint committee was obtained. For instance, if for any reason the manufacturers' association should impose a fine upon any firm that fine would not hold good unless approved by the joint committee.

The cutters claim that there is nothing in this clause that says a yard shall be unionized. They claim that they do not compel a manufacturer to ask a man to join the union, but do have the right to refuse to work with a non union man if we choose to do so. They further claim that the clause in the bill is not illegal.

On the other hand the manufacturers say that they can read between the lines, and their counsel advises them that it would be illegal.

This morning the cutters held a mass meeting at the Hibernian hall. It was said that the only business transacted was to appoint the usual strike committees.

IMPORTANT RELICS

Revealed by Sifting Ashes In Cellar of Guinness Farmhouse

PARTS OF HUMAN JAWBONES

Formal Report of Physicians May Tend to Show That Fire Really Destroyed Head of Woman Supposed to Have Committed Murders

La Porte, Ind., May 15.—Portions of human jawbones and a piece of skin on which traces of hair are apparent and which may prove to be a part of a human scalp were found in the cellar of the Guinness farmhouse. The prosecuting officers of the county declare that these relics are the most valuable to their case that have yet been discovered.

The bones were found by the men who have been sifting the ashes in the cellar of the house, under the direction of Sheriff Smutzer. This process was begun yesterday as a preliminary to the mining work by Louis C. Schultz, the object being the removal of the coarser debris before the stuff was put into the sluice box.

Shortly after it was begun several large pieces of metal and a watch came rattling down the screen. The sheriff at once ordered one of the men to sort over the larger pieces and late in the day two pieces of human jawbones were found. The piece of skin was also found by this method, the late discoveries being made after the men had begun work on the portion of the cellar
where the bodies had been.

There was a hurried call for the physicians who have been assisting the coroner when the specimens were brought to town. "The pieces of bone are from the upper jaw of a human being," said Dr. Meyers. "It is impossible to determine the nature of the skin or hair. It may have come from some animal or it may have been a portion of someone's scalp."

The day's findings also included several charred vertebrae. The value of these exhibits is doubtful, however.
Because of the fact that the ruins of the house have been handled and pushed aside several times in the search for bodies or evidence, it was not possible to determine whether these vertebrae had fallen into the cellar from the dining room or some other room.

Coroner Mack, in discussing the bones, said: "I don't know whether the jawbones are human or animal relics." A formal report on the bones is to be made to the coroner by the physicians, as some examinations have been made. If the doctors find conclusively that the jaws to which the fragments belong were human the contention of the defense that there is doubt as to the identity of the adult body found after the fire will be given a hard blow. The circumstances will tend to show that the fire really destroyed the skull of Mrs. Guinness, thus accounting for the disappearance of the head of the corpse.

Two watches were discovered in the screenings Thursday, the total of these relics now being ten pieces.
Sheriff Smutzer says that digging
will be resumed on the Guinness place within a few days. He is waiting to complete the sifting of the ashes before returning to his former methods of discovering evidence, but he has picked out several spots for exploration.

Mrs. Guinness' Girlhood

Christiana, May 15.—Mrs. Belle Guinness, the central figure in the La Porte, Ind., murder mystery, details of which have been received here, is remembered in Christiana, as a girl, assisting her father, Petters Paulsen, a traveling conjuror and magician, who gave performances at all the fairs in Norway. She performed as a rope dancer and often was seen in short skirts and fleshings, half freezing before the tent, extending an invitation to the public to step inside. Her three sisters and brother also took part in the show.
The father made enough money eventually to retire to a small property near Tromsø. Mrs. Guinness had many relatives in Norway.

Uniting Icelanders and Danes

Copenhagen, May 15.—The committee having the matter in hand has presented to King Frederik a report containing its recommendations for the regulation of the future relations between Denmark and Iceland. The bill, which must be approved by both parliaments, constitutes Iceland "a free,
autonomous and independent country,
united to Denmark by a common king
and common interests, and forming with Denmark a state federation—the United Danish empire."

cisco's entertainment of the Atlantic

forward to by the officers with genuine pleasure as a relief from the arduous social duties that recently have been imposed upon them.

and miners, the most remarkable of which is one prohibiting the miners
from drinking, whether on duty or off.

LOYAL TO JOHNSON

Minnesota Democrats Favor His Nomination For the Presidency
St. Paul, May 15.—The Democrats of Minnesota formally endorsed Governor Johnson as a presidential candidate and at the same time, by a vote of 772 to 166, refused to declare in favor of William J. Bryan as a second choice.

The followers of Bryan did not carry out the threat which they have so often made—that they would bolt and hold a
"rump" convention if their contests were defeated before the committee on credentials or if they were not able to secure a partial endorsement of their leader. They made a sturdy fight for their man and when they had been overwhelmingly defeated remained quietly in their seats and made no motion to leave.

Several days ago they had gone to length of leasing a hall two blocks
from the auditorium in which the convention was held to endorse Bryan and select a contesting delegation to Denver. The hall was ready for them, but none of them went near it.

The Johnson men were generous in their victory, and declared in their platform that, while they entertained "an affection for and confidence in the integrity and ability of William J. Bryan," they believed that Johnson was a man better calculated to bring success to the Democratic party and was first entitled to the support of Minnesota.

The convention was a flattering tribute to Governor Johnson. The enthusiasm for him was unbounded and sincere, every mention of his name was instantly followed by a yell of delight
and the final adoption of the platform formally endorsing him and instructing Minnesota to fight for him at Denver was followed by a demonstration of enthusiastic loyalty.

Bourne Sticks to Roosevelt

Portland, Or., May 15.—After Ore-gon's eight delegates to the Republican national convention had been instructed for Taft at the state convention, a message was received from Senator Bourne at Washington, urging that the delegates be instructed for President Roosevelt and stating that if otherwise instructed he did not wish to be a delegate.

Taft and Local Option

Spokane, Wash., May 15.—A dramatic and unexpected feature of the Washington Republican state conven-

plank by a vote of 506 to 258. The convention adopted unanimously a resolution for Taft.

Delegates Instructed For Bryan

Brownsville Case Up Again

Washington, May 15.—Senator Bulkeley made a new move in the senate in his effort to obtain action on the Brownsville question at the present session of congress by introducing a bill which provides for rescinding the discharge without honor against the former negro soldiers accused of the affray at Brownsville and for correcting the military records of the men so as to restore them to duty, such action
not to prohibit the prosecution of members of the discharged battalion if it should be found later that they were guilty.

Bandits Made Off With $35,000

El Paso, Tex., May 15.—Pursued by men and bloodhounds, three bandits
with $35,000 of loot in their possession are fleeing through the rugged mountain passes north of French, a little station on the Santa Fe railroad. At French they broke down the doors of the depot, bound and gagged the station agent and special guard, blew open the safe, took the money and rode away, leaving their victims helpless.
The money had been sent yesterday to pay miners at Dawson, N. M.

HELD AS A WITNESS

Man Arrested at Boston in Con- nection With Staula Murder

Dedham, Mass., May 15.—Francisco
Cirasco, who was taken into custody
in Boston yesterday afternoon in connection with the murder of Louise Staula, the child whose body was found in a meadow here last Monday night, was examined for several hours
last evening by officers of the state and local police.

At the conclusion of the examination it was announced that Cirasco
would be held as a witness pending further investigation, but that the story told by him seemed to free him from suspicion of any connection with the crime. His story, it was said, was substantiated in the main by the statements of other persons, although there were some discrepancies which will be investigated.

One of the persons examined last night gave information which is considered important. This witness said that about 5:15 o'clock on Monday afternoon he saw a small girl, presumably the Staula child, picking flowers at the top of the hill in the meadow, while at the foot of the hill, some distance away from the child, he noticed a man.
The witness said that the man was of dark complexion and was possibly a mulatto.

Violated Contract Labor Law

Boston, May 15.—Henry Burnison and Mitchell Northrop were convicted of conspiring to violate the contract labor law by a jury in the United States district court. Sentence was deferred to give the defendants an opportunity to appeal their case. The evidence against the two was to the effect that they induced Benjamin Smith of Bradford, Eng., to come to this country and accept employment at the Benn woolen mills in Greystone, R. I. Smith brought his wife and eight children to the United States.

Brokers Sued by Receiver

North Attleboro, Mass., May 15.— Charles G. Bancroft, receiver of the Jewellers' National bank of North Attleboro, which was found to be insolvent
following the sudden death of the cas-hler, Frederick E. Sargeant, has begun an action against the brokerage firm of Pettigrew, Bright & Co. of Boston, to secure money alleged to have been paid
by Sargeant on a brokerage account which he carried with the concern. The adammum mentioned in the list is $20,000.

An Automobile Fatality

Boston, May 15.—Mrs. Matilda Brooks, aged 50, of Mansfield, who was struck by an automobile here last Sunday, died last night. Mrs. Brooks was in Boston to visit her daughter, a stu-

Bigney of Attleboro, the owner and driver of the automobile, was arrested, charged with oversteering, and was later released on $5000 bail.

Fitchburg to Get Big Trust Fund

Boston, May 15.—By the death yesterday of Mrs. Sarah G. Burbank, the city of Fitchburg will shortly come into the possession of a trust fund of $40,- 000. The money was bequeathed for the erection and maintenance of a hospital in Fitchburg by the late Gardner
S. Burbank, who died Feb. 7, 1898.
His widow was given the income of the fund during her life.

Drowned From His Launch

Rockland, Me., May 15.—All doubt as to the fate of J. K. Salisbury of Rockport, aged 49, who had been missing since the first of the week, when he went out in his gasoline launch for a fishing trip, was dispelled when a launch which drifted ashore at North Haven was identified as his. It is supposed that the launch was swamped
in the heavy seas.

Dull Trade Closes Hosiery Plant

Northampton, Mass., May 15.—The McCallum hosiery works, manufacturers of women's fine silk hosiery, closed down last night for an indefinite period. The plant employed 300 operatives and claimed to have paid its help higher wages than that of any similar manufacturing concern in the country.
The shutdown was necessitated by the inactivity of trade.

To Check Food Adulterations

Burlington, Vt., May 15.—The state board of health voted to instruct Dr. L.
P. Sprague, state inspector of food, to seize and destroy all articles of food which, on analysis, have been found to be below the standard established by the statutes. This will give Sprague
the right to enter any store and seize any such articles of food, in any amount.

Liked to See Ties Tossed

Westfield, Mass., May 15.—Because he liked to see the ties hurled into the air when the locomotive struck them was the reason given by George D. Bennett, 16 years old, when he pleaded guilty in the district court here to a charge of attempted train wrecking.
Bennett was held for a continued hearing.

Not Responsible For Conflagration

Chelsea, Mass., May 15.—Jacob Le-

voted to hold the next annual convention at Portland, Or., the eleventh annual convention of the National Retail Grocers' association closed with a banquet at the American house. Presi-

Thaw Hearing Resumed

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 15.—Considerable progress was made in the supreme court here with the hearing which is expected to determine whether Harry K. Thaw shall be liberated from the asylum for the criminal insane at Mattenman. The settlement of the preliminary legal points included a ruling by the court that the question of Thaw's sanity and of the constitutionality of his commitment would be proceeded with simultaneously. Thaw's counsel rested their case without having placed Thaw on the stand or having presented their expert testimony.

Anna Gould's Private Fortune Gone

Paris, May 15.—An early marriage between Prince Helle de Sagan and Anna Gould is taken for granted here.
It is not likely that there will be any marriage settlement, for Anna Gould's property is still in trust for the benefit of those persons who became creditors of the family during the time she was Countess de Castellane. The count completely dissipated the private fortune which his wife inherited from her mother. It is understood that debts amounting to almost $2,400,000 are still outstanding.

Carnegie Goes to Europe

New York, May 15.—Andrew Carnegie sailed yesterday afternoon for England. Accompanied by his wife and daughter, he will go to his Skibo estate.
Carnegie was non-committal on the question of presidential candidates.
He spoke optimistically of the business situation. The industries of the country, he thought, would rapidly return to normally prosperous conditions, following the conclusion of the presidential campaign.

Attack on Roman Catholics

Baltimore, May 15.—A bitter attack upon the Roman Catholic church characterized the meeting of the Methodist general conference when Bishop Neely scored the record of that church in South America, accused it of mingling
in the politics of this country and declared that its influence is felt in state and municipal governments and at Washington.

Insurance Men Hard Hit

New York, May 15.—The underwriters met in annual convention here.
Statistics presented by President
Burchell showed that the total property loss in the United States for 1907 was just short of $200,000,000. The insurance loss on the Chelsea, Mass., fire of April 12, Burchell said, was $8,845,879.

Appropriations of $120,000,000

Washington, May 15.—The great sundry civil appropriation bill, carrying a total of about $120,000,000, was passed by the senate. This is the last of the large supply bills, and its passage places the senate beside the house in the consideration of the appropriation bills.

Earthquake In Nova Scotia

Yarmouth, N. S., May 15.—A distinct shock of an earthquake was felt

and loud reports, as of heavy thunder, accompanied the shock. No damage is reported.

WEAK FROM SUFFERING UNABLE TO PERFORM WORK

Discouraged After Spending Money Without Benefit—Found Help at Last.

Mr. Earl McCoy, living at 1506 So.

passed through an experience that is being duplicated every day in every town and city of any consequence in the United States. It furnishes abundant proof of the correctness of L. T.

generacy of the human stomach, and shows conclusively the merit possessed
by his New Discovery medicine to restore the weakened system to full strength and vigor.

AEROPLANE WRECKED

Wright Brothers' Machine Is Useless For Further Tests

CAUSED BY STEERING GEAR

Operator Used Wrong Lever and Came to Earth Too Quickly After Having Covered About Eight Miles In Less Than Eight Minutes

Norfolk, May 15.—Disaster overtook the daring aeronauts, Wilbur and Orville Wright, who have for two weeks made successful flights with their aeroplane at Kill Devil Hill, North Carolina, for, after the greatest flight ever made with a similar machine, the aeroplane was wrecked.

Wilbur Wright, the navigator, escaped unhurt except for a scratch on his face, but the machine was smashed and is now useless for further tests.

The aeroplane had flown eight miles in seven minutes and forty seconds under perfect control, and the disaster was due to an error by the navigator, who directed the course of the machine downward too quickly. The wrong lever was used and the bird-like framework darted downward, striking the ground with great force.

The machine was wrecked behind a sand hill two miles from its starting point. After leaving the house where it is kept, the aeroplane darted through the air for a mile and a half along the beach, when it turned westward for a flight of probably two miles. From here a second turn was made directly toward the starting point and the homeward progress was made under great headway until the accident occurred which cost the inventors their machine.

Allowing for the long curves and angles made by the flying apparatus, the distance covered during this last and fateful flight was about eight miles, and if the machine had returned to its moorings a ten-mile course would have been covered and the world's record for aeroplanes would have been broken.

Disappointed but undaunted, the Wright brothers began immediately after the wreck to pack up their effects, including the remnants of the shattered prize, preparatory to its shipment to their home in Dayton, O. No more tests will be made on the bleak North Carolina coast for the present.

Not since the Wrights have been at Kill Devil Hill has their machine appeared so complete an instrument for aerial navigation as it did yesterday, when it sailed its last flight.

Inexperience on the part of the operators in the manipulation of the new steering gear resulted in the disaster. This gear had just been perfected and installed and Wilbur Wright was evidently unfamiliar with its operation. Earlier in the day a short flight was made with Orville Wright and Furness, the machinist, in the seats of the machine. This covered a course of about a mile and a half and was remarkable, in the light of former feats, only in the fact that its course was at all times on a curve.

On Wednesday the two aeronauts accomplished four successful flights, two of them after sunset, covering three and a half to four miles each time, and doing four miles down the coast in two minutes and fifty seconds at an altitude of forty feet. The aeronauts alighted each time, moreover, at the place of starting.

Thirty Deaths in Tornado
Shreveport, La., May 15.—Thirty dead and 200 injured is a conservative estimate of the fatalities caused by the tornado which swept through north-west Louisiana, destroying three small towns and leaving wrecked homes and ruined crops in a path a mile wide and fifty miles long. Only two houses are standing at Gilliam, which had about 200 inhabitants.

Cruiser Maryland Gets Trophy
Washington, May 15.—The armored cruiser Maryland was the trophy winner in the recent record target practice at Magdalena bay. Announcement of this was made at the navy department. The trophy is now in possession of the Illinois, and directions have been sent to the commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, directing him to transfer it to the Maryland.

A Gift From Rockefeller
Norfolk, May 15.—The cornerstone of the new $300,000 naval Y. M. C. A. building, given by John D. Rockefeller, was laid here. Mr. Rockefeller wrote: "It is a privilege to be permitted to give expression in this form to the pride which all Americans feel in their navy, and to you who have consecrated lives to our country's defense."

Currency Bill Passed in House
Washington, May 15.—The Vreeland currency bill, agreed upon by the Republican caucus, was put through the house under a special rule by a vote of 184 to 115. Fifteen so-called "independents" of the majority party voted with the Democrats, who went on record solidly against the measure.

Fritzi Scheff Gets Divorce
New York, May 15.—A decree of absolute divorce in favor of Fritzi Scheff, the actress, was signed by Justice McCall, on a report of a referee who heard the evidence. Miss Scheff was married to Baron Von Bodeleben in 1903.

Good Receipts

Good Cooks

Today's instalment of receipts includes puddings, and quite a variety have been forwarded. Next week Friday fish receipts will be printed and the following week ice cream, sherbet and ices:

WEATHER PUDDING.

Scald one pint milk, thicken with four tablespoons cornstarch dissolved in little cold milk; cook 15 or 20 minutes. Flavor with vanilla or rose. Set on back of stove; fold in stiffly beaten whites of four eggs. Take at once from fire, mold and set away to cool. Make soft custard of one pint of milk, using yolks of four eggs, sweeten to taste and, flavor. Serve on low glass dish and pour custard over.

STRAWBERRY PUDDING.

You can use strawberry or any kind of jam: Three ounces of butter, three ounces of bread crumbs, three ounces sugar, two eggs, three tablespoons of strawberry jam, one-fourth teaspoon of soda. Melt the butter, mix all things together, steam two hours. Serve with whipped cream or foamy sauce.

Greenleaf St.

APPLE SAGO PUDDING.

For a two-quart pudding dish take one cup of sago and put into a quart of cold water in a basin. Let heat and cook gradually, adding a pinch of salt; add hot water if it seems too dry. In the meantime pare and core apples to cover the bottom of pudding dish, using apple corer to remove cores. Fill holes with sugar and season with nutmeg and cinnamon. Put a cup of water in the dish and bake until partly done, then take the dish out, pour the sago over, return and bake until well done. Serve with sugar and cream.

Ward Two.

MOUNTAIN DEW PUDDING.

One pint of milk, two eggs, three tablespoons of coconut, one-half cup of rolled crackers, one teaspoon of lemon juice. Mix all together (saving out the whites of the eggs) and bake one-half hour in a moderate oven. When firm and brown cover with a meringue made from the whites of the eggs and a cupful of sugar, and stiffen in a slow oven until a golden brown.

A. D. M.

GRAHAM PUDDING.

One cup molasses, one tablespoon butter, one beaten egg, one cup milk, one three-quarters cups graham flour, one cup raisins (or dates stoned and cut in two), one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon cinnamon and mace. Beat thoroughly and steam three hours. This is very rich when served with cold hard sauce, and will keep a long time closely covered.

Rebekah.

STEAMED FRUIT PUDDING.

My guests always like this pudding. Three cups shredded wheat biscuit crumbs sifted, three-quarter cup entire wheat flour, half cup sugar, half cup butter, two teaspoons baking powder, teaspoon salt, quarter teaspoon nutmeg, wineglass of sherry wine, half cup shredded figs, half cup shredded dates, half cup shredded walnuts and almonds, two and one-half cups milk. Have water boiling before beginning pudding. Rub crumbs, butter and sugar together; add flour and baking powder sifted together; spice, salt, fruit, nuts and wine; mix well; add the milk; turn into a buttered mold and steam three hours.

Adams St.

FIG PUDDING.

Time to boil, 4 hours. Half pound bread crumbs, half pound figs, half pound brown sugar, two eggs, little nutmeg, one-fourth pound suet, little milk, two ounces flour. Figs and suet mixed very finely, and well mixed with the bread crumbs and flour. Then mix all ingredients together with two eggs and a little milk, and press whole into a buttered mold, cover with a thick cloth and boil, and serve with wine sauce.

EDITORIAL.

The public building bill just passed by Congress appropriated $5,000 additional for post office site at Beverly, and $10,000 additional for site at Plymouth. If Quincy could get about $10,000 additional and enlarge its lot to Temple street, it would have something which would be a pride and a joy to the people of the city.

Now that Hancock street is to be double tracked between School street and City Hall, some other improvements should be made. The street crossing in front of Bethany church should be relocated; if run from the same point in front of the church at nearly right angles to the car tracks, it would much better accommodate Granite street people going to Bethany church, the Public Library or down Chestnut street, and at the same time the people who come through Maple street and up Chestnut and desire to reach the Post Office or the business houses on Granite street. People who use the concrete sidewalk on Chestnut street also want a new crossing from the head of the street to a point in front of the store of the F. D. Fellows Co. Hundreds of shipyard people going to and from the depot and shipyard would appreciate this more direct crosswalk. The crosswalk near the head of Chestnut street should be moved to the corner of Maple street. Some changes should also be made in the grade of Hancock street.

In the Daily Walk

Work has been stopped temporarily on the Federal building, owing to the non arrival of stock.

Joseph Masterson of Weymouth, aged 62 years, fell from a wagon on Hancock street Thursday, and was bruised about the face.

Our coal merchants recommend the purchase of the winter's supply at this time, as prices are probably at their lowest.

Starter Bob Egan's horsemanship has been noted, and now the question is, "Is he capable of training horses for the Grand circuit?"

The submarine Octopus, under command of Capt. Glen, and conveyed by the yacht Starling, Capt. Miller leaves the Fore River plant today for Newport, R. I.

We thought Mr. Plummer wedded to the Woodward school some time ago, but the Plummer-Woodward ceremony April 30 may have nothing to do with the school.

Nathan Ames in the Post Office block now has one of the best lines of paints, hardware, garden tools, etc., to be found outside the large cities. Just the things the people want at this time of year.

St. Chrysostom's branch of the Girls' Friendly society, held their second annual social Wednesday evening and Brasse hall was filled. Miss Beatrice Butler and Miss Caroline Wilkinson of Atlantic and Miss Gertrude Hineine of Wollaston, who had charge of the affair deserve much credit. It was an enjoyable party, and a success in every way. Music was furnished by the Merrill brothers.

Submarines
Stand The Test

The submarines Tarantula, Cuttlefish and Viper, built at Quincy, were objects of much curiosity on Tuesday, says the Transcript, at the New York Navy Yard, where they are lying after their arrival from Southern waters. They have been stationed in Chesapeake Bay for the past three months undergoing tests and carrying on practise in submarine navigation. Their return north was itself in the nature of a test. It was the longest trip, save the corresponding trip south of the same craft last winter, yet made by the American submarines. The return trip was successful and without incident.

The submarines will go into drydock, all three, within the next few days. They are due for a thorough overhauling, with scraping and painting. When put in shape again they will go on to Newport, still under the escort of the Hist. There they will join forces with the Octopus, also built at Quincy, the largest of the submarines of the United States Navy.

The tests and course of practise in Chesapeake Bay were reported as satisfactory. The evolutions of the submarine type were studied and reduced to a system. The practice served to teach the officers and crew just what could be done with their craft under water and above. But, in the judgment of the navy authorities on submarine warfare, the trip down and back was one of the most important features of the three months' test. It proved to the satisfaction of many opponents of the submarine the proposition that craft of this type were adapted to extended ocean journeys. Some of the naval authorities have insisted up to the present time that the submarines were unseaworthy outside of still waters and were good only for harbor defence.

TODAY'S COURT.

James Flaherty was arraigned for larceny from Frank E. Gallagher at Quincy. Case continued on probation until July 11.
Philip Holden was arraigned for larceny from Peter Lamont at Quincy. Case continued until Saturday.
William Solomon was arraigned for assault on Annie Brett at Quincy. Case placed on file on payment of cost.

A young son of Edward Frye of Quincy avenue was seriously injured Wednesday afternoon by falling from a fence. He is under the care of a physician and concussion of the brain is feared. Another son of Mr. Frye was killed some time ago by being run over by an electric car near his home.

Pembroke Perkins, who carried on a boot and shoe repairing business in City Square for many years, died Thursday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Everett Hutchinson, at Milford, N. H. Mr. Perkins has been in poor health for some months, but it was only a few weeks ago that he gave up business on Granite street and went to New Hampshire.

LABOR COMMENTS,

On Strike Situation Correspondence Over Agreement

When the editor of the Granite Cutters' Journal for May thought a settlement had been reached in the granite industry of Quincy he penned the following editorial:

It was truly an Herculean task to change from an old agreement to a new one, with a few pithy changes in the new document, in Quincy, without the customary suspension. It not only was so uncongenial to the old-fashioned Quincy employer, that he simply could not stand it, but it even riled a portion of our own members. Nearly every idle member in Quincy last March favored a strike. They were out of work owing to the open winter permitting more cutting going on than usual, and because employers had worked up what they had on hand as much as possible prior to March 1, and they wanted a strike, so that they could draw strike pay. Idle men at all times elicit pity for their condition.

It is no fault of theirs employment is scarce. They are willing to work, and cannot find employment, consequently the best that is in a man asserts itself at least in pity for their condition, but when men, under such deplorable circumstances, concoct schemes to get up a strike, in order to permit them to draw strike pay, the best also that is in man arises as much in revolt against them, as his manhood and his pity arose for them in the former position. It has well been said that ignorance is the greatest of the troubles besetting our labor movement, but when selfishness is added thereto, the trade condition that is confronted with such an unholy alliance is indeed unenviable.

"But employers of the old school in Quincy were in a worse position than those of our members just referred to. They could not conceive of a situation whereby an improved agreement for our trade could be instituted in the old granite center, without all the stubborn horror and unreasonableness of the past. More by accident than otherwise they signed the tool sharpeners agreement before March 1. By the use of considerable diplomacy they agreed to nearly everything necessary to an agreement with the granite cutters before March 1, and the points they would not agree to were referred to the joint plan of adjustment by sub-committees of the two Executives. This was the second time the Quincy Association had referred the disputed points, consequently they did not hurriedly decide to do so, nor were they taken unawares on the subject.

"After a few days' suspension the polishers' agreement was signed and later on the joint Executives met, for the purpose of deciding the points at issue to complete the Quincy cutters' agreement. The Quincy Manufacturers' Association was represented by a committee of three, to submit their testimony, and our Quincy branch was represented by an equal number. Both committees submitted their testimony in full, and after each side had satisfied itself its case was properly presented, those delegates withdrew, and the Joint Council rendered a decision on each point submitted.

"In the time official notice was given each side by their proper officers of the decisions rendered, and a Quincy Manufacturers' meeting was called, and in old-fashioned style they repudiated the findings of the Joint Council, and so notified our Headquarters, and the Headquarters of their own association. Such an illogical position is seldom found anywhere.

"The young and progressive members of the Quincy association got to thinking the situation over after the above action, and while the final touches have not been given to the scenes herein referred to, as this Journal goes to press, it is expected that better judgment will prevail, and that the Quincy employers will remain a part of the Manufacturers' Association, and as such, of course will live up to the full decision now composing the Quincy agreement.

PERISHED IN FLAMES

Prosecuting Attorney Certain of Fate of Mrs. Gunness

STORY TOLD BY JAWBONES

Dentist Who Worked on Woman's Teeth Makes a Report—Remains of Helgelein Fully Identified and Given Christian Burial at Night

La Porte, Ind., May 16.—"Identification of the piece of jawbone taken from the ruins of the Gunness farmhouse as a portion of Mrs. Belle Gunness' skull bears out most conclusively the contentions of the state regarding the identity of the bodies found in the cellar on April 28. It is the clinching bit of evidence which should set at rest the rumors that Mrs. Gunness had escaped."

This statement was made by Ralph N. Smith, prosecuting attorney. It followed a report from Dr. Norton, a dentist, who found that the piece of charred bone presented characteristics which he had observed while working on Mrs. Gunness' teeth. Only two natural teeth, a cuspid on each side of the lower jaw, had remained in the woman's mouth, and the piece of bone found shows that all the teeth, except the cuspids had been extracted from the jaw of the skull to which it belonged.

The first of the Gunness victims to be buried with Christian rites was buried by lantern light last night in a cemetery on the outskirts of La Porte. The corpse was that of Andrew K. Helgelein of Mansfield, S. D., the last man to meet his death in the trap to which Mrs. Gunness lured her victims.

The body was released for burial last evening after Coroner Mack had received the reports of Bertillon experts who have examined it and compared findings with figures taken from the records of the Minnesota penitentiary at Stillwater. Two officials of the Michigan City prison performed the work Thursday and Edward A. Evans of the Chicago police identification bureau did similar work Friday. Both reports were to the effect that it was the body of Helgelein.

Further search of the Gunness premises has revealed little of importance. The screening of the ashes produced several additional bits of bone, but none of them is of sufficient size or well enough preserved to furnish proof of their origin.

Some relics showing that Mrs. Gunness had made a study of surgical lore were picked up. Charred leaves of books on which sufficient print remained to show that the folios were devoted to anatomy were found. Another ruined book was a treatise on hypnotism.

Court's Decision on Brownsville
New York, May 16.—The right of President Roosevelt summarily to dismiss a negro soldier of the Twenty-Fifth Infantry for alleged participation in the riot at Brownsville, Tex., was sustained in the United States district court. Oscar W. Reid, the soldier, sued the government to recover $122 as wages from the date of his dismissal to the expiration of his enlistment. District Attorney Stinson contended that the president had a right to dismiss the soldier. Judge Hough sustained this contention and directed a judgment in favor of the government.

Currency Bill Goes to Conference
Washington, May 16.—The Freedland currency bill, which was passed by the house, was delivered to the senate and at once sent to the committee on finance. Senator Aldrich promptly made a report from the committee substituting the Aldrich bill in an amended form for the house measure, and in that form it was passed by the senate. This action sent the bill into conference and an effort will be made to reach an agreement at an early day.

Youth's Cold-Blooded Crime
Kanab, Utah, May 16.—Alvin Heaten, 18 years old, confessed that he had murdered his sweetheart, Mary Stevens, in a canyon back of Orderville, after she had pleaded with him to marry her in time to save her name. Driven to desperation, Heaten asked her to meet him in the canyon. She renewed her plea, and, as she was speaking, Heaten shot her four times. She died instantly.

Congress Near Adjournment
Washington, May 16.—It is not expected by the senate leaders that it will be possible to get away before next Saturday, although the house may pass a joint adjournment resolution naming an earlier day, possibly Wednesday or Thursday. In that event the resolution will be held in abeyance by the senate until business can be put in shape to end the session.

Trainmen Misunderstood Orders
Muskegon, Okla., May 16.—A passenger train collided head-on near here with a freight train. Two trainmen were killed and fifteen passengers were injured. The wreck was due to a mistake in orders by the freight train crew. The injured will recover.

Arab Losses Are Heavy
Algiers, May 16.—The French force under General Vign lost thirteen men killed and sixty-five wounded during a fight with the fanatical Arabs. Three officers are among the French killed. The Arab losses are described as heavy.

Labor Comments On the Strike

"Yes sir, the skirmish for the springtime of 1908 is over. It took a peculiar turn. Precedent of every kind was smashed. Practically speaking in Quincy, where it was least expected settlements could be reached without a suspension, there was only a short lay-off by the polishers, while in Barre and vicinity, where it was expected settlements would be reached without a suspension at all, it took eight weeks beyond the allotted time to get new agreements in shape and signed. Naturally our general fund got a jolt.

"This is the first time in history of our trade, where, when it was necessary to expend for defence purposes over one-third of the money we have expended in strike pay this year, it was not necessary to levy an assessment to support those on strike shows that our financial system has at least the merit of putting us in a position to manage a suspension of the kind without looking for outside assistance, or calling for a portion of the earnings of members who were not in suspension to support those who were contending for new agreements."

That the editor knew of the "rebellious situation" is shown by the publication of the following correspondence under the heading "Erratic Employers:

Gentlemen:
I am instructed to write you that at a meeting of our Association held March 30th, 1908, it was unanimously voted:

That we repudiate all action and so-called decisions arrived at by the alleged Joint Council as rendered under date of March 25th, 1908, and we offer the following reasons for our action:

First.—The parties acting in behalf of the said National Association were not all executive officers of said Association as provided in the joint agreement between said organizations signed June 27th, 1907.

Second.—Said alleged Joint Council assumed the right and attempted to decide and pass upon matters not referred to it, and with which it had no authority to deal.

Third.—The decision of said alleged Joint Council as to some of the matters passed upon by it if accepted by our Association might compel us to become parties to methods of adjusting trade and labor difficulties and also differences between Labor Unions and Non-Union men, which we are advised would be illegal and involve us in litigation; and, further, the acceptance by us of the findings of said alleged Joint Council would commit us to the recognition of certain claims on the part of said organization as a matter of right, which we are advised could not be lawfully enforced and their attempted enforcement would make our members liable to suits for damages.

Yours Truly,
Granite Manufacturers' Association of Quincy, Mass.,

Granite Manufacturers' Association, Quincy, Mass.

Gentlemen:
Your letter of April 7 was received and has been considered by our Executive Council.

Even with the lawyer-like touches applied to it, your letter will go down in the annals of granite cutting as the "cry-baby" letter of our time.

Such phrases in it as "so-called decisions," "alleged joint council" are discourteous.

We doubt that your repudiation of the action of the joint council is final; first, because the reasons assigned are based on false hypotheses and therefore illogical; and second, because the concluding words of paragraph 4, in the "Making For Peace" resolutions signed by our representatives and yours last June, state that the decision shall be binding on both parties.

Your first reason is that the parties acting on behalf of "said National Association" were not all executive officers of said Association as provided in the joint agreement. This is a subject matter between your local body and our Quincy branch. We have nothing to do with the executive business of your National Association. If the parties representing you were not properly selected, the fault is not ours.

Your objection shows bad faith as you not only recognized similar procedure prior to the Boston meeting to which you refer, but your representatives had opportunity to object during the formal procedure when the joint council met in Boston, yet offered none. They acquiesced in the election of one of your national representatives, Wm. Alexander, as chairman of the meeting and addressed him and the joint council in the submission of all of your testimony and documents bearing on the contentions.

Let us be definite and frank with each other.

When the conference was called by the National Association of the Granite Industries last summer to map out a plan of adjusting trade disputes, a question arose as to the legality of one of those representing your National Association, and before the session was formally organized your representatives withdrew to discuss the situation. In their own way they decided that the man could act, and Mr. Alfred Diack of Quincy, although not a member of the executive board, was a conferee. This was done with the full knowledge of your national as well as your local Associations, and the report bearing Mr. Diack's signature was officially adopted; and as far as your body is concerned a precedent was created.

This puts a quietus on suggested irregularity of procedure.

We dare say if the decisions had been all in your favor you would have considered the joint council a truly great tribunal.

Your second reason is not clear whether it was the method followed or the matters decided to which you object; but assuming it was the matters decided, we are assured by our conferees that nothing was discussed that was not submitted, and we deny that anything appears in the decisions to warrant your allegation.

Your third reason supplies "the nigger in the wood pile," but there is nothing in the decisions rendered which is not in common use in our trade, and no one has been involved in litigation, nor is there any probability that such will happen, nor have suits for damages ever been heard of in carrying out trade provisions as set forth in the decisions in question.

The scare you refer to is mythical.

Messages of the President to the Congress, decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court and State Courts, also of the Commission appointed by the President in the great coal strike, all certify to the correctness of the idea in the joint council's decision to which you object.

"Repudiation" passed into history in the notorious lockout in the granite trade in 1892, but if you must revive a shred of it we know nothing to stop you but it will take something of that kind to affect the situation, for a final settlement as per the plan of adjustment has been rendered and the interested parties are in honor bound to be governed accordingly. We do not anticipate your purpose is to sully your honor as men with all that implies so we expect you will think better of it and that both parties will co-operate for the expansion and betterment of the granite trade in Quincy. On our part we respect trade agreements too highly to treat them lightly and therefore insist on their faithful performance by both parties thereto.

If Quincy granite cutters had taken the course you took you would have sought a dictionary in addition to legal advice, from which to enlarge your vocabulary of denunciations of their action, and what would be a vice if done by them does not become a virtue when practiced by you.

To sum up
Practice and precedent are both against your position.

Law and order favor the decisions. Common-sense and customary trade procedure do the same thing.

Both parties voluntarily sought the plan of adjustment; both testified to the council as it was made up; both submitted their documents containing the question in dispute. No other documents were used.

Decisions binding on both parties were rendered. No decision was reached unless there were at least two of the three men on each side in favor.

In equity, in fairness, in justice, it now remains for the local committees to incorporate the decisions in their proper places in the agreement and for each party and both collectively to welcome three years of peace.

Yours truly,
(Signed) James Duncan,
I. S. T.

Butter Nut

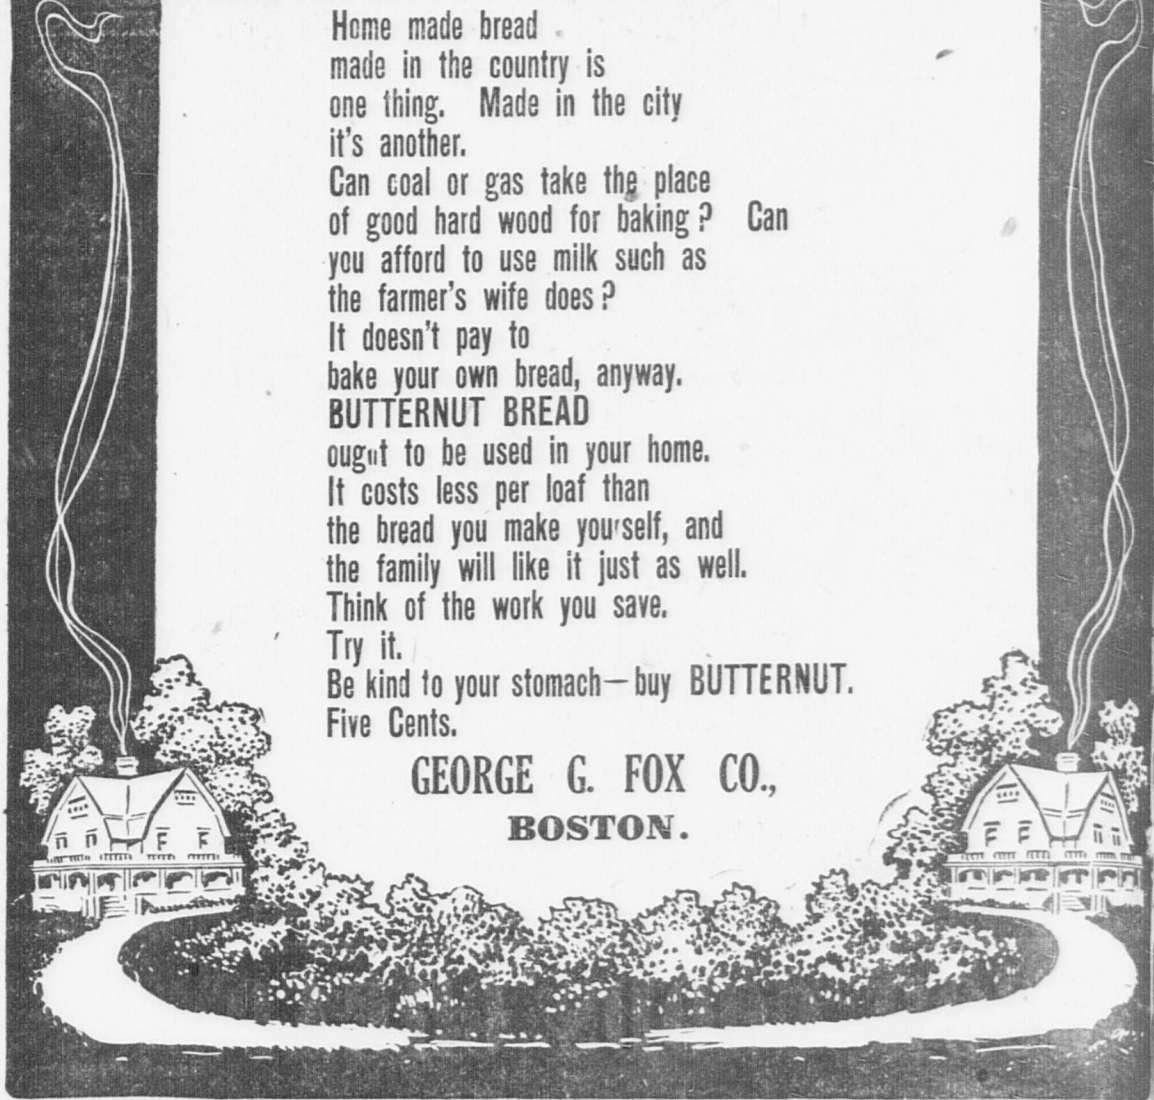

Home made bread made in the country is one thing. Made in the city it's another.

Can coal or gas take the place of good hard wood for baking? Can you afford to use milk such as the farmer's wife does? It doesn't pay to bake your own bread, anyway.

BUTTERNUT BREAD ought to be used in your home. It costs less per loaf than the bread you make yourself, and the family will like it just as well. Think of the work you save.

Try it.
Be kind to your stomach—buy BUTTERNUT. Five Cents.

TILLMAN ON THE SEA

Senator Intends to Spend the Summer in Europe

TO ESCAPE THE CAMPAIGN

Thinks Democrats Have the "Other Fellows" Licked in the Coming Election—Roosevelt May Change His Mind About Candidacy

Boston, May 16.—United States Senator Tillman of South Carolina sailed today for Europe in order to avoid the political campaign, mostly, and incidentally to recuperate from a paralytic shock that attacked him a short time ago.

Accompanied by his wife, he left the White Star line docks at Charlestown on the Canopic, bound for the Mediterranean. It is his intention to stop at Gibraltar and then work his way north, stopping some time among the Alps.

Considerably stronger than he has been for many days, Tillman reached the Parker house last evening. While in Washington he was ordered to see to one, but last evening he consented to see a Post man. He discussed this

"I am going to Europe for two months. To get well and to escape the political campaign. I will go to Gibraltar, but if it is too hot there I will not go, but go north. You know I want to stop in Spain and see if they can cook the way I like it. I am a great lover of onions."

"I do not intend to go peeping around looking for curiosities, ancient ruins and beautiful paintings any more than I have to. I will try and pick out a good place and stay there for some time. By August I will reach England and will sail for home in time to reach this country to cast my ballot."

"But I desire to be away during the campaign, which is growing warmer every day. I want to be out of the conference, the receiving of telegrams, and as a matter of fact, I want to be away from politics for a time."

When asked what he thought of the coming election Tillman said: "I think we have them licked. The other fellows are in the worst condition of any in the history of the Republican party."

"They are disgruntled, not united, and even in the strong Republican states like Massachusetts, as you no doubt know, there is dissension among them."

"I think from the present outlook that it will be their candidate, although you can never tell what will happen. Of course, President Roosevelt may possibly change his mind with a little coaxing."

"Who will lead the Democrats?" was asked.

"Well, the plutocrats are trying to defeat Bryan, but I guess he will be nominated all right. There may be considerable fighting at the convention, but I look to me like Bryan."

Will not Give Away Ideas

Manteo, N. C., May 16.—Having completely broken up their airship, which was accidentally wrecked during the height of their success at Kill Devil Hill on the Atlantic coast, Wilbur and Orville Wright received at their camp on the beach the newspaper correspondents who have been watching from a distance their experiments. The only vestige of the airship which the inventors saved was the gasoline engine. The other parts of the wreck were cut up into small pieces, so as to make it impossible for their ideas of aerial navigation to be discovered by others.

Debs Named For President

Chicago, May 16.—The Socialists in national convention adopted a platform after a long debate and proceeded to select a candidate for president. The names of Eugene V. Debs and A. M. Simons were placed before the delegates. The poll of the votes had proceeded until 194 had been counted and upon the showing it was moved that Debs' nomination be made unanimous. The motion went through. Benjamin Hanford of New York was nominated for vice president.

Bomb Outrage at Calcutta

Calcutta, May 16.—A bomb which had been placed on the rail of a street car line here was exploded by the wheel of a car passing over it. Four natives were injured by the explosion. It was evidently the intention to wreck a street car containing white persons, as notices in Bengali recently have been circulated warning natives not to ride in first-class cars. Apparently the bomb was charged with picric acid and not dynamite.

Peary Planning New Trip

Washington, May 16.—Peary, the explorer, was at the White House to arrange an audience with the president, and while there said he lacked but $50,000 to complete the fund needed to equip his expedition to start July 1 for the North Pole. His ship, the Roosevelt, is now at New York.

Methodists Economizing

Baltimore, May 16.—There are indications that the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, now in session, will not elect as many new bishops as had been expected. It has been thought that the number elected would be eight. Economy is said to be the actuating idea.

The Quincy Lines That Won Prize

The comments of the Evening Post of Chicago on the "Madrigal contest" will be of interest:

Willard Emerson Keyes of Wollaston, Mass., was declared today the winner of the national competition held under the auspices of the Chicago Madrigal Club for the best poem suitable for a madrigal composition.

Mr. Keyes' poem, submitted under the key name of "Beranger," was entitled "I Know the Way of the Wild Blush Rose," and was joyfully hailed by the three judges, William Morton Payne of the Dial, D. A. Clippinger, musical director of the Chicago Madrigal club, and Wilbur D. Nesbit of the Chicago Evening Post, as a conspicuous contribution to the literature of madrigals.

For its delicacy of theme, for the lift of its lines and their cumulative effect, and for its strong stimulus to the musical imagination, the prize poem was declared well to outrank its competitors.

By permission of the club, which has applied for the copyright, the madrigal is printed herewith:

I know the Way of the Wild Blush Rose.

I know the way of the wild blush rose
That blooms in the copse there—
The wild blush rose whose beauty glows
In the languid summer air.
For oh, she loves to be wooed and won,
And she opens her heart to the ardent sun
And she tells her love while yet she may
For love doth last but a summer's day.

I know the way of the nightingale
In the dark green flex tree,
For each pure note from her pulsing throat
Breathes love's wild ecstasy.
She sings that her listening swain may know
The tender rapture that moves her so,
For soon, too soon, the leaf grows sore,
And love will pass with the passing year.
But who can know the way of a maid
When her heart is sweetly thrilled?
Deep down in her eyes the secret lies
And the song on her lips is stifled.
But locked in love's first dear embrace,
A new light shines in her upturned face;
There's a song in her breast that shall never die,
For the love of a maid is for aye and aye!

After the authorship of the madrigal had been traced to Mr. Keyes, the judges were still much in the dark regarding his identity. He is not in Who's Who, and a diligent search at the public library disclosed but one other contribution of his. That was a brief poem entitled "In London Town," printed in Harper's Magazine four years ago.

The monetary prize awarded to the winner amounts to but $50, but poets find honor sweet, and the competition, both this year and last, has proved keen. There were approximately 300 entries in this contest besides one contribution from Kobe, Japan, and a score or so from Canada. Since the competition, however, was confined strictly to the United States, the latter were all returned to their owners.

"We have picked out half a dozen other madrigals of conspicuous merit," said Mr. Clippinger, "and as soon as we have traced the authorship we shall send some word of appreciation to the writers. I think I may say for the other judges that we were agreeably surprised at the high average maintained. There was very little that was thoroughly mediocre though many poems, of course, had glaring faults in one particular or another, which resulted in their prompt rejection."

Having secured its poem, the club, following its old custom, will announce in about ten days the details of its annual competition, open to American composers, for the best musical setting for "I know the Way of the Wild Blush Rose." Copies of the poem and other details will be furnished by Mr. Clippinger on application.

A madrigal it may be loosely explained, is a song sung without accompaniment by four, five or more voices, its words secular, but its technique full of counterpoint and imitation and adhering to the old church modes. Five years ago the Chicago Madrigal Club began an annual competition for the best madrigals written by American composers on certain designated poems. These prizes were won by composers of high standing, including:

John Hyatt Brewer of Brooklyn, with a madrigal on Bayard Taylor's "Bedouin Love Song."

Carl Busch of Kansas City, on Charles Swain's "When the Heart is Young."

Franz Bornschein of Baltimore, on Cunningham's "A Wet Sheet and a Flowing Sea."

Arthur Dunham of Chicago, on Pret Hart's "What the Chimney Sang."

Last year the club started a contest for the best poem. This was won by Ingram Crockett of Henderson, Ky., with one entitled merely "A Madrigal." The prize for the best musical setting for this was won by Dr. H. J. Stewart of San Francisco. The Madrigal club itself is composed of about twenty-five trained singers, many of them professional, and the others ranking high in the world of amateurs. Its associate membership includes a much wider group of musical people in and around Chicago.

Experts Not of One Mind

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 16.—Examination of expert medical witnesses in an endeavor to show that Harry K. Thaw is sane was begun here late Friday by Thaw's counsel in the habeas corpus proceedings instituted to free him from confinement at the Matteawan asylum for the criminal insane. District Attorney Jerome, who is opposing Thaw's release, rested his case and Thaw's counsel called several witnesses in rebuttal, who testified that Thaw is sane at present. Experts called by Jerome earlier in the day testified that, in their opinion, Thaw is an incurable paranoiac and that his release would be dangerous to public safety.

Overriding Presidential Veto

Washington, May 16.—The house committee on interstate and foreign commerce voted unanimously to recommend "as a matter of form" the passage over the president's veto of the senate bill extending the time for the construction of a dam across the Rainey river in northern Minnesota. The committee appointed a special sub-committee "to confer with the president relative to the matter, explain to him the points of disagreement and endeavor to harmonize the views of the president and the committee." In vetoing the Rainey river dam bill recently the president sent to congress a vigorous message.

New York, May 16.—The Vacuum Cleaner company has been placed in the hands of a receiver, with liabilities of $270,000 and estimated assets of $400,000. The concern was organized in New Jersey in January, 1905, and utilized the vacuum process for cleaning the inner and outer walls of buildings. The company has portable cleaners in Boston and other large cities.

Philadelphia, May 16.—The efforts of the students of Swarthmore college to induce the faculty to reconsider its action in abandoning intercollegiate football contests have proved futile. Chairman Clothier of the alumni advisory committee of the college has notified football teams with which Swarthmore had games scheduled that he had to cancel the contests.

Foraker Preferred to Taft

Coshocton, O., May 16.—Senator Foraker was endorsed for the presidency over Secretary Taft by the Seventeenth congressional district convention. Coshocton and Licking counties voted solidly for the Foraker resolution. The nomination of a congressman was postponed until August.

Attractive House

One of the prettiest modern homes is that recently erected on Edison Park and sold to Perry Gove of Hingham. The house, which is of the colonial style of architecture, is one of seven rooms and bath, the latter being furnished with what is known as a low down closet. On the front of the house on the piazza are handsome colonial columns with fancy cobble stone front. The floor of the piazza is of oak, which is unusual, and will almost wear a life time. The interior finish of the house is cypress with hard pine floors, excepting the hall, bath room and kitchen where the floors are of maple. The house is one of several built in this neighborhood by Asa A. Sewall and was sold complete including land for $3,200.

To Celebrate Fourth

Hodonsasnee tribe of Red Men of Wollaston has already taken steps to celebrate the Fourth of July. The program as planned will consist of "Open house to Red Men" on the evening of July 3, with moving pictures or stereopticon views on a screen outside the hall and with music, etc. The entertainment in the hall will be for members of the order only and will consist of a reception to our Great Chiefs and the Mayor of Quincy. There will be music, singing and refreshments and a general good time.

A Concert

The Norfolk trio formerly of Atlantic, now of Dorchester are to give a concert in the Stoughton street Baptist church, Dorchester, Tuesday evening May twenty-sixth at eight fifteen o'clock. The trio will be assisted by Maud Huntington Benjamin reader and F. L. Craigie, tenor of the Berkeley Quartette, Boston. The program is a good one and the many friends of the Misses Wright will be interested to know they are giving another of their first class concerts.

Had a Close Call.

Fred Jones, assistant to Inspector of Wires Gavin, came near losing his life this morning at Atlantic. He went down into a telephone man-hole to repair some of the police wires, when he was overcome with sewer gas. Mr. Jones was all alone and would surely have died but for John McNeise. Mr. McNeise was passing along the street and heard groans coming from the manhole. He investigated and found Mr. Jones unconscious. He succeeded in getting him out of the hole and into Taylor's carriage shop, where he was attended by Dr. Adams. A few minutes more and Mr. Jones must have died.

Norfolk Courts.

At the sale this week of the library of the late Hiram A. Huse of Montpelier, Vt., librarian of the Vermont state library, the Boston public library paid $20 for a collection of scrapbooks of the late Ellis Ames of Canton, Mass. There are 20 volumes dealing with the law, the courts and lawyers of Plymouth and Norfolk counties from 1836 to 1879.

Mellen Bray, the manufacturer, well known in Wollaston, has left a big estate. His will was filed at probate court on Thursday. He left his widow $25,000 and his daughter, Persis D. Edmonds, $25,000. If Mrs. Edmonds dies her legacy is to be divided among her children, except J. Wiley Edmonds, who, in no event, shall receive any part of his estate. Mellen Bray, Jr. is given $50,000, and his other son $50,000.

The centennial of the First Parish church (Universalist) of Stoughton is to be observed on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, May 31st, June 1st and 2d.

Notable Guests
At Knockers Club

Probation Officer Francis A. Spear entertained the Knockers' club and a few friends at dinner yesterday on the occasion of his birthday anniversary. The dinner was served at Thompson's restaurant and was pronounced by all to have been one of the most enjoyable of the many held by the club.

Outside of the club members present were Judge Albert E. Avery of the district court, John P. S. Churchill, clerk of court; William M. Marden, court officer; Benjamin J. Loring of Baintree, agent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, Warren Davis of Fall River, agent of the State Board of Charity; Frank A. Hagar, probation officer at Cambridge; Joseph F. Costello, of Havana; Eugene W. O'Connor, of the Boston custom house; George W. Jones, the city Square haberdasher, and life long personal friend of the host; and Galen Vinton Bowditch, a direct descendant of the Baintree Vintons and a vocalist of renown.

The regular club members present included: Maurice Pierce, chief of police of Milton; Frank E. Burrell, chief of police of Quincy; Phillip Sullivan, a prominent member of the Quincy Bar Association; Timothy J. Collins of the Boston Globe, Leo J. McMaster of the Boston Journal, and George T. Magee of the Daily Ledger. Mayor Shea was expected, but was unavoidably absent from the city.

The tables were very prettily decorated with handsome flowers, gifts of admiring ladies. The Knockers were on their good behavior and there were but few knocks. One, however, was when a parcel was placed in front of the host, which upon being opened, proved to be a cut glass tobacco jar with silver top, upon which was the following inscription: "Francis A. Spear, the big Knockers, from the little Knockers, May 15, 1908."

The menu was an excellent one, as follows:

Clam Chowder	Tartar Sauce,
Boiled Live Lobster,	Egg Sauce,
Boiled Salmon,	Radishes,
Cucumbers, Tomatoes, Lettuce,	Queen Olives,
Fillet of Beef,	French Fried Potatoes,
Asparagus,	Green Peas,
Pudding,	Strawberries and Cream,
Ice Cream and Cake,	Toasted Crackers and Cheese,
French Coffee,

The postprandial exercises were of a simple nature. Galen sang several of his well known selections, and after hearing these no one seemed to have any desire to talk.

Mr. Hagar, however, had a kind word to say of the host, and of his pleasant business relations with him, which he said would continue in the future. This prompted his honor to remark that he had better see the judge first.

"Gene" Connor had a word to say about the custom house, and "Joe" Costello repeated that story of Maurice Pierce and the chickens; Geo. Jones told of the gathering fourteen years ago, when the boys were at the host's home to celebrate a similar event; and Maurice Pierce had a word to say on his new scheme of catching auto speeders.

Then the talk became rambling. One by one the guests shook the hand of their host, expressing their pleasure at having been fortunate enough to be present, and promising to meet again a year hence.

ENTERTAINMENT.

Mr. Osgood and the Y. M. C. A. Mandolin, Banjo and Guitar club of Quincy were greeted by a large and enthusiastic audience in the chapel of the First Congregational church, Baintree, last evening. The opening number "Alpha March" won favor, as did every selection rendered by the club. The medley overture "Moonlight on the Plantation" created a decidedly good impression. Mr. Osgood was given a most cordial reception at the close of his first original monologue, which was emphasized all through the concert. Herbert A. Cassidy, as usual, displayed his skill as a mandolin soloist and Messrs. Osgood and Newcomb in their banjo duet, set many a foot tapping to the inspiring strains of "Tinkle Tars," the latest dorkie symphony.

Funeral of Mrs. McNally.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary McNally, wife of Michael McNally, was held this morning from her late residence on Hancock street, followed by services at St. John's church. Mass was celebrated by Rev. John J. Casey and Schmitts mass was sung by the choir. The bearers, were John Harkins, T. J. O'Connell, John H. Dinegan, John A. Avery, Michael F. Gallagher and Luke J. Coyle. The burial was at New Calvary.

Reception to
Mr. and Mrs. Hill

Thursday evening an event of great pleasure took place at the vestry of the Park and Downs church, the occasion being a surprise reception to Mr. and Mrs. Hill of Downs, in honor of their valued and gratuitous services. Mrs. Hill has endeavored by her loving and untiring zeal to build up and conduct the same. She is an accomplished singer. Mr. Hill has also rendered valued assistance in playing for the choir.

Whilst the choir were rehearsing, an invitation was extended by one of the young Christian Endeavorers to come down and have refreshments. On entering the vestry they were confronted by about 75 people, being a complete surprise. Mr. J. B. Smith of the post office department made an appropriate speech, presenting Mrs. Hill with a basket wherein were $25 in gold pieces tastefully placed. Mrs. Hill responded in a feeling manner, after which a social evening was spent with singing, etc. Refreshments were served.

Gas Supply
At Houghs Neck

The last stretch of gas pipe between Houghs Neck and Quincy will be laid by Monday. The laying of the gas pipes has been done in record breaking time. By June 10 the gas will be ready to use. The installing of gas at Houghs Neck can be credited to the Houghs Neck Associates. When gas replaces gasoline stoves it will not only be a convenience to the lady of the house, but there will be less danger from a conflagration and loss of life. As few seaside resorts have a gas supply Houghs Neck will be "in it."

P. Galvin and family of Ashmont have leased the beautiful cottage of H. P. Tracy on Bell street, facing the water.

Edmund Tougas and Mrs. A. F. Farrington late of Dorchester, now living on Great hill, were united by marriage Thursday at Dorchester.

The Houghs Neck Associates are to have a supper May 24. Leo Collins of Dorchester is stopping with P. Galvin for a few days. A. W. LaBrecque will open his dining room at 1259 Sea street on Sunday.

Grand opening of Brown's hall tonight. Music will be furnished by Kutz's orchestra. There will be dancing at this hall Wednesday and Saturday evenings to June 20. Starting June 22 dancing every evening throughout the summer.

Just Jotted Down
By Ledger Men

A beautiful day.

A fair Sunday is predicted.

Good luck to the Quincy High school athletes at Duxbury today.

A house on Granite street has gone in mourning probably over the grade crossing problem.

Rev. A. M. Thompson and Rev. A. R. Atwood will exchange pulpits Sunday morning.

Rev. C. S. Cedarberg, the presiding elder will preach Sunday evening at St. Paul's Swedish church, and communion services will follow.

Miss Floretta Vining will live at Vining villa, Stony beach, this summer. She will be the proprietor this season and already has several guests booked.

The world seemed a very beautiful place to live in this morning. Every growing thing, grass, shrub and tree looked green and fresh after the rain and seemed to revel in the bright sunshine.

A. D. Kirkland lost his suit against the Loyal Ladies in the Norfolk Superior civil court this week. It was to recover $200 bequeathment policy on the life of his wife Helen who died in 1906.

Mrs. Charles F. Veazie had the misfortune to trip and fall at her home 236 Franklin street, Friday. Her head struck a piano and she received a bad cut which rendered her unconscious for a time. She was also severely bruised.

Mrs. Isabelle Davis with her usual thought for the young people has arranged for Senorita Huidobro to come to Quincy on May 27 and give her illustrated lecture on "Panama to Patagonia." The lecture will be in the chapel of First church and the proceeds will be given to the Young People's Religious union of the church.

AFTERNOON FIRE.

Box 46 was pulled about 2 P. M., today for a fire at the shop of Badger Bros. on Willard street.

King's Daughters
Mourn Their Loss

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Taber, widow of Mr. Edward A. T. Taber, was held this morning from the Bethany church, with which she had long been affiliated. not only as an active church member, but in the Sunday school, the Mothers' Association and other organizations connected therewith.

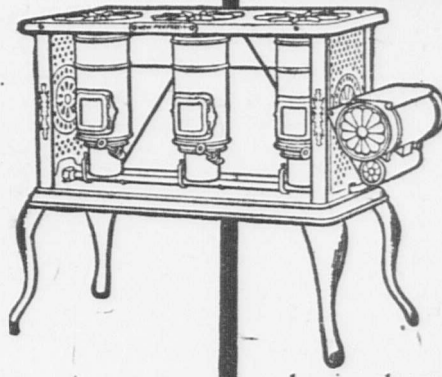

The funeral was in charge of the King's Daughters many of whom were present, also members of Maple lodge, Knights and Ladies of Honor. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy and were of an impressive nature.

Along the front of the platform was a row of potted plants in the centre of which on a field of purple was the insignia of the King's Daughter. Among the many beautiful flowers was a pillow marked "Mother," a triangle of white carnations from the Knights and Ladies of Honor, and a flat bouquet of pansies from the King's Daughters.

During the services Mrs. Emma S. Moore sang "Passing out of the shadow," and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." The burial was at Newport, R. I., where Mr. Taber is buried.

Vaudeville Bill a Winner.

The show for next week at the Scenic is an exceptionally strong one. Some fine subjects are promised in the moving pictures commencing Monday night, and the illustrated songs will be sung by a young lady of repute in the theatrical world. The Great Merrill, "In Frogland," a contortionist who excels everybody in his line, will do some body-twisting stunts that will make your eyes open wide with astonishment. Aida Corbett, a petite, attractive little lady with an especially pleasing voice does a character change act that has set everyone who has seen her talking about it. The inimitable Billy Cross, "That Funny Fellow," Irish comedian, story teller, singer, and all round entertainer, simply places all others in the shade. He has taken a contract to amuse all patrons of the Scenic next week and he never yet has had to forfeit because of inability to do so. Don't fail to see Merrill in Frogland, as he is to be replaced by Mons. Forber on Thursday night, the Slack Wire King, equilibrist unexcelled, who performs wonderful feats in mid-air.

Have You a Summer Stove?

The stifling air of a close kitchen is changed to comfortable coolness by installing a New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove to do the family cooking.

No kitchen furnishing is so convenient as this stove. Gives a working heat at once, and maintains it until turned out—that too, without overheating the room. If you examine the

you will see why this is so. The heat from the chimney of the "New Perfection" is concentrated under the kettle and not dissipated through the room by radiation. Thus it does the work of the coal range without its discomfort. Ask your dealer about this stove—if not with him, write our nearest agency.

The Rayo Lamp is a very handsome piece of housefurnishing and gives a clear, powerful light more agreeable than gas or electricity. Safe everywhere and always. Made of brass finely nickel plated—just the thing for the living-room. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

Farragut

By ROBERTUS LOVE

Of Farragut the brave
Let us send a ringing stave
Down the past,
When the fortress cannon crashed
And the admiral was lashed
To the mast,
When the shells shrieked and broke
On the Hartford's hull of oak.

All the batteries of Mobile
Did he dare,
Yet the glory of his fight
Scintillates enduring light

With a far shining flame
To illuminate his name.

The Cutest Yankee Soldier

By MITCHEL FAY.

[Copyright, 1908, by C. N. Lurie.]

HE GOT PAST THE GUARD.

THE cutest Yankee soldier I ever knew, said the Confederate veteran, was a fellow who came down to spy on us. Talk about eels. This man was slipper than any eel that ever wriggled through five fingers. And the gall he had! A noose at the end of a rope didn't seem to have any terrors for him. We'd take him. He'd escape. And instead of getting back into his own lines he'd go on spying. He wouldn't go back to the commander who sent him until he'd finished his job and got all the information he wanted.

Our trouble was that we were in the field, where we hadn't any jail to put him in. The first time we caught him red handed, with memoranda of our forces on him, the guard was dead tired after a twenty-four hour march and went to sleep. To get away that time was easy. We caught him and shut him up in a box car on the railroad track. He sawed a hole in the bottom of the car, let himself down and got past the guard in the darkness.

Well, we caught him again, though this time he tried hard enough to make his lines, and I wanted to string him right up. The colonel came pretty near giving me an order to do so, but concluded that he'd better get the general's order, and this necessitated our keeping him overnight. This time we decided to put him in a farmhouse. We put a guard in the room with him and a double guard on the outside of the house.

The Yank, besides being slick, was the best looking chap you ever saw in your life, and he had such a pleasant smile that I hated the idea of putting an end to it. There was a half grown girl in the house, an awkward, freckled, red headed thing that none of us noticed or considered any element of danger. How the spy found a way of getting her interested in him or whether she did it all without the asking we never found out. She ran into the room where he was and excitedly told the sentry that the Yanks were coming full tilt. The guard ran out, and when he found it was only a scare and went back the prisoner wasn't there. He got away through a secret tunnel the farmer had dug.

He was a beautiful runner—we had had experience in that—and an artful dodger besides, but he had little start, and we felt no fear of not catching him. Just as we were starting in different directions a man told us of some bloodhounds near by, so we got 'em, and they picked up the scent. We didn't hurry much as soon as we found we could get the dogs, or, rather, the man I sent for 'em was a long while getting 'em, and I reckon the Yank had got about forty minutes' start; but, Lord, that wasn't anything since he was more than twenty miles from his lines, and we felt dead sure of getting him.

The dogs kept the scent for about a mile, when they lost it at a creek. The Yank had walked in the water some distance, and then, instead of getting back on to dry land on the opposite side, he crossed farther up. This threw the dogs off the scent for quite awhile.

The first we heard of our man he'd taken a horse out of a widow's barn. We followed him through a clump of houses where there was a store and learned that he'd gone into the store, told the storekeeper that he was a Confederate courier in a hurry with important dispatches, helped himself to what he could find to eat and asked the storekeeper if he had any red pepper, as he was mighty fond of it on meat. The storekeeper gave him a box, and the Yank jumped on his horse and galloped away.

Funny, wasn't it—a man flying from the rope so particular about the seasoning of his food? By this time we'd tracked him some ten miles, and he was going straight in the direction of the Federal lines, but his horse didn't seem to be much of a beast for endurance, for we kept hearing of the man nearer and nearer. When about two miles ahead of us he left the road and made for a big field, letting down a rail fence to get into it. He soon struck the road again, and it was evident that he'd made a cutoff. Then we followed him up a creek that was pretty near dry and at last came to his horse, lying stone dead in a cotton field.

"Hoora!" we all shouted. "We've got him! Another mile or two 'll do the business."

But he'd been riding all the while and must have been as fresh as a daisy for running. Anyway, he gave us a lively chase.

First we came upon his hat, that had doubtless been knocked off by a branch, and he hadn't lost time in picking it up. Some of our men had forced him to exchange a pair of worn-out shoes for his boots, and pretty soon we found blood in his tracks. We calculated we were not half a mile behind him, and it was still five miles to the nearest Federal picket. The blood tracks grew more and more marked, and it was plain that he couldn't run very fast with bleeding feet.

All of a sudden the foremost dog, skipping along with his nose to the ground, stopped and sneezed. The next and the next did the same till every dog was sneezing so hard we were afraid they'd sneeze their heads off. The Yank had poured red pepper in his shoes, in which there were plenty of holes, through which it could run out into his tracks. The dogs sneezed and sneezed and then turned tail on the trail. No whipping would drive them on. Some of us followed the Yank, but we didn't get him. The last we saw of him he was scooting into the Federal lines.

What did we do with the girl who helped him get away? Nothing. And I've been glad ever since we didn't. The Yank came back after the war and married her. They're living in the house from which she helped him to escape. They've got a dozen or more grandchildren.

In Memory of the Brave.
At Gettysburg 269 Union regiments and batteries were engaged, and today these organizations are represented by almost as many monuments, which cost from $200 to $40,000 each.

Those Broken Ranks

A Memorial Day Poem by Marion Couthouy Smith

[Copyright, 1908, by Marion C. Smith.]

Sound in our dreaming ears,
And, hark, the battle thunders swell
Across the gulf of years!

How strange, how swift, the after days!
Spring after spring goes by;
Voices of sorrow and of praise
In lessening murmurs die;
The ranks are thinned, their work long done,

The stately heads grown white,
And brave old comrades one by one
Pass out beyond our sight.

AND, HARK, THE BATTLE THUNDERS SWELL!
New hopes, new triumphs, projects wide,
Have filled the nation's heart.

Strong men, once children at our side,
Now fill their destined part.
But still they stand—those broken ranks—
To share with spirits dear
The incense of a people's thanks Uprising year by year.

Alas, how soon those passing hosts,
Will vanish from our view,
Their very memories be as ghosts
Of men our fathers knew!

Yet from the past, with glory fraught,
Their praises still shall ring
And tribute to their graves be brought
In lavish bloom of spring.

Fired First and Last Shot.

It is a fact not generally known that the man who fired the first gun in the civil war killed himself with another shot not long after the close of the conflict. Edmund Ruffin, who opened the bombardment of Fort Sumter by firing the first cannon shot, owned a large plantation on the James river, with many slaves. He was an old man, but intensely loyal to the south. By the fortunes of war his estate was ruined. So disappointed and humiliated was Ruffin by the failure of the southern cause that on the 17th of June, 1865, at Amelia Court House, Va., the old man loaded a musket and killed himself.

Fired From Fort Sumter.

Dr. V. Hutton Ford of Washington recently gave the National museum a forty pound cannon ball fired from Fort Sumter during the opening engagement of the civil war.

FLOWER BED CULTURE.

How to Properly Prepare the Soil For Plants.

As soon as the soil is dry enough to handle with a shovel or spade throw the soil up in the center of the beds or borders in ridges as high as possible and allow it to stand thus for a month, which will bring it to within a week of the time when it will be safe to plant out bedding plants. Then scatter it back over the beds and borders loosely and allow it to lie until you are ready to put out the plants, when it should be dug, raked and firmed as usual. This treatment of the soil will render it fine and mellow, and it will require but one-third the fertilizer that will be required when simply treated in the usual way, as the aeration given it adds greatly to its store of nitrogen, which is the most important portion of the soil content.

If the garden fork is available and you can handle it, it is even better than the spade or shovel, but few persons can use it intelligently, as most persons let most of the forkful spill before it is tossed, and the proper ridging under of the topsoil and ridging out of the undersoil is not secured, unless which is accomplished the labor is in vain. Soil which is composted in the spring to be used in the autumn for potting house plants should be handled in this manner, doing the process over at least twice during the summer, when you will have the finest possible potting soil in the autumn, which will need no addition of any kind of manure during the succeeding winter if a good loam were used as a base with which to start. There would be few poor gardens if people realized how much free fertilizer nature has stored in the air, requiring it but to be taken.

How to Keep Feathers Fluffy.

The expense of keeping either an ostrich feather boa or an ostrich feather laden hat looking like new reduces itself to nothing at all and very little trouble when one knows the way. The straightest feathers may be curled "without ripping," as the old ads. used to say, and boas require only a little shaking. Boiling water and dry heat are the two essentials, and the method of treating either hat or boa is the same. An old fashioned teakettle with long spout is best for the boiling water. Either a radiator or the top of a stove is usually best for the dry heat. A register seldom sends out sufficient volume. In any event, both kinds of heat must be ready at the same time. When the kettle boils the feathers should be waved to and fro in its steam until they have gathered a little moisture, not so much, however, as to be wet. At the time when the last lingering remnant of curl disappears they are usually ready for the dry heat. It is this which curls the feathers, and hat or boa should be held as close to it as can be without burning, and either should be shaken gently every moment.

How to Make Dainty Neckwear.

As it is absolutely necessary for a woman to wear some form of a neck trimming to be considered well dressed, the woman of limited means will look about for a way to construct some of the fussy, duffy little bows and jabots at home. It is wonderful how cheaply these can be made at home compared to the tremendous price which one must pay for these in the shops. Hemstitched handkerchiefs with dainty colored borders may be had for moderate sums, and these, with the addition of a little valenciennes lace, may be made into charming jabots. The lace edge should be whipped on all around the handkerchief, which is then laid in small plaits and pressed. It is then divided about two inches above the center, and the short end is folded over the longer one to form a jabot effect. All white handkerchiefs with barred borders may be treated in this same way with charming results.

How to Make Rugs.

To make durable rugs out of old clothes, rip the garments apart, tear in narrow strips one-third of an inch wide; bend a stiff wire so that it will form two prongs an inch apart, the length of the width of the rug you want to make. Then take the strips, pin the ends together, mixing bright and dark colors for centers or border, as one wants. Now wrap them around the prongs carefully until they are filled, then place the prongs across the foundation of muslin the size of the rug and pin them firm. Now sew in the middle of prongs with the machine or by hand, remove the prongs and cut the loops. Repeat until length is filled. Take some thick paste, spread on a lining, lay the rug underside down, press on lining, making it firm, and lay smooth on the floor, and you have a good and durable rug, easily made and with no expense.

How to Clean Enamel Paint.

Soap never should be used in cleaning paint, especially white enamel or any paint with a gloss, as it removes the gloss, which is its chief charm. If in washing enameled woodwork a cupful of common carpenter's glue is melted and poured into a pail of warm water it not only will facilitate the cleaning, but will leave a high gloss such as new paint has. If once used this common glue will become a household necessity.

How to Clean Enamel of Stains.

To clean and remove all stains from enamel rub well with salt moistened with vinegar. This will clean equally well enameled pots and pans, no matter how burned or discolored.

How to Keep Vegetables Fresh.

Green vegetables can be kept fresh for days by wetting them and then rolling them up in paper, screwing the ends to keep out the air.

RESULTS ARE AMPLE

President's Opinion of the Conference of Governors

"DECLARATION" IS ADOPTED

Emphasizes Necessity For United Action Toward Preservation of National Resources of the Country—Future Meetings of Executives

Washington, May 16.—The first conference of the governors of the states of the American Union has ended. Like many of the important events of history, time is needed to reveal the epoch which the president and the governors believe has been begun.

The accomplishment of the conference which was in progress at the White House for three days cannot be set forth with exactitude, but that its immediate results are more than ample is the expression of President Roosevelt, who brought it about, and of the governors who participated.

The printed record of the conference, which will be available by every American home later on, will be a compilation of facts, startling in their meaning and convincing in their universal conclusion that the states must act and that the states and the nation must co-operate to the end that the whole people of the nation may accrue the lasting benefit of its natural resources.

Besides the compilation of facts by the experts and the freely-expressed opinion of the governors, the conference leaves as its permanent record a thousand words of "declaration"—not a "declaration of independence," but a declaration of "co-operation."

The declaration, which is an extended document, embraces recommendations along general and broad lines, avoiding specific recommendations for national or state legislation. The report is prefaced by a reiteration of what has been said in the conference regarding the necessity for united action, which will result in the preservation of the natural resources of the country.

It commends the action of President Roosevelt in calling the conference and recommends that future conferences of like character be called by the then president at such times as conditions shall warrant and his judgment shall sanction. Legislation by congress and the states is suggested, not specifically, but along general lines to further the ends sought. It is also suggested that the states individually put the subject into the hands of competent commissions.

Perhaps greater in importance than all else was the determination of the governors to perfect a permanent organization, whereby a heretofore unknown intimacy may be developed among the executives of the forty-six sovereign states, made strong by a common purpose, and made potent by pronouncements which may not lightly be disregarded.

The last day was one of many features. The set program was swept aside. The president presided throughout. He interjected remarks and speeches. He brought to the platform men who made plain the prevailing feeling that thought and care must be exercised for the future. The prepared papers were not presented, but they will be printed in the permanent record. Their place was taken first by the "declaration" which was adopted after discussion which brought to light no serious objection to its affirmations.

Then William J. Bryan was presented by the president. He touched the same chords which had previously produced harmony and co-operation. A governors' discussion brought many state executives to the platform, but the product was altogether one of concord and the sentiments expressed were applauded by all.

President Roosevelt himself answering the one criticism—that of Governor Folger—to the declaration, aroused the conference to its warmest demonstration of approval. He swept aside the "academic" question of where the line of authority should be drawn between the states and the nation. He wanted action, and what he said received endorsement at each period. It was this:

"Just a word of what has been called the 'twilight land' between the powers of the federal and state governments. My primary aim in the legislation that I have advocated for the regulation of the great corporations has been to provide some effective popular sovereignty for each corporation. I do not wish to keep this twilight land one of large and vague boundaries, by judicial decision that in a given case the state cannot act, and then a few years later by other decisions that in practically similar cases the nation cannot act, either.

"I am trying to find out where one or the other can act, so there shall always be some sovereign power that, on behalf of the people, can hold every big corporation, every big individual to an accountability so that its or his acts shall be beneficial to the people as a whole.

"In matters that relate only to the people within the state, of course the state is to be sovereign and it should have the power to act. If the matter is such that the state cannot itself act, then I wish on behalf of all the states that the national government should act.

"Take such a matter as charging a rent for water power. My position is simply that where a privilege, which may be of great value in the future to the individual grantee, is asked from the federal government, then the federal government should put into the grant a condition that it shall not be a 'rent in perpetuity.'

"Put in a provision that will enable the next generation to say what, in their judgment, should be done with that great natural power which is of use to the grantee only because the people as a whole allow him to use it, so that when the conditions change, as in all probability they will change, our children, the nation of the future, shall have the right to determine the condition upon which that privilege shall be enjoyed.

"In these cases the state has not acted or cannot act; therefore, I hold the nation should act. Where the policy I advocate can be carried out best by the state, let it be carried out by the state; where it can be carried out best by the nation, let it be carried out by the nation. My concern is not with the academic side of the question; I deal with the matter practically from the standpoint of true popular interest; and, therefore, my desire is to employ indifferently either the principle of states' rights or the principle of national sovereignty, whichever in a given case will best conserve the needs of the people."

The declaration upon which the president's remarks were predicated was presented to the conference by Governor Blanchard of Louisiana, who stated that it proceeded upon broad lines, and purposely avoided making specific endorsements of desired projects or legislation.

It was upon the suggestion of Governor Glenn of North Carolina, that future conferences should depend upon the expressed desire of two-thirds of the governors, that Governor Folger made the criticism which called forth the president's remarks quoted above.

Authenticity of Paintings Doubtful
New York, May 16.—An art scandal, begun with the withdrawal of three paintings from the Corcoran art gallery at Washington, led to the arrest of William Clausen, an art dealer of this city.

The pictures withdrawn were part of a collection of fifty presented by William T. Evans to the proposed National Gallery. They were withdrawn by the donor after much gossip attacking their authenticity. Clausen was arrested in a suit brought by Evans to recover $9650 paid for the three paintings. Bail was fixed at $2500. Clausen maintains that the paintings are genuine.

Fought Fire Under Difficulties
New York, May 16.—Working in re-lays and blinded by spattering dye and dense smoke, firemen fought a fire in the factory of Holliday, Read & Sons, manufacturers of aniline colors and chemicals, in a four-story building. Many of the firemen were covered from head to foot with a solution of rare colors, which in some instances burned their hands and blinded their eyes. While the firemen were pouring streams of water into the building the gutters of that section flowed with richly colored streams. The fire loss was $50,000.

Fleet Under Sperry's Command
San Francisco, May 16.—Rear Admiral Sperry has assumed command of the strongest force of first-class fighting ships assembled in the history of the nation. Rear Admiral Thomas, who succeeded Rear Admiral Evans as commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, hauled down his flag from the truck of the Connecticut and ten minutes later Sperry was received on board the flagship with the salutes and other naval honors befitting his position.

Hot-Headed Russian Statesmen
St. Petersburg, May 16.—The drama had a stormy session and the lie was passed between the leaders of the minority and the majority. A Monarchist member broke into the discussion and enlivened it with several epithets not found in polite vocabularies. At one time he was on the point of forcibly attacking the leader of the Constitutional Democrats, and he was restrained only by two of his associates holding him forcibly down to his seat.

Walking Test For Officers
Washington, May 16.—President Roosevelt has added another severe regulation to his orders for desk officers to learn to ride. In connection with the ninety-mile test ride which officers must later make, the president adds provision that field officers of the coast artillery, who are exempt from the riding test, must take a walking test of forty miles in three days, with no less than twenty hours' actual walking.

Trade Responds to Weather
New York, May 16.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that trade conditions are most responsive to the weather at this time of year, and more seasonable temperature brought distinct improvement during the past week, especially in retail sales of wearing apparel. Crops have also made good progress, the violent rise in the price of cotton being purely speculative.

Schooner Goes to Pieces
New York, May 16.—Lifeguards rescued the captain and crew of four men of schooner William McGee, sighted off Sea Island City, N. J., waterlogged and flying signals of distress. The McGee was bound from West Point, Va., for New York with a cargo of pine boards. The vessel afterwards went to pieces at Camden inlet.

FOREST PROTECTION

It Is Declared to Be the Nation's Present Duty

WANTON WASTE POINTED OUT

Depletion of the Nation's Resources

Further Considered at White House Conference—A Proposed Organization of Governors

Washington, May 15.—Startling was the warning sounded at the conference of governors at the White House of the danger the nation confronts in soil waste and forest depletion. The governors listened and talked and applauded, but took no action. This is left for the last day of the conference.

James J. Hill of the Great Northern, who led a long list of speakers, treated the depletion of the nation's resources in a very serious and impressive way. He presented conditions respecting mineral, soil and forest, showing wanton waste in each instance, and drew a picture of political chaos when all were gone, wherein the public would tear down the very pillars of government. Hill believed such results could and should be avoided by prompt action.

Soil waste and forest conservation were considered from an expert standpoint by Professor Chamberlain of Chicago and R. A. Long of Kansas City, after which was evidenced the desire of the convention to engage in general discussion.

The demand to be heard was insistent, and the same eagerness was manifested at the close of the afternoon program, which included an address on irrigation by ex-Governor Pardee of California, a paper on grazing and stock raising, read for H. A. Jastro of California, who was taken ill during the day, and general observations on land conditions in the west by former Senator Carey of Wyoming.

Secretary Wilson met a hearty response to a practical talk on the mistakes in farming and the remedies. The same crop each year on the same land, as he showed, was ruinous. Diversity of crops, and keeping the proper quantity of organic matter in the soil, was the secret of larger production and benefit to the land.

"What New York state has and is doing for her forests," was set forth by J. S. Whipple, forest, fish and game commissioner of the Empire state. Governor Fort of New Jersey then gave an entertaining talk.

Yale university is graduating practical foresters at the rate of thirty or forty a year, and all of these are obtaining positions. This desire for experts led President Hadley of Yale to predict that the people of the nation would be aroused and educated to true conditions in twenty years, and would then assume the burden of conserving the resources of the country without state or national aid or direction.

Governor Glenn of North Carolina got the platform and won applause by declaring, "in the language of one of the greatest sages and statesmen of these United States—Grove Cleveland—it is a condition and not a theory that confronts us today." Forest protection was the nation's present duty and he advocated co-operation between the states and the nation. Glenn demanded that the conference leave no doubt in the mind of congress of what was wanted, and as an entering wedge he wanted resolutions endorsing the pending bill creating the White mountain and Appalachian forest reserves. The applause which met this statement indicated that the governor had his audience with him.

Issue was squarely joined as to some of the methods pursued by the government in the regulation of forest reserves by four governors from the northwest, Brooks of Wyoming, Cutler of Utah, Gooding of Idaho and Toole of Montana. A general reply to these criticisms was made by Secretary Garfield, who followed.

Pennsylvania was heard from through Chairman Hardy of the forest committee of the National Board of Trade. Governor Burke of North Dakota brought the general discussion to a close with the opinion that the forests and waterways should be the problem of the states themselves.

At the meeting of governors, called immediately after the end of the session, Governor Folger outlined the advantage which would result from an organization of governors independent of the present conference. He referred at some length to the use the federal courts had recently made of the process of injunction. He had been enjoined, Governor Johnson had been enjoined, and Governor Glenn also had been prohibited from enforcing state laws respecting railways. There were other important subjects that Folk believed might properly come before an organization of governors. As but twelve or fourteen of the governors were present, Governor Johnson suggested that the matter be taken up at another meeting to be called at the close of the session, which was concurred in.

China Disagrees With Japan
Pekin, May 15.—Contrary to expectations, China has unexpectedly refused to sign the agreement proposed by Japan for the settlement of the Yalu timber controversy. The reason for the refusal to sign is to be found in the strained relations between China and Japan.

VAHEY FOR GOVERNOR

Candidate For Head of Bay State Democratic Ticket

Boston, May 16.—The Post says: Today Senator James H. Vahey of Watertown will give out a formal announcement regarding his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor.

Senator Vahey believes that next fall, even in a presidential year, there will be a great opportunity to elect a Democratic governor, and he intends to take advantage of the opportunity so far as he is able.

The intimate friends of Vahey think that an excellent chance is offered to the Democrats to elect a governor because of the opposition to Eben S. Draper, the present acting governor, who will undoubtedly be the candidate for governor on the Republican ticket, because of his record on the labor question.

It is only fair to the acting governor to say that reports from Hopedale, where he is interested in factories, show that he has been friendly to his employees notwithstanding the rumors of his antagonism to the laboring interests.

The announcement of Vahey as to his candidacy is awaited with interest among the Democrats.

The Abigail Smith Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution met at the Dorothy Q. house, Quincy, on Wednesday afternoon. A company of 25 members and guests enjoyed the beautiful old Colonial house, furnished and restored by the Colonial Dames. After a short business session the chapter enjoyed a tour of inspection through the fine, roomy old mansion. The thick timbers, grown on Boston Common, the solid walls, the wainscoting, the deep-set windows with wooden shutters, the immense chimneys with deep open fire-places, the many cupboards, corner closets and well preserved, wall papers, together with the beautiful old furniture, veritable antiques, are all suggestive and fragrant with the history of the people and customs of early Colonial days.

The rare old china, brass andirons, silver candlesticks, snuffer and tray, Sheffield ware, hour glass, old clocks, warming pans, highboys, secretaries, tables, buffets, chairs, sofas, canopied beds, carved and solid, with quilted bed-spread, all hand work, of most marvelous pattern, mahogany bureaus, lovely old mirrors, a cradle saved from the Charlestown fire, a Franklin stove, the gift of Benjamin Franklin to Col. Edmund Quincy, oil portraits and pictures of Col. Edmund Quincy, Dorothy Q., Abigail Adams, etc. The chair used when Governor Hancock was inaugurated. All these and many other most interesting objects were noticed.

The Dorothy Q. born in the south chamber in 1709 was afterwards the grandmother of the poet—Oliver Wendell Holmes. Here also the Dorothy who wed John Hancock, first governor, came at the age of five years and developed into girlhood and sweet womanhood. Two quaint musical instruments, a spinnet, and ancient piano, doubtless once yielded sweet harmonies beneath her caressing touch.

The garbled and rugged willows by the brook once sheltered the lovers as they strayed through the gardens and orchards. The wall paper in the parlor, of French design, was chosen to adorn the wedding of Dorothy, but John Hancock, was under a royal ban, a price put on his head, so the marriage was solemnized at Fairbairn, Connecticut. A letter from the lover to his "Dear Dolly" is framed bearing his signature.

The study where Tutor Flint worked and the chamber above where he slept were built on by Col. Quincy for his brother-in-law. Fifty years ago Tutor Flint taught at Harvard college, developed there and back with a horse and chaise. He was eccentric and a bachelor.

In the guest chamber stands the carved bedstead with rich blue canopy where Gen. La Fayette slept. In the south chamber rests a trunk once the Duke of Cambridge's in seventeen hundred.

In the east chamber is a table which was Peregrine White's of Plymouth, a cup and saucer that belonged to Daniel Webster, and old highboy, some pewter plates, spinning wheels and flax wheels.

Next came the visit to the secret chamber, where the regicides at the time of Charles fifth were concealed it is said. A space between the ceiling and the attic floor allowed the refugees, to lie concealed, most tiresome it must have been to roll about or lie at full length in such restricted quarters the enclosure was only a foot and a half high but extended over the east chamber. This narrow space was lighted from the windows of the eastern chamber extended up past the ceiling to the attic floor.

A concealed dumb waiter was in place where the prisoners' food and drink were sent up to them. We were told of a hidden subterranean passage from beneath the house out to the brook where the refugees at dead of night could go and come, but we did not find it or explore it.

It was sufficient to sit in the spacious dining room and imagine the powdered pompadours of the ladies with their brocades and satins and the white perukes of the gentlemen in their ruffled coats and small clothes, while the hot punch and smoking viands were discussed and realize that laughter and jest, smiles and gaieties went bravely on, while hunted men were shrinking and hiding just overhead.

Many priceless letters and rich costumes are here preserved. A letter from Abigail Adams, with her portrait, was of especial interest to the Abigail Smith Chapter. A piece of lace worn by General Washington and copied by Stuart into his famous portrait is worthy of remark.

Mrs. Andrews, the caretaker, and her assistant, were most explicit in their descriptions and pointed out the historical articles of high repute. The immense kitchen, the blazing fire on the hearth with enormous back log, the old kettle on the crane, and the antique settle at the fire-side, all formed a comfortable and attractive sight.

Here a hot cup of tea was served by Mrs. Andrews from old wedge-wood china, while sandwiches, cake, cookies and wafers, were dispensed by the ladies of the chapter.

Thoroughly steeped in ancient lore and surrounded by antiques we were lost in the days of our ancestors when a spacious automobile speeded to the door and Mrs. Barrett Wendell the Grand Regent of the Colonial Dames alighted with friends.

Then the distant steam cars were heard and the trolley car. Thus the hurry and hustle of modern life came crowding in upon us as bidding Mrs. Andrews goodbye and thanking Mrs. A. E. Avery, the Regent, for a delightful afternoon the company closed the ponderous door with regret and strolling through the grounds closed also the chapter of past history, quickly hastening to the trolley all were once more in the living electrical rapid-transit present.

Newsy Budget
From Shipyard

There has been a shake up in the Pacific fleet, but the Vermont built at Quincy will continue in the first division, while the New Jersey and Rhode Island are in the second. There are now four divisions.

At Norfolk Virginia Thursday the corner stone of the new $300,000 naval Y. M. C. A., the gift of John D. Rockefeller, was laid. There were placed in the corner stone box a silk American flag, a testimonial from Miss Gould, and a letter from Mr. Rockefeller, in which he said, in part: "The ambitions of our people have always centred in the arts of peace, but we are not forgetful of the need of strong arms and brave hearts to protect those liberties without which the blessings of peace are worthless. God grant that you may also find here influences which will keep you near to Him who is the Prince of Peace."

The Herald bureau at Washington reports that the navy department is now ready to purchase the three colliers owned by the New England Coal and Coke Company, under the naval appropriation bill which has just been sent to the President for signature. Theconferrees on the bill, however, reduced the price to $525,000 each, and there is said to be some doubt whether the company will sell them for that figure. Henry, Lyon of Boston, who appeared before the naval committees of Congress regarding the sale of the boats, has gone to New York to learn something about what it will cost to build such boats at present and probably a decision will soon be reached as to whether the three colliers shall be added to the navy at once.

Power boat owners will no doubt be interested in the following regulations governing carrying passengers in small craft. Collector William H. Jordan of the port of Gloucester, who has been desirous of keeping the owners of power boats in his locality, posted on the law relating to the operation of the same, and with that end in view, communicated with the customs treasury department to learn the regulations to which power boats and their owners would be subjected, and has received the following self-explanatory communications upon the subject:

United States Customs Service.
Port of Boston, Mass., May 4, 1908.
The Collector of Customs, Gloucester, Mass.:

Sir:—In connection with the subject of the inspection of small craft, moved by power I enclose copy of a communication from the department addressed to the collector of customs at San Francisco, under date of April 22, 1908, instructing him to the action he should take under Circular 139 of September 7, 1906, thinking it may be of interest to you in connection with the inspection of similar craft within your collection district.

Respectfully,
G. E. Channing, Special Agent.

Washington, D. C., April 22, 1908.
W. B. Hamilton, Special Deputy Collector, of Customs, San Francisco, California.

Sir:—Your letter of the 15th inst., concerning launches received. See department circular 139 of September 7, 1906. Notify by newspaper or otherwise all owners of launches under 15 tons, carrying passengers for hire that a penalty of $500 is incurred under either of the following conditions:

First, failure to carry one life preserver for each passenger on board. Second, failure of person in charge to be licensed by steamboat inspectors. Furthermore, where operator is licensed and undertakes to carry more than the inspector deems safe, notify operator that inspector will demand revocation of license for gross negligence. Notify all concerned that no leniency may be expected from department.

Communicate these instructions to principal revenue cutter officers, principal officers of the navy and supervising inspector of steamboat service.

E. T. Chamberlain, Commissioner.
Operators must be full fledged citizens of the United States and over 21 years of age.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and trying the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Majestic Theatre.

The great fun-maker, Ezra Kendall, will inaugurate an engagement at the Majestic theatre, Monday, May 18th, in a comedy by George Ade, entitled "The Land of Dollars." There is no entertainer today who excels Mr. Kendall as a fun-maker. His slightest word, the tone of his voice, the accent of his pronunciation, is enough to make one happy. As to George Ade, he is one of America's leading writers. And when these two great students of human nature and the art of laugh-making are combined, imagine what joy and mirth must be let loose. In "The Land of Dollars" Mr. Ade has written a comedy that appeals to everyone. His characters are classic in their picturesque unconventionality, their funds of wit, and their humorous philosophy.

Keith's Theatre.

Those who have been fortunate enough to see William Rock and Maude Fulton at Keith's this week will not be surprised to learn that they will be held over for a second week, for seldom has an act made a more pronounced success in Boston than their capital medley of dances and songs. They are both simply wonderful dancers, while Miss Fulton is a singing comedienne of great magnetism. "Marse Covington," George Ade's really great sketch will return after having been played by Edward Connelly and his very capable company in every large city in the country, with the record of having proved a success wherever it has been seen.

WONDERLAND.

Next Saturday afternoon, the 23d, instant, at one o'clock the band will play, the hundreds of flags and streamers will be flung to the breeze and famous and popular Wonderland will be declared open to the people of New England for its third triumphant season. Wonderland has been improved in every possible way, and the management promises to surprise the recreation-seeking people of New England with the magnitude and variety of the entertainment. As usual the very best of order will always be maintained. A specialty will be made of the free out-door circus numbers, of the music, and the shore diags and genuine clambakes at popular prices.

Epworth League Officers.

At the close of the preaching service Sunday evening, at the Wollaston M. E. church, the pastor, the Rev. W. J. Heath, held an appropriate installation service for the officers elect of the Epworth League. The following officers were installed in office for the next year: President, Herbert Cassidy; First Vice President, Frank G. Bennett; Second Vice President, Chester Cleveland; Third Vice President, Miss Ada Stone; Fourth Vice President, Miss Gussie Wilbur; Secretary, Miss Florence Bennett; Treasurer, John Leake.

Bon Voyage.

Mrs. Alida Lagergren, a member of St. Paul's Swedish M. E. church, will sail from Boston tomorrow for Sweden. She was invited to the church on Saturday evening that her friends might say good bye, and there she found a large number assembled. Pastor Calander, in behalf of the church, presented her a goodby sum of money, in appreciation of faithful service. All sang "Bless be the tie that binds." Coffee was served, and a social time enjoyed.

City Council.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held tonight, when there will probably be another wrangle over the granting of permits to transport liquor. When the Council adjourned at its last meeting it was acting on applications for permits. There were several still to be acted upon, and these will come up tonight under unfinished business. There are also orders on the tables granting permits to Louis Bizzozero and to James P. Flannigan. These also will probably be acted upon tonight. Mrs. L. N. Ross of Oldtown, Maine, renewed acquaintances in this city last week.

Busy Days For The Firemen

The fire department was kept on the jump between Saturday and this morning, answering three alarms. The first alarm was from Box 37 at 2:58 Sunday morning. This was for a lively fire in the meat market of George Morris situated in the Pinel block on Water street. The fire had made good headway when discovered and it was some time before it was all out, the store being quite badly gutted. The loss to the building and stock is estimated at $800. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The alarm from Box 443 at 8:15 Sunday night was for a fire in an outbuilding on West street, probably the work of an incendiary.

The third alarm was at 12:58 this morning from Box 445, and was a false alarm.

The alarm from Box 42 at 12:26 this afternoon was for a lively blaze in the shoe store of George Upland at Brewster corner. Mr. Upland closes his store during the noon hour, and he had been gone fifteen minutes when the fire broke out. The fire seemed to be in the rear of the store behind the counter. Mr. Upland is at loss to know how it started. He says there were two men in the store this morning smoking cigarettes, and the only way he can account for the fire is that a cigarette may have been thrown there. Chief Williams estimates the loss on the building at $150 and on the stock at $200.

The alarm from Box 46 at 1:58 Saturday was for a fire on the roof of the large factory building of Badger Bros. on Willard street. The fire was on the end toward the railroad track and was burning briskly when discovered. Louis Badger was on Farnace avenue when he happened to look up and see the roof blazing. He immediately sounded the alarm. Ladders were raised to the roof from the railroad track, and a line of hose carried up. The loss is estimated at $50.

Improvements have been started on the grounds around the Atlantic station. Back of the station the land has been cleared and graded and shrubs have been set out along the fence. The few touches of workmanship in the surroundings have made a vast difference in the appearance of the station.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Wentworth of Miller Stile road have returned from New Hampshire. They extended their outing to Swift river, and had great luck in fishing. Mrs. Wentworth took first honors of the party securing 282 trout. They also brought home a baby porcupine and a Belgian hare.

Fred Scott and family are at their cottage on Bell street.

Each class carried their class flag and cheered their representatives on the victory.

At noon a basket lunch was served after which the sports were resumed. During the afternoon the sports were witnessed by a large gathering of friends of the students.

New York and the west.

The Quincy Day Nursery will serve a benefit breakfast Saturday, June 6, at Ond Fellows hall, Wollaston.

The Queen Esther circle of Wollaston will hold their annual meeting Wednesday evening, May 20, at the home of Miss Ethel Smith on Prospect avenue.

The street railway line on Hancock

sengers will have to tramp for a few days while the new rail is being laid.
The old track has been moved bodily to the east side.

Members of the Quincy Women's club are interested in introducing some system of saving in the public school, believing that the saving of pennies by the children would be of great benefit to them. Mr. Parlin superintendent of schools has also looked into the matter and will present his plan at the club house on the afternoon of May 21st. Officers and members of the club are urged to attend the meeting, also members of the Savings Bank Corporation that some suitable plan may be devised
and the work commenced in the fall.

GYPSY MOTH MUST GO

Parasites Are Let Loose to Prey
Upon Destructive Pests

AN IMPORTANT EXPERIMENT

Propagation of Imported Insects Has Been Carried on For Two Years
by Government Experts—How Work
Is Expected to Be Accomplished

Boston, May 18.—In asking the Massachusetts legislature for a total appropriation of $300,000 to cover the expense of the warfare this year against the gypsy and browntail moths, Archie H. Kirkland, state superintendent for the suppression of insect pests, said
that over 80,000 parasites of the moths
have been let loose from the experiment station at Melrose Highlands during the past week, and that 20,000 more will be ready for liberation within a few days.

This action is regarded as a most important step in the campaign of the United States department of agriculture and the state authorities against the destructive moths, and the result will be watched with keen interest in every locality where these insects have appeared. It represents the latest and most scientific method of dealing with a problem which has caused an expenditure of many hundreds of thousands of dollars in Massachusetts and other New England states during the past decade.

For the past two years experts have been engaged in propagating the parasites. The headquarters of this work has been located in specially constructed buildings in Melrose, where scores of different varieties of moth-eating insects have been received from collectors sent to Europe for that purpose. Each variety has been the subject of careful experiments, and it has been proven to be a natural enemy of the gypsy moth, immense colonies of the various parasites have been raised in the breeding cages.

The parasites so far selected work
against the moths in four distinct ways.
The large callosoma beetles, as well as two other species closely allied to them,
climb the trees, seize the caterpillars
and never let go until they have devoured the wriggling insect. The tachinid flies lay their eggs upon the outer skin of the caterpillars, usually close up to the head. The larvae that hatch penetrate the skin of the caterpillar
and feed upon its intestines.

Another group of the parasite flies deposit eggs inside the skin of the caterpillar and the maggots act as in the case just given. Then there is another parasite, a minute midge, that drills into the eggs of the caterpillar and lays its eggs inside. The larvae of the parasite feeds upon the contents of the caterpillar's eggs until ready to emerge. Some of these flies also enter the nests or winter webs of the browntail species and there operate upon the hibernating caterpillars during the winter months.

The scientists say that there is every reason to believe that in time these parasites will accomplish the practical suppression of the gypsy moth. In Europe the parasites have always acted as a natural check on the spread of the moths, but in this country, after these insect pests had been accidentally introduced, they were free from this check and increased accordingly.

The present experiment is the most important that has been tried in the war against the gypsy moth. Long ago the authorities realized that the costly method of hunting out and destroying nests each year, and spraying trees,
was only a makeshift at best, though fairly successful in preventing the wholesale destruction of trees and other vegetation.

The parasite plan, while costly in the experimental state, is expected to afford a permanent solution of the whole problem. For this reason the results of the introduction of the parasites in the neighborhood where the pest made its first appearance in this country will be awaited with interest in every locality where the gypsy and browntail
moths have been found.

Preserving Order in Korea
Seoul, Korea, May 18.—Conditions throughout Korea are improving. The determination of Prince Ito, the resident general here, to suppress the disorderly element so that the peaceful farming population may prosecute their work in the outlying districts, where armed bands are harrying the farms and villages, is shown by the arrival of reinforcements of gendarmes numbering about 5000, who will be scattered throughout Korea.

Cleveland Street Car Strike On Cleveland, May 18.—Aside from a few minor disturbances the street car strike situation yesterday bore no evidence of violence. A police officer rode on each car and screens of heavy wire
were provided around the motorman's vestibule. Only one instance of a serious attempt to attack the crew of a car was reported.

Planning Big Demonstration
London, May 18.—The suffragettes have organized a great demonstration women's suffrage. It will be held in Hyde Park on Sunday, June 21, and the organizers are counting on an attendance of 300,000 women from all parts of the country.

RIVER GIVES UP ITS DEAD

Floater Reveals a Remarkable Case
of Mistaken Identity

Laconia, N. H., May 18.—Although it was believed William H. Sharpe had died at Portsmouth some time ago and the body was buried in the Sharpe family lot in a local cemetery with Knights of Pythian honors, on March 26, the real body of Sharpe was found floating in the Winnepesaukee river here yesterday.

Sharpe, who was a foreman in the foundry department of the Laconia Car works, disappeared from home on March 1 last and no trace of him could be found for some time. March 23 a man who had registered as "William Crane" of Portland, Me., died of alcoholism in the Kearsarge house at Portsmouth. A son of Sharpe saw the body and identified it as that of his father and it was removed to Laconia and accepted by Mrs. Sharpe and the remains of the family as the husband and father. As the man was not addicted to drink the manner of his death was questioned, however.

The funeral was held under the direction of the local lodge of Knights of Pythias, of which Sharpe was a member, as well as of the United Order of the Golden Cross.

Yesterday a body was found floating in the Winnepesaukee river within the city limits. It was at once recognized as that of Sharpe. On the body was some money, Sharpe's gold watch and chain and Knights of Pythian charms, as well as other articles completing the identification by his family.

The night Sharpe disappeared he started to walk to Lakesport and took a short cut across the railroad bridge over the river. It is thought that he must have accidentally fallen into the river, the body being held beneath the surface until yesterday, when it floated.
The body was taken in charge by the family and that of the unknown man will be disinterred and replaced in the family lot by that of Sharpe.

Was Noted Restaurant Man
Boston, May 18.—William D. Park,
for forty years proprietor of one of Boston's most famous old restaurants, and to whom was attributed the introduction into Boston of the broiled live lobster and other delectable dishes and concoctions, died last night, aged 77.
His father opened a restaurant here in 1842 and the son succeeded to the business in 1855. Park retired from the resaurant business in 1895. He served in the common council from 1864
to 1866 and went to the state senate for one term in 1871.

Fatal Collision of Autos
Providence, May 18.—Three young men were injured, one of them fatally,
by the collision of the automobile in which they were riding with another machine containing three men on the East Greenwich road. Stephen Dodge, 22, suffered a fracture of the skull, dying a few hours later. None of the occupants of the other car, who declined to give their names, was injured. Both machines were wrecked by the force of the collision.

Bostonians' Summer Begins
Boston, May 18.—The summer season may be said to have fairly opened for Bostonians yesterday, the fine weather sending thousands to the beaches, down the harbor and to the country parks. The day was marked by the opening for the season of the amusement enterprises at Revere Beach, Boston's principal summer resort, which attracted a crowd estimated at over 100,000.

Canoe Overturned
Middlebury, Vt., May 18.—While canoeing in Otter creek, Miss Faith Powers was drowned, and her companion, Izan Winslow, a senior in Middlebury college, narrowly escaped a similar fate. Miss Powers was 23 years old and was a graduate of Middlebury college of the class of 1907. The canoe was overturned a short distance above the falls. Miss Powers went over the falls with the canoe.

Fright Caused Falls From Car
Bennington, Vt., May 18.—Anna
Callaner, aged 18, is dying, and her sister, Helen, aged 20, is in a critical condition as a result of falling from a rapidly moving trolley car. The young women were chatting with the moto-
man when the controller burned out, with a violent report. The flash so startled the girls that they pitched headforemost through the side doors
into the street.

"Sports" Waded to Safety
Providence, May 18.—A party of cock fighters who had gathered in a barn in East Providence were raided
by the police and eight of the party were placed under arrest. One man was shot in the hand by an officer. The majority of the party escaped by crossing a swamp and wading Ten Mile river to the Massachusetts shore.

Auto Ran Down Bicyclist
Stratford, Conn., May 18.—Andrew Mortensen, single, aged 22, of Bridgeport, while on a bicycle was run down
in this town by an automobile driven by A. B. Barkman. Mortensen received such serious injuries that a fatal result is feared. Barkman was arrested, but was released later, as he was not considered to blame.

Yale Athletes Victorious
Cambridge, Mass., May 18.—Speed and strength in the track events enabled Yale to defeat Harvard in their annual dual games by a score of 60 1/2 to 43 1/2 points. The victory also gave Yale permanent possession of the trophy offered in 1901, having defeated
Harvard since that time on five occasions.

EASTERN MAN IS WANTED

Crane Will Exercise Influence to Get Bay State Nomination For Second Place, and Lodge Is Expected to Support the Movement

Washington, May 18.—There is a growing movement here in favor of vigorously urging the name of Governor Hughes as the New England candidate for second place on the Republican ticket.

The positive refusal of Governor Hughes to permit his name to be used in connection with the vice presidency has left the field clear. It is recognized that a well balanced Republican ticket requires an eastern man upon it.

For this reason the suggestion that Mr. Fairbanks should be given a renomination does not meet with favor. With Taft from Ohio at the head of the ticket, all geographical argument and precedent is against putting another man from a contiguous state in the second place.

Senator Crane, who has definitely joined the Taft forces, takes this view. He now announces openly that he is in favor of Guild for the second place, and his influence will be exerted to give Massachusetts the nomination. Senator Lodge has not yet publicly announced his attitude, but it is expected that he will give hearty support to the Guild movement.

The declaration of the Massachusetts Republican state convention in favor of the governor and the definite instructions of three of the Massachusetts district conventions for the ticket of Taft and Guild gave the movement a good start. The declaration of Hughes and the rapidly improving health of Guild have given added impulse.

The popularity of Guild in the west, where a spontaneous demonstration in his behalf has been made in Michigan and other states, is expected to spread when a due amount of activity among the political leaders in his own state is manifested.

The outlook now is that Guild's name will be presented by Massachusetts as her candidate for the vice presidency. The friends of the Guild movement are planning, however, to present him not merely as the Bay state candidate, but as the candidate of New England as a whole.

Johnson on Ballot With Bryan

Montgomery, Ala., May 18.—For the first time in the history of the state the voters of the Democratic party are voting direct for a presidential candidate in the Democratic primary today. The names of Johnson and Bryan are upon the ticket and the candidate receiving a majority of the votes cast will have the Alabama delegation to Denver instructed for him. The plan was adopted by the state executive committee at the request of the Alabama friends of Bryan. It was not thought at that time that Bryan would have any opposition for the Alabama delegation.

Figuring on Taft's Nomination

Columbus, O., May 18.—Arthur I. Vorys, manager of the W. H. Taft canvass for presidential nomination, says that the nomination of Taft on the first ballot of the convention is a foregone conclusion. Of the 980 delegates who will sit in the convention, 563 have been chosen under positive instructions to vote for Taft, or under resolutions of endorsement or preference that were the equivalent of instructions. Of 192 delegates uninstructed more than 100 are known supporters of Taft.

EXPRESS PERMITS

Granted to
Two More.
Vetoes from
The Mayor.

The granting of permits to transport liquor again occupied the attention of the City Council Monday evening. The petition of James P. Flannigan of the Fore River Express was debated at length. The result of the meeting was to grant permits to John Callahan and James P. Flannigan, the refusal to receive the application of Carl Lilja, refusal to take that of H. H. Lowe from the table, giving F. C. Jacobs, John T. Fitzsimmons and Gallagher express leave to withdraw, and laying the application of S. V. Gerdman on the table. Councilmen Beal and Curtis were absent.

A VETO.

A communication was received from the Mayor returning without his approval the order amending the ordinance establishing fire districts, which provided that the Inspector of Buildings should be the inspector in charge of all buildings erected by the city. His reason for vetoing the order was as follows:—

"I return Order S4 without my approval for the following reasons: I do not see how the Inspector of Buildings can properly attend to the duties of his office and at the same time be the inspector in charge of all buildings constructed by the city when the services of an inspector are necessary."

Second. The proposed amendment, if legal, is not specific enough, who shall determine when his services are necessary? Should it be left to his judgment or the judgment of the Mayor or Commissioner of Public Works? As drawn, the amendment would lead to confusion between departments.

Third. In my opinion if such an amendment is legal and advisable, the inspector's compensation should be fixed by salary and not by the day, otherwise from what appropriation should he be paid? Further, such an amendment should not become operative until proper provisions have been made to provide compensation for the inspector's services.

Fourth. The proposed amendment in my opinion would not be legal as it conflicts with Sec. 34, Title VI of the City Charter. The Commissioner of Public Works is by law vested with the control and direction of the construction of all our public buildings. The city can not by an ordinance divest him of his authority and transfer it to the Inspector of Buildings."

Upon motion of Councilman Bryant, the communication was laid on the table.

LINCOLN ADDITION.

A communication was received from the Mayor forwarding plans for a four-room addition to the Lincoln school. Referred to Committee on Public Buildings.

MORE MONEY NEEDED.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Commissioner of Public Works stating that $1,700 additional would be required to complete the laying out of Smith street, and $450 additional to complete the laying out of Broadway. Referred to Committee on Streets.

VETO OF JUNK WAGONS.

A communication was received from the Mayor returning without his approval the order granting a license to drive a wagon for the collection of junk to N. Steinberg. Also communications returning the orders granting similar licenses to Joseph Goldstein, I. Cutler, D. Kaughman and Harry Clayman. His reasons were as follows:—

"I have received several complaints as to the manner in which the junk business was conducted in this city last year. I am of the opinion that it is not desirable to have as many dealers during the present year as in the past? I have signed nine licenses, those whom I consider the most suitable to carry on the business."

Upon motion of Councilman Bryant the Communications were laid on the table.

EXPRESS PERMITS.

Under unfinished business the motion of Councilman Ferguson to take from the table the order granting a permit to transport liquor to L. Bizozero came up for action. Councilman Ferguson withdrew the motion.

The applications of N. E. Alley, H. H. Lowe, Maria Monti and David J. Evans, for permits to transport liquor were also before the Council for action. They were laid on the table.

PETITIONS.

A petition was received from the New England Telephone Co., for permission to locate poles on Copeland street.

A petition was received from the Electric Light Co. to locate poles on Maple street, Brook road and Lincoln avenue.

Petitions were received from the New England Telephone Co. for a location for poles on Hancock, Water and Field streets.

Councilman Walsh presented a petition for the repair of Baxter street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

Councilman Broughton presented a petition for a day officer. Referred to Committee on Fire Department.

Public Hearings were scheduled at 7.45, 7.55 and 8.05 on petitions of the New England Telephone Co. and Electric Light Co. for pole locations. In each case no one appeared in favor or against the petitions.

Councilman Bryant thought the petitioners should appear, and upon his motions the orders for hearing were laid on the table and the hearings adjourned until June 1 at the same hour.

A large number of applications for minor licenses were received. Those of G. and C. Machetti and Mary Melvin for licenses as common victuallers, and of Carl Lilja, for permit to transport liquor, were ruled out on the ground that they had previously been given leave to withdraw.

Councilman Gelotte moved suspension of rules that Lilja's application might be admitted. He argued at length in favor of the motion.

Councilman Gilson asked for information what rule was being suspended.

President Hobbs replied 33 and 34. Councilman Gelotte withdrew his motion.

Councilman Gelotte started to debate when Councilman Bryant raised point of order that there was no question before the Council.

The President ruled the point well taken.

Councilman Gelotte then stated he would appeal from the ruling of the President on the refusal to allow the application of Lilja to be received.

The President ruled that it was too late to appeal as a motion had intervened.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Licenses reported orders granting a number of licenses to common victuallers, to run pool and billiard tables and to collect junk. Adopted.

The Committee on Licenses reported leave to withdraw on the following applications for licenses to collect junk:—Henry Clayman, Moses Sargman, Abram Zack, Michael Cutler, Abram Ginsberg, Peter Work, Jacob Wise, David Silverman, Jacob Luff, S. Fleishman and Joseph Silver. Adopted.

The Committee on Licenses reported leave to withdraw on the applications of S. V. Gerdman, F. C. Jacobs, John T. Fitzsimmons and Gallagher Express for permits to transport liquor. Upon motion of Councilman Gelotte the Gerdman application was laid on the table. The report was then accepted.

The Committee on Licenses reported an order granting a permit to transport liquor to John Callahan. The order was adopted after some debate.

LIGHT ORDERS.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing June 1 on petitions of the Electric Light Co. for a location for poles on Washington street and Quincy avenue. Adopted.

The Committee on Streets reported ought to pass on the order appropriating $850 for street lights at Houghs Neck. Referred to Finance Committee.

Under motions, orders, etc, Councilman Whiton moved to take the application of H. H. Lowe from the table. Motion lost 8 voting yes, and 9 no.

A motion of Councilman Bryant to adjourn was lost.

Upon motion of Councilman Whiton the application of James P. Flannigan was taken from the table by a vote of 11 in favor and 6 against.

A motion of Councilman Bryant, to adjourn was lost by a vote of 5 yes and 15 no.

Chief of Police Burrell appeared before the Council and answered a number of questions put to him by Councilman Whiton, Bryant and Abele about Mr. Flannigan.

Upon motion of Councilman Whiton the Council went into a committee of the whole with Councilman Freeman as chairman and George T. Magee as clerk.

H. H. Lowe appeared before the Committee. He stated that he hired Flannigan from June to December last year to help him out. He knew Flannigan had some little liquor business. He thought it for his interest to hire him.

James P. Flannigan appeared before the Committee. In reply to questions by Councilman Whiton he stated that he had been in business since 1903. He had run teams to Boston every day since that time. Mr. Flannigan was then asked a number of questions by Councilmen Gilson, Hogan, Bean and Bryant. The latter questioned him sharply about his convictions in 1904 and 1905. Councilmen Gilson, Whiton and Cantill objected to the rigid cross-examination, and Councilman Whiton tried to check it by moving the committee adjourn.

As soon as Councilman Bryant had completed his examination the committee arose and reported progress. After some debate the permit was granted on roll call, 14 voting in favor and 6 against as follows:

YES—Abele, Bryant, Cantill, Carey, Cherrington, Ferguson, Gelotte, Gilson, McGilvray, Moir, Oakes, Teasdale, Walsh, Whiton—14.
NO—Bean, Bishop, Broughton, Falconer, Freeman, Hogan—6.
Absent—Beal, Curtis.

Not Voting—President Hobbs.

A motion to adjourn was declared carried, and although the vote was doubted the President had left the chair before the doubt was raised. Adjourned at 10.06 until June 1.

The Daily Loss Over $3,000.00

Chairman Miller
Would Submit
Granite Disagreement
To Another Council

Editor of the Daily Ledger:

I note in your issue of the 16th inst. an editorial copied from the Granite Cutters' Journal for May, which certainly is long enough to give a true statement of the causes leading up to the granite cutters strike in our city, which was inaugurated last week. But it is far from a true statement of facts, and when the froth has evaporated there is little left.

Now, Mr. Editor, if you will permit the space, I will give the plain unvarnished facts, being chairman of the joint committees that has set night after night for three months to arrange a new agreement. I think that even the cutters' committee will bear me witness that I labored hard for an agreement, for I did not believe in calling in outsiders to settle what I considered the private interests of the granite cutters and the manufacturers on a business basis.

When we failed in settling a few points they were referred to the two national executive committees, under a milk and water agreement entered into in June, 1907, and misnamed "The make for peace agreement." Section four of this agreement reads as follows:—"That when contentions arise in localities where agreements exist between members of the National Association of the Granite Industries of the United States, and branches of the Granite Cutters' International Association of America, and where efforts, as per adjustment clauses of local agreements have failed, and where the parties to a dispute have voluntarily sought this plan of settlement, the dispute shall be referred to a joint council of three members of the executive officers of both Associations, to which council all points in dispute shall be submitted either in document form, or by not more than three members representing each of the two sides in dispute; or, the joint council may, with said committees of three, form a Board of Conciliation, and the decision in either event shall be binding on both parties."

You will notice how explicitly it specifies the executive officers of both associations. Yet the National President on the manufacturers' side, who is the head of a large business, forgot that proviso, and appointed one on that committee who was not on the executive board, but worse still was not a member of the National Association, as he had made a change in his business. While in 1907 he was the National Secretary, yet this year he was not.

Then one of the other two was sick, so he sent a substitute, who was not an executive officer.

This condition was wholly unknown to the Quincy Manufacturers' Association. They instructed their president to appoint a committee of three, of which he should be one, to go before said Council and submit the case. When the Council met the substitute stated how he was there. But as the Quincy representatives had no voice in the making of the Council, they had no right to object, and we were still in ignorance of Mr. Alexander not being eligible, and believing we had the majority of the three who were entitled to sit, we put in our case.

The results were that if those three men had come from the Philippine Islands they could not have decided the question with less intelligence. And as we could see at once that there were certain parts of it that were wholly illegal, we at once consulted our attorney, who strengthened our opinion.

Our Association was called together and the case fairly stated to them and the decisions read. They voted to a man to repudiate said decisions and the illegal board that made them. We so notified the Granite Cutters' Union, and our National Committee. They in turn consulted the law firm of Powers and Hall, of no mean reputation, who coincided with our local attorney in his findings. Then our National Association so notified the Granite Cutters' International Association of the facts.

I will quote one paragraph of that letter, as follows: "In our opinion the reference of Feb. 28, 1908, is still in force, and it needs only a properly constituted joint council to deal with the matter referred to therein."

We got an answer that is voluminous and ungentlemanly and uncalled for, and many statements are wholly at variance with the truth.

In the meantime the Quincy Branch of the Cutters' Association called a meeting for Monday, May 11, and I am told voted to strike on Thursday morning, May 14 without even giving the Manufacturers' Association a notice. Yet their committee on Feb. 28 brought in a proposition to refer the unsettled articles to the National Executives and there should be no strike or lockout pending settlement. I wonder if this agreement has been kept in good faith, and I wonder if such actions are conducive of "make for peace." I think not.

But, Mr. Editor, let me say right here, that the granite cutters' local committee that met us during the winter in the conferences contended manfully for their side. But they were gentlemen, they had no mud slinging, and I have nothing but respect for them. But cannot feel that way toward their National Secretary, who cannot find words large enough to denounce the Quincy Manufacturer.

WORMS IN CHILDREN

6 YEARS SUFFERING RELIEVED IN 8 HOURS

DANVILLE.
DR. TRUE, DEAR SIR:—One of my boys had been troubled for about six years with cramp in the stomach, and suspecting that it might be brought on by worms, we gave him different medicines, but without effect. Last January he had a more severe attack than usual, and hearing of the almost miraculous effects of your Elixir, we gave him about a teaspoonful, and in about eight hours it brought from him a living creature about eighteen inches in length. He has had no return of them since, and is now very hearty.
G. W. VICKERY.

Thousands of people have worms and don't know it, yet the symptoms are easily recognized. Even though worms might not be present, this extraordinary remedy will effect wonderful changes in the run-down system. It is a great stomach and liver tonic and regulator. Worms in adults and children can be readily detected from the following symptoms: Indigestion; a variable appetite; offensive breath and foul tongue; eyes heavy and dull; itching of the nose; short, dry cough; grinding of the teeth; starting during sleep; slow fever and often, in children, convulsions and bed-wetting; looseness; hard, swollen bowels. No matter how pronounced or how light the symptoms,

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

will restore the patient to normal health again.
TURNER, ME.
DR. J. F. TRUE, DEAR SIR:—Having used your Elixir in my family for many years, after having satisfied myself of its superior merits, I recommended it to my neighbors, who now very generally use it. I consider it the very best medicine now in use, especially for children.
Very truly yours, JOE PRINCE.

NEW GLOUCESTER, MASS.
DR. TRUE, DEAR SIR:—The Elixir I purchased of you cured my boy, who had been troubled with worms ever since he was a child. He had tried many other medicines, and I had employed physicians until I found it of no use. I despaired of his being restored to health till I heard of your Elixir, which, I am happy to say, effected a speedy cure.
Very truly yours, W. G. COOMBS.

Dr. True's Elixir is sold by druggists everywhere at 35c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. A booklet entitled "Children and Their Diseases" will be sent free by simply addressing Dr. J. F. True & Co., Auburn, Me. We have a special treatment for tape-worm. Send for free book.

Mrs. Guinness Evidently an Expert In Human Butchery

REVELATIONS AT AUTOPSIES

Ground For Belief That Jennie Olsen and Man and Woman Who Called For Her Were Murdered and Disemboweled at Death Farm

La Porte, Ind., May 19.—Autopsies on the seven unidentified bodies exhumed from Mrs. Belle Guinness' private burial ground were completed yesterday and they revealed the fact, according to the reports of Drs. Wilcox and Osborne, who conducted the autopsies under the direction of Coroner Mack, that one of the seven was a female.

This revelation aroused new interest in the story that a man and a woman came to the house one night in 1904 to take Jennie Olsen to a Los Angeles college, as Mrs. Guinness told those about the place. The next morning Jennie and the man and woman were gone. Mrs. Guinness said that they had left on an early train for California.

The body now declared to be that of a woman was taken from the same hole as was that of Jennie Olsen. In that hole also were the bodies of Ole Budeberg of Iowa, Wis., and that of another man. The theory now advanced is that Mrs. Guinness may have murdered Jennie Olsen and the man and woman who came to take her to California, all on the same night, and buried the three bodies, dismembered in the same pit. The body of Budeberg, who was murdered later than this night, was found nearer the surface than the bodies of the other three.

The mystery surrounding the watch found on Ray Lamphere when he was arrested was cleared when J. G. Ramden of Manfred, N. D., who came here to investigate the disappearance of his half-brother, Joe Mae, of Elbow Lake, Minn., identified the timepiece as the one owned by Mae when he left home. Lamphere said that Mrs. Guinness gave him the watch.

Christian services will be conducted for the seven unidentified dead and a small stone will be erected over their graves with an inscription telling the circumstances of their death. The body of Jennie Olsen has been turned over to relatives. Ole Budeberg's body was shipped to Iowa, Wis., for burial.

Coroner Mack is still holding the four bodies found in the ruins of the burned Guinness home. These, according to evidence produced, are the bodies of Mrs. Guinness and her three children. They will be held until Mack files his formal verdict.

In view of the offer of the county commissioners to pay $4000 for the production of Mrs. Guinness alive, Prosecutor Smith expects that this search will be world-wide.

Methodists in a Quandary
Pittsburg, May 19.—The general conference of the Methodist Protestant church in session here has so far taken no definite action on the question of amalgamation with other denominations. The whole question is being considered by a committee. The overtures from the Methodist Episcopal church, asking the Methodist Protestants to return to its fold, has considerably complicated the question of a consolidation of the Methodist Protestant, United Brethren and Congregational denominations.

Labor Question Not Reached

New York, May 19.—With the tariff, ship subsidies and the export trade as the leading topics of discussion, the National Association of Manufacturers closed the first day's session of its annual convention without having touched, except incidentally, upon the labor question or allusion having been made to the political stand which President Van Cleve recently announced he expected the organization to take in no uncertain way at this annual meeting.

Three Presidential Candidates

Harrisburg, May 19.—There are numerous arrivals of prominent Democrats here for the Democratic state convention tomorrow. Headquarters have been opened at hotels by the adherents of Bryan, Johnson and Gray. The Bryan adherents claim that they will control the convention, but this is disputed by friends of National Committeeman Guffey, who declare that the convention will vote against instructions.

Status of Cleveland Strike

Cleveland, May 19.—Trivial rioting, a deadlock as to arbitration, car service largely restored and the refusal of the traction authorities to do anything until disorder and violence cease marked the third day of the strike of the conductors and motormen on the Municipal Street Railway company's lines. The company succeeded in operating all lines with but a slightly impaired service, considering the difficulties.

Gold Shipments to Europe

New York, May 19.—Steamer Kronprinz Wilhelm, which sailed today for Cherbourg and Bremen, carried $8,350,000 in gold. Of this amount $4,500,000 will go to Germany and $3,850,000 to France and was shipped by New York banks. This is about as large a shipment of gold as the marine underwriters care to insure by a single vessel.

LaFrance SHOE for WOMEN

PRICE $3 TO $4—BUT AWEALTH OF COMFORT

The price of La France Shoes for women is within your reach, but the comfort you will gain from wearing them is something beyond price.

La France Shoes, while they fit snugly and smoothly and present an extremely handsome appearance, are easier on the foot than any shoe you ever wore—a new shoe feels like an old one.

If you want to be daintily and appropriately shod—to have comfortable feet and to get a shoe that will wear a long time without wrinkling or getting out of shape, come in and pick out your favorite style in the La France.

Then you will feel that at last you have found a shoe that you can "tie to" and depend upon.

THE HUB'S COAL BILL

A Decided Saving In Purchases Thus Far This Year

Boston, May 19.—In the purchase of 22,500 tons of coal for the children's institutions department, pauper institutions department, ferry division, sewer division, penal institutions department and the health department the city of Boston has accomplished a net saving of $16,250 this year.

The cost of coal to the departments in question is 20 percent less than for the years 1906 and 1907.

This statement was made in a communication by the finance commission to Mayor Hibbard last night in answer to a request of his that the commission investigate the bids submitted to him several weeks ago.

The commission recommends in every case that the lowest bids be accepted, and suggests that chemical analysis of all the coal delivered under the contracts be made, and that the records of the tests be preserved for future use.

Launch Rammed Torpedo Boat

Newport, R. I., May 19.—The lives of the fifty men on board the torpedo boat Stiletto were imperiled when a great hole was torn in the vessel amidship by a launch from the torpedo station running into it. Following the accident the Stiletto headed for the beach opposite the Newport harbor light at full steam. A launch from the torpedo station, from where the accident had been observed, hastened to the rescue, and the crew of the damaged boat were taken off immediately after the Stiletto reached shore. The launch with which the torpedo boat collided was not seriously damaged.

Life Sentences Pronounced

Cambridge, Mass., May 19.—Oscar L. Nelson, John J. Killian and George F. Gilmore were given life sentences for the murder of Druggist Charles E. Bushee of Somerville. All three of the men who struck down the defenseless druggist in his store changed their pleas from not guilty of murder in the first degree to guilty in the second degree, and Judge Sherman accepted the pleas and pronounced sentence.

Student Killed In Runaway Accident

Northampton, Mass., May 19.—Miss Ethel Burroughs, a member of the senior class at Smith college, was out driving with three other persons when the horse became frightened and the driver lost control. Miss Burroughs and a classmate, who were on the back seat, sprang out of the rapidly moving vehicle and Miss Burroughs broke her neck. The other girl was only slightly injured.

Insane Woman Drowns Herself

Providence, May 19.—The body of Mrs. Agnes Birtwell, an aged demented woman, was found floating in Hope reservoir. The woman had escaped from a house where she was in the care of a nurse. She was scantily clad, and must have made her way unobserved through the streets of the East Side district to the reservoir, more than a mile from the house where she lived.

Aged Couple Were Despondent

Brunswick, Me., May 19.—Mrs. Isahah Moody, aged 74, committed suicide by taking twenty-one strychnine pills, and her husband, who is two years her junior, was prevented from taking his own life as he was adjusting the noose around his neck. The aged couple because of despondency had threatened to take their lives, and is supposed that they made a suicide pact.

Killed by Fall From Auto

Stamford, Conn., May 19.—Blanche Olmstead, 12 years old, died here as the result of injuries received in a collision between an automobile and a motor cycle. The girl was sitting on the rumble seat of the automobile driven by William Schofield and was thrown to the ground. She had a concussion of the brain. No blame is attached to either party for the accident.

Liabilities of Over $2,700,000

Boston, May 19.—William A. Stetson, a leather merchant, was adjudged bankrupt, together with the three companies which he controlled, the Ford Morocco company, the Boston Chrome Leather company and the William A. Stetson company. The receiver estimates the liabilities at more than $2,700,000 and the assets at about $1,300,000.

Vessel Given Up For Lost

Boston, May 19.—Hope for schooner J. H. Chaffee, which sailed from Perth Amboy, N. J., for this port April 9 with five men on board, has been abandoned. The schooner should have made the trip within a week, but has not been heard from. The Chaffee was built in Hartford in 1871 and took out papers from Wiscasset, Me.

Suicide of Aged Man

Worcester, Mass., May 19.—John G. Pollard of this city, aged 74, committed suicide at his cottage at the Sterling camp meeting ground at Sterling Junction. He was found dead with a bullet hole in his right temple and a revolver clutched in his hand. His wife died a few months ago.

Claims to Be Platt's Wife

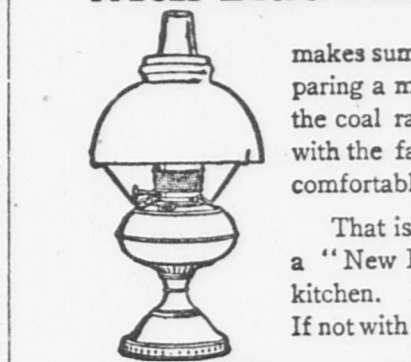

New York, May 19.—Mae C. Wood was on the witness stand all day yesterday testifying in her suit for absolute divorce from United States Senator Thomas C. Platt. In support of her assertion that she was secretly married to Platt on Nov. 9, 1901, her counsel introduced in evidence a marriage certificate which she said was handed her by the minister who performed the ceremony. Miss Wood in her suit named as co-respondent Lillian Janeway, whom Platt married in 1903.

GUILD IS VERY POPULAR

Boom For Vice Presidential Nomination Is Making Headway

Boston, May 19.—The Post says:

Boston is with Governor Guild for vice president. Politicians of both the leading parties, reformers, non-partisans, business and professional men, all declare that in point of ability, popularity, and geographical availability, Guild has qualifications that should place him at the fore in the Republican national convention at Chicago.

Governor Guild is at his summer home in Nahant, where he is now rapidly recovering from his recent illness.

In a very few weeks, according to the physician who has been attending him, he will be in condition for the fall campaign.

Only those men who are prominent in the business, political and professional life of Boston were interviewed by Post reporters.

The statements from these men, regardless of politics, are little short of amazing, as an indication of the grip which the governor has upon the people of Boston. Similar is the situation outside of the city and in all parts of the state and New England.

Kaiser Disappointed Princes

Frankfort, May 19.—Emperor William was to have taken luncheon yesterday with the leading nobility of the province and about one hundred noblemen assembled for the occasion. While the princes were awaiting the appearance of the emperor they received word that he could not be present at the luncheon; that Prince Von Buelow had asked for an audience of the emperor on important business of state and that the emperor and the chancellor were then in conference.

Say Credit Is Misplaced

Washington, May 19.—Republican members of the senate committee on finance have taken exception to the claim that has been made on behalf of the National Association of Manufacturers that the representatives of that association and Senator Beveridge practically dictated the resolution empowering the committee to call experts to its aid in making investigations into the tariff question, which was adopted by the senate on Saturday last.

Bridge Closed None Too Soon

Chicago, May 19.—The Erie street bridge, which spans the north branch of the Chicago river, had been in bad repair for some time and yesterday one of the main supports in the centre broke as a truck laden with merchandise crossed. The bridge tenders at once closed the span to traffic and sent for a tug to swing it so that navigation would not be blocked. The bridge broke in two just as it cleared the channel.

Tammany Will Fill Big Space

New York, May 19.—Tammany Hall will be represented at the Democratic national convention at Denver by a delegation 650 strong. Five special trains have been engaged for the journey and accommodations for the entire party have been secured in Denver hotels. It is estimated that the cost of the trip to the Tammany delegation will be at least $100,000. Each man will pay his own expenses.

Accused of Triple Murder

Freehold, N. J., May 19.—Formal charge of murder has been entered against Frank Zastera, the Polish farmhand who had been under examination here on suspicion that he had killed Mr. and Mrs. William Shepherd and their servant, Miss Jennie Bandy, at their farmhouse near here. The charge was made before a local justice of the peace by County Detective Strong.

GRANITE CONFERENCE

Proposition
For Submission
To the Quincy
Manufacturers

An important meeting was held in Boston on Tuesday which it is hoped will end the present strike in the granite industry. The meeting was held by the National Granite Association, at which the committees of the Manufacturers Association and the Granite Cutters union were present.

The matter under discussion was the clause in the proposed agreement which the manufacturers interpret to mean that they can employ no cutters unless they are members of the union.

As far as can be learned the conference was for this body to get correct interpretation of the clause and thus determine if the conference should again be opened. Just what the result of the conference of Tuesday was, is not known as yet. It is understood, however, that a proposition of some kind was made.

A meeting of the Granite Manufacturers executive committee of Quincy has been called for this afternoon, at which the report of the committee will be made, and the proposition submitted. The fact that negotiations are in progress augurs well for an early settlement of the trouble.

Public Bequests Amounting to $13,000

By the will of the late Elizabeth F. Curtis Williams the following bequests of public interest are made:—
To the City Hospital of Quincy, for the endowment of the Francis Williams free bed, five thousand dollars ($5,000.)

To the First Congregational Society of Quincy (Unitarian) for the Elizabeth Curtis Williams permanent fund, five thousand dollars ($5,000.) the income to be applied to the general purposes of the Society.

To the American Unitarian Association, for a permanent fund, the income to be applied to the general purposes of the Association, one thousand dollars ($1,000.)

To the First Congregational Society of Quincy (Unitarian) in memory of the testatrix's father, Noah Curtis, two thousand dollars ($2,000.) to be added to the organ fund already existing, and the total sum used for the purchase of a church organ.

By the death of Mrs. Williams a bequest of $1,500 from the late Ann Curtis to the Protestant Episcopal Society of Christ church in Quincy will soon become available for that society's use.

Petition for Pardon.

Edward J. Sandberg, who became interested in the case of John C. L. Soderquist of Boston while on the Committee on Prisons of the Legislature, is still active to secure justice for Soderquist, now serving a term of seven to eight years in State prison for assault with intent to kill Miss Eva Crockett in the Natural History rooms, Boston, in 1902. He has petitioned Acting Governor Draper for his pardon, claiming that he did not realize the charge to which he pleaded guilty, and further that if guilty he had served a substantial sentence and ought to be free. Rev. Dr. A. K. McLennan and others signed the petition.

Gas Rates.

A bill to provide for a sliding scale in the price of gas was submitted to the legislative committee on public lighting yesterday by ex-Atty. Gen. Albert E. Pillsbury, for the Massachusetts gas companies. Mr. Pillsbury told the committee that the bill had been agreed to by all the interests concerned.

Maloney Permit Is Hung Up

Under an opinion given Mayor Shea by the City Solicitor the orders granting permits to expressmen to transport liquor do not come under the ten day limit.

Under the law all orders passed by the City Council go to the Mayor for approval or disapproval. The law provides that the Mayor has ten days in which to approve the order or return it to the Council without his approval with his objections stated in writing.

The City Solicitor has ruled, however, that in the case of orders granting permits to transport liquor, and the like, do not come under that law, and that the Mayor can take his time in approving or disapproving.

At the meeting of the City Council held May 4, seven orders granting permits were passed and sent to the Mayor. Of this number six were approved by the Mayor inside the ten day limit. Those approved were: N. DiPamfilio, Andrew S. Isaacson, Samuel F. Barker, Boston and Quincy, Boynton & Russell and the New York & Boston.

The seventh order granted a permit to J. J. Maloney of Atlantic. Up to Tuesday night this order had not been approved or vetoed. Friends of Maloney claim that the ten days having elapsed that the order becomes a law without the Mayor's approval. The Mayor however with the advice of the City Solicitor says no.

AMONG THE CLUBS

The Junior Friday club brought its season to a close on Monday afternoon being most delightfully entertained by Miss Georgiana C. Lane at her home on Presidents hill.

It was the annual business meeting and the following officers were elected for 1908-9: President, Miss Alice Keith Prescott; vice president, Mrs. Laurence H. Sturtevant; secretary, Miss Georgiana C. Lane. The program committee for next season is Miss Edith Randall, Miss Clara L. Baxter, and Miss Elta M. Prescott. Following the business meeting the hostess served a dainty lunch. A pleasant surprise was a gift to each club member of a water color sketch of Italian scenes, the handiwork of Miss Lane, a souvenir which will be much prized. Meetings will be resumed Oct. 5th.

A handsome souvenir edition of the Federation Bulletin is in preparation for distribution at the time of the Boston biennial, which will be entirely distinct from the regular June number, and will contain all the details of the official programme and much interesting matter pertaining to Boston and the convention, numerous illustrations and a cover especially designed for the occasion.

The Quincy Day Nursery association is to serve a June breakfast on Saturday morning, June 6th, to raise funds for carrying on the work of the Nursery.

Mrs. George W. Morton, Mrs. A. G. Olney, Mrs. Frederick H. Bishop and Mrs. Ward White will represent the Quincy Women's club at the annual meeting of the State Federation of Women's clubs in Boston on May 28th.

Members of the Quincy Women's club desirous of attending the biennial meetings of the National Federation of Women's clubs in Boston in June, should send their names to Mrs. George W. Morton, Mrs. N. S. Huntington, or Mrs. F. H. Bishop, the committee in charge of the distribution of the tickets.

Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, first vice president, afterward president of the Quincy Women's club and recently made an honorary member of the club, has moved from Manchester, N. H., her present address being 111 Franklin avenue, New Rochelle, New York.

By invitation of the New England Woman's club, the sixteenth annual meeting of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's clubs will be held in the South Congregational church, Exeter street, Boston, Thursday, May 28, at 10 A. M. The annual election of officers takes place, and interesting reports will be given. At noon a collation luncheon will be served at Hotel Vendome, at fifty cents for each person, and tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Otto B. Cole, 551 Boylston street, by sending an order with money enclosed and a stamped and addressed envelope for the return of the ticket before May 25.

The last meeting of the season of the Woman's Guild of Christ church, will be held with Mrs. H. G. Crocker, Butler road, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Ladies will please bring their sewing. There will be music and entertainment.

West Quincy Liquor Case

The identity of the well known citizens found by the police at the residence of John Wentworth on Willard street two weeks ago when they raided the house will not be disclosed. When the case was called in court on Monday, Mr. Wentworth, intended to fight it, and asked for a continuance that he might summons the parties found there as witnesses. At his request the case was continued until this morning and there was much curiosity as to who they were.

Evidently pressure was brought by parties interested, for when the case was called he retracted his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty. The court accepted the plea and imposed a fine of $50.

Unfortunately he did not have the fifty in his pockets and the only thing left for him was to appeal. This he did, and he was recognized for the grand jury. It is probable, however, that he will come into court before the grand jury comes in and retract his appeal and pay the fine.

There has been some sleepless nights for certain people since the raid was made and especially since Monday, when it was believed that they would have to appear in court. These parties can now rest easy.

Serious Runaway.

The visit of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Beckwith of Wollaston to Northampton this week was a particularly sad one. While out riding on Monday evening in an open canopy top surrey drawn by a pair of powerful sorrel horses, the horses took fright while in Goshen homeward bound and started on a dead run. In the carriage on the rear seat were Miss Mary Monica Doris of Somerville, a sister of Mrs. Beckwith, and her friend Miss Ethel Burroughs also of Somerville, students at Smith college, both of whom jumped from the carriage on opposite sides. Miss Burroughs was killed almost instantly, while Miss Doris was badly bruised but escaped serious injury. Mr. Beckwith was able to guide the horses into a thicket beside the road and stop them, but Miss Burroughs was unconscious on their return and soon passed away. Assistance was obtained nearby.

Reunion of Fifth.

The reunion committee of the Fifth Massachusetts Regiment Association met Tuesday evening at the American House and made preliminary arrangements for their annual dinner, which will be held on June 20 in the armory of company C, 5th Massachusetts militia.

Mayor John F. Hurley of Salem has refused to sign the liquor permits granted by the board of aldermen at a special meeting on Saturday. The licenses will be granted without the mayor's signature.

There will be dancing at Pandora hall every evening. Winchester orchestra Wednesday and Saturday evenings till June 17. Houghs Neck orchestra other nights. J. A. Graham manager.

Braintree Man Seriously Injured

A New York dispatch to Boston papers reports a serious accident on Tuesday to George H. Hamblett of Braintree. At the time he was riding in a taxicab with Charles A. Schieren, Jr., a business associate, when the taxicab was wrecked by a south bound Eighth avenue car at 66th street and Central Park west. Both men are reported to have had their skulls fractured and to have received numerous cuts and bruises.

In the Daily Walk

A large registration of polls and voters is expected this year because of the Presidential election.

It was on May 20, 1886 that the late Henry H. Faxon presented gold badges to the constables of Quincy.

Mrs. George W. Brooks of Center street continues critically ill. She sustained a second shock a few days ago.

The house on Bototh street owned by J. K. Sterling of Boston is being made ready for occupancy next week.

The L. T. L. will meet at Protection hall, Thursday, at 4 P. M. All who attend now can go to the picnic on the 30th of June.

Many strange things were found in the pirate chests on Capt. Kidd's treasure ship and they will be exhibited by the Wollaston Yacht club tonight.

George Ruxton, the granite manufacturer, is seriously ill at his home on Chestnut street, but the attending physician reports that the danger is past.

William Russell, who is ill with plural pneumonia at his home on Billings street is on the dangerous list and in a critical condition Wednesday morning.

Work double tracking Hancock street is being pushed along rapidly and when completed will be a great improvement. It has been necessary to set some additional poles on the side of the street.

Representatives Combs and Hultman were not recorded on Tuesday on the franchise tax bill, which proposed a more just distribution of the franchise tax on corporations.

Work on Quincy's post office building on Washington street has been resumed. The course of fine cut granite has arrived and is being put in place. A beautiful building is assured.

—The new bill of prices for quarrymen and engineers at Milford has been signed and work resumed.

Today's Court.

Michael Sullivan was arraigned for drunkenness at Milton. Case continued until June 11.
Frederick M. Ford was fined $3 for violation of the Metropolitan park rules.
George E. Glover was arraigned for threatening an assault on Brintree on William Davis. Case continued until May 27.
William McDonald was arraigned for a statutory offense, and held in $200 until Thursday.

John Wentworth entered a plea of guilty for violation of the liquor law at Quincy and was fined $50. Appealed.

LOVE LETTERS OF LATTER

Newspaper Man Who Tried to Get Them Says He Was Gotten Into Conspiracy by Powerful Officials Whom He Dared Not Displease

New York, May 20.—High government officials at Washington are alleged to have conspired to obtain possession of love letters said to have been written by United States Senator Thomas C. Platt to Mae C. Wood. This allegation is contained in a signed statement introduced as evidence during yesterday's hearing in Miss Wood's suit for divorce against the senator.

The statement, which was introduced after the court had denied a motion by counsel for Platt to dismiss the complaint, bears what purports to be the signature of J. Martin Miller, and Miss Wood said that while she did not see the signature affixed she was assured by Miller that it was genuine. The statement was prepared at her request, she testified.

It declares that Miller was asked by "high government officials in Washington and New York to get possession of Senator Platt's love letters," that the papers when obtained were not to be given to Platt, but were to be turned over to "Mr. Loeb in Washington," and that when the plan to get possession of the original papers failed a scandal was begun in the newspapers to force Miss Wood to come to terms.

"Wynne, first assistant postmaster general, started the ball rolling by getting a New York newspaper to print the article as it first appeared," says the statement.

Former Postmaster General Wynne is the present American consul general in London. J. Martin Miller, a former newspaper man, recently was American consul at Rheims, France.

"Did Miller ever say anything to you about the letters?" asked the examining attorney of Miss Wood, who was on the stand in her own behalf. "Yes," she replied. "He said that if he got the letters the Platts would never get them."

"What was he going to do with them?" "Hold them over Platt's head, I believe," she answered.

The statement purporting to have been signed by Miller bears the date of Oct. 15, 1903. It reads:

"I was asked by high government officials in Washington and New York to get possession of Senator Platt's love letters to Mae C. Wood. In order to do this I had to pretend I would get out a book for which she gave me the manuscript on Oct. 8, 1903. It was agreed by all parties interested that I was to get her to New York and get the papers out of her room."

"Mr. Loeb called up Platt in New York and told him Miss Wood was suing him for breach of promise. Mr. Platt said he would be a party to the scheme. I failed to get possession of any original documents or letters. We then began the scandal in the newspapers to force her to come to terms. Wynne, first assistant postmaster general, started the ball rolling by getting a New York paper to print the article as it first appeared."

"I established my headquarters in the Tribune building, disseminating such information as I could get from the office of the first assistant postmaster general. Senator Platt was fully informed of all matters by me, and I was instructed to co-operate with him, but the original papers were not to be given to Platt, but to Loeb at Washington."

"I was gotten into the conspiracy by powerful officials whom I dared not displease from a newspaper or political standpoint. I consulted Mr. Howe, Senator Platt's secretary, frequently and acted at all times under the direction of Loeb and Platt."

In her testimony given earlier in the day, Miss Wood, then under cross-examination, was led to tell of the circumstances under which she signed in 1903 in this city a release of Platt from any claims she may have had against him. She testified that she received from A. H. Hummel the sum of $7500 upon signing the statement, but denied that she was aware of all its contents.

Won't Fight a Duel

St. Petersburg, May 20.—A duel, which had been arranged to take place between M. Guchkoff, the Octoberist leader, and Professor Milukoff, leader of the Constitutional Democrats, has been declared off, owing to the intervention of influential members of the house. Guchkoff's challenge was the result of Milukoff branding as false a statement which the Octoberist leader had made.

Evidence of Mrs. Guinness' Death La Porte, Ind., May 20.—Louis Schultz, a miner, has found in the ashes of the Guinness house the upper and lower bridges, containing what the officials here pronounce the false teeth of Mrs. Belle Guinness. In view of the unmistakable evidence Coroner Mack states that he probably will render an official finding that the burned adult body is that of Mrs. Guinness.

The man whose identity was not known, who has been at Hall's undertaking rooms since last Friday, was identified this morning by his brother, as Joseph Muzzall. The man was employed at the Fore River and was taken ill with typhoid fever from which he died at the City Hospital last Friday. But little was known of him until his brother visited Quincy and identified the body. He will be buried from St. John's church this afternoon.

Charles B. Yule, apprentice electrical department, who has been ailing for the past three weeks from appendicitis, was successfully operated on at the Carney Hospital on Monday last, Dr. Middleton being present.

A report of the special committee of Congress, investigating the Electric Boat Company of Quincy, was made public today in the National House.

The Atlantic fleet of battleships is due in Puget sound on Thursday. There they will divide for a while, the Vermont, Rhode Island and New Jersey (built at Quincy), anchoring off Bellingham. They will reach Seattle on Saturday and stay three days.

The scout cruiser Birmingham, built at Quincy, sailed from Norfolk on Tuesday for Guantanamo, Cuba. It is announced that an attempt will be made to break the speed record for cruisers of this class.

The cruiser Des Moines, built at Quincy, arrived on Tuesday at Colon, having on board a special commission appointed to investigate labor conditions on the Panama canal.

Admiral Evans says of the Vermont, Rhode Island, New Jersey and other battleships in his fleet to the Pacific: "We steamed 14,000 miles in formation. But once, while at sea, during all that cruise, did the fleet have to slow down because of break in the machinery. Then it was a break in an air pump, which required an hour to repair. The delay would have been unnecessary could the proper cross connection have been made with the other pump. We had an occasional accident, like a break in the steering gear, which will always happen to ships at sea, but all such accidents were repaired without delay and without interfering with the fleet's progress."

"The efficiency of the ships was no surprise to me. I had had those ships under my command, before we sailed from Hampton Roads and knew how thoroughly, and how stoutly they had been constructed. But the world did not believe the fleet could be taken around South America without accident. The prevalent opinion was, that I would do well to reach San Francisco with half of my ships and that the other half would be scattered all along the way—laid up in port for repairs. I know that those ships were taken into San Francisco in even better condition than they were when we weighed anchor and started out past the Virginia capes."

"I have not been asked to testify before the Senate Committee, but our ships are all right. They are first-class ships in every particular. I would not raise the armor belt a particle, as I have reported to the department. I wish we could protect our ships further under water, because a shot, striking under water, might do very serious damage. Ships carry some weights now that they would be better without, but there is no way I see of reasonably preventing the rise of the ship and consequently of the armor belt from day to day as she cruises. A weight of 55 tons, or thereabouts, depresses the ship about one inch in the water. The consumption of coal ranged from about 150 to 200 tons a day and a battleship rises about five inches every 24 hours."

Guarantee of Election Integrity
Washington, May 20.—Secretary Taft has announced the terms of the agreement he reached with the Panama government on his recent visit there regarding the elections to be held in July. Panama is to appoint an electoral commission to investigate the complaints of all parties, and in this the United States is to join. Representations of fraud contemplated by both parties had been made to Taft, which, if carried into effect, it is believed here, would have led to a revolution.

Rubber Works to Start Up
Woonsocket, R. I., May 20.—The Alice mill of the Woonsocket Rubber company will resume operations on full time next Tuesday, after a shutdown of two months. The mill employs 1500 operatives. The company's rubber boot mill at Millville started up last week, giving employment to about 1000 persons.

White Wing's Performance
Hammondsport, N. Y., May 20.—Lieutenant Selfridge made two flights yesterday in Baldwin's aerodrome, White Wing. In the first the machine ran 210 feet in 6 1/2 seconds on the race track before leaving the ground, and made a flight of 100 feet in two seconds at an elevation of three feet and ran 201 feet after landing. In the second the machine made a steady flight of 240 feet at an elevation of 20 feet in the air, but landed badly and the front wheel was injured.

Cleveland Still Gaining

During the past week Mrs. Cleveland has left the patient a number of times. Dr. Bryant was with the patient last night.

A 17.94 PERCENT CUT

Great Slash In Wages Is Almost Due at Fall River

SELLING PRICE OF CLOTHS

It Governs Sliding Scale System and Average Margin Has Fallen Below 80—Trade Situation, However, Has Somewhat Improved

Fall River, Mass., May 20.—The reduction in wages which will go into effect in the print cloth mills of this city on Monday next will probably amount to nearly 18 percent, the heaviest cut ever made at one time here, if the six months' sliding scale agreement is put into full operation by the manufacturers.

The executive committee of the Manufacturers' association and the secretaries of the various unions held a private conference to discuss the amount of average margin between the cost of cotton and the selling price of regular print cloths during the past six months, upon which the rate of wages during the coming year will be based. Both sides refused to make a statement, but so far as can be learned the average margin has fallen below 80, which would mean, under the sliding scale system, a cut in wages of 17.94 percent.

The Textile Council will consider the situation and arrange to sign the new agreement which is called for, neither side having given a necessary six months' notice that a discontinuance is desired. The reduction will affect about 25,000 operatives.

Business has been dull in the cloth market since December, most of the mills running on half or two-thirds time. The rate of wages paid, however, has been the highest in forty years, the local manufacturers under the agreement not cutting wages in March and April when the other northern mills did. The trade situation has somewhat improved this month and it is thought more machinery will be in operation next week.

It is not known here whether outside mills will meet the heavy wage cut in this city. They reduced wages 10 percent early in the spring, and it is thought that if business improves steadily they may not find it necessary to order a further reduction.

Full Time In Hamilton Mills
Amesbury, Mass., May 20.—Notices have been posted in the mills of the Hamilton Woolen company, announcing that the plant, which has been running on a four-days-a-week schedule for several months, will resume on full time at once. The mills manufacture cotton print goods and employ 700 hands.

Brown's Summer Ball-Room.

Brown's Summer ball-room opened for the season last Saturday evening to a very large and appreciative party. Mr. Brown, the proprietor, has made several excellent improvements this year, among the most important is the new band stand with a sounding board roof, which carries the music to all parts of the building. The stand is located on the cafe side of the hall, and any one wishing to sit out a dance can now enjoy an excellent band concert while resting. Kutz's orchestra, which has been engaged for the season, rendered excellent music for dancing. Another new feature is the photograph studio in the front of the building, opposite the soda fountain. From the several kinds of amusement under Mr. Brown's management this year, which include dance-hall, bowling alleys, pool-room, penny vaudeville, photograph studio, ice cream cafe, soda fountain and a full line of cigars and candy, one can pass a very pleasant evening without going outside of the building.

Straw Ride.

On Saturday night one of the first straw rides of the season was given in honor of Miss Grace Bates of Providence, who is spending a few days with Miss Alice McLoon of Wollaston. The start was made from Wollaston and from there proceeded to Quincy where the remainder of the party were added to the crowd of merry makers. The horses were then headed toward Houghs Neck with a side trip over the picturesque road to Germantown. After driving about two hours a halt was made at Rock Island farm where Mrs. George Pawsey had one of her noted clam chowders in waiting, which was fully appreciated by the hungry young people. After supper some of the party adjourned to the music room while others took advantage of the full moon and perfect weather by strolling around the grounds. About 11.30 the horses were hitched and the start was made for home, arriving about midnight. Songs and stories were indulged in throughout the evening. The party was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Rogers of Quincy.

City Charters on Commission Plan

Three Massachusetts cities, Haverhill, Gloucester and Chelsea, are likely to try government by commission, says the Boston Advertiser.

The house on Wednesday passed to engrossment the bill giving Haverhill a charter on the Des Moines plan, and the committee on cities reported a bill for Gloucester. The Chelsea bill has already passed the senate, and will go through the house this week.

The Haverhill plan will not take effect till 1500 citizens petition that the question be placed on the ballot for a special election in October.

If Haverhill accepts the act, the city will be governed by a mayor, without the power of veto, and four aldermen, sitting as a council or commission elected biennially. The initiative and referendum hang over their heads. At any time, on petition of 25 per cent of the registered voters, a special election may be called to turn out every obnoxious one or more of the five; and on petition of the same proportion the commission must either pass a demanded ordinance, or submit it to the voters at a special election; and 10 per cent of the voters can compel putting on the ballot, at a regular election, any ordinance.

Party appellations and distinctions are obliterated. At the primary election, any citizen can have his name voted for, on petition of 25 registered voters. Only the two highest contestants for any particular office will be put on the ballot to be voted for at the final election.

The Gloucester bill is not so radical. It does not contain the initiative and referendum. It provides for a commission of five—a mayor and four aldermen, to be elected each year. There is to be a school committee of nine, three to be elected each year for three years. The city council shall make no special appropriation of more than $500 except after it has been tabled for one week.

The city departments are to be continued as at present.

The salaries of the councilmen shall be $1000, and of the mayor $1200, but the city council shall have the power to increase them to not more than $1500 and $1800 respectively.

The charter is to be submitted to the voters of Gloucester for acceptance or rejection at the next state election.

CAPTAIN KIDD

Could Not Elude the Yachtsmen
Of Wollaston

Had the good people of Wollaston realized that the famous treasure ship "Quedah" of Capt. Kidd was moored off Wollaston beach they might have rested uneasily at the thought that his ruffians might raid their treasure chests. The famous ship was not moored, however, but the hall of the Wollaston Yacht club house had been so transformed that when one crossed the gang plank leading to the hall it needed but a little stretch of imagination to think he was on the deck of the ship.

Rising on the sides and end bulwarks had been constructed, and, on the walls canvas had been stretched and painted to represent water. On one side was the bright new moon rising from the water, while on the other, sailing peacefully along, were vessels upon which the crew of the famous ship were to pillage. Hung across the beams were chains and tarred rope, giving the true ship deck odor. Here were also suspended red and blue flags upon which skulls had been traced.

On the port and starboard sides of the deck were large treasure chests, their covers safely secured by massive padlocks. On these chests were quantities of articles which the maidens in Spanish costume tried to dispose of to the crowd of curiosity seekers who wandered over the deck. The maidens spoke good English, and the travelers had no difficulty in understanding them, except when, in reply to questions as to price, they murmured pistareen, or doubloon.

They were also somewhat mystified when they boarded the vessel to hear the man at the gang plank demand a "short bit" for single admission, or "one real" for a ticket that would admit the three nights the vessel will remain here.

Strutting across the deck, arrayed in all his glory, was Capt. Kidd himself, while following in his wake were four youngsters in Spanish costume upon whose backs were cards reading: "One of Capt. Kidd's kids."

Over in one corner of the bow of the vessel was Dona Rosita, the fortune teller, who for a price revealed the future of those who came before her.

On the lower deck of the vessel was the famous Davy Jones Locker. This was hung with black cloth and dimly lighted, and on the walls were skulls. Here was a large coffin shaped counter from which cigars were sold.

There was a good crowd of visitors Wednesday evening and more are expected tonight and Friday.

The originator of the scheme was A. Roan, chairman of the entertainment committee, who planned the work and was ably assisted by the others on the committee. The chests were the handy work of A. L. Barstow and Herbert Seymour. Capt. Kidd was impersonated by Dr. F. C. Merrill, and his kids who sold cigars and flowers were Russell Coldwell, Robert Merrill, Roger Ellis and Marion Hallett.

Those in charge of the treasure chests were:

New Postal Order Just In Time

The Quincy post office, which enters the Boston postal district on July 1, will not become a station. The Postmaster General has just issued an order that hereafter postal stations for the receipt and despatch of mails that are located outside of the corporate limits of cities shall be known as branch post offices and shall be separately entered in the Postal Guide in alphabetical order in the list of post offices.

In the case of Cambridge, Mass., for instance, which has heretofore been known as Cambridge Station of the Boston Post Office, the patrons were unable to have special request envelopes issued to them with the return card, "Cambridge, Mass." printed thereon. Under this new order Cambridge will be listed in the Postal Guide in its proper alphabetical order, will have a postmark, "Cambridge, Mass.," and the patrons will be able to obtain special request envelopes with the name of their city printed thereon. These changes will go into effect with the new issue of the Postal Guide, which will be ready for distribution about July 1.—Manet Quincy.

MEETING CALLED

Of the Granite
Manufacturers'
Association
For Tonight

There is nothing definite to announce in the granite difficulties, but negotiations are pending. At a meeting of the executive committee of the Granite Manufacturers' Association on Wednesday, the report was received from the special committee and Association counsel concerning the conference they had with Secretary Duncan and the granite cutters' committee.

The object of this conference was to arrive at an exact understanding of the clause in the agreement which the manufacturers refuse to sign.

The committee reported that the interpretation put on this clause by the cutters was that it meant a closed shop.

This is the contention made from the first by the Manufacturers' Association.

No action was taken by the executive committee on the report. Another meeting of the manufacturers, however, has been called for tonight.

Summer Night At Houghs Neck

Wednesday evening had the appearance of a summer's evening at Houghs Neck. Both Browns and the Pandora dance halls were crowded with the younger folk that came from Quincy and the surrounding towns and took advantage of the lovely evening to dance.

Never before has anything stirred Houghs Neck so much as the discontinuance of the Boston boat. Many of the people that have leased cottages for the summer with the understanding that the boat to Boston was to run, threaten to leave the beach and go elsewhere. The property holders have seen the management to find out if the boat could be run. When asked the reason of the taking off of the boat the management says, the people of Houghs Neck have not properly supported the boat, the City Council has refused us an express license, and it is very difficult to obtain a suitable landing in Boston. It is understood that the Houghs Neck Associates are to take the matter up at their next meeting.

The many friends of Miss Florence Matthews will be delighted to hear that she is slowly recovering from a long seige of pneumonia.

C. B. Cowling, 81 years, of River road and Charles street was badly injured while boarding the Houghs Neck car in Quincy on Wednesday. Mr. Cowling was stepping onto the running board when some of the school children accidentally tripped him. Mr. Cowling received a bad injury to his right knee and broke the right hip. He was taken to Houghs Neck in the car and one of Berry Bros. teams carried him from the car to his home. Doctor Jones was called. Conductor Barnard was commended by the other passengers for his kindness to the gentleman.

The parents of the Houghs Neck children who go to Quincy to school cannot warn their children too much about the danger of trying to board the cars while they are in motion. There have been some very narrow escapes. For instance in the case of Mr. Cowling. If the children had not been in such a rush to get seats Mr. Cowling would not have been injured.

Samuel Levovich was fined $15, and Lettie A. Lewis $20 for exceeding the automobile speed limit at Milton.

Henry Garland was arraigned for the larceny of a chest of tools from August Johnson at Quincy. Case continued until Friday.

His Vacation Well Earned

J. B. Sutherland was a passenger Wednesday on the Allan to spend a well-earned vacation in Scotland. He will return in the fall. People who come to Quincy bringing with them energy and good intentions generally improve their circumstances here, but there are very few who succeeded as well as Mr. Sutherland, considering the fact that he began business here with no capital fifteen years ago. Today he has a high rating, having considerable real estate on hand and owning the Sutherland building on Water street which is the finest business building in South Quincy. His first location was the old McDonald and Cook office where he began to repair shoes. Steadily the business increased and after two or three years he erected a store at the corner of Franklin and Water streets, and built up a large and successful shoe business, which last year he sold to another party.

With so many men with capital and opportunity falling in business, Mr. Sutherland was often asked how he got along so well, and he always attributed his success to certain advice given him while repairing shoes, by the late Henry H. Faxon. He and Mr. Faxon were close friends from the start, and in their business relations they trusted each other so implicitly that Mr. Sutherland erected a lot of buildings at Dobie's corner on land which he held of Mr. Faxon without a lease. Mr. Faxon told him he would not be disturbed and that assurance was all Mr. Sutherland required. It was not until the time came to mortgage the buildings that a lease was made out, to please the lender of the money.

Mr. Sutherland's life has had many shadows cast across it, however, since he came to Quincy. He has buried six children, one of them an estimable daughter who had almost reached womanhood.

Member of Old Quincy Family

Mrs. Maria J. Brooks widow of George W. Brooks died this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Walter E. Piper, at 70 Centre street, with whom she has made her home since the death of her husband, in April, 1905.

The house in which Mrs. Brooks died was known as the Nightingale homestead and was built in 1762, being one of the oldest houses in the city. Her father, Thomas J. Nightingale, was born there in 1801, and died there in 1875. Mrs. Brooks was also born in the same house Jan. 21, 1823. Her mother was Alice Brackett, first cousin of ex-Governor John Q. A. Brackett.

Mrs. Brooks had a shock of paralysis in July, 1905, and has been in poor health ever since, although she has only been confined to the house since last Saturday.

Mrs. Brooks was married in 1856. She leaves a son and daughter, Charles H. Brooks and Mrs. Walter E. Piper. Funeral services will be held Sunday from her late residence.

WAS NO CORRUPTION

Report of Investigators of the Lilley Charges

WERE MADE IN BAD FAITH

Connecticut Congressman Accused of Falsehood and Declared to Have Been an Instrument of a Rival Submarine Boat Company

Washington, May 21.—The conclusions of the special committee which has been investigating the charges of Representative Lilley of Connecticut that members of the house had been improperly influenced in connection with submarine torpedo boat legislation that Lilley had violated his obligations as a member, and acted in bad faith with the committee and in contempt of the house, were sustained by the house by a vote of 157 to 82.

Five hours of the session were devoted to the case, four of which were consumed in reading the report. The Connecticut members joined in voting against the resolution. Mr. Williams (Miss) denounced Lilley as guilty of treason, for which, he said, he should be expelled. He presumed that the reason the committee did not carry its report to a recommendation to that end was because Lilley was at his home ill and unable to be present to defend himself in such a proceeding.

It was a noticeable fact that five members of the special committee, Messrs. Boutell, Olmsted, Stevens, Broussard and Howard, sat together throughout the proceedings and that none of them submitted any remarks in connection with the report. The committee's report cleared the Electric Boat company and members of congress, but arraigned Lilley as having allowed himself to be used "as the instrument of the Lake Torpedo Boat company," a rival of the Electric, as having acted in "bad faith, violated his obligation as a member," and "having acted in contempt of the house."

Such a scathing report on a member is probably unprecedented in the house, and created a sensation of the highest order.

The committee found that Lilley's resolution for an investigation was not introduced in good faith; that he had no information to justify his charges before the committee on rules that reported in favor of the investigation; that he acted in bad faith in making these charges, in stating to this committee that he had made no charges reflecting upon members, in concealing from the selected committee the real parties in interest behind the investigation and furnishing him with information and evidence—the Lake Torpedo Boat company; that Lilley violated his obligation as a member in formulating and urging before the committee groundless charges against Representative Loud in regard to the Electric company, and in permitting his clerk to send out letters in Lilley's name reflecting on the honor and integrity of members of the house; that he acted in contempt of the house in not disavowing openly upon the floor of the house a letter, published over his signature, reflecting upon the honor and integrity of members, and in destroying a forged letter from his secretary to Frank L. Edinborough of Bay City, Mich., relative to the Loud incident. Instead of delivering it to the committee.

The committee also found that Lilley's real object in introducing his resolution for investigation and making his charges was the same as the purpose of the "propaganda" of the Lake Torpedo Boat company, namely, the defeat of the clause in the naval appropriation bill favoring the Electric Boat company. It found that Lilley's charge of excessive profits in submarine contracts was based on fictitious figures, and that Lilley's charges that this profit was due to special legislation in favor of one company was false, and "Mr. Lilley knew that the charge was false when he made it."

The committee found that no representative of the press, no official of the navy, member of congress or campaign committee had been corrupted by the Electric Boat company.

The report concluded with the statement that Lilley had told the committee that he had no further information to sustain his charges.

Reflection on "Personal Honor"

Waterbury, Conn., May 21.—Representative Lilley refused to comment at length when informed of the substance of the report of the Boutell committee, saying that he had not yet received an official copy of that document. "The most serious, the most painful aspect of the report to me," he said, "is the reflection upon my personal honor. Nothing in my private or public record will justify these personal reflections."

Must Not Desecrate Our Flag

Washington, May 21.—The senate passed a bill to prevent the desecration of the flag of the United States with an amendment providing that its restrictions shall not apply to banners or flags carried by military or patriotic organizations authorized by law. This amendment was to meet objections by Senator Bacon, who explained that in Georgia Confederate soldiers' organizations had blended the Union and Confederate flags.

PREDICTION FULFILLED

Hydrophobia Causes the Death of a Well-to-Do Manufacturer
New York, May 21.—The fate that the physicians at the Pasteur institute had predicted came to William H. Marsh of Brooklyn late yesterday, when the well-to-do manufacturer of water meters died of hydrophobia. His end was peaceful, as he was put under the influence of opiates early in the day and was kept free from consciousness of pain to the last.

Mr. Marsh contracted hydrophobia while caring for an injured spaniel. Unsuspecting at first, he became worried about his condition on Saturday, when symptoms resembling those of hydrophobia developed. By that time, however, the disease had progressed so far that there was no hope of checking it, and when he applied for treatment at the Pasteur institute in this city on Monday he was told that nothing could be done for him and that his death was only a question of few hours.

Marsh bore up bravely and busied himself winding up his personal affairs until the paroxysms which began to seize him induced the administration of opiates. In his intervals of freedom from pain he bade farewell to the members of his family who had gathered at his home and made final disposition of his business affairs.

Students Held as Burglars
New York, May 21.—One of two Columbia university students was shot by a policeman last night and both of them later were placed under arrest, charged with attempted burglary. The students are Edward H. Cook, aged 18, and Howard P. Cole, 21. The police charge that the two men were attempting to break into a refreshment stand on Riverside drive. Cook's injury is painful rather than serious. Cole made no attempt to escape. It is thought probable that the affair started as a college prank.

Dynamite Used on Street Car
Cleveland, May 21.—Barring a possible squabble over the details of the settlement, the indications are that a peaceful end of the strike of the motor men and conductors against the Municipal Railway company will come today. Incipient cases of attacks on cars were reported late last night, the most serious of which was the dynamiting of a car. The trucks were demolished and thirty passengers were thrown into a panic. None, however, was injured.

Platt Denies Wood Charges

New York, May 21.—Physically weak and so feeble that he had to be practically carried in and out of the courtroom, United States Senator Platt was at times a spirited witness in his own behalf in Mae C. Wood's suit for absolute divorce from him. His denial of all the charges brought by Miss Wood was emphatic, and when prodded too hard on occasions by the plaintiff's counsel, the senator proved himself capable of vigorous response.

Worrying Over American Names

Ottawa, May 21.—In the house, Sir Wilfrid Laurier called attention to a map recently issued at Washington, presumably by the war department, showing islands in the Arctic, over which Canada claimed jurisdiction, bearing American names, as though they were American territory. He was speaking in reference to the need of patrolling the Hudson bay regions by a Canadian government vessel.

Mills Waives Examination

New York, May 21.—Walter Mills, arrested on the charge of using the mails to defraud Maine and New Hampshire farmers on apple shipments, when arraigned before Commissioner Shields waived examination and consented to return to Boston. The prisoner is alleged to have operated through offices which he kept until recently in that city.

Raynor Speaks For Stewart

Washington, May 21.—Senator Raynor again made an appeal to the senate for a vote on a resolution "authorizing and requesting" the president to appoint a court of inquiry to investigate charges against Colonel Stewart, coast artillery, stationed at Fort Grant, Ariz. Objection being made, the further consideration of the resolution was postponed.

Fleet Strikes Tempestuous Seas
Los Angeles, Cal., May 21.—That the Atlantic fleet is encountering off the coast of Oregon the heaviest seas since it left Hampton Roads is the news the United Wireless Telegraph office in this city received from the flagship. The ships are struggling against a stormy headwind and making slow progress in the tempestuous seas.

"In God We Trust" Goes on Coins
Washington, May 21.—President Roosevelt has signed the bill directing the restoration to gold and silver coins of the motto "In God We Trust" ordered by him stricken from the gold coins some months ago on the ground that the law did not authorize its use. The motto never was removed from silver coins.

Rewards For Heroism

"WITHERING BLIGHT"

Bryan Charged With Leading
His Party to Destruction

AN UPROAR IN CONVENTION

Pennsylvania State Democratic Organization Wins In Battle With Bryan League and Delegates to National Convention Not Instructed

Harrisburg, May 21.—After one of the hardest fights within the party in several years, the Democratic state convention here decided not to instruct the delegates-at-large to the Denver convention for W. J. Bryan. It was a clean-cut victory for the Democratic state organization, headed by James M. Guffey of Pittsburg, the Pennsylvania member of the national committee.

The Bryanites, under the leadership of the executive committee of the Bryan Democratic league, had a large following and they fought to the bitter end. Feeling ran high in the convention, which was at times very disorderly, but when the followers of Bryan found that they were in the minority they acquiesced.

The principal fight of the convention was over the question of instructing the four delegates-at-large. The sixty-four national district delegates were elected in April and the state convention had nothing to do with them in the matter of issuing instructions. The principal committee fight was that on resolutions, and when it was over it was positively known how things stood.

The Guffey people offered a platform which was silent on the presidential question and the Bryanites immediately offered an amendment instructing the delegates-at-large for Bryan. It was defeated by a vote of 34 to 15. Then they offered another amendment containing the Bryan plank of the 1906 state convention and it also went down to defeat—32 to 17.

When the platform was presented to the convention Jere S. Black, one of the leaders of the Bryanites, offered as a minority report the second amendment defeated in the meeting of the committee on resolutions. Black made an earnest plea for instructions, and James Kerr also supported the Bryan plank.

Then John T. Lenahan made a vigorous attack upon Bryan, which roused the Bryanites to a high pitch of excitement. Lenahan declared that Bryan had "led the party to destruction" and that he was "a withering blight upon the Democratic party." The convention was in constant uproar in consequence of Lenahan's remarks and he was frequently compelled to stop while the chairman tried to bring about order. Lenahan declared that the "noise and bluster of the Bryanites" could not terrorize him. After a tedious rollcall the minority report was defeated by a vote of 187 to 123, after which the platform was adopted by a viva voce vote.

The platform declares for tariff revision and that "such revision should be based upon the equitable protection of American labor when competing with foreign manufacturers."

Hughes Still a Candidate

New York, May 21.—Just before he started for Chicago to open Hughes headquarters, Secretary Humphrey of the National Hughes league declared that New York's governor would have 136 votes on the first ballot in the national convention. "As a matter of fact," he said, "his real strength probably will prove much greater, but of these 136 votes we are positively certain at present. All the efforts to make it appear that Governor Hughes' name will not be presented to the convention have failed. We are emphasizing the fact that his name will be presented. The fight is not ended, but only begun."

Bryan Sentiment in Missouri

Jefferson City, Mo., May 21.—Delegates to the Democratic state convention instructed Missouri's thirty-six delegates to the national convention to vote for W. J. Bryan's nomination for president. The thirty-two delegates from the congressional districts were selected by sixteen district caucuses, whose selections were subject to the convention's approval and the approval was unanimous.

Michigan Delegates With Bryan
Lansing, Mich., May 21.—The Democratic state convention unanimously adopted resolutions instructing Michigan's delegation to the national convention at Denver to vote as a unit for the nomination of William J. Bryan for president until he is nominated.

In South Carolina

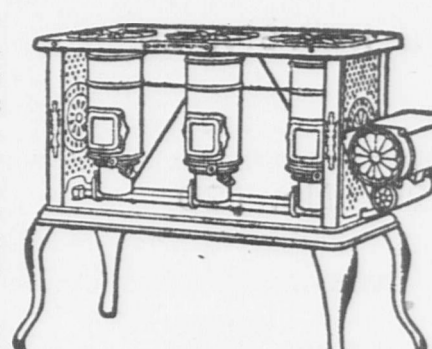

Columbia, S. C., May 21.—The South Carolina state Democratic convention met here and by resolutions instructed the state's delegates to the national convention to vote for the nomination of W. J. Bryan for the presidency.

Mrs. Dora McDonald Is Widow

Chicago, May 21.—The long continued and bitter rivalry between two women, each of whom claimed to be the widow of Michael C. McDonald, a millionaire politician and sporting man, was ended by a decree handed down by Judge Barnes in which Mrs. Dora McDonald, who was recently acquitted of the murder of the artist, Webster S. Guerin, was declared to be the legal wife of McDonald at the time of his death.

DYSPEPSIA

"Having taken your wonderful 'Cascarets' for three months and being entirely cured of stomach ailments and dyspepsia, I think a word of praise is due to 'Cascarets' for their wonderful composition. I have taken numerous other so-called remedies, but without avail and I find that Cascarets relieve more in a day than all the others I have taken would in a year."

RIGHT OF INJUNCTION

Denial That It Has Been Misused Against Labor

THE PRESIDENT ASSAILED

His Utterances Declared to Have Impeached the Whole Judiciary of the United States Without Giving
Even a Semblance of Facts

New York, May 21.—With an election of officers, followed by a banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria, the National Association of Manufacturers last night closed its annual convention here.
Speeches at the banquet in general
voiced the sentiments on various topics of national importance which have been expressed at the business sessions of the convention. The association re-elected J. J. Van Cleave of St. Louis as president and Francis H. Stillman as treasurer.

President Roosevelt was assailed by a speaker at yesterday afternoon's session of the convention for his utterances about the improper use of injunctions. James A. Emery, general counsel for the National Council for Industrial Defense, said:

"For four or five years there has been a general attempt to push this labor legislation, as inimical as it is. For three years past it has been stated and reiterated in executive messages that the right of injunction has been misused against labor and that there has been abuse of the injunction. Now let us look into this and find out if it is true. How many injunctions, for instance, have there been issued by courts in the last five years? There have been issued only 328 injunctions and but twenty of them in labor disputes. That is the truth.

"Never before has the judiciary of a country been attacked without facts to back it up. Now those who attack the judiciary—how many injunctions do they complain of in fifteen years? Just thirteen.

"In all these eighteen cases only one injunction has been modified by the United States supreme court. In seventeen cases then they have either not appealed or have been defeated. That is the record. In no other department of law have there been so few examples in law found. Thus, I ask what reason there is for the accusation against the courts of the United States that the right of injunction has been oppressively used? Wherever does the president get his evidence upon which to arraign the judiciary for the improper issuance of injunctions? He has failed to give the facts upon which to impeach one judge, and he has thus impeached the whole judiciary of the United States."

Of a telegraphic report from Washington that certain Republican legislators have taken a stand for some form of labor anti-injunction legislation, Emery said: "If anything of that sort goes on the statute books it will stand there as a living accusation against the judiciary of the United States.
"The only thing that legislators respect is the man who stands up for his rights. The thing to do is to let the legislators know that once the legislation you believe unjust goes upon the statute books, every last man of you will go to the courts of last resort to establish your principles. Thank God our courts are not ruled today by policy. Thank God there are some men who still retain those finer distinctions between politics and duty. I do not think there ever was a finer picture
than when the other day our friend rose in the halls of congress and spoke his word against the employers' libel-ity bill and, though the vote stood 300 to 1, he was as firm in his principles as any man could be. That man was Charles Littlefield."

Fell Three Thousand Feet

Rio Janeiro, May 21.—Lieutenant Fonseca of the Brazilian army completed preparations yesterday for his first ascension with a military balloon before the military school. The minister of war and a large gathering of officers had assembled to witness the experiment. The balloon rose to an altitude of 3000 feet, when suddenly it collapsed and fell to earth. Fonseca was crushed to death. It is supposed he made a false maneuver.

For Next Congress to Consider

Washington, May 21.—A subcommittee of the senate committee on privileges and elections considered two bills
on the subject of publicity of campaign contributions. It was the sentiment that the measures contained provisions against which there were constitutional objections. It is believed that all of the bills on this subject will go over until the next session of congress.

To Consider Currency Question

Washington, May 21.—The appointment of a currency commission to be composed of nine senators and nine members of the house will be provided for in a bill which Senator Aldrich will introduce in the senate, and if this is passed by congress it will comprise all of the financial legislation that will be enacted at the present session.

Full Time in Railroad Shops

Oswego, N. Y., May 21.—The New York Central shops here, employing 600 men, went on full time today. The shops have been running on part time for the past six months.

AFFECTS 25,000 HANDS

Big Slash in Wages Goes Into Effect at Fall River Next Week
Fall River, Mass., May 21.—The Fall River Textile Council last night voted to accept the reduction in wages called for by the average margin between the cost of cotton and the selling price of cloth, which was previously agreed upon at a conference with the manufacturers. The cut is expected to average nearly 18 percent and will become effective next Monday in mills employing 25,000 hands.

The reduction will be in effect six months. It is understood that the mills will go on full time as soon as possible, thus offsetting in a measure the sweeping reduction in wages.

Mother and Daughter Stole

Worcester, Mass., May 21.—Charged with larceny of goods from the store
of C. T. Sherer, Mary McChesney, 33 years old, and her daughter, Loretta, 14 years old, appeared before Judge
Cobb. The mother appealed from a $25 fine, and was held in $200 bonds for the superior court. The daughter was given to the state board of charities.
The woman and her daughter admitted taking the things, the police say, their excuse being that the father is out of employment. Loretta, they declare,
said her mother taught her to steal.

Millions Involved in Leather Crash

Boston, May 21.—In the failure of William A. Stetson, the leather merchant, and of the three corporations which he controlled, liabilities of over $8,000,000 are involved, making it one of the biggest failures in the history of Boston. Stetson was president of the William A. Stetson company and of the Ford Morocco company, and treasurer of the Boston Chronicle Leather company, all three of which have been caught in the tangle of Stetson's financial affairs.

A Stretch of Non-Partisanship

Boston, May 21.—The committee on ordinances of the city council voted against Mayor Hibbard on his measure which provided an amendment to the ordinances forbidding city employes
to be at the polls on primary or election days except for the purpose of voting. The committee voted unanimously to report "ought not to pass" upon the measure. Republicans and Democrats alike agreeing that it was stretching non-partisanship a little too far.

Man and Wife Sue Doctor

Burlington, Vt., May 21.—Papers have been served in a suit brought by Henry E. Spear against Dr. H. E. Colvin to recover damages of $3000. It is a companion suit to the one brought against Colvin by Spear's wife to recover damages of $10,000 for alleged unskillful surgery. In the latter action the plaintiff seeks to recover $2000 for money expended in doctor's bills, medicine, nursing, etc., as well as the loss of his wife's services.

Jealous Man Slashes Rival

Lawrence, Mass., May 21.—Allowing his jealous rage to get the better of him, Andrew Lautenello is alleged by Genoeric Chicetulo of this city to have attacked him with a knife, severely slashing him about the face. Following the assault Lautenello made his escape. It appears that the men were rivals for the love of Mrs. Chicetulo, and when Genoeric succeeded in winning her Andrew is said to have vowed vengeance.

Lawrence Upholds "Open Pulpit"

Boston, May 21.—Canon B. the so-called "open pulpit" law, which is said to be causing some unrest in the Episcopal church throughout the country,
and which is claimed to have induced half a dozen clergymen in various districts to enter the Roman Catholic church, was upheld by Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts in his annual address before the diocesan convention here.

Police Search Rewarded

Saybrook, Conn., May 21.—Louis
Poggi, wanted by the New York police for the alleged shooting of two men and a woman at Coney Island, was arrested here by two Brooklyn police officers, who have been in Saybrook and neighboring towns for the past week.
A man who accompanied Poggi was also arrested. The latter refused to give his name.

Old Sermons Brought to Light

New Haven, May 21.—After lying hidden in a small closet at the Yale Divinity school for years, an interesting lot of manuscript sermons of Presidents Dargrett and Clapp of Yale, delivered between 1741 and 1790, have been brought to light. They have grown old with age and the ink has faded, but they are easily decipherable.

Goebel Settles With Court

New Haven, May 21.—Graham Foster, the Yale student found guilty of breach of the peace at a recent fire, has appealed from his fine of $15, but William Goebel, the other student, paid
his fine of $35 and costs.

Broker McIntyre Indicted

New York, May 21.—Thomas A. Mc-Intyre, head of the brokerage firm of
T. A. McIntyre & Co., which recently failed, was indicted by the grand jury
on a charge of grand larceny. A warrant was immediately sworn out for his arrest. He gave bail in the sum of $25,000 and was released.

Decision Favors Insurance Companies

London, May 21.—The question whether the fire which partially destroyed the city of Kingston, Jam., in January of 1907 broke out before or after the earthquake was decided in the kings bench division in favor of the insurance companies interested in the losses incurred.

Waddell Quits St. Louis Team

Philadelphia, May 21.—The St. Louis baseball club of the American League left this city last night for Boston, leaving "Rube" Waddell, the former Philadelphia pitcher, behind.
Waddell quit the team after declaring that he had not been treated fairly by the management. After pitching against his old team here Tuesday and carrying the St. Louis club to victory, Waddell made a demand for an advance
in salary. He did not get the money.

dict rendered by Coroner Mack as to the body of the adult female found in give both the Church of England and the Roman Catholics greater facilities for denominational teachings.

have not decided yet just what we will

EDITORIAL.

It is greatly to be regretted that efforts in the Legislature to reform the laws of taxation meet with such little success. Special commissions are appointed, and after hearings and a study they recommend changes which will prevent the rich towns like Brookline, Milton, Cohasset and Nahant from robbing the industrial centers which are producing the wealth of the State. The changes suggested are favored by the press and the people generally, but when a vote is taken in the Legislature there are many absentees and only a few supporters. The monied interests have much at stake and evidently get interested, while the majority quietly keep in the background and bear the burdens.

If the proposed city charter for Haverhill was amended, so as to provide in addition a representative council of 100 to 200, whose sole duties it was to pass appropriations for all city purposes, it would be worth a trial. We consider it a gross mistake to allow a mayor and four aldermen to make all city appropriations and then expend the money. With the right men it would be all right, but so would any city charter. There is no assurance under the proposed charter, however, that there will be any improvement in the calibre of mayors or aldermen, and there is a greater opportunity for corruption.

The opportunity to make appropriations at every meeting of the City Council is one of the great evils of the present city government. If all appropriations could be confined to one or two orders, the tax-payers would be safe guarded. Say one appropriation early in the year for all current expenses, and a loan order in May or June for all permanent improvements which cannot be provided in the other order.

The representative council suggested should give each ward one delegate for each fifty voters or fraction. With 5466 voters as at present a council in Quincy would have 112 members, divided about as follows: Ward One, 22; Ward Two, 16; Ward Three, 20; Ward Four, 20; Ward Five, 19; and Ward Six, 15. A representative council twice as large might be even better, as the only duties are to make the annual appropriations as is done by the voters of a town.

Plank Spiked
On Railroad Track

An unsuccessful attempt was made Wednesday night to wreck a train just south of the Quincy depot. As the 10.08 inward train was slowing down to enter the depot it struck an obstruction placed across the track near the tool house. The train was moving slowly at the time and was not derailed. The obstruction which proved to be a plank was splintered and thrown to one side. It had then been spiked to the sleepers so that it was held firmly in place. Had the train been an express a horrible accident might have resulted.

The lost child call was sounded on the fire alarm circuit at 1.27 this noon to summons help to search for a child by the name of Coles whose parents live on Squantum street.

MAY REACH $800,000

Speculation as to Allegheny National Bank Shortage

CASHIER WAIVES A HEARING

Pittsburg's City Treasurer Knew of State of Affairs Before Bank Suspended, but Failed to Withdraw City's Deposit of Over $1,500,000

Pittsburg, May 19.—The decision of former Cashier William Montgomery of the Allegheny National bank, accused of wrecking the bank through the embezzlement of cash and securities, to waive a preliminary hearing and to be held for grand jury investigation, prevented the taking of any testimony by Commissioner Lindsay yesterday and officially no new light was thrown upon his peculations.

So far as the court record is concerned, he is charged only with the embezzlement of $459,000 cash and $125,000 worth of securities. That the bank has in some manner sustained a much greater loss is apparent from all of its recent statements showing that it could sustain an enormous loss without impairment of its capital, and the statement made to City Treasurer Steele last week when he made inquiry as to the city's deposit of $1,546,953.

Steele says he was told last week by Bank Examiner Folds and by officers of the bank that the alleged shortage was about $800,000 and that the bank could pay that out of its surplus and undivided profits and continue business without interruption. It was about this time that the directors and men interested in other financial institutions had agreed to put $500,000 cash into the bank to add to public confidence and meet possible emergencies. Later discoveries, Steele is informed, changed this situation.

Explaining why the city's funds were not withdrawn as soon as the shortage was discovered, Steele says he was told that if an attempt was made to do so it would force the closing of the bank, and that in such event the city could not be protected. He says he was assured that the bank would weather the storm and meet all of its obligations.

Explaining why the city's funds through the failure is not known, it is protected by one bond for $500,000, in regard to which there is apparently no doubt. There is another bond for a like amount which expired four years ago, but it is contended by the legal department that if, as alleged, part of the defalcation occurred before the expiration of the bond, the bondsmen can be held for the city's deposits. It was announced last week that the city was fully protected by bonds and the common belief was that five men, a majority of them good for the amount, were sureties to the city for $500,000 each, but it develops that the five men are jointly responsible for only $500,000.

The state has on deposit in the bank $523,477 and State Treasurer Sheatz and Deputy Attorney General Cunningham have come here to look after the state's interests. Both assert that there is not the slightest danger of the state losing anything, as besides large individual bonds it has surety company bonds for nearly the entire sum. There was no excitement over the closing of the bank and no struggle on the part of depositors to get their money out. This was due to the fact that very few individual or commercial accounts were carried.

No one is able to estimate what part of its obligations the bank will pay. It is probable a majority of the stockholders are financially able to stand the double liabilities provided by law.

Failure of Large Brokerage Firm
Pittsburg, May 19.—Following the filing of an involuntary petition in bankruptcy here, C. F. Patterson was appointed receiver for Carothers & Co., one of the largest brokerage firms in the city. The firm made a specialty of municipal bonds and was a heavy investor in the city of Pittsburg securities. That the failure of the brokerage firm is due to the suspension of the Allegheny National bank was stated by Patterson.

Pennsylvania Bank Fails
Pittsburg, May 19.—An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed here against the Leechburg Banking company of Leechburg, a large private banking institution which closed on Feb. 17. A receiver is asked for and Judge Young will make the appointment later. Attorney Well stated that the liabilities would reach about $900,000 and the available assets $200,000.

Request of Retail Grocers
Washington, May 19.—A committee from the National Association of Retail Grocers, which recently concluded a meeting at Boston, called on the president to ask him to issue a civil service order compelling civil service employees who contract debts to pay them. The president requested that a statement in writing be submitted to him.

Troops Hot After Mohmands
Simla, May 19.—Major General Willcock's operations have now brought the British punitive expedition into the heart of the Mohmand country, where it is engaged in destroying native villages and forts. The latest advances received here show that the cholera is abating.

Japanese Maidens
Expert in Drill

The two days May festival at the Washington Street Congregational church was successfully opened Wednesday evening with a large attendance.

The program of the opening evening included violin solos by Herr Lars Fjallbache, mandolin solos by L. A. Doane, and a pretty Japanese drill given under the direction of Mrs. Alice Selleck.

The pretty Japanese maidens in the drill were: Miss Clara Bushnell, Miss Mildred Bonney, Miss Johanna Lorentsen, Miss Edith McIntyre, Miss Ethel Joy, Miss Isabella Foster and Miss Catherine Yule. The piano accompanist was Miss Helen Lincoln.

Tables for the sale of useful and fancy articles were arranged about the vestry. These were in charge of the following ladies:

Fancy table—Mrs. Webster Newcomb, Mrs. R. H. Newcomb, Mrs. Herbert D. Adams and Mrs. Marcus M. Wight.

Cut flowers—Mrs. George Bailey. Grab bag—Mrs. Thomas Lincoln and Mrs. Thomas Roche.

Benevolent Society
Of Atlantic

The last meeting of the season of the Ladies' Benevolent society was held in Memorial church Wednesday afternoon and called forth a large attendance. Mrs. Arthur Sproul of Quincy read an interesting paper on Isaac Watts, whose literary genius has immortalized his name and memory.

Mrs. Sproul had made a selection of some of Mr. Watt's choicest hymns and adapted them to the old tunes with the aid of the organist of Memorial church, Mrs. George Bean. Mrs. Wilson Hammond, who was familiar with the old tunes took the initiative in singing and the inspiration of music and sentiment took possession of the entire assembly. Refreshments of chocolate, fancy crackers and cake were served. Mrs. F. J. Peirce poured.

The annual reports of the secretary and treasurer were most favorable. After repairing and painting the church, improving its sanitary conditions and attending to several additional expenses, the amount of $183 is left in the treasury. During the year upwards of $700 has been made by the society. The president, Mrs. Harry Read has been a splendid leader socially and financially. The treasurer, Mrs. S. Elwell, has tendered her resignation as she is to move to Everett. The Benevolent society is looking forward to next year with the hope of maintaining their present prosperity for Memorial church.

RIOTING BECOMES GENERAL

Cleveland Motorman Hustled Out of Would-Be Lynchers' Reach

Cleveland, May 20.—Rioting became general and serious in the street railway strike late yesterday. Yetta Walkinski, 4 years of age, was run over and had her head severed by a car operated by an inexperienced motorman. The motorman would have been lynched had he not turned on full speed and escaped. In Lakewood a car was stopped and the crew fired upon. Four persons were shot and seriously injured and the car was burned to the trucks. A car was held up on Ontario street and the motorman and conductor attacked. The police dispersed the rioters.

The burning of a car in Lakewood was the most serious riot of the strike. The car was stopped by a log thrown across the tracks. It was the first effort to operate a car in Lakewood and it carried no passengers. As soon as the car stopped it was surrounded by a crowd of rioters who were hidden behind a railway bridge.

Immediately the crowd began shooting at the members of the crew and guards. The latter returned the fire. All told over thirty shots were exchanged.

While the shooting was in progress the crowd grew to nearly a thousand. Another car arrived and its crew and guards joined in the fight. Gasoline was poured on the second car and it was burned. The Cleveland police were notified and sixty officers were sent to the rescue.

The police had reports of a dozen or more cases of cars having been partially damaged by the explosion of what they term railroad torpedoes.

Altogether seventeen persons are said to have received minor injuries during Tuesday as the result of encounters between strikers, street car employees and the police.

Alleged Swindler of Farmers

New York, May 20.—Arrested on a federal warrant issued in Boston on complaints alleging that during the past two years he had defrauded New England farmers out of the proceeds from the sale of $100,000 worth of apples, Walter Mills was locked up here. Postoffice inspectors declare Mills induced farmers to ship him apples by offering higher than the market price. They say he then sold the apples and pocketed the proceeds.

Must Die of Hydrophobia

New York, May 20.—William H. Marsh, an aged, wealthy man, who told that he undoubtedly would die within a week of hydrophobia, calmly remarked that he would be ready for the summons when it came. "You waited too long," the surgeons at the Pasteur institute told him. There was not a falter in his voice or a change in his face as he heard them. Marsh was infected by a pet spaniel which died of hydrophobia.

China Withdraws Charges

Pekin, May 20.—The French minister to China has received a dispatch from a Chinese source withdrawing the allegations made on the strength of a report from Viceroy Hsi Liang that the Tonkin railroad, as well as certain French officers, were guilty of complicity in the recent revolutionary outbreaks in Yun Nan province.

Manager and Pitcher Suspended
New York, May 20.—Manager Jennings of the Detroit team has been suspended by President Johnson of the American League, pending an investigation of alleged acts of rowdiness during games between New York and Detroit, resulting in Jennings and Pitcher Donovan being ordered from the field by Umpire Hurst. Donovan is also suspended.

French Troops Insult Germany

Berlin, May 20.—The foreign office is considering a report from Dr. Rosen, German minister to Morocco, regarding the alleged maltreatment of a man under German protection by French soldiers. The man was carrying a letter from the German consul, Herr Luederitz, to the commander of a body of French troops, but the soldiers maltreated him, while the officer spat upon the consul's letter. The foreign office regards the case as one calling for diplomatic representations.

General Whittier's Death

Queenstown, May 20.—Officials of the Cunard Steamship company state that the death of Brigadier General Charles A. Whittier, U. S. A., retired, which occurred on board the steamship Mauretania on Thursday last, during the voyage from New York, was due to heart failure. Some of the passengers assert that Whittier was stricken while taking a bath and that he accidentally turned on the hot water and was scalded.

Stand of Manufacturers

New York, May 20.—After protesting against political agitation of a demagogic nature, calculated to set capital and labor at odds, the National Association of Manufacturers, in annual convention here, took a decided stand against the raising of class issues by the great political parties of the nation and against the advance in freight rates which the trunk lines of the country have announced to be impending.

War on Race Track Gambling

New Orleans, May 20.—Final plans have been made for the fight which is to be conducted against race track gambling in Louisiana. A bill, which provides for the elimination of gambling of all kinds in connection with horse racing, will probably be presented in the legislature within the next ten days.

K. and L. of H.
Anniversary

One never tires to hear the entertainment given by the Dorothea Dix Hall children of Boston, and this was the attraction at the anniversary on Wednesday evening of Maple lodge, Knights and Ladies of Honor, at Electa hall. There was a large attendance, although the committee had not taken the members into their confidence, but all were delighted with the program.

Vice President Reddy and Mrs. Glover, the treasurer of the association, were accompanied by seven of the girls, all of them stars, viz: Juliette Day, Ruth Francis, Doris Horslin, Helena Hipwell, Stella Craig, Vera Morrison, and little Mazie Lorman, only six years old. They appeared in the thirteen numbers including such choruses as "Yankee Doodle," "Honey Boy," "Ghost of Banjo Coon," and "Come, Love, I'm Waiting," all of which required encores, sometimes two and three. A cute recitation was given by little Miss Lorman, and she also took the leading part in a little sketch, and was prominent in other numbers. The program also included solos, duets, trios, a pantomime, and dances, which deserve more extended mention. One of the hits of the evening was "Come Love, I'm Waiting," when the soloist directed herself to a young man in the audience, who appreciated the attention.

Grand Secretary Hathaway addressed the gathering briefly, with compliments for Maple lodge, and a good word for the order at large. Dancing closed the festivities. The committee, Mrs. Rhines, Mrs. Oxford and Mrs. Langley are to be complimented on the delightful program.

Newsy Budget
From Shipyard

The investigation by Congress of the Electric Boat Company of Quincy could not have resulted more satisfactory to the company, or disastrous to the congressman who instigated it. In an exhaustive report Chairman Boutell and his colleagues declare with entire unanimity that no member of the house and no representative of the press has been induced by officers of the Electric Boat Company, to act from corrupt or improper motives. Furthermore, the committee finds that Mr. Lilley allowed himself to be used as an instrument of the Lake Boat Company, in questioning the integrity and fairness of the members of the investigating committee and in attacking a competing submarine company.

Granite Trouble Out of Local Hands

No meeting of the Granite Manufacturers' Association of Quincy was held on Thursday evening as announced, but the executive committee met to prepare its case to present to the National Council. The Quincy granite manufacturers say the settlement is not in the hands of the local association, but in the National Association which has full powers. Otherwise there are no developments in the granite strike which has paralyzed the granite industry of the city.

Master Builders For Open Shop

The "open shop" was the subject of discussion Thursday night at the annual banquet of the State Association of Master Builders at the Quincy House. The speakers were William H. Sayward, secretary of the Boston Master Builders' Association, and George B. Hugo, president of the Boston Employers' Association. There were 200 members attending, and the president of the association, A. B. Murdough, presided.

"The right, the duty and the need of standing for the open shop" was the chief thought of Mr. Sayward's address, while Mr. Hugo emphasized the necessity of co-operation among all employers if any headway is to be made against the unions, says the Herald report.

Mr. Sayward said, in part: "The building business comprehends more in the way of numbers interested than all the manufacturers put together. In it, as in all business, the relation between employer and employed is the most serious question at present.

"The open shop is the critical point in the whole controversy. It means the right of a man to work freely for his daily bread without interference by any power.

"The situation is that combinations have become so defiant and arrogant that they have surrounded the skilled and the unskilled so that we are obliged to consider whether the right to work is left.

"If a union says today that a thing must be done we accept it as settled. We have allowed people to forget that there is somebody else than labor to be reckoned with. We should permit it to go no further. Every prospective legislator should be made to feel our power. He should be faced with the question as to where he stands on the open shop. We do not propose to threaten but we do demand that we be heard by the politician."

"We have got the egg on the right cheek and on the left cheek and it is now time to get after the men who have been doing the throwing," said Mr. Hugo.

"I want to impress three ideas upon you," he continued. "In the first place we do not deny the right of men to associate and form a union. The objection is to the purpose of the organization. In unionism there is nothing good. It is absolutely selfish, unfraternal and soulless. Nothing has come to stay that is rotten at the bottom.

"In the second place the only solution of the question is the establishment of the open shop. Arbitration is an acknowledgment of weakness, conciliation proof of cowardice and the Civic Federation is a political game to confuse the public mind.

"In the third place and most important of all, we must co-operate. We are in the position we hold today because we are a parcel of moral cowards. There can be no neutrals in our ranks. The man who signs a contract with a union agreeing to employ only union labor is a traitor to his country and its free institutions. If he signs unwillingly he is a coward. If he signs willingly or unwillingly he is both a coward and a fool, for he is but paying the way of eventual destruction for himself."

The Granite City Billiard Tournament

Unusual interest is being taken in the billiard tournament now in progress at the Granite City club. Nearly every member is entered the poorer players being given handicaps that it is figured out will place them on a par with the crack players.

For instance, Warren H. Rideout, of whom it is said, "What he does not know about the game would fill a large book," when pitted with a good player like George W. Jones, is only obliged to make one point while Mr. Jones is making two. These two players met Wednesday evening for their match game, which was watched with a great deal of interest by a large crowd, who cheered their favorite at every shot. Things ran along smoothly until near the end of the game when Jones had nine to go and Rideout seven. It looked like a walk-over for the former. He made a miss however and left a set up for Rideout, who played carefully nursing the balls so that he was able to make a phenomenal run of seven. This gave him the game and as the last shot was made, friends of Rideout gathered about and showered him with congratulations while friends of Mr. Jones consoled with him as he explained how it happened.

HEADQUARTERS PAUL J. REVERE POST 88, G. A. R.

DEPARTMENT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

GENERAL ORDER No. 2.

In compliance with the laws of our Order, our established custom, and general orders from headquarters, the comrades of this Post will observe Saturday, the thirtieth day of May, as Memorial Day.

Comrades, let us observe Memorial Day with reverence and thoughtfulness. Let us bring our fairest blossoms, and with tender and loving thoughts, place them upon the graves of our departed comrades. See that not a single soldier's grave be forgotten. Let the flag they so dearly loved wave over each. Let us conduct the services of the day in such a manner that the young may be impressed with its sacredness and learn to cherish the memory of those who sacrificed so much for their country.

"Reverence for the dead is one of the noblest sentiments of the human heart, and especially should all true Americans cultivate this sentiment for the memories of our brave Union soldiers, who freely offered their lives that our country might not be torn asunder and that justice and equal rights might everywhere prevail. The grave of every true Union soldier is a shrine of liberty.

They are answering the roll-call on the shadowy fields of Death,
The roster's being lessened and the ranks are growing thin;
But long as in the land they saved is blood and brain and breath
The laurel crown of Memory their names must ever win.
The fervor of devoted hearts they to their country gave
When youth was at its brightest and life had highest worth,
To wipe from its escutcheon the shadow of the slave
And make it stand resplendent as the fairest land on earth.
They are passing, they are passing, the valiant and the true
Enlisting in eternal ranks, the new-made graves will tell,
They are passing, they are passing, oft is heard the sad tattoo
And the solemn, echoing valley with its message of farewell.

On Sunday May 24th, the Post will assemble at headquarters, at 10 o'clock A. M., in full uniform, for the purpose of attending divine services at the Presbyterian Church, corner of Water and Quincy streets. Paul Revere Woman's Relief Corps No. 103, Ladies' Auxiliary to the Sons of Veterans, Spanish War Veterans, and all Soldiers and Sailors of the late war, and the public are cordially invited to be present. At seven o'clock P. May Festival.

The second night of the May festival at the Quincy Point church was also a success. An excellent salad supper was served and was well attended. The farce which followed was entitled "On account of the lobster," and was very amusing. Those to take part were Carl W. Sherburne, Miss Marion Johnson, Harold W. Newcomb and Mrs. James Melville, and all did well. A pleasing trio was given by Mrs. E. C. Page, Miss Drew and Miss Carlson. Most of the goods on the tables found a ready sale, and the fair was a financial success.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Wollaston Baptist church are planning for a banquet next Thursday evening, when a missionary to Africa will be the guest.

WOOD "DIVORCE" SUIT

Platt Wins Through Dismissal
of Complaint

COURT HOLDS THE PLAINTIFF

"Most Wicked Design to Support Fictitious Claim by Forgery and Perjury"—Strong Testimony Produced in Favor of the Defense

New York, May 22.—Mae C. Wood, whose suit for an absolute divorce
from United States Senator Thomas C.
Platt has been on trial in the supreme court here for several days, was committed to the Tombs prison late yesterday after Justice O'Gorman had dismissed the complaint in her suit and ordered her held in $5000 bail on a charge of perjury.

The decision in Senator Platt's favor
and the sudden and sensational ending of the suit came after a day which the defense had largely occupied by the inroduction of expert and other testimony in attacking the genuineness of the documents by means of which the plaintiff was seeking to establish the fact of her marriage with Platt.

A handwriting expert had testified that, in his opinion, the body of the letter in which Platt was alleged to have admitted his relation as a husband to the plaintiff was added after the senator's signature had been affixed. More telling still for the defense was the deposition by engravers and stationers called by counsel for Platt that the blank form upon which the alleged Platt-Wood marriage certificate had been prepared had not been lithographed until three months after the date upon which the marriage of Miss Wood to Platt is alleged to have occurred.

The denouement followed speedily.
Miss Wood was recalled to the stand in rebuttal. She was asked if, after hearing the testimony about the marriage certificate, she still reiterated that the defendant gave her the certificate as she had previously testified.

"I still reiterate it," she replied.
Justice O'Gorman turned to Miss
Wood and pointedly questioned her.
She repeated her assertion that the marriage had occurred as she had stated. She admitted that Platt had never supported her, and asked by the court if she didn't consider it the duty of a husband to support his wife, she replied:

"I do; but as long as he was not enough of a gentleman to do so, I never asked him to."

Senator Platt's counsel then again
moved for a dismissal of the complaint.
It was forthwith granted by O'Gorman,
who, in rendering his decision, said:
"I cannot credit the plaintiff's evidence as to the alleged marriage, and the testimony as it impresses the court is that this is a most wicked design to support a false and fictitious claim by forgery and perjury."

Justice O'Gorman then ordered Miss Wood committed to the Tombs on the charge of perjury, fixing bail in her case at $5000. She was obviously staggered by the sudden turn of the case against her and the shock of the order
of arrest which the court had made.
She quickly regained her composure,
however, and by the time she reached the city prison had again assumed the air of confidence which she had held practically throughout the trial.

At the district attorney's office it was said that Miss Wood's case would speedily be presented to the grand jury and pressed for trial if an indictment were found.

Raynor Sticks to His Guns
Washington, May 22.—Senator Ray-nor again asked the senate to pass his resolution declaring that Colonel Stewart of the coast artillery was entitled to have the charges against him investigated and authorizing and requesting the president to order a court martial for such an investigation. After some discussion Raynor's resolution was placed upon the calendar to be taken up, if again considered, by unanimous consent.

Big Fire at Chicago
Chicago, May 22.—One man is known to have been killed, about a dozen others injured and property to the extent of $400,000 was destroyed by a fire which broke out in the plant of the Wintermeyer box factory. The flames spread rapidly. Many of the employes on the second and third floors used the fire escapes, while a small number were compelled to leap from the windows of the two upper floors.

Stiff Brush on Indian Frontier
Simla, May 22.—The Mohmand
mountaineers are offering a stout resistance to the British punitive expedition under the command of General Willcocks. The tribesmen repeatedly charged up to the British bayonets.
Two British officers were killed and one was wounded, and a score of Sikh troopers were injured. The losses of the Mohmands were over 200.

The Perry Well Out of Water
Port Hawkesbury, N. S., May 22.—
The Plant line steamer A. W. Perry is lying in the same position as when she struck on McMillan's point. She is well out of the water forward, but has a heavy list to starboard. A large amount of her cargo has been removed.
All the damage is to the steamer's fore foot.

FIGHTING OVER A BRIDGE

Trouble With War Department
Threatens a Maine Town

York, Me., May 22.—Tug Piscataqua,
of the Piscataqua Navigation company
at Portsmouth, came up the river yesterday afternoon for a barge which had been unloaded above the bridge recently built over the Piscataqua river at a cost of $46,000. The customary signal to open the draw was given without effect and repeated, then the tug returned to Portsmouth.

The draw has been operated by the contractors up to this time. Late in the afternoon the tug returned to the building committee and it was accepted. The committee in turn made a final report and turned over to the town
the completed bridge. On May 20 the selectmen sent the committee a written notice, disclaiming the authority of the committee to have the bridge constructed and refusing to accept it.

The construction of the bridge has been contested ever since the bids were opened and on one occasion application was made to the supreme court, but the action failed and notices were posted recently at the approaches to the bridge that it is a private way and travelers
use it at their own risk.

Portsmouth, N. H., May 22.—The Piscataqua Navigation company has instructed its attorney, John W. Kelley, to begin formal legal action on account of the closing of the York river bridge. It is understood that this action will take the form of an appeal to the war department.

May Have Been Stolen Property

Providence, May 22.—A package
containing 12,000 shares of Bay State Gas company stock was picked up on the street here last night. George Lewando found the package. The Providence police had previously been notified
from Boston of the theft of a valise containing securities from a man in the South station, Boston, on Wednesday. It is supposed here that Lewando's find may be part of the contents of the stolen bag.

Was Prominent in Hub Politics

Boston, May 22.—Thomas F. Doherly, member of the common council of the city of Boston and prominent in politics locally for many years, died at his home last night of pneumonia, aged 33 years. Doherty was born in Boston. For many years he was New England representative of the circulation department of the New York World.
Later he studied law and was connected with a law office at the time of his death.

Largest Bond Filed at Boston

Boston, May 22.—Henry D. Tudor and Moses Williams, guardians of James A. Tudor, Charles, Hamilton and Hope Garland, children of James
A. Garland, filed the largest bond in

Owing to litigation in New York, they were required to file another bond and they filed one for $2,300,000, which was approved by Judge George.

Massachusetts, has sent in his resignation.

Fatal Game of Burglar

Athol, Mass., May 22.—Herbert Briggs, aged 17, shot and killed his chum, John T. Qualters, 20 years old, while they were playing burglar.
Briggs thrust a revolver close to Qual-
ters' head and pulled the trigger, not knowing the weapon was loaded. The bullet passed through Qualters' brain.
No arrest has been made.

Atlantic League Disbands

Boston, May 22.—The Atlantic League Baseball association has voted to disband. President McBreton declared that the average attendance at fusal of Portland and Lewiston to leave town yesterday it became necessary to disband the league.

Attleboro, Mass., May 22.—Mrs.
Frank L. Briggs, daughter of Mark E.

ton yesterday. She was married here last Thursday evening. The next day

pendicitis and was sent to a Boston hos-

Disagreement on One Point

Boston, May 22.—A written opinion on the constitutionality of taxing transfers of stocks was sent to the house of representatives by the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts.

ference of opinion on a third point.

NOW SEEKS A MILLION

Price Demanded by Evelyn Thaw
For Freeing Her Husband

New York, May 22.—The lawyers of Mrs. Mary C. Thaw, mother of Harry
K. Thaw, were thrown into consternation when they learned that arrangements had been made by Evelyn Thaw
to withdraw her suit for the annulment of her marriage to Harry Thaw.

The elder Mrs. Thaw is said to have inspired the arrangements for the an-nullment, for which Evelyn was to have been paid $100,000 in cash and receive $15,000 a year as long as she lived.

Now it is given out that Evelyn demands a round million for releasing Harry. The first step to force the payment is the withdrawal of the suit for annulment. The unexpected move of the young wife has resulted in the calling of a conference of the lawyers. Just what move they will make cannot be anticipated.

Whether Thaw was in the agreement, or whether he was consulted at all in the matter, is not quite clear, but it is declared that he angrily objected
to his mother's course in the matter,
but, being helpless, an inmate of Matteawan, was unable to do anything to prevent it.

National Monetary Commission
Washington, May 22.—The senate,
without division, adopted a joint resolution reported from the committee on finances, creating a national monetary commission. It is to be composed of nine senators and nine representatives to inquire into and report to congress at the earliest date practicable what changes are desirable or necessary in the monetary system of the United States or in the laws relating to banking and currency.

Bridge Wrecked by Dynamite
New York, May 22.—A new bridge
under construction on the New York,
New Haven and Hartford railroad at Bay Chester was wrecked by dynamite.
A charge of fifty pounds of the explosive was discharged under the first span, twisting the huge girders
and practically wrecking the whole structure. The outrage followed an unsuccessful attempt to wreck a bridge on the same railroad over the Harlem river. The bridge was a modern steel structure.

Poisoner Convicted of Murder
Kansas City, Kan., May 22.—Mrs.
Sarah Morasch, aged 48, was found guilty of murder in the first degree by a jury here which tried her on the charge of poisoning 4-year-old Ruth Miller. She will be sentenced to life imprisonment. The Miller girl died after eating poisoned candy which the woman sent through the mails to the child's 14-year-old sister, against whom she had a grudge.

Cleveland Cars Dynamited
Cleveland, May 22.—A car ran over and was blown up by dynamite early last night and some persons were injured, one probably fatally. The car was blown to the side of the street and cut a telegraph pole in two. The telegraph wires fell upon the trolley wire
and there was a lurid and dangerous display of fire until the current was cut off. Two other cars were damaged by explosions.

Work For Thirty-Five Thousand
Kansas City, May 22.—After seventy days of negotiations the coal mining troubles of the southwest, where 25,000 men are on strike, were ended when the joint sub-committee of operators and the miners reached an agreement
on the wage scale and working conditions. It is expected that the miners will go back to work next Monday morning after ratifying the agreement.

Steak Larger Than His Throat
Grand Rapids, Mich., May 22.— Michael Hogan, 42, attempted to swallow a steak that had not been cut to the dimensions of his throat and died from the effort. Hogan went into a 3-cent restaurant and ordered supper.
When the steak came he declared he could swallow it at a mouthful.

Cracksmen in Maine Postoffice
Van Buren, Me., May 22.—Burglars made a successful raid on the local postoffice, securing postage stamps said to be worth $1000 and $200 in money.
The safe was blown open, the valuables secured and the cracksmen got away without interference and without leaving any tangible clue.

Disagreement of Ruef Jury
San Francisco, May 22.—After being out for nearly forty-four hours, the jury in the trial of Abraham Ruef, central figure in the bribery graft prosecution, against whom many indictments were returned, failed to agree on a verdict and was discharged last evening by Judge Dooling.

Prices of Steel Unchanged
New York, May 22.—That there is to be no reduction in the price of steel was the statement made by Chairman Gary of the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation after a prolonged meeting of representative steel
men from all sections of the country.

IF MOTHERS ONLY KNEW

When children are cross, irritable and peevish it does not signify that they have bad tempers; it shows that there is something wrong with the child which it is not able to explain, and which the mother—if she only knew—could easily and quickly cure. Mothers, study your child's symptoms; if cross, peevish, nervous, grinds the teeth, wets the bed, picks the nose, has variable appetite or bowels, suffers with wind-colic or headache, is irritable and restless, has furred tongue or offensive breath, you may be sure that child is troubled with worms, which cause nearly all the ills of childhood.

Don't delay—disease comes suddenly—a few doses of the wonderful old-time remedy—

will give your children that vigorous health which is so important to their future happiness. Dr. True's Elixir expels the worms, if there are any—if not it acts as a gentle laxative and tonic. It cleans out all waste matter from the stomach and bowels, tones and strengthens the entire system of adults as well as children. Dr. True's Elixir is a safe, pure, vegetable tonic and has been the standard household remedy for fifty-five long years.

Sold by all druggists, 35c., 50c., $1.00. Write for free book, "Children and their Diseases."

DEATH FROM RABIES

Brooklyn Manufacturer Was Not a Victim of Drugs

DECISION AFTER AN AUTOPSY

Expert on Hydrophobia Who Was Assisting in Examination of Body Becomes Infected With Rabies Germ
Through Small Scratch on Arm

New York, May 22.—That William H. Marsh, the well-to-do Brooklyn water meter manufacturer, who died on Wednesday was a victim of hydrophobia, was the decision of Coroner Brewer, after an autopsy performed under his direction after the Brooklyn health department had refused to grant a permit for Marsh's burial until the cause of his death had been thus decided.

The autopsy was productive of an unusual incident. During the course of the examination Dr. Van Gieson, an expert on hydrophobia of the New York board of health, who was assisting, became infected with the rabies germ. A small scratch appeared on his arm, believed to have been inflicted with a portion of a skull bone. An examination disclosed that the rabies germ had entered Van Gieson's blood and he hastened to the health department in Manhattan, where he was given treatment for the prevention of hydrophobia.

The autopsy upon Marsh demonstrated, aside from the presence of the rabies germ, the coroner declared, that there had been no administration of narcotics in excessive quantities to the hydrophobia victim. From the body there was removed a small section of the brain and a section of the spine. These were taken to the department's laboratory for further examination. They showed a general discoloration and the presence of the negri bodies, which are said to be an infallible indication of the presence of rabies. These and all other signs, the physicians said, pointed conclusively to the fact that hydrophobia and nothing else caused Marsh's death.

A permit was later issued for Marsh's burial.

Clark Bell, president of the Medical-Legal Society of Greater New York, had made a demand on District Attorney Clarke of Brooklyn for an autopsy on the body of Marsh. Bell charged that death did not result from rabies, but that it was brought about by drugs which were administered under medical advice. He also said that a representative of the society who investigated the strange case reported that Marsh never had the convulsions preliminary to hydrophobia.

Sixty Lives Lost In Smashup
Antwerp, May 22.—A disastrous railroad accident occurred at Antwerp, six miles from this city. The exact number of victims has not been determined, owing to the difficulty of removing the bodies from the debris, but the latest estimate places the number at sixty killed and 100 injured. The catastrophe appears to have been due to a defective switch, where the main line crosses a local line. At this point a passenger train was standing and into this an express dashed at a speed of fifty miles an hour, literally leaping on top of it.

Salute Without a Gun
Bellingham, Wash., May 22.—Seven vessels of the Atlantic battleship fleet rest in the harbor of Bellingham bay after the voyage from San Francisco. The fleet was officially welcomed here by the municipal authorities and officers, and shore leave men are being entertained by the people of Bellingham. No guns were available for a salute when the vessels arrived, but they were welcomed with thirteen dynamite cartridges fired from Commercial point, which the Connecticut acknowledged.

Filibuster Holds Up Adjournment
Washington, May 22.—Speaker Cannon expresses the opinion that it will be eight or ten days before final adjournment of congress can be reached. He said "We have a filibuster on which prevents action on more than five or six bills a day. We are not going to turn tail and run. Possibly the senate can adjourn without the house, but I am under the impression that it would find some constitutional obstacles in the way of its doing so."

Injunction Laws Stand
Washington, May 22.—No bill to modify the power of the federal courts in the exercise of injunctions will be passed at this session of congress. It was decided last night at a conference of the Republican members of the house that to enact such a measure would be unwise. The various so-called anti-junction bills that have been introduced were discussed at length.

Was Long Supposed to Be Dead
Hamilton, O., May 22.—Joseph Reichel, a horseman, who has been declared legally dead by the Butler county probate court, has arrived in Hamilton after an absence of twenty-five years. He says there was no special reason for his failure to communicate with his family.

Fire Kills Hotel Guests
London, Ont., May 22.—Two guests are dead and one is missing as a result of a fire which destroyed the Queen's hotel at Tilstonburg. A number of the guests of the hotel were injured.

Making Campaign Book of Record
Washington, May 22.—When the section in the military academy bill relating to the Philippine Islands was reached in the senate yesterday, Mr. Newlands asked to have a speech by W. J. Bryan on imperialism printed in the Record. Mr. Gallinger said he would not object if an article on Bryan printed in the New York World, a Democratic paper, also should be printed in the Record. Mr. Gore suggested that he had a copy of the testimony of former Secretary Morton admitting that he had granted rebates while connected with the Atchafalaya, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway company that he wanted to put in. Mr. Beveridge halted the deluge of political papers by objecting to the insertion of any of them in the Record.

Police Club Suffragettes

London, May 22.—Downing street was the scene of another outbreak by the suffragettes yesterday. For an hour or more several hundred of them rioted around the office of Premier Asquith and up and down Downing and adjacent streets. The police charged the crowd, but not until six arrests had been made and many of the rioters clubbed into submission were the police able to disperse the crowd. Even then the women marched off defiant. Yesterday's trouble arose over Asquith's refusal to make reply to a petition that was sent in to him.

Palace on Wheels Tied Up

San Francisco, May 22.—Colonel "Bill" Greene, the western copper king, is marooned at Paso Robles in his private car. The levying of a $10,000 attachment upon his rolling palace by E. B. Perrin prevents Greene from moving either one way or the other. The attachment was issued by the superior court here and grew out of the non payment of a note said to have been given by Greene for some timber lands in Arizona.

Bucketshops Must Go

Albany, May 22.—After Sept. 1 it will be a felony to conduct a bucketshop in this state. Governor Hughes signed, without comment, the bill amending the penal code to that effect. The act is substantially similar to the Massachusetts law.

Typos Re-elect Old Officers

Indianapolis, May 22.—At International Typographical Union headquarters it is announced that in all probability President Lynch, Vice President Hayes and Secretary-Treasurer Bramwood have been re-elected.

Good Receipts

Good Cooks

Today's receipts are devoted to fish. Next week Friday the Daily Ledger will print receipts for ice cream, sherberts, and other ices. Quincy ladies are invited to forward their best receipts early in the week.

TIMETABLE FOR FISH.

Flounders about 5 minutes.
Small soles, about 5 minutes.
Fresh haddock, 8 to 15 minutes.
Small mackerel, about 10 minutes.
Cod, about 10 minutes to each pound.
Brill, about 10 minutes to each pound.
Small lobsters about 20 to 30 minutes.
Salmon, about 10 minutes to each pound.
Turbot, about 10 minutes to each pound.
Dory, about 15 to 30 minutes to each pound.
Trout, about 5 to 10 minutes.

TURBOT A LA CREME.

Three pounds of halibut, boiled with plenty of salt; remove skin and bones, and flake. Boil one bunch of parsley and one large onion in a little water to extract the flavor; take out and thicken with three tablespoons of flour; then add it to one quart of cream and milk together (more cream improves it) and one-half cup of butter. Put alternate layers of fish and sauce in a deep buttered dish (sauce on top). Cover with bread crumbs and bake till brown. M.M.

FISH CROQUETTES.

One pint cold boiled fish, free from skin and bone and minced fine, one pint hot mashed potato, one tablespoon butter, one-half cup hot milk, one egg well beaten; pepper and salt and a little chopped parsley. Mix thoroughly and let cool. When cold make into balls, dip into a beaten egg, roll in bread crumbs and fry in hot lard. O. K.

BAKED COD.

Open the fish, wash and wipe perfectly dry, and rub over with salt. Lay in the dripping pan with a little water and a bit of butter, and bake thirty minutes in a hot oven. If the fish is very large, bake longer. Goddard St.

CREAMED SHRIMPS.

Put a pint of milk in a dish in the stove and when hot stir in thickening made of a little flour and cold milk and a piece of butter. This makes a cream same as for cream toast. Beaten egg added to this makes it nice, but isn't necessary. Then drain the liquid from a can of shrimps and a can of French peas, add these to the cream and serve on hot buttered toast. This can be made in the chafing dish, and is fine for an impromptu lunch. S. R.

ESCALLOPED SALMON.

Grind common crackers or roll; take two cans of salmon and put in first a layer of crackers, then a layer of salmon seasoned, then crackers, and so on till dish is full. Wet with milk at each layer, as it is hard to get it all moist if simply poured over the whole. Bake one hour. Waitwell St.

HALIBUT STEAK (Baked.)

Lay in cold water for an hour; wipe dry and rub on both sides with a mixture of lemon juice, salad oil and a dash of onion juice; put upon the grating of your covered roaster, pour about it a cupful of hot water in which a tablespoonful of butter has been melted; cover and bake twelve minutes to the pound, basting four times with the butter and water. Take up and keep hot while you thicken the gravy in the pan with a teaspoonful of browned flour and a tablespoonful of tomato catsup. Boil a minute and pour over the fish. Garnish with parsley and lemon. A larger cut of halibut can be cooked in the same way. Houghs Neck.

ESCALLOPED FISH.

We find the following receipt that I took from a paper a few years ago very satisfactory. Moisten one cup of cracker crumbs with one-quarter of a cup of melted butter, add one teaspoon of finely chopped gherkins, one teaspoon of capers, one-half teaspoon of finely chopped parsley, one-half teaspoon of onion juice, one-half teaspoon of salt, a dash of white pepper and mix well together. Make a white sauce by blending together one tablespoon of bubbling hot butter, one large tablespoon of flour, salt and pepper to taste, then adding one cup of milk and stirring until smooth and creamy. Separate the fish into flakes. Butter a baking dish, fill with alternate layers of the fish and prepared crumbs and moisten each with the sauce. Cover with a final layer of crumbs and bake until nicely browned. Boulevard.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and trying the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Rebekah Lodge
Anniversary

Odd Fellows' hall was well filled Thursday evening to the number of 125, including members from South Braintree, Charlestown, East Weymouth and other places who assembled to help celebrate the 89th anniversary of the order and the tenth anniversary of George L. Gill Rebekah lodge, which was fully enjoyed by all.

The entertainment which was very interesting as well as pleasing, consisted of address of welcome by Noble Grand Elvira Ewell in which all of the noble grands were mentioned, and the institution April 8, 1898, when 118 were fully initiated into the mysteries of the degree. Followed by cornet solo by Mr. Critchley, recitation by Master Joe Beal, vocal selection by Mr. Bullock, reading by Miss Lowe, addresses and poem written for the occasion by Miss M. Lizzie Fernald, closing with a song by Mrs. Susie A. Fernald and vocal selection by Miss Jones, which were heartily enjoyed.

Ice cream, frozen pudding and cake were served, after which dancing was enjoyed, C. H. Barron presiding at the piano. The committee deserve credit, Mrs. Lottie Barron, V. G., being chairman with several assistants. All felt that an evening had been well spent, and it was pronounced to be a congenial, happy and lively gathering.

The lodge is in a flourishing condition, adding new members at most every meeting and now numbers almost two hundred.

Salvation Army Bazaar.

The three days' bazaar under the auspices of the local Salvation Army was opened Thursday evening at their hall on Granite street by Mayor Shea. His honor was introduced by Staff Captain J. Joelson of Boston, division officer of Scandinavian work. Mayor Shea spoke briefly complimenting the army on the good work that it was doing and urging those present to be liberal in their patronage of the sales tables. He then declared the fair formally opened. Brief remarks were also made by Captain Joelson and Captain Carlson.

The hall was very prettily decorated for the occasion and there was a good attendance. Music during the opening night was furnished by the Finn band. Coffee and ice cream were served. The tables which were arranged about the hall were in charge of members of the local corps.

Newsy Budget
From Shipyard

The battleships Vermont, Rhode Island, New Jersey and five others reached Bellingham, Wash., at 11 A. M., Thursday.

Henry Lydman, a workman employed at the Fore River ship yard was arrested by Officer Lyons on Thursday for the alleged larceny of tools from the yard. A search warrant was obtained and the room at Lydman's boarding house was searched, but no tools were found. Later, however, the tool chest of Lydman was found at Newcomb's store. Upon being opened at the police station it was found to contain a miscellaneous lot of tools, many of which were identified as the property of the Fore River Co. There were also in the chest a number of tools which Lydman had probably made of steel taken from the company. These included two jimmies that would have delighted the heart of a professional burglar. There were also other tools, such as are usually found in kits carried by burglars. Officer McLaughlin, chief of the Fore River police department, who worked the case up against Lydman, says that the man has been working at the Fore River for two years and that the company has lost hundreds of dollars worth of steel that has been made into tools and carried off. Lydman is thought to have been doing this kind of work and was watched. The police believe that the man has other tools which they have not recovered and efforts will be made today to locate more of them. In court the case was continued.

Washington probably obtained the following data before the Fore River Shipbuilding Company began its record, breaking contract on the battleship North Dakota. A dispatch to the Transcript says: According to a German authority the average period for the construction of a battleship by England is 42.4 months (this was before the Dreadnought era). France 42.5, United States 60 and Germany 66.1. Germany thus runs England very close indeed, and although England has put up a record with her Dreadnought, so also may Germany with hers, for her building yards are equipped with modern plant and there is no lack of skilled workmen. In regard to armored cruisers Germany in the old times was ahead of England, for while the latter took 44.9 months, Germany only took 39.1. France took 60.4 and the United States 62.9 months. Here, again, England has put up new records in the construction of her later cruisers of the Invincible type and brought the time down to 39 months, but Germany is replying to this challenge with very rapid construction in the case of her large armored cruisers F and E, which have not yet been more fully named.

The Naval Board of Inspection and Survey will go to Newport next week to direct the final acceptance trials of the submarine torpedo boat Octopus, which recently arrived there from Quincy, after some repairs had been completed.

A spirited contest is under way for the position of engineer-in-chief of the navy to succeed the late Rear Admiral C. W. Rae, who died May 13. There are five prominent candidates, the friends of each of whom are making a great effort in behalf of the respective applicants. Those who are in the contest are Captain A. F. Dixon, Captain G. B. Ransom, Captain J. R. Edwards, Commander R. T. Hall and Commander B. S. Griffin.

The auxiliary cruiser Yankee is to be used as a "parent ship" for the torpedo boats on the Atlantic coast. She is to be placed in commission at the Boston Navy Yard on June 15.

Soldiers' Monument
Of Kitson Design

With an oration by Hon. Alfred S. Roe of Worcester and appropriate exercises by the Grand Army and Sons of Veterans, assisted by the members of Deborah Sampson Chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, of Brockton, a bronze monument to the memory of the soldiers and sailors of Sharon, who took part in the War of the Rebellion and who died in the service, was dedicated Wednesday afternoon in Rock Ridge Cemetery, says the Transcript.

The monument, designed by Mrs. Alice Ruggles Kitson, of Quincy, was made possible by a bequest by George Washington Gay and his wife of Sharon, who left $8000 for this memorial. Edward J. Fuller, chairman of the monument committee, presented the memorial to the town, and it was accepted by Selectman Silas A. Stone. Addresses were made by Colonel David M. Kelly and Colonel Edwin T. Cowell, both great-grandsons of Deborah Sampson, the only female soldier in the Revolutionary War, and in whose memory a bronze tablet has been placed on one of the granite columns and was dedicated by the Deborah Sampson Chapter. Edmund H. Talbot, president of the Sharon Historical Society, delivered an address.

The monument represents a soldier on the march, with gun on shoulder, and is a most striking figure. It stands eight feet high on a granite pedestal five and one-half feet high. On a column corresponding to the one bearing the Deborah Sampson tablet is a bronze tablet inscribed with the names of Sharon's soldier dead.

We wonder if the school teachers who are recipients of flowers from their pupils appreciate the fact that most of them are contraband goods. It is deplorable the way private places are entered and flowering bushes, especially lilacs, mutilated.

Came As A Surprise

Quincy Granite Cutters and Manufacturers
Reach Agreement

The strike of the granite cutters which has been in progress for the past two weeks has been settled, and the men will return to work Monday morning.

Word to this effect was telephoned to Quincy from Boston early Friday evening, and was later confirmed by John Q. A. Field, who was present at the conference.

The granite cutters struck because of the refusal of the Quincy Manufacturers to sign the agreement, which according to the claim of the manufacturers would make them liable for a suit for damages should work be refused a man simply because he was not a union man.

Under the agreement reached it is said this part of the clause has been eliminated.

Under the objectionable clause the manufacturers could not discipline one of its own members without the approval of the joint committee. Under the clause as agreed upon the Quincy Manufacturers Association can, if it so desires, discipline its own members, and the joint executive committee have nothing whatever to say about it.

Under the new clause also there is no mention made of union or non-union men.

It is understood, however that the cutters retain the right to refuse to work with a non union man if they so desire. In a nutshell it is the old clause with the liability part eliminated.

The exact wording of the agreement would not be given until after it had been signed which will probably be today, so that the men can return to work Monday morning.

The conference yesterday was between the executive committees of the National Granite Manufacturers and National Granite Cutters. The committees went into session at 4 o'clock and for three hours the matters were discussed. Then an agreement had been reached and word was telephoned to Quincy that the strike was off.

This time the National Manufacturers committee was made up of granite manufacturers of whom the Quincy Association was represented by John Q. A. Field, and the cutters by James Duncan, secretary-treasurer of the National Granite Cutters Union.

Mrs. Charles Perkins of Braintree entertained at dinner Friday, Mrs. K. Jennings of Philadelphia, Miss Lynch of New York, Miss Rademaker of Boston, Mrs. Charles Jennings, Miss Hazel and Master George Jennings of Quincy, and Miss Mildred Maxham of South Braintree.

Raids Begun On Italian Fishermen

There is a lively time in store for the Italian herring fishing fleet which fishes nightly in Quincy bay, off the Wollaston beach. For two years catching herring from fast power dories lighted by flaring torches, has been a rapidly growing industry in the waters of Boston harbor. Some nights as many as twenty-five boats will "chug-chug-chug" up and down the beach line from dark until dawn, much to the disgust of thousands of tired people who seek the country for quiet and rest.

These boats all hail from T wharf, Boston, varying in size from twenty to forty feet, and are all manned by Italians three men to a boat.

They finally became such a nuisance which was approved, March 27, 1908, for various other good reasons, that the Legislature has passed this law, which was approved, March 27, 1908 and which is certainly stiff enough to hold most any kind of a fisherman within proper bounds.

It reads as follows:—
Chapter 298, an act to prohibit the taking of herring in certain waters by means of torches or other light.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:—

Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person to display torches or other light designed or used for the purpose of taking herring in Hull Bay, Quincy Bay, Hingham Harbor, or in any other waters squatterly of a line drawn from Moon Island to Pemberton.

Section 2. Whoever violates the provisions of this act shall, for a first offence, be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not less than six nor more than twelve months, or by both such fine and imprisonment, and, for a second offence, by both said fine and imprisonment. Approved March 27, 1908.

The Fish and Game Commissioners are now taking the necessary steps to enforce its provisions. Early Friday morning their police boat appeared in the bay and made a raid. This will be kept up until the bay is entirely free from the objectionable fishing fleet.

Two were fined in court today.

Serious Accident

Hugh Quinn of 27 Gass place and John Carberry of 157 Copeland street were seriously injured yesterday afternoon at the quarry of the Merrymount Granite Co.

The men were at work in the quarry when suddenly without warning there was a loud explosion, both men being blown some distance. It is thought the explosion was caused by tools striking a stick of dynamite buried in the dirt.

Quinn got the full force of the explosion, and he will be disfigured for life. His right ear and thumb on his right hand were torn off and he was so badly injured about the eyes that he will probably lose his eye-sight. He also received other cuts about the face.

Carberry was more fortunate, although both his wrists were broken and he was considerably bruised.

Medical Examiner Jones was summoned and responded in his automobile. He had considerable difficulty in reaching the quarry. When he did reach there he placed both men in the automobile and hurried them to the City Hospital. It is thought that both will recover.

THE Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title—Incorporated 1892)
The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and requests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. COMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ELMER G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy can easily appeal for donations and requests for the endowment fund. This now amounts to over $40,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St. Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

LAMPHERE IS INDICTED

Arson and Five Murders Are Charged Against Him

THE KILLING OF HELGELEIN

Mrs. Gunness Officially Dead, but She Is Indicted as Principal That Lamphere Might Be Named as Accessory—The Latter Not Arraigned

La Porte, Ind., May 23.—In returning seven true bills against Ray Lamphere, the La Porte county grand jury also indicted Mrs. Belle Gunness for the murder of Andrew Helgelein of Mansfield, S. D. No warrant was issued for Mrs. Gunness, for she was declared officially dead by the verdict of Coroner Mack, but to vote a true bill against Lamphere as an accessory in the killing of Helgelein it was necessary to indict Mrs. Gunness as the principal.

Lamphere now stands before the bar of justice officially charged with arson, five murders and being an accessory in the Helgelein murder.

Separate bills were returned against Lamphere for the murder in the first degree of Mrs. Belle Gunness and her three children, Philip Gunness, Myrtle Sorenson and Lucy Sorenson.

The unusual feature of the seventh true bill is its indictment of the dead woman. It reads:

"The grand jury presents that Belle Gunness, late of the county of La Porte and state of Indiana, on the 14th day of January, 1908, did unlawfully, feloniously, wilfully, and with premeditated malice, kill and murder Andrew Helgelein, the means and manner of such killing being to the grand jurors unknown."

Lamphere was not arraigned and this will probably not be done until the cases are set for trial. Bench warrants, issued by Judge Richter, were served upon Lamphere in jail. He expressed but slight surprise, for the returning of indictments had been anticipated.

"I shall ask to have the cases set down for early trial this term," said Prosecutor Smith.

Further digging under the direction of Sheriff Smutzer resulted in the unearthing of a human skull, which, it was decided, belongs to one of the bodies dug up in the chicken yard two weeks ago. At that time three skeletons were found in one hole, but there were only two skulls.

Perhaps a Gunness Victim

Chicago, May 23.—Friends of Benjamin F. Carling, formerly Chicago manager for a life insurance company, believe that he was one of the victims of Mrs. Gunness. Carling disappeared March 7, 1906, and nothing has ever been heard of him since that time. He told some friends that he had met a rich widow with whom he was going to make some business deals. When the skeletons were dug up on the Gunness farm one of them bore such a strong resemblance to Carling in the shape of the head and a peculiar set of four false teeth that his wife, now living in Chicago, is confident that he went to La Porte to see Mrs. Gunness and was there murdered.

Encouraging Trade Reports

New York, May 23.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that for the first time in six months the indications of improvement are well distributed. Gains are small in many cases and unfavorable weather has retarded retail trade at some points, while comparisons with last year still show decreases, but as compared with preceding months satisfactory exhibits are found everywhere.

Fleet Seamen on Parade

Bellingham, Wash., May 23.—The first division, comprising seven of the Atlantic battleship fleet, furnished the citizens of this section of Washington one of the most interesting spectacles in the history of the state, 3500 sailors and marines from the ships parading through the principal streets to martial music before 100,000 people.

Governor of Nevada Dead

Carson, Nev., May 23.—Governor Sparks died from an affection of the heart which was finally diagnosed as neuralgia. This was the immediate cause of his death. Sparks was a millionaire mine owner and cattle raiser before he ever thought of a public career. He was past 70 when elected to office.

Platt May Have to Testify

New York, May 23.—A visit paid by John B. Stanchfield, counsel for Senator Platt in the divorce proceedings, to the district attorney's office gave rise to a report, which the district attorney's office did not deny, that Platt would be called as a witness before the grand jury in Miss Wood's case.

Lusitania Cuts Ocean Record

New York, May 23.—Trans-Atlantic records for average speed and for the shortest trip over the long cruise were broken by the Cunard liner Lusitania, which anchored off the Sandy Hook lightship 4 days, 20 hours and 22 minutes after she passed Daunt's Rock.

Hanged For Agrarian Disorders

Kherston, Russia, May 23.—Twenty peasants who took part in recent agrarian disorders were hanged here following trial by a court martial. The resort to the death penalty for agrarian outrages is a new departure.

HEADQUARTERS
PAUL J. REVERE POST 88, G. A. R.

DEPARTMENT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

GENERAL ORDER No. 2.

In compliance with the laws of our Order, our established custom, and general orders from headquarters, the comrades of this Post will observe Saturday, the thirtieth day of May, as Memorial Day.

Comrades, let us observe Memorial Day with reverence and thoughtfulness. Let us bring our fairest blossoms, and with tender and loving thoughts, place them upon the graves of our departed comrades. See that not a single soldier's grave be forgotten. Let the flag they so dearly loved wave over each. Let us conduct the services of the day in such a manner that the young may be impressed with its sacredness and learn to cherish the memory of those who sacrificed so much for their country.

"Reverence for the dead is one of the noblest sentiments of the human heart, and especially should all true Americans cultivate this sentiment for the memories of our brave Union soldiers, who freely offered their lives that our country might not be torn asunder and that justice and equal rights might everywhere prevail. The grave of every true Union soldier is a shrine of liberty."

They are answering the roll-call on the shadowy fields of Death, The roster's being lessened and the ranks are growing thin; But long as in the land they saved is blood and brain and breath The laurel crown of Memory their names must ever win.

The fervor of devoted hearts they to their country gave When youth was at its brightest and life had highest worth, To wipe from its escutcheon the shadow of the slave And make it stand refulgent as the fairest land on earth.

They are passing, they are passing, the valiant and the true Enlisting in eternal ranks, the new-made graves will tell, They are passing, they are passing, oft is heard the sad tattoo And the solemn, echoing volley with its message of farewell.

M., in full uniform, for the purpose of attending divine services at the Presbyterian Church, corner of Water and Quincy streets. THE NEW HAVEN SUE

Federal Action Begun In the Circuit Court at Boston

UNDER THE ANTI-TRUST LAW

Railroad Charged With Effecting a Monopoly In Restraint of Trade—
Control of Boston and Maine Viewed as Clinching All the Road

Boston, May 23.—A suit in equity to restrain the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company from exercising any control over the Boston and Maine railroad and to separate the New Haven road from the various trolley lines it has acquired was filed in the United States circuit court for the district of Massachusetts late Friday afternoon.

The documents in the case, which are voluminous and explicit to the highest degree, were brought here from Washington by James Kratz, a special messenger of the district attorney's office, Kratz arriving at 2 o'clock. Announcement of the filing of the suit had been made from Washington earlier in the day, but the district attorney here declined to discuss the matter in any way until the actual filing of the suit, and then inquirers were referred to the legal papers.

The petition is sweeping in its declarations, following which the prayer of the petitioner is set forth under five distinct heads. The papers name the United States of America as the complainant, and the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, the Boston and Maine Railroad company, the Consolidated Railway company and the Providence Securities company as defendants.

The petition recites that the United States, by Asa P. French, its attorney for the district of Massachusetts, acting under the direction of its attorney general, brings its petition against the defendant companies and proceeds to recite its complaints.

The petition charges the existence of a combination in restraint of trade and monopoly within the meaning of sections 1 and 2 of the Sherman anti-trust act. It alleges that the New Haven company has acquired control over approximately 500 out of 600 miles of electric railway in Connecticut, 400 out of 500 in Rhode Island and about 600 in Massachusetts, which roads, prior to such control, were engaged in active competition with the New Haven company; also, that in acquiring about 35 percent of the capital stock of the Boston and Maine railroad, it has secured practical control of that railroad, and that by the acquisition of the electric lines and this control of the Boston and Maine, it has established a virtual monopoly of all of the transportation facilities by land in the New England states, the Boston and Albany railroad being practically the only line of any consequence in the New England states, with the exception of the state of Vermont, not now under the control in some form of the New Haven company.

The petition relates the history of these various acquisitions and shows how "the New Haven company has persistently pursued the policy of suppressing all competition with it until now, with the exception aforesaid, it dominates practically all land transportation facilities between and among the New England states and between those states and the rest of the United States." The petition prays that "the combination and monopoly" be declared a violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

The Fight

Valor of the Twentieth Maine at Gettysburg.

By FRANK H. SWEET

THE war council of Federal generals the night before the second day's battle of Gettysburg became necessarily a frantic pretention of scanning the unknown. Outside on the lengthening ridges and between the abrupt hillsides of that intricate battlefield lay the encampments of the two hostile armies, ominous and solemn. There were few campfires. At times could be heard the voice of a sentry challenging or the drawn out clatter of a horseman on the stone pavement of the cemetery. Daybreak found cautious General Meade still listening to the reports of his division commanders, to their stories of misfortune and plans for strengthening the line of battle.

The unexpected was certain to befall both officers and men, and they must be ready to perform miracles if need be. An instance of this kind was the fight of the Twentieth Maine on Little Round Top, in token of which the colonel of the regiment, Joshua L. Chamberlain, for his daring heroism received the medal of honor.

Little Round Top had escaped the vigilance of the Federal commanders. This was the smaller of two rough hills, strewn with boulders and bare, slippery rocks, rising sharply from a wooded swamp, behind which stretched the Confederate battle line. At the foot of Little Round Top a body of Union troops had been posted.

It was now afternoon. Lee's attack was expected momentarily, and every man was waiting intently, with his eyes fixed upon the open space that separated the two armies. Just at this time, by a fortunate chance, it occurred to General Meade to order General Warren to ride over the field in the direction of the Round Tops. Warren did so, and when he came to the foot of Little Round Top he left his horse and climbed to the summit. What was his surprise to find at this point only one soldier, an officer of the signal corps! He no sooner looked about him than it became instantly clear to him that the top of this hill was in reality the key to the whole position. His astonishment gave place to consternation.

With his glass he noted the thickly wooded ridge beyond the swamp. "Captain," he said, "fire a shot into those woods."

The captain of the rifle battery did so, and a simultaneous flash of musket barrel and bayonet revealed to the northern general the presence of a long line of the enemy far outflanking the position of the Union troops. The fact thrilled him. It was most appalling. A strong force should have been entrenched long ago on this hill. Perhaps even now it was not too late. He rushed off a messenger to General Meade with a pencilled word to send General Warren at least a division to hold the position at Little Round Top.

On the summit where the signal officer was stationed the musket balls were beginning to fly. He folded up his flag and was going to leave, but at this moment Warren came back and induced him to keep the flag waving. "It may puzzle those people," he said, meaning the enemy, "and may keep them back for a few minutes."

The moments of suspense came suddenly to an end with the arrival of Vincent's brigade and Hazlett's battery of rifled cannon, Fifth artillery.

The young battery lieutenant spoke. "General, what is the matter?"

"The dence is to pay!" was the reply. "I hope you can hold out until the infantry gets into position."

"I guess I can," answered Lieutenant Hazlett. As a matter of fact, he stayed there until he was killed.

The veteran Chamberlain, now in his eightieth year, thus describes the action from this point:

"Warren started our brigade (Vincent's) before he sent Hazlett's battery to Little Round Top. My column passed Hazlett getting his guns up by hand and handsprake to the summit of Little Round Top. The Twentieth Maine was placed on the extreme left of the Union army. The attack, beginning on the right of our brigade, rolled rapidly upon my front. The assault was first from the Fourth and Fifth Texas, joined by the Fourth Alabama and next by the Forty-seventh and finally by the Fifteenth Alabama.

"My regiment had already been cut down by the casualties of the service, so that only 363 muskets were in line. We first fought without seeing the extent of the opposing force, which was constantly increasing. Then the two flanking regiments (Fifteenth and Forty-seventh Alabama), preparing a 'turning attack,' were met by a change of front. I sent also a strong company out on that flank to strike this attack in flank."

No sooner had Colonel Chamberlain's little force reached the portion of the hillside assigned to it than it was engaged by the Fourth Alabama. Soon it saw a dense mass of Confederates coming toward its left, for two strong regiments of the enemy, containing a thousand men, had been ordered to turn the Union flank at exactly that position. Discerning in a flash the grave peril of his command, the Maine colonel sent out a company to engage this force and ordered five companies to swing back until they formed a line at a right angle to the rest. At this instant the Alabamians attacked them on front and flank, opening with a murderous fire. There were five successive charges by this force.

Colonel Chamberlain with drawn sword moved up and down his lines. The bullets whizzed incessantly past him. His men were constantly groaning and falling.

Outnumbered more than three to one, their position was terrible, and it was apparently a hopeless one. Yet with dripping faces the men loaded and fired their muskets, displaying the cool experience of true veterans.

Colonel Chamberlain thought only of one thing—that the position he held was of great importance in the battle. Retreat might mean the destruction of an entire corps. There was no hope that supports would be sent him in season to save the position. He was resolved never to yield, though it seemed that in a few minutes not a man would be left alive.

Colonel Chamberlain thus describes what followed: "Seeing the desperate situation, I had ordered my men to use the cartridges of the fallen, friend or foe. When they had fired their last cartridge into the faces of a rallying force I resolved to make a countercharge with the bayonet and so instructed my officers on the wheeling flank, on whom the brunt was to fall. Returning to my center, I was about to order the movement when Lieutenant Melcher, commanding the now salient center company, came up and asked if he might not rush forward and rescue some of our wounded before the oncoming enemy should trample them underfoot. I admired his tenderness and courage and answered: 'Yes, sir; I will give you a chance. I am about to order a charge.' I went forward to our colors and shouted 'Bayonet!' adding 'Forward!' But no mortal could hear this, the roar of fire and shouts of my men drowning all words.

"We made a sickle sweep, a great right wheel, with our whole line, astonishing the enemy into surrender or wild retreat. We cleared the whole valley between Little Round Top and brought back 400 prisoners. I had lost half my men on the center and a third of the entire regiment on the line. The company I had sent out on our left not being at first in the charging line, it was made by scarcely more than 200 men. We later advanced in midnight blackness, clambering the rough sides of Great Round Top, beyond which the remnants of Hood's division had retreated, and with the aid of two regiments held the position."

The heroic leader of this remarkable action, besides receiving the medal of honor for his work at Gettysburg, was made a brigadier general on the field in a later engagement by General Grant, and in 1865 General Chamberlain was brevetted a major general "for conspicuous gallantry in action." At the ceremony of the actual surrender of the arms and colors of Lee's army at Appomattox Chamberlain was designated to command.

Grand Army

SCULPTOR J. MASSEY
RHIND of New York is working on a monument to commemorate the founder of the Grand Army of the Republic, Dr. Benjamin Franklin Stephenson of Springfield, Ill. The memorial, a three sided obelisk, is to be erected in Washington at the junction of Louisiana avenue and Seventh and C streets, in the middle of a circular grass plot, and it is to be ready for dedication about Aug. 1, 1909, when there will be an encampment of the Grand Army to unveil it. Congress has appropriated $10,000, and G. A. R. men have raised about $25,000 additional, so that the monument will be a splendid creation.

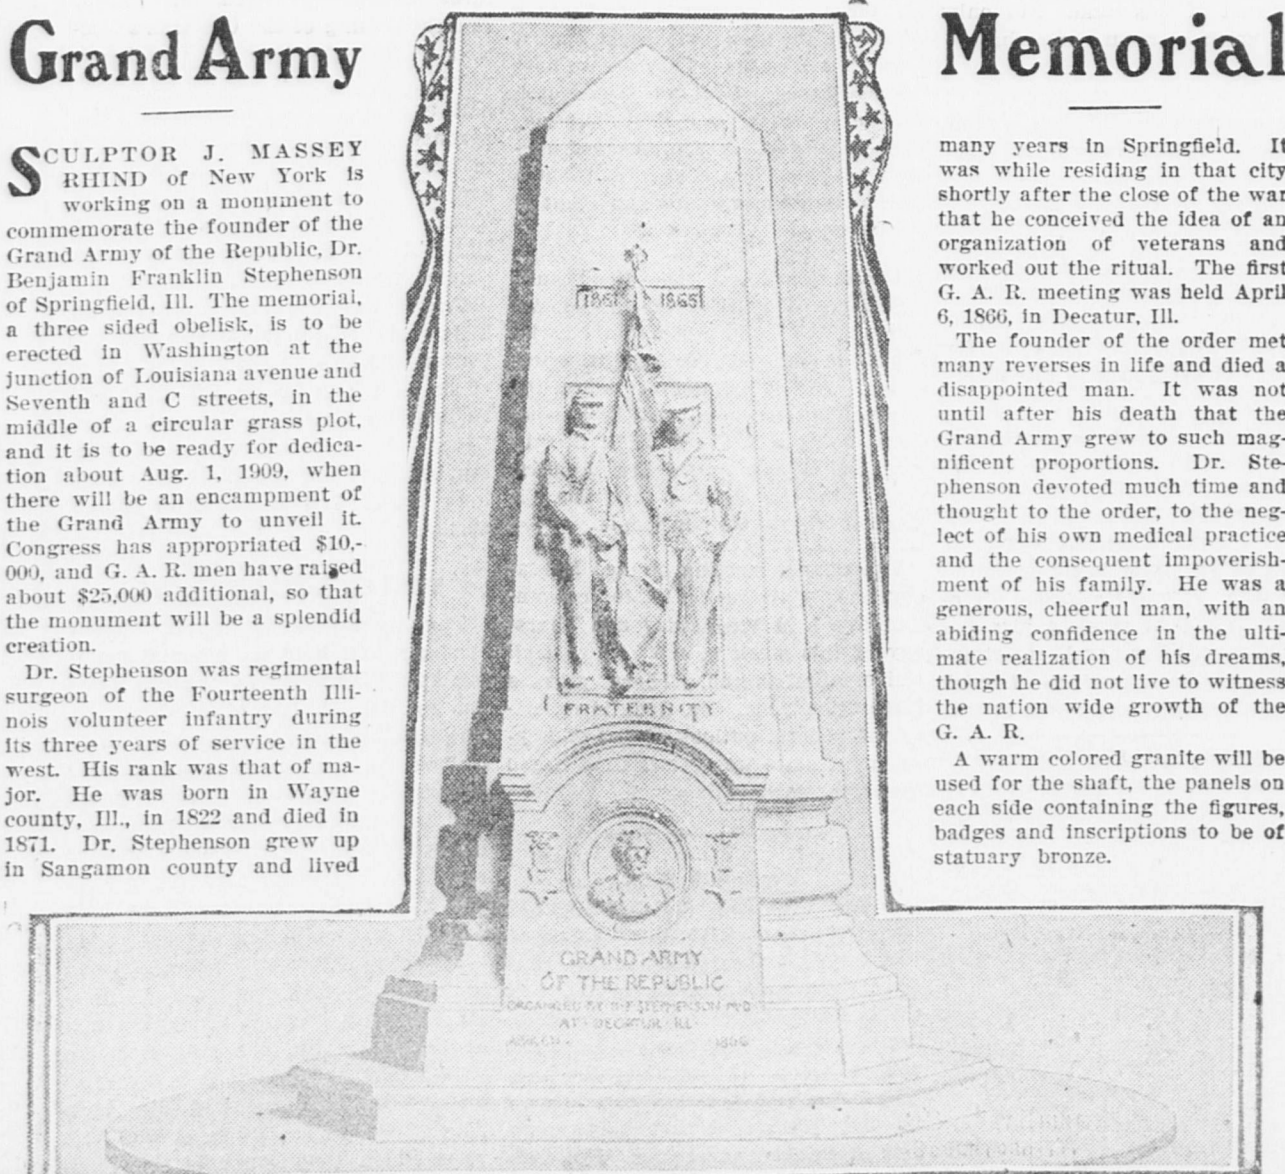

Dr. Stephenson was regimental surgeon of the Fourteenth Illinois volunteer infantry during its three years of service in the west. His rank was that of major. He was born in Wayne county, Ill., in 1822 and died in 1871. Dr. Stephenson grew up in Sangamon county and lived many years in Springfield. It was while residing in that city shortly after the close of the war that he conceived the idea of an organization of veterans and worked out the ritual. The first G. A. R. meeting was held April 6, 1866, in Decatur, Ill.

Memorial

The founder of the order met many reverses in life and died a disappointed man. It was not until after his death that the Grand Army grew to such magnificent proportions. Dr. Stephenson devoted much time and thought to the order, to the neglect of his own medical practice and the consequent impoverishment of his family. He was a generous, cheerful man, with an abiding confidence in the ultimate realization of his dreams, though he did not live to witness the nation wide growth of the G. A. R.

A warm colored granite will be used for the shaft, the panels on each side containing the figures, badges and inscriptions to be of statuary bronze.

Mt. Wollaston
The Beautiful

As Memorial Day approaches
thoughts of those who have lost loved ones through death, naturally turn toward that beautiful resting place of the dead known as Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

The ever kind nature combined with the efforts of Supt. Nicol and his corps of workers have made this indeed a beautiful spot. Some years ago the lawn plan was adopted by the board of managers in place of the irregular individual lots, which has contributed in making the cemetery
what it is today.

There are nearly two thousand lots
in the main cemetery and to place
these all on the lawn plan means years of work. Something in this line however is done every year, and the improvements made since last Memorial Day are readily recognized.

There has been a thinning out also of some of the old trees, and the resodding of lots, and resurfacing of walks and drives.

On the Sea street front the lawn,
which was finished a year ago, has commenced to assume a green velvety look, and is a great improvement in appearance.

On the Greenleaf street side of the cemetery a section of the land purchased in 1901 has been graded on the lawn plan, and laid out into lots,
several of which have been sold.

As for memorials about the usual number will have been erected by Memorial Day. The foundations for these monuments are all in waiting for the contractor to set the memorials. As a rule the monuments erected this year are of the medium size, the largest perhaps being the one to be erected on the Daniel Barter
lot near the office building.

Just how the land between the main cemetery and Sea street will be treated is an open question. This land has not actually been in the control of the Board of Managers so that they have not as yet made definite plans. As it is now there is a chance for improvement.

It is regretted that the soldiers' monument has not been relocated, or a new one erected elsewhere, as many graves near the monument suffer every Memorial Day because of the crowd.

Grand Army Service.

Paul Revere Post of the G. A. R., will worship in the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning at 10.30, when the pastor, Rev. N. J. Sprout, will preach an appropriate sermon. Mrs.
Robert Grant, the popular soloist of the church will sing. The children will take a prominent part in the service.
At the evening service, at seven o'- clock, the pastor will deliver one of a series of sermons on Bible characters.
This church always has good audiences,
gives a hearty welcome to strangers,
enjoys good singing, and hears with pleasure the old gospel presented in a plain, practical and forceful manner by its pastor. The Brotherhood class and Sunday school meet at 12 M. The Y. P. S. C. E. meets at 6 P. M. Topic:
"Being a Christian at the ballot box."
Leader: Mr. John Michael. All young people invited to this service.

Patriotic Service

Tomorrow evening at Bethany church
the various military organizations of the city will attend the services as guests. Madame Morey the musical director has prepared special patriotic music for the occasion and Dr. Hardy will give his address on "The American Great-heart, Abraham Lincoln."

Judge Bumpus
Well Endorsed

The appointment of our distinguished townsman Judge Bumpus, as one of the American commissioners to settle the claims growing out of the building of the Panama canal has called forth from the press of New England most flattering notices.

The Boston Herald has the following: "No doubt Judge Bumpus correctly explains his appointment
as a member of the Isthmian international claims commission when he says that the work is in his line. Few men have had larger experience in adjusting important claims, and few could bring better equipment for intelligent performance of the task."

The Boston Traveler says editorially:
"The appointment of Everett
C. Bumpus, Esq., as one of two American commissioners to settle the claims growing out of the building of the Panama canal is an excellent one. It will be a source of gratification to a host of friends and a distinct honor to the bar of Massachusetts of which Mr. Bumpus has long been a distinguished member.
The new commissioner is well equipped by experience and legal attainment for the work the commission is designed to do, and long has held a high place in that field of legal knowledge pertaining to water rights and franchises and the titles and valuation of public and private lands correlating to them. In a broad sense this is a special department of law in which Mr. Bumpus has long and successfully been identified, and his selection by the national government to bring his experience to an international field is a high honor made all the more emphatic by the fact that the Secretary of State, Mr.
Root, who made the selection, is himself one of the most eminent lawyers in the country. The Traveler congratulates the government on its appointment and adds its felicitations to the appointee, whose selection is generally approved."

Springfield Republican editorially:
"Judge Everett C. Bumpus of Boston and Quincy, who is to serve with Congressman Denby of Michigan in representing the United States on the commission to consider the prices and title of private land in dispute in the canal zone in Panama, is qualified by legal knowledge and experience for the job. He has rendered much service for many years back on commissions having to do with the valuation of franchise rights and the like.
He expects to sail next month
for Panama, and will do well to take along his gaudiest clothing."

Boston Transcript: "A bumper to Bumpus." "As a result of telegraphic communication between Governor Magoon of Cuba, Congressman Denby
and Judge Bumpus, the commissioners have decided to meet at Panama as near June 1st as possible.
Quarters have been secured for Judge Bumpus and Congressman Denby on the steamer leaving New York next Monday. It is probable that the commissioners will not at this time make a very long stay in Panama owing to important engagements which Governor Magoon has in Cuba the latter part of June."

Capt Kidd a Prisoner.

So popular has Capt. Kidd become at Wollaston beach, that it has been decided to keep him a prisoner for another day at least. His treasure chests will be exhibited tonight at the club house of the Wollaston Yacht club, to be followed by an auction and dancing. It is said that several are anxious to secure Capt. Kidd for the minut, but some of the young ladies will probably have to take one of Kidd's kids as a substitute. The fortune teller, the devil among the sailors, the shooting gallery and ice cream are proving very popular, and the fair will be a financial success.
Much credit is due Mr. A. Roan.

Sudden Death
W. S. Russell

William Smith Russell of 173 Billings street, Atlantic, died on Friday morning, May 22, at his home of pleuro-pneumonia. Mr. Russell was born in North Amherst, Mass., and had lived in Atlantic nineteen years. Sixteen years ago he broke his leg, but up to that time never had a day of sickness
nor since up to Saturday last.

He was supervisor of the Plymouth and Cape Cod division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad and never missed a day in attendance upon the duties of his office; he married Mary A. Naylor of Norton, Mass., when she was but 16 years old,
fifty-seven years ago last November.
His wife, three daughters and one son
and five grandchildren survive him.
One of the grandchildren, Mr. Harrie
A. Peck was the popular leader of the orchestra at B. F. Keith's theatre, Boston.

Mr. Russell was a man of quiet demeanor and unimpeachable character,
and had many friends and will be very much missed. The funeral services will be held on Sunday, at 3 P. M., at 173 Billings street corner of Newhall.

Republican Barbecue.

The great Republican Mass Meeting which is being projected under the auspices of the Essex, Norfolk, Plymouth and Middlesex clubs of Massachusetts, and which is attracting the attention of every regularly organized body of Republicans in New England, will mark the opening of the Presidential campaign in New England, and probably in the country.

It is positive that there will not only be in attendance the notables of the Republican party in the State of Massachusetts, the men whom loyal Republicans delight to honor and to listen to, but that the Presidential candidate of the Republican party will be there, together with other men prominent in the political life of the nation.
It is hoped, and reasonably expected,
that President Roosevelt himself will grace the occasion and give utterance to one of those epigrammatic addresses which has made him the idol of all the people and the acclaimed leader of the Republican party in the country.

The barbecue is not of New England origin, and therefore the process of feeding a multitude, which the term barbecue implies, has a great deal of novelty to the people of this section. The term has commonly been applied to large gatherings for social or political nature out doors, more commonly of a political nature, and seems to have had its origin in the South, though there have been many such gatherings in the West.

Barbecues have always been a feature of the political life of the nation, and the term is more often used in reference to a great outpouring of the people to the open air than in any other connection. President Lincoln attended barbecues in his time, and in one volume of Chittenden's
"Recollections of Lincoln" the President is quoted as saying that he must go to the southeastern corner of New Jersey, where he is advertised to speak at a great mass meeting and barbecue.

The Point of Pines, where it is intended to hold this monster gathering, is one of the most attractive places on the North Shore and is so situated as to be one of the most accessible places that could be secured for an event of this kind. Not only is there ground room enough, but there is a great hotel which is to be thrown open to the people, and in this headquarters the different organizations and committees will be established.

In addition to the serving of the meats of the barbecue, ample arrangements are being made for a further meeting of the wants of the great throng in the line of edibles. There will be sufficient supply to care for the desires of everybody in this direction.

To meet the tastes of those who may not care to devote their attention entirely to the political significance of the day, there will be plenty to interest and amuse. A very fine program of sports is being prepared by men who are experts in this direction. There will be music galore and an abundance of general entertainment which will serve to furnish plenty of attraction to all who attend.

Miss Virginia Howes of Mount Vernon avenue held a birthday party last Tuesday and entertained several of her friends during the afternoon.

The many friends of Miss Alice Emerson of Bellevue road are glad to know that she is recovering from the attack of appendicitis and operation and has been at her home a week from Boothby hospital. She is doing nicely.

Albert Hobart's pretty colt is pastured on the east side of Faxon street and is the cynosure of all beholders. The sire was the famous stallion Todd, the renowned trotting stallion that died on Sunday of pneumonia. He was sold last year for $30,000.

Mr. J. Odom has returned to his position as mail carrier. His route was covered by Mr. Arnold and Mr. Greeley while he was away. The residents of his district are glad that he can resume his duties.

The next meeting of the Krow Eldeen society will be held on Tuesday evening with the Misses Jordling of Holbrook. The members will meet in South Braintree square in time to take the 6.45 car, and it is expected that there will be a large delegation.

The news of Mrs. Eben Denton's death, at her home, in Ashmont, was received on Wednesday. She was greatly beloved by a wide circle of relatives and friends. Many in this vicinity sympathize with Mr. Denton who was for years selectman of Braintree when residing on Quincy avenue, his home the fine estate bordering the river now the home of Mr. T. A. Watson.

The regular monthly meeting of the Men's Club of the South M. E. church was held in the vestry, Wednesday evening, May 13. After a most excellent salad supper President Gammons introduced the speakers of the evening, Mr. Charles H. Jones, president of the Commonwealth Shoe & Leather Co., also president of the Anti Merger League, and Mr. George L. Barnes, of South Weymouth, secretary of the same organization. The addresses upon the inadvisability of merging the Boston & Maine with the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., were most interesting and instructive. The meeting was declared by the large number of members and guests present, the most successful of the year.

The funeral services for Mrs. Lucy C. Vinton, wife of Elmer H. Vinton, took place from the Methodist Episcopal church, East Braintree, on Sunday afternoon, May 17, at 2.30 o'clock. Rev. E. C. Swartz officiated. Beautiful flowers adorned the casket. Mr. Vinton and sons Ernest, Charles, Sumner and Harry with several grandchildren mourn her loss and will miss her loving interest.

Little George Walsh on Wednesday at twilight while playing on Elm Knoll road in front of his grandparent's house was bitten by a collie dog. Dr. Mullins cauterized the wound on the boy's arm and it is hoped no serious effects will result. The dog belonged to Mr. Rowell we are informed. Several children were grouped about the dog.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dearing regret that Mr. Dearing's health necessitates their removal from Braintree, and there fine residence on Washington street is offered for sale they will spend the summer at Waldermere, Nantasket.

Monday morning, property on South Braintree Heights was again imperiled by fire. The fire started in the public dump on Pearl street and spread into the pine grove near the residence of Mr. W. H. Rogers. It was owing to the quick work of neighbors and the department, that his house was saved.

He was in Boston that day accompanied by Mrs. Mansfield to dinner, theatre and supper and they left for home on the 7.13 evening train. Heart failure came upon him and he grew worse until he received the attention of Dr. H. L. Dearing at Braintree. The doctor took Mr. Mansfield to his home on Central street.

John Wheelwright Paper No. 5 Of Quincy Historical Society

Another of these interesting papers read at the meeting of the Quincy Historical Society April 28 is printed below, being that of Brooks Adams, Esq., on John Wheelwright, "the first Liberal." Friends of Mrs. George G. Saville and Mr. Emory L. Crane should prevail upon them to allow the publication of their papers next week. There are several other noted men and women of Quincy upon whom papers should be written at an early date, including President John Quincy Adams and his wife Louisa Catherine (Johnson) Adams, the late Charles Francis Adams and his wife, Dr. Ebenezer Woodard, William Coddington, Thomas Greenleaf, Gen. Joseph Palmer, Rev. Peter Whitney, Bradley Bryant, Solomon Willard, Thomas Crane, Henry H. Faxon, Joseph Richards, Dr. William S. Pattee, and many more.

John Wheelwright, the first pastor of First church, of Quincy, was the son of Robert Wheelwright, a Lincolnshire yeoman. Born at Saleby, probably about 1592, he possessed great bodily as well as of great mental vigor. His father, though not wealthy, was a man of some substance, and sent him to Sidney college in Cambridge, a college, which is famous chiefly for numbering him and Oliver Cromwell among its graduates. Cromwell was no weakling, and yet Cromwell in after life said of him that he had feared Wheelwright more than any man he ever met, for when he played football against him he always got a fall.

Taking his degree in 1614, Wheelwright married Mary Storrie in 1621 and was presented vicar of Billesby on April 2, 1625. Mary Storrie dying in 1630 Wheelwright married in 1631, Mary the sister of that Anne Hutchinson afterward famous in the Antinomian controversy in Massachusetts.

Precisely what Wheelwright did to bring him under the ban of the law is unknown. He was accused of simony, or of trafficking in church preferment. Possibly he may have taken money from the patron of his living to retire from his vicarage. At all events he was deprived and for some time appears to have wandered about England without any fixed occupation. In 1636 he sailed for America, and landed in Boston on May 26, of that year. Just then his sister-in-law, Mrs. Hutchinson, was the social leader in New England, and John Cotton, the teacher of her church, was the most eminent of New England divines. Also in this month of May a political upheaval occurred in the colony, young Sir Harry Vane having been elected governor in opposition to Winthrop, the conservative candidate.

The objects contemplated by the combination of which Mrs. Hutchinson, Cotton and Vane were the most conspicuous members, have always been a matter of dispute, but I apprehend that the so-called Antinomian heresy was an attack upon the theocratic organization of Massachusetts society which was based upon the control of the suffrage by the clergy. No man could be a voter in Massachusetts who was not a church member, and the clergy not only dictated who should enter their congregations, but also what churches should be recognized as orthodox within the Commonwealth. The ruling hierarchy of which Mr. Cotton's colleague, Mr. Wilson, was probably the most influential member, maintained their ascendancy by means of a strict formalism. This formalism Mrs. Hutchinson and her friends denounced, demanding that instead of preaching works, the clergy should preach grace, or, as I maintain, they insisted that freedom of religious thought should be accorded.

If the Antinomians had won, I think then, without doubt, the theocracy would have fallen in 1637, by the establishment of popular suffrage, as it was destined to fall two generations later when the Provincial Charter was granted by William and Mary. Indeed Mr. Wilson told the General Court that unless the Antinomians were suppressed the churches could not be held together, and all the clergy agreed with him, save two, John Cotton and John Wheelwright, the preachers of the covenant of grace.

When Wheelwright landed in Boston John Cotton stood practically alone, and the advent of so powerful an ally was to him important. To strengthen Cotton an attempt was made in October to join Wheelwright with Wilson and Cotton, as a third pastor of the Boston congregation, but it miscarried through Winthrop's opposition. Then Wheelwright came to Mount Wollaston and to this church. Soon after the crisis occurred. On January 19 a fast was held and Wheelwright preached a sermon on justification by faith which the clergy at once declared to be seditious. And from their standpoint, the doctrine preached was seditious, for it was incompatible with the existence of the aristocracy of which they formed the core.

In the following March as soon as the General Court met, Wheelwright was brought to trial, for, though the liberals had elected Vane by general vote, the country parishes, which had always remained under the control of the clergy, sent a conservative majority to the General Court. Before such a tribunal conviction was easily obtained, but Vane being governor it was harder to enforce punishment. Accordingly Wheelwright's enemies waited until after the next election in the following May; and, to control this election the better, the legislature ordered it to be held in Cambridge. It resulted in the choice of Winthrop as governor and a conservative legislature.

Cotton seeing that all was lost made his peace and was forgiven by his brethren, but Wheelwright would not submit. Perhaps he knew that, in his case, submission would have availed nothing. Probably he was too determined, able and dangerous to be pardoned. A new legislature was convened, which could be thoroughly relied upon, to conclude the trial and before this legislature Wheelwright found no mercy. Unable to prove heresy against the accused, the clergy virtually sentenced him to banishment for speaking disrespectfully of them.

It was winter, and he went forth to seek refuge near where Exeter, New Hampshire, now stands, through snow three feet deep. There he was followed by a few of his friends, but subsequently the Commonwealth of Massachusetts extended its jurisdiction over these New Hampshire towns and Wheelwright was forced to remove to Maine. Finally he made a species of submission, and his banishment was revoked, but he never could again live in Boston. His sister in law, Anne Hutchinson, was also banished and was slain in an Indian outbreak.

Looking back upon John Wheelwright from the distance of nearly three centuries, we can see plainly enough that he, like many another man of great parts, suffered from being in advance of his time. So have suffered saints and martyrs and reformers from long before the crucifixion until now. His capacity can easily be measured by a comparison. Henry Vane was his friend in this, the great struggle of his life, Hugh Peters his enemy. Both these men in the stress of the Cromwellian revolution rose to eminence in England but in Massachusetts the now forgotten pastor of our parish stood out the most powerful of the three.

Banished to a wilderness he lived and died forgotten, but among the long line of renowned men who have adorned Quincy, or who have taught in this tabernacle, there is not one who as a stern but heroic figure in our history, transcends John Wheelwright.

IN HANNA'S MEMORY

Magnificent Monument Dedicated at Cleveland.

GRIGGS ORATOR OF THE DAY.

Last Work of St. Gaudens, Erected by Popular Subscription at Cost of $70,000. Stands at Entrance to Beautiful Wade Park.

Cleveland, O., May 23.—Today will long be remembered by the multitude of friends and admirers of the late Marcus A. Hanna as the day of the dedication in this city, in the presence of Vice President Fairbanks and other distinguished guests, of St. Gaudens' magnificent monument in memory of the late senator. John W. Griggs, the orator of the day, was attorney general of the United States under President McKinley. The monument, which was the last work of the genius of the late Augustus St. Gaudens, cost about $70,000, and the money was raised by popular subscription.

This monument stands at the entrance of Wade park, one of the most beautiful in the world.

Mr. Griggs said:

The state of Ohio glories in a long roll of illustrious names of sons of hers who have won fame for themselves and never dying honor for their state. High upon that roll, where are written the names of presidents of the republic, of great soldiers, of statesmen and jurists, of financiers and philanthropists, stands the name of Marcus A. Hanna, in whose honor this monument is raised and dedicated this day. For his countrymen of this generation, who know his work and his worth, no monument is needed to remind them of his pre-eminent services to the nation. Before he died they knew and honored and appreciated, and they have not forgotten and will not forget. But in the days that are beyond, when other feet shall tread these paths and other eyes shall read his name upon this monument, it will serve to recall a great leader and an ideal citizen. In the record of his life we find none of the spectacular or romantic features which the figure of a great soldier presents to the popular gaze, nor is there any great executive deed of renown nor any statute of transcendent beneficence to which his name is attached as author. If some inquirer in after days shall ask why, then, is there a monument to Senator Hanna it shall be answered because he filled all the ideals of an American from youth to the day he died, rising step by step to the highest plane of usefulness in the service of his country; because as a business man he was successful in business by honorable methods alone; because as a prosperous man he was not proud; because as a friend he was loyal and true hearted; because as a leader of men he was wise, yet unselfish; because as an employer of labor he had a genuine and heartfelt sympathy with his employees and more broadly with all who toil; because he was a man among men; because in many and varied capacities—merchant, manufacturer, capitalist, political leader and senator in congress—he was an ideal American citizen.

His Ambitions Were Noble.

It is not remarkable that Senator Hanna should have achieved conspicuous success as a captain of industry. What is remarkable and without a parallel is the fact that after spending all the years of his life down to the age of fifty-nine in business pursuits without any conspicuous participation in political affairs he moved at one step to the very front of the political organization to which he belonged and became without dissent or contradiction its leader. And such a leader! How sagacious he was, how untiring in his industry, how sweet natured and yet how firm and consistent, how winning and conciliatory, how patient and forbearing! He was not without ambition, but his ambitions were all noble and beneficent, the ambition of one who was conscious of his ability to render service to the world and desired to do it—not for his own self's sake, but for the good of his country.

The story of Senator Hanna as a factor in American politics from 1896 to the time when death put an end, all too soon, to his career is one that ought to be kept familiar as an example. He was a party man. He believed that a government by the people cannot be successfully carried on by a disorganized mass of citizens acting without concert. He recognized the value and potency of traditional beliefs in political organizations quite as much as in religious denominations. His training in business had taught the value of systematic and thorough preparation for political contests. And so, when from pure admiration and love of the man he took up the cause of William McKinley and resolved to secure his nomination for the presidency, he brought to bear all the experience and wisdom which he had acquired in his successful business career, together with a spirit of devotion and a genius for political pursuits which were a surprise to the country and which at once secured for him recognition as the pre-eminent fitted to assume the leadership. He was not chosen leader. He simply moved to the front, and all followed him without asking to see his commission.

His Success Unprecedented.

Let no one think such a place is an easy one to fill. There is no office or function, not even the presidency of the United States, so difficult. The tenure is not fixed, but precarious. There are no statutes to guide, no courts to sanction or enforce the leader's will. His sway depends upon his own inherent qualities of wisdom and tact, upon his foresight and his prudence, upon his freedom from selfishness, upon the faith he is able to inspire in his intention to be absolutely loyal to his word and, last of all, upon the success which his party achieves or fails to achieve under his guidance. In all these qualities Senator Hanna was unequalled; his success was uniform and unprecedented.

Best Debater in the Senate.

The success of his campaigns for the nomination and election of President McKinley led to his appointment to a seat in the senate of the United States. Here was a new and untried field, but here again the native force and ability of the man brought him quickly to the front. In that body, where prominence and influence are by the rule of long tradition withheld until the service of a full apprenticeship, Senator Hanna easily, naturally and at once was admitted into the very inner circle of senatorial confidence. And this, too, not by reason of the great political influence he had at his command, not because he was the nearest friend of the president (very often these are drawbacks and hindrances to popularity in the senate), but because his transcendent talents were recognized, and almost unconsciously he assumed by common consent the place of leadership. Once started upon his career as a statesman his development was phenomenally rapid. Though entirely untrained and inexperienced as a public speaker, he quickly became one of the best, and Senator Hoar, himself distinguished in that art, pronounced Senator Hanna the best debater in the senate.

We marvel at the younger Pitt, who at the age of twenty-three by sheer force of his ability led the contests of his party in the house of commons. Is it not more marvelous that Senator Hanna at the age of sixty, after a lifetime devoted to business pursuits, without university training, without previous practice or experience, should by merit alone have become the peer of any member of the greatest legislative body in the world? In open debate by sheer force of argument he converted congress from its long standing choice of the Nicaragua route for the isthmian canal and secured a majority in both houses for Panama, a fine illustration of the ideal in legislation, where argument based on knowledge and reason, unbiased by partisan prejudice, sways and controls effectively the legislative mind. Senator Hanna as a speaker had this supreme quality that he made sure appeal both to the average mind and to the fastidious and most finished among his auditors. He did not employ the arts of the rhetorician. He used few metaphors and no apostrophes, yet he touched the reason of his hearers and by his earnestness and sincerity, by his simplicity and entire sanity of view, he compelled assent where more accomplished orators only stirred the emotions.

Led the Way to Industrial Peace.

But this successful man of business, this political leader, this great senator, was not satisfied with the measure of service rendered to his fellow men in these spheres. He looked out upon the industrial world and saw there the elemental stir. He saw the conflicts and disputes, the strikes, the boycotts, the lockouts and all the loss and misery that came from these. His great heart was moved. He longed to help. He felt as few in his position have ever felt the importance of dealing with industrial conditions as a grave and serious subject in a systematic way, by orderly methods, in a spirit of large sympathy and benevolence. He had an abiding trust in manhood and appreciated the fact that the workingman of one decade is privileged to become the employer and capitalist of the next. "What we want today," he declared, "is to Americanize organized labor, to fit it to our conditions, to show to those who are charged with the responsibility of leading these organizations how important it is that we get together in a friendly spirit with a determination to find a better way to settle our differences. I would rather be the means of bringing labor and capital into friendly relations than be president." To find a better way? Who fitter than he to show us that better way? With his long and happy experience as an employer, with his vast sympathy, his profound insight and his unaffected enthusiasm, he was the man of all others to lead the way toward industrial peace. To the work of the civic federation he gave his time, his money and the greater part of the little strength which disease allowed him the few last years of his life.

Senator Hanna did not escape calamity. That universal lot of greatness was his also in large degree. His power was too evident, his success too uniform and extraordinary, to permit the small soul of the cartoonist and the slanderer to believe all he did was the work of a true and noble man. They did not know him at first. Afterward they saw and knew. And ere he died he had triumphed. Not a scurrilous jester among the horde but was ready to confess:

Yes, he has lived to shame me from my sneer.

To lame my pencil and refute my pen. The whole nation came at last to revere him for what he was, a grand, noble, patriotic American. He touched the heartstrings of the people, and they responded in sympathetic tones.

His was a noble life, well rounded, symmetrical, sincere. No vanity marred its luster, no selfish ambition tempted him.

And so we now dedicate this statue to the memory of our loved and loyal friend. We shall pass on and away, but his work and the inspiration of his spirit and example shall endure.

It Makes a Good Impression on Visiting Primate of Ireland

EVILS THREATENING NATION

Principles of Socialism Are Illogical and Anarchy a Menace to Law—America Destined to Be World's Storehouse For Catholicism

New York, May 22.—Cardinal Logue, the primate of Ireland, who came to America to take part in the Catholic centenary in this city, granted an interview here in which he discussed socialism and anarchism, the future of the Catholic church in America and expressed his opinion of President Roosevelt. Of the president he said: "He was all that I had imagined him to be—strong, fearless and of a wonderfully magnetic personality. He is unquestionably honest and sincere in his convictions, courageous in his efforts to carry through measures which obtain for the good of the country, and has that other characteristic of a statesman who sees and works, not only for the present, but what is even more important, the future."

Discussing the evils which threaten this country, the cardinal said: "Socialism teaches illogical principles which, if put into practice, would not last six months. Communism, which is another word, I take it, for socialism, cannot be applied to government. So far, however, as it gives the laboring classes better wages, better homes and, therefore, greater happiness, I approve of it. But to carry out the ideas they advance and include the common ownership and management of all public utilities is, I think, unwise, as well as impracticable. If that principle were fulfilled every socialist would wish to become an official in the management of affairs, a condition of things which would pave the way for graft and corruption."

"Anarchism should have no place in any community. It is hostile to all forms of government and a menace to law and order. Society cannot enjoy peace and security if anarchism is allowed to prevail."

Concerning the church the cardinal was quoted as saying: "The wonderful strength and power of the Catholic church in this country was a most agreeable and pleasant surprise to me. I do not wish to be understood that this country will become the centre of the Catholic world. I mean to infer that its history, past and to come, is and will be written in letters of gold."

"Its progress here has been remarkable, and it is destined in the future to be a storehouse for the Catholicism of all the world and a preventative against the attacks of those who have no faith or are in danger of being led astray by the so-called modernism or materialism."

"Religion, I believe, is fostered under a republican form of government as under any other, of which no better example could be found than in the United States."

Proceedings Against Failed Brokers

New York, May 22.—Two members of the failed brokerage firm of T. A. McIntyre & Co. were yesterday placed under arrest. They were Thomas A. McIntyre, senior member of the firm, and John G. McIntyre, a partner. The complaint against them is Frederick W. Kavanagh, who has brought a civil action to recover $30,000. Thomas A. McIntyre was previously arrested on a grand larceny charge and released upon furnishing a bond of $25,000. Bail in the case of each of the McIntyres in yesterday's proceedings was fixed at $5000, which was furnished.

Advancing Ship Subsidies

Washington, May 22.—The conferees on the postoffice appropriation bill have agreed to accept the amendment by the senate authorizing the postmaster general to contract with steamship lines running to ports of South America, Philippine Islands, Japan, China and Australia for the carrying of the mails and to pay to vessels of the second class the same rate that is now paid on American vessels of the first class to Europe, and to vessels of the third class the rate now authorized for vessels of the second class.

Waddell With Outlaw League

Philadelphia, May 22.—Rube Waddell, who jumped the St. Louis Browns, has signed a contract to pitch the balance of the season for the Philadelphia Union League club. President Lawson was instrumental in getting the noted twirler's signature. When the "Rube" announced that he was through with St. Louis, Lawson immediately went after him and secured his signature to play with the outlaw league.

New Force in Allegheny Bank

Pittsburg, May 22.—Receiver Lyons has released all of the old force of the Allegheny National bank and put new clerks to work. He declines to make an estimate on the condition of the bank, but intimates that the shortage is much heavier than has been officially reported.

Deaths in Train Wreck

Oakland, Cal., May 22.—An express train was wrecked near Pinole. Three men were killed outright. One died later and three others were injured, one fatally. The wreck is supposed to have been caused by the front truck of the baggage car jumping the track.

CHRISTIANITY IN CHINA

Nestorian Tablet Commemorating Its Dawn Reproduced by Scientist

Boston, May 23.—Bearing as a part of her cargo a facsimile of the famous Nestorian tablet of China, steamer Kennebec arrived here after a 40,000-mile cruise from Shanghai. With the vessel as a passenger is Fritz von Holm, a young Danish scientist, to whom belongs the honor of producing the replica of the famous stone.

Von Holm was able to obtain a copy of the tablet only after fifteen months of tedious labor fraught with great danger and expense. The stone stands nine feet in height, is three feet wide and a foot thick and weighs about two tons. It was reproduced with the original stone as a model by sculptors and architects in the wilds of Chen Si province.

The inscription on the tablet is in the Chinese and Syriac language. It consists of a preface, the praises of the religion, together with verse. The names of sixty-seven Syrian priests are inscribed on the tablet.

Briefly, it is a record of the first introduction of the Christian religion in the Chinese empire and was carved in 781 A. D. It was discovered in 1625 by some coolies and in 1877 was first given publicity in the London Graphic. The value of the find to science cannot be accurately estimated. It is said that it is valued at several thousands of dollars.

Trying to Trace Shaw Funds

Boston, May 23.—Henry M. Rogers, trustee in bankruptcy of the estate of J. O. Shaw, who is now in the Waverly insane hospital, is trying to find out what became of $450,000 which was at one time in Shaw's possession. The loss to the various estates of which Shaw was trustee amounts to about $350,000, and as Shaw was left about $100,000 by the will of his father, the total amount he handled must have been nearly half a million dollars.

Policeman Robbed Stores

Portland, Me., May 23.—Ex-Policeman George H. Brown was found guilty of breaking, entering and larceny in the night time while in the performance of his duties on the city hall beat by a jury in the superior court. The defense was insanity, the defendant admitting the burglary. It was alleged that in fifteen months Brown stole from different stores on his beat goods to the value of $2500.

Walker to Be Soon Returned

New Britain, Conn., May 23.—The announcement was made by Treasurer Stanley of the Savings Bank of New Britain that William F. Walker, the absconding treasurer of the bank, would be returned from Mexican territory to Connecticut in a month. The bank is assured that all proper steps to bring about expeditious extradition are being taken.

Little Change in Railroad Business

New Haven, May 23.—Traffic returns of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company for the first two weeks in May show about the same condition of railroad business in southern New England industries as in April. Slight improvement in production is indicated by the reports from various factory centres of New England.

Woman Charged With Larceny

Haverhill, Mass., May 23.—Posing as a rich relative of Dr. Amanda R. Cate of this city, Nellie O. Stone of Chicago was arrested by the local police at the request of Deputy Sheriff Morrison of Cook county, Ills., charged with the larceny of $2500 from her ward, Nellie Walker. Mrs. Stone has been in this city for a week under the name of Mrs. Lucas.

A $50,000 American Derby

Boston, May 23.—The directors of the New England Horse Breeders' association voted that sufficient entries had been received in the $50,000 American trotting derby to announce that the event would be held during the grand circuit meeting at Readville in August.

Ocean Mail Bill Fails

Washington, May 23.—Practically all hope of ship subsidy was abandoned when the house rejected the conference report on the postoffice appropriation bill containing a provision therefor. It was this provision over which the principal fight occurred. The bill was sent back to conference and there now is little prospect that the house conferees will yield to the senate.

Individual Evangelism Needed

Kansas City, May 23.—"Evangelism is the spirit of the church. Evangelism that the world may be won for Christ," was the keynote of the speeches delivered by the ministers at the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States. Moderator Fullerton urged the 1,300,000 members of the church to take up the work of individual evangelism.

Check to Haytian Revolutions

Port Au Prince, May 23.—The last of the refugees in the foreign consulates have been permitted to leave the island unmolested. Th opinion is general that the notification sent by the government to the representatives here of the powers that in future offenders will not be permitted to take asylum in legations or consulates will make revolutions in Hayti more difficult.

Arrested as a Swindler

New York, May 23.—When Ray S. Cogswell of Rochester was arrested on a charge of swindling his mother-in-law, Mrs. Rebecca W. Smith of Boston, out of $62,000, a check drawn in her name on the Royal Bank of Canada for $200,000 was found in one of his pockets.

A DO-NOTHING SESSION

Comparatively Few Important Enactments by Congress

RECORD IN APPROPRIATIONS

General Survey of What Has and What Has Not Been Accomplished
—Many Important Measures Went Down to Defeat

Washington, May 23.—Legislative problems presented to the present congress for solution, but unanswered, so far outnumber the actual "results" that they may afford justification of the charge in the approaching campaign that the present has been a "do-nothing" session.

More important questions were presented and discussed on which the public generally, or sections or classes, demanded action, than ever before in the nation's history. A majority of these were of President Roosevelt's making and listed among his "policies." Comparatively, the enactments were few.
On the other hand, the aggregate of the appropriations was great, and when the final figures are obtainable, it is not doubted that they will exceed those of any previous session in times of peace.

Conspicuous above all other questions with which congress dealt was the effort to pass an emergency currency bill. Thrust upon the attention of legislators at the opening of the session by a financial depression that had not fully subsided, it was the first big question to be considered. Likewise it was the hardest to meet. The senate and house failed to agree and the result was that a commission of senators and representatives in congress, whose duty it shall be to study the subject and report at the next session, was decided upon.

Numerous bills affecting labor were considered by both the senate and house. It is conceded that more legislation would have resulted had it not been for the pending national elections.
A new employers' liability law was evolved to take the place of that declared unconstitutional by the supreme court. Other matters of equal or greater importance to organized labor failed.

Some of the striking things urged upon congress by President Roosevelt and which were not enacted resulted in compromises. For instance, he wanted a national child labor law. He also asked for the enactment of a law regulating child labor in the District of Columbia and the territories, and the latter bill was passed. The construction of four battleships was urged in a special message to congress and a fight
for this program was led by administrative members of both the senate and house, which resulted in failure. An appropriation was made for the construction of two battleships and the policy of authorizing two each year
was announced by Republican leaders.

Authority to choose a tariff commission and to appoint experts to gather data with a view to the revision of the tariff at the next session was strongly advocated. As a result resolutions were adopted in the senate authorizing the committee on finance, and in the house authorizing the committee on ways and means, to conduct individual investigations. These committees are empowered to employ such experts as they need.

Several measures were recommended which were designed to place greater power in the hands of the interstate commerce commission in the matter of regulating railroad rates. None of these bills was passed, but a victory for the commission was won in the appropriation of $350,000 for the establishment of a statistical and accounting department of the commission.

An effort was made and still is in progress in the senate to suspend the operation of the commodities clause of the Hepburn railroad rate act until Jan.
1, 1910, but there has been no general sentiment in either body demanding
this legislation in the interest of railroads which own mines and manufacturing establishments. A further argument against the proposal has appeared in the fact that there had been little legislation in aid of other commercial classes or for the benefit of labor organizations. The commodities clause became effective on May 1.

Some general revision of the Sherman anti-trust law in the interest of both capital and labor was demanded
and a bill was presented by the National Civic Federation. After a number of hearings were held before the judiciary committees of the house and senate it became evident it stood no chance of passage. A movement was then begun for the appointment of a commission to consider such legislation during the recess of congress, but this met with no encouragement.

The question of conserving the natural resources was before the session prominently. An effort was made in both bodies to obtain an appropriation for the creation of the Southern Apalachian and White Mountain forest reserves, but it did not succeed. As an alternative, a commission to investigate the matter was authorized. The creation of a "waterways fund" by an appropriation of $50,000,000 was advocated and rejected. As a substitute, a bill was prepared to "continue" the inland waterways commission, which was amended to "authorize" the committee. The bill to permit the president to appoint the inland waterways commission was passed.

An action of interest was the provision for a substantial increase in the pay of officers and enlisted men of the army, navy, marine corps, revenue cutter service and life saving service of the government. Several other bills were passed for the benefit of the military establishment.

Campaign publicity bills were considered in both branches of congress,
but none became a law. Bills regulating the shipment of liquor to prohibition states were considered without results, and bills to establish postal savings banks met the same fate.

The announced policy of President Roosevelt to veto bills for the construction of dams across navigable streams
unless such bills provided for the compensation of the government for the franchise and contained some limitation on the time the franchise shall run resulted in a number of such measures being sidetracked. The Itasca river (Minn.) dam project, which was passed by congress and vetoed by the president because of the absence of such provisions, was passed over the president's veto.

A determined effort was made in the senate to take a step looking toward ship subsidy. The ocean mail sub-vention bill was passed as an amendment to the postoffice appropriation bill. It met with opposition in the house and was a disputed item in conference. Another important item in the postoffice bill is a provision authorizing the postmaster general to suppress periodicals which publish articles inciting anarchy, arson or murder.

Among other matters which became laws at the present session are the following: Prohibiting betting on races in the District of Columbia; requiring the registration of all cases of tuberculosis in the District of Columbia, which is intended as a model for state legislation; reclassifying many important posts in the consular service; repealing
the shipping law in relation to trade with the Philippine Islands, so as to permit the free operation of foreign vessels; increasing from $8 to $12 per month the pensions to widows and orphans of soldiers. During the session 3794 private pension bills became laws.

Many matters were before one body without attracting attention in the other. In the senate was the Brown-sville affray and the movement for the reinstatement of the negro soldiers who were discharged without honor, but the whole subject will go over until next session; an investigation of charges of structural defects in battleships before the committee on naval affairs; the treaties negotiated at The Hague conference and general arbitration treaties with practically all nations, all of which were ratified. The treaty providing for the control of wireless telegraph went over until the next session, as did also the question of taking some action against President Castro looking to the collection of American claims against Venezuela.

In the house there were extended hearings on resolutions providing for the abolition of the tariff on wood pulp
and print paper which has failed to result in legislative action; also an investigation of the charges brought by Representative Lilley, affecting the conduct of members of congress concerning submarine boat legislation,
which resulted in a severe arraignment
of Lilley himself.

Russian Journalistic Amities
St. Petersburg, May 23.—Paul N.
Milkoff, the leader of the Constitutional Democrats in the duma and editor of The Rech, was the victim of an assault at the hands of two editors of the Liberal organ, Russ, whom The Rech had accused of blackmailing banks and the improper conversion of popular funds. The editors, in the course of a conversation with Milkoff, struck him in the face, knocking him
to the floor of his office, where they left him bleeding from his wounds.

Record Flight of Aeroplane
Hammondsport, N. Y., May 23.—G.
H. Curtiss made a flight of 339 yards,
1017 feet, in Baldwin's aeroplane, White Wing. The machine was under perfect control and was steered first to the right and then to the left before landing. The 339 yards was covered in nineteen seconds, or at the rate of thirty-seven miles an hour. This flight is the world's record for a first attempt.

Resignation Follows Probe

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 23.—James
H. Wade, for twenty-five years secretary of the University of Michigan,
submitted his resignation to the board of regents and it was unanimously accepted. The resignation followed an investigation centering around the alleged improper use of coal, painting,
building materials and workmen's time
to an amount estimated at about $5000.

Lightning Hits Historic Church

Philadelphia, May 23.—During a severe storm the spire of the old Christ church on Second street was struck by lightning and damaged by fire to the extent of $15,000. The church was erected in 1685 and was the church of Lisbon, May 23.—Former Minister of Finance Carvalho, who challenged Alfonso Costa, one of the Republican leaders in the chamber of deputies, to a duel because Costa declared the Francoist ministers had abandoned every shred of political and private honor, met Costa in the lobby of the chamber and the two pumelled each other vigorously for several minutes. The spectacle was only ended by the intervention of other deputies. Both men bore numerous marks of the fray.

Early Season
At Houghs Neck

Sunday will open the summer season at Houghs Neck. The usual opening day is Memorial day, but the weather has been so warm for the past two weeks that nearly all the business people have made arrangements to open their businesses earlier.

The gas has been installed in the streets and the gas company has started to make connections at the houses and stores.

Arthur LaBrique has put his yacht the "We Two" into the water. The We Two is one of the fastest of the smaller boats in the bay.

Miss Edna Bird of Rogers street is visiting friends in Brockton for a few days.

William Murphy of Dorchester and Wallace Higgins of Everett were the guests of the O'Briens of Manet avenue this week.

Rock Island has been built up very much during the last few months. Pawsey's farm has been cut up into house lots.

Frank A. Leavitt has taken possession of his new house on Bay View avenue, facing Dorchester bay.

Mrs. Taylor has opened a home bakery at the corner of Shennan and Sea streets. Try her once.

The membership committee of the Houghs Neck Associates are doing some hustling. It is the aim of that committee to make the association one of the largest of its kind in New England. It is one of the largest improvement association as far as getting results counts.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Catarius of Roxbury are in their cottage on Parkhurst street.

Thomas Berry of Sherman street is making some improvements on his cottages.

The people of Houghs Neck are pleased to hear that there is a possible chance that Boston boat will run.

There is a movement on foot among the young men to organize a ball team. The only trouble is that after the team has been formed a ball field will have to be found. The field that the ball teams have been using in the past, has been built on. At present there is no vacant land available.

The appearance of the Casino has been greatly improved by a coat of paint.

Quincy High Defeated.

In an interesting game at the park yesterday Quincy was beaten by Watertown High 6 to 4. The game was Keohern played good ball while the though Quincy might pull out a victory. A base on balls, a hit and an error put three men on bases. Curtis stole home from third, making it 6 to 4. The next three men, however, went out in order. Curtis and Keohern played good ball while the pitching of Bates who struck out 11 men and gave only 3 bases on balls, was the finest seen on the field this year.

Newsy Budget
From Shipyard

Tee powerful searchlights on the scout cruiser Salem at the shipyard were tested for four hours last evening, and the whole city as well as Weymouth, Braintree, Randolph, Hingham, Hull, Milton and other towns were illuminated.

A Boston paper reports that two hundred members and guests attended the annual banquet of the Salem Board of Trade in Ames Memorial hall at Salem Thursday evening. Charles A. Archer presided and the principal guests were Captain A. L. Key, who is to be commander of the scout cruiser Salem, and Ralph D. Paine. Captain Key said that in all probability the cruiser Salem would not be in readiness to visit the port during Old Home Week in July. He spoke earnestly in favor of a larger navy, not only as a safeguard against war, but as a necessity in helping to build up the merchant marine. Police service on the sea is imperative, he said, if the interests of the country are to be maintained, enlarged and guarded. He suggested the organization of a naval league, conferring that such an organization throughout the country would insure the unification of sentiment and make effective more legislation in favor of a larger navy.

A Washington dispatch to the Transcript says: It has been practically decided by the Navy Department on the advice of the naval officers who have to do with the preparedness of ships for war, to make the dock at the new Pearl Harbor Station the largest of the naval structures of that sort. It will be of the granite concrete type, which is best suited to withstand the influences of climate and resist the encroachments of water, and large enough to take in battleships which may be designed the next twenty-five years. The Pearl Harbor dock will probably be nearly nine hundred feet in length.

The Pearl Harbor drydock will easily be the largest naval structure of its kind and will be nearly 150 feet longer than any other. At present our largest dock is the one at League Island, which is 754 feet 7 inches long, next comes that at Mare Island, 752 feet long, then follow those at Portsmouth and Boston at 750 feet. The other docks range from 668 to 120 feet in length.

Tools Not Identified.

Officer Lyons in company with Officer McLaughlin of the Fore River Company, armed with a search warrant, visited the boarding house of Henry Lydman on East Howard street yesterday afternoon to search for tools alleged to have been stolen from the Fore River Co. The officers found tools and steel to the value of upwards of $300. These were in addition to that found Thursday in the tool chest taken from Newcomb's store. When the case was heard in court witnesses for the Fore River Co. could not positively identify any of the tools as their property and the court ordered his discharge.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Castle Square Theatre.

All the delights of comic opera will be experienced at the Castle Square next week, when the second week of the opera season will begin with a gala revival of Robin Hood. This popular work never lacked a welcome in Boston, and it will be remembered for its triumphal run of two weeks at the opening of the Castle Square opera season last year. With its music by Reginald de Koven and its libretto by Harry B. Smith, it lacks none of those elements that bring success to a comic opera. Its plot is genuinely humorous, its music is delightfully melodious, and its characters are attractive and picturesque. In fact Robin Hood has no rivals among modern American comic operas. For his coming season, Mr. W. G. Masson, who will retain direction of the theatre, has engaged a company which includes all the old favorite singers, and a number of important acquisitions.

Keith's Theatre.

Comedy is seemingly the key-note in the program that has been arranged for next week at Keith's. The principal features will be Jesse Lasky's capital novelty, "A Night on a House Boat," a most seasonable act, coming as it does at a time when the thoughts of most people are largely concerned with plans for vacations and with ways of passing the warm weather in the most comfort. The presentation is one of the most elaborate that has ever been made for vaudeville and is a very charming picture scientifically, while the action and the songs are bright and snappy. Captain George Auger, the tallest man in the world and his company, which includes that great midget comedian, Ernest Rommel, will play "Jack the Giant Killer." It is a great attraction for the youngsters.

Boston Theatre.

Notwithstanding the fact that in every instance the success of the plays put on at the Boston for a run was such as to more than justify the management in continuing them, it has been decided to return to the established stock idea of presenting each play for one week only, with the possibility of putting it on again at a future date, if the patrons of the theatre so desire. This means a change of bill every week, and in order to do so a splendid list of Frohman, Belasco and Loebler successes have been secured for the summer season. The first of these will be presented next week, "The Other Girl"—one of the most popular plays ever written by Augustus Thomas. The thread of the story on which the plot hangs is an extremely thin one and yet the complications are such that they hold the interest from the start and give good drama and bright comedy in almost equal parts. The full strength of the Boston Stock Company will appear in this piece.

Majestic Theatre.

The quaint comedian, Ezra Kendall, who is making everybody happy at the Majestic Theatre, Boston, with Geo. Ade's play "The Land of Dollars," will begin the second week of his engagement at that theatre Monday night. In "The Land of Dollars," which is one of Mr. Ade's most humorous comedies, the character that Mr. Kendall plays is that of a millionaire who loses his money, but suddenly becomes rich again and starts to spend his millions and gives his friends at Billerica a good time and so he does, for he takes them to Revere Beach where they enjoy themselves immensely.

Ten Starters In Q. Y. C. Race

The Quincy Yacht club opened its racing season Saturday with a race for the cape cats, in which there is an unusual interest this year, as it is to this class that the Vase cups will be awarded.

There were ten starters. At the start there was a light southeasterly breeze, which however freshened before the finish so that it was necessary for some of the craft to tuck in a reef.

The fleet was sent twice around a triangle which gave a reach, a run and a beat to windward. At the start the Almira, Arawak and Iris crossed well bunched. The Almira soon forced into the lead, which she held to the first mark with the Emeline and Iris close to her. This order was maintained to the second mark when the Iris forged ahead, and led the fleet on turning the judges boat the first time round. During the first round the Busy Bee carried away her hobby but she remained in the race.

During the second round the wind had so freshened the Emeline and Arawak were obliged to shorten sail. During the second round the positions of the Iris and Almira were not changed. The Mudjokeewis, however, pulled into third place, and the Hustler beat out the Arawak for fifth position. The Dolly and Josephine went over the course but as they had not been measured they will not count in the club championship.

It was surprise to many to see the yacht Mudjokeewis again enter the local racing field. The yacht has been at Sea View for several years. She made a good showing.

Goblin Won on Time Allowance

The opening race under the auspices of the Wollaston Yacht club was sailed Saturday afternoon off the club house at Wollaston beach in a whistlesouthwest breeze. The race was for all classes, overall measurements being used for time allowance.

A race for power boats was also scheduled, but only three of this class showed up. One of these broke down and the other two did not race.

The yachts went over a seven mile course. It was a close race from start to finish between the Stranger and Goblin. The Stranger had the best of the race but at the finish Commodore Dawes crossed the line the wrong way. He had to come about and cross a second time. This lost him some seconds, but even with this the Stranger led by 1 minute and 5 seconds actual time. Corrected time gave the race to the Goblin.

The judges were William M. Chase, A. B. Robbins and W. F. Reynolds.

The summary:

C. A. R. SUNDAY

Veterans Attend Patriotic Services At Two of the Local Churches

In accordance with its time honored custom the members of Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., attended divine services in a body on Sunday. They were accompanied by the Women's Relief Corps, the Spanish War Veterans and Ladies Aid Society. In the morning they attended special services at the Water Street Presbyterian church whose pastor Rev. N. J. Sproul is the chaplain of the post.

In addition to the bodies mentioned, there were a large number of citizens present. Large American flags were plentifully displayed in honor of the occasion. One of these was directly in the rear of the pulpit, and another in front, while on the walls were groups of smaller flags.

During the services there was singing by the choir and congregation, the organ being accompanied by cornet and violin. Mrs. Robert Grant sang a beautiful solo, "I'm a Pilgrim" and the children of the Sunday school sang "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Rev. Mr. Sproul, the pastor, took for his subject Paul's second letter to Timothy, 4th chapter, 6th verse—"For I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand."

In opening, the pastor said that he was glad to have the Grand Army and kindred associations present. Every one was sorry to see the ranks growing thinner, but we must expect it.

The words of the text were those of an old soldier to Jesus Christ. Paul was an old soldier and had seen service of the hardest kind. He buckled on his sword for the last time, and with the trophies brought them to the feet of Him who commissioned him to be a soldier, and said "I am ready to be offered." It means a great deal to be prepared. To know peace and enjoy the safety of it there is need of preparation. The first victories of the Southern troops were because the North was not prepared.

The time of departure is a crucial one in every person. Although nearly fifty years have passed since you veterans heard that call, you can never forget the hour of your departure. So, today, after a quarter of century, you may hear another summons, and it must be ringing in your ears—"The hour of my departure is at hand."

In these times of peace we are living for the future, for the incoming of God's kingdom. Let us realize the purpose of God's grace in this battle of life. Do unto others as ye would they should do unto you, and remember our obligations to God. The great need of your life and mine is Christ. If we lay hold of him as Paul said, there is laid up for us a crown of righteousness.

At Bethany Church.

There was another large audience Sunday evening at Bethany Congregational church, when the same organizations occupied the seats off the centre aisle. It was a patriotic service with a special musical program arranged by Mne. Morey, the organist. Two beautiful numbers were "Tenting on the old camp ground" and "The battle hymn of the Republic," sung as solos and chorus, the soloists being Mr. Whyte and Mrs. Moore.

Rev. Dr. Hardy, the pastor, gave his lecture on "Abraham Lincoln," which was most appropriate and very interesting. He gave the life of Lincoln in eight pictures, the first the burial scene of his mother when he was but a youth, and told of her influence on his life; he spoke also of his father, and their humble surroundings. In the second picture of Lincoln's struggle for an education. Third, of his resolve at New Orleans at a slave auction to strike hard at slavery when opportunity offered. Fourth, of his public career in Congress and debates and of his nomination for President. Fifth, of his election as President and farewell to Springfield, Ill., and later of the trying ordeal of the Civil War, of his prayer for victory at Gettysburg which was answered. Sixth, of the celebration of victory at Gettysburg and his memorable speech. Seventh, the news of the surrender of Lee, and a resume of the cost of war. Eighth, the assassination of Lincoln, and a tribute to his memory.

The service closed with the singing of "America," and the audience remained standing while the veterans and W. R. C. filed out.

Scores of base ball games played Saturday will not be published here unless the scores reach the office before 9 A. M. on Monday.

WORK NOT RESUMED

Agreement in The Granite Industry Not Signed

Work was not resumed in the granite yards this morning, as expected, because the agreement has not been signed.

It was reported about town that the reason was, because of the failure of the Quincy Manufacturers' Association to meet.

President Miller reports that the association did meet, but that the letter promised by Secretary Duncan of the National Granite Cutters' Union was not forthcoming, so that there was nothing upon which to act.

Mr. Miller says Mr. Duncan promised at the conference last week to send a letter in explanation of the disputed articles in the previous agreement, but none had been received.

It is hoped on all sides that the agreement may be ratified this evening that work may be resumed tomorrow.

Early Season At Houghs Neck

The Citizens Gas Light Co. did a rush job laying its mains to Houghs Neck, gas being turned on there for the first time Friday, May 22. Up to Saturday night upwards of eighty orders for gas ranges had been received, and Saturday half a dozen gangs of men were at work making house connections for these ranges. Quite a number were set up and were used for the first time Saturday night. Orders have also been received for house and store lighting.

The laying of mains to this section represents an outlay of $50,000 and goes to show that Quincy now has a progressive gas company. The laying of mains to Houghs Neck will give this section of the city a new boom, as well as doing away with many gasoline stoves, which have caused many fires.

Thousands of visitors spent Sunday at Houghs Neck. All day long the electricians were crowded with people from Quincy and surrounding cities and towns. The day was an ideal one for the opening day of the season. There were many yachts and other boats in the bay and quite a few ventured in the water for a swim. The crowd was one of the most orderly that ever visited the beach. The safety committee of the Houghs Neck Associates were out in full force but found everything quiet.

There will be dancing at Pandora hall every evening. Winchesters orchestra Wednesday and Saturday evenings till June 17. Houghs Neck orchestra other nights. J. A. Graham manager.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lane of Atlantic avenue entertained a party of friends from Boston Sunday.

The motor boat Carrie was put into the water Saturday. The Carrie is owned by Walter Garland of Charleston.

Another dance on Wednesday evening at Brown's dance hall. There was a large party on Saturday evening.

Archie Thayer entertained the crowd all day by his speeches on Socialism. Archie is getting to be a land mark.

The broad verandas of the Q. Y. C. clubhouse were crowded with members Sunday.

The Steamers have taken possession of their cottage on Winthrop street.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Mains of Bay View avenue entertained a few friends on Sunday. The party were given a sail on the power boat Alert and then enjoyed a shore dinner at Peddocks.

Mrs. Taylor has opened a home bakery at the corner of Shennan and Sea streets. Try her once.

Challenge Races.

Considerable interest is being taken by the members of the Quincy Yacht club in the rivalry between the power tenders owned by H. W. Robbins and Emery Bros. Both claim to have the fastest boat, and a cup has been offered to be known as the Emery-Robbins cup, to be raced for each year.

UNHAPPY LIBERIANS

Delegation Reaches Washington
In Search of Consolation

TROUBLES OF LONG STANDING

Little African Republic Has Never Been "on Her Feet" Since America Undertook Colonization of Liberated Slaves—A Bit of History

Washington, May 25.—Secretary
Root has made an appointment to receive this week a delegation now in this city representing the republic of Liberia, which has come from the west coast of Africa to ask counsel and aid in the many troubles which have continuously beset the effort to colonize the freed slaves of America, which began
the latter part of the eighteenth century.
It is admitted officially that Liberia,
from the standpoint of nations, is in practically a helpless and hopeless condition. Her latest tribulation is, in effect, an ultimatum from England to maintain a better government.

Although the United States is virtually responsible for the existence of Liberia, diplomatic history shows that this government has hesitated to stand sponsor for the little republic
before the world. Thomas Jefferson's name first appears in the story of Liberia. In 1781 he advocated the abolition of slavery and the colonization of the freed slaves. In 1800 the government of Virginia, directed by the legislature of his state, took up the question with the president by correspondence. Africa was selected as an appropriate site, and in 1816 Maryland joined Virginia in the undertaking to colonize.

In 1818 the slave trade was made statutory piracy in this country, and the following year it was provided by law that negroes from captured slavers should be safely kept, supported and
"removed beyond the limits of the United States." This act carried an appropriation of $100,000, and from this time until 1845 additional appropriations were made.

To carry out this act, the government
chartered the ship Elizabeth and made provision for conveying and settling in Africa, on a site selected by agents sent by President Monroe, 300 liberated slaves. The offer of transportation was extended to all free blacks, but the Elizabeth sailed with only eighty-six on Feb. 6, 1820.

On reaching the African coast the natives refused to sell the land they had agreed to, and the two agents and a third of the colonists died from fever.
The next year a further attempt was made and twenty-eight colonists were sent out, but the renewed effort to purchase land failed. This government then sent Eli Ayres and the armed naval schooner Alligator, commanded by Lieutenant Stockton.

The effort resulted in the purchase of a coast strip of land 130 miles long and 40 broad, with perpetual tenure. The price paid was a miscellaneous assortment of trading goods, muskets, powder, tobacco, umbrellas, hats, soap, calico and rum. These supplies were furnished by the colonization society
which had undertaken to co-operate with this government. This purchase is given as the last direct act of the United States government towards the settlement, although the government
from time to time sent liberated negroes
to the colony.

The first huts were built by the colonists in 1822, and that same year the colonists were assisted by the British to repel an attack by the natives. In June, 1824, the United States steamer
Porpoise arrived there with an additional band of colonists and gave the colony the name "Liberia." Several years later various states of this country established settlements and the interests of these independent and rival settlements clashed from the first.

A Federation was effected in Liberia in 1837, when a commonwealth was formed, governed by a board of directors. It possessed no allegiance to any power nor was it recognized by any sovereign as an independent state. It soon encountered trouble, however, for
in 1842 it attempted to collect revenue on imports. Great Britain objected and ultimately patrolled the coast with armed vessels to force the customary free trade. At this time Liberia sought the aid of the United States and received sympathetic advice, and the matter was the subject of much correspondence between Washington and London.

On Aug. 24, 1847, the republic of Liberia, with a constitution, was inaugurated, this step being taken upon advice of the state colonization societies.
No opposition to this step was made by England and the republic was recognized as an independent nation.

Then began British and French boundary disputes, which have been gradually settled by Liberia humbly yielding to the demands of her stronger opponents. The difficulty of maintaining order in the territory she possessed
has been one of her tribulations.
Just what is to be the outcome of the present appeal to the United States for aid is a question upon which officials undertake to throw no light. That a feeling of sympathy is apparent, and the position of the United States with reference to the weak republic is one which would seem to demand a measure of consideration, seems a fair conclusion.

TROLLEY CARS CRASH

Three Persons Killed and Five Fatally Hurt in Philadelphia Suburb Philadelphia, May 25.—Three persons were instantly killed, at least five others were so badly injured that there is no hope for their recovery, and forty-five were seriously hurt in a collision between trolley cars on Germantown avenue, near Chestnut Hill, a suburb
in the northern section of the city.

Forty-five persons were taken to the Chestnut Hill and Germantown hospitals, each of which is several miles from the scene of the accident, and many were taken away in automobiles
by the wealthy residents of the exclusive district of Chestnut Hill. They were treated by private physicians and in consequence details about the injured cannot be obtained.
A large car had stopped at the foot of a grade to discharge passengers. A smaller car loaded to the guards bowed down the grade behind it and was unable to stop. The smaller car was of older type than the large car and its platform was built about two feet lower. When the little car struck the standing one, the impact forced the smaller car under the large one and the platform of the latter cut off the upper body of the small car and crushed
the first four rows of cross-seats.

Newspaper Blackmailed Bank
St. Petersburg, May 25.—Paul N.
Milukoff, leader of the Constitutional Democrats in the duma and editor of The Rech, is receiving messages from all sections of Russia expressing indignation at the brutal attack made upon him by two editors of the Liberal organ, Russ. Milukoff's assailants, Popoff and Klinkoff, have been forced to retire from journalism. The minister of finance has in his possession incriminating documents under which to institute judicial proceedings against The Russ
on the charge of blackmailing banks.

Congregation Sticks to Goodell
New York, May 25.—Rev. Charles L.
Goodell, pastor of Calvary Methodist church, whose candidacy for bishop at the Baltimore Methodist general conference was affected when reports were spread that he figured in divorce proceedings nearly a quarter of a century ago, was the recipient of remarkable demonstrations of affection and esteem
by the members of large congregations
at both services yesterday.

Airship Failed to Work
Oakland, Cal., May 25.—A mammoth airship, on its trial trip in Berkeley, rose 300 feet from the earth, in view of 10,000 spectators, tilted, burst and dropped to the ground with its crew of sixteen men, every one of whom was injured. With the possible of L.
V. Rogers, the engineer, all will recover.
Seven were severely hurt, while nine were bruised and cut.

Killed Wife and Child
Newark, N. J., May 25.—Ernest Terwiler killed his 18-year-old wife and their unborn child by choking the woman
during a quarrel. He is under special guard in the city prison because many infuriated citizen set up a cry for summary vengeance about the prison
when the crime became known. Terwiler was jealous of his wife.

Long Paper Hearing Ends
Washington, May 25.—The investigation into the print paper and wood pulp question, which has been conducted by a special committee of the house for more than a month past, has closed, as far as the taking of testimony is concerned. Chairman Mann is anxious to make a report before the adjournment of congress.

Demented Man Stabs Priest
Salisbury, Mo., May 25.—Rev. Joseph F. Lubeley, aged 33, pastor of St.
Joseph's Catholic church, was stabbed twice with a pocketknife and perhaps fatally injured in church by Joseph Schmitt, a farmer, who is believed to have become suddenly demented. A panic was narrowly averted among the communicants.

Lightning Kills a Merchant
St. Louis, May 25.—W. H. Howard, a wealthy commission merchant, was killed by lightning during a rainstorm
which swept over St. Louis. Howard, who was a member of a golf club, left off playing and sought the shelter of a tree when it began to rain. The lightning ran down the tree, killing him instantly.

Autos Ploughing Through Mud
Nikolsk, Russia, May 25.—The American car in the New York-to-Paris automobile race is again in the lead, arriving here after two days of ploughing
the muddest of roads. It overtook the German car a few miles out of Vidivostok. Nikolsk is about 100 miles from Vladivostok.

Steamer Wedged on Shore
New York, May 25.—With her bow wedged tightly on the shore of Ward's island, steamship H. M. Whitney, which grounded late Saturday night
while picking her way through the Hell Gate channel en route to Boston, is still ashore. The Whitney carried no passengers.

Work Resumed in Coal Fields
Huntington, W. Va., May 25.—In the Elkhorn and Pocahontas coal fields more than 2000 miners who have been idle owing to slack business resumed work today. One thousand men were put to work in the Thacker and Matewan field after an idleness of five months.

EXPENSIVE LETTERS

It Cost Platt $10,000 to Have Them Returned to Him

MAE WOOD NOT DISCOURAGED

Thinks It Will Be Difficult to Convict
Her of Forgery and Perjury—Evidence That She Is Not Without Friends, as Was Supposed

New York, May 25.—Another chapter in one of the most remarkable legal actions that has been heard in the New York courts in a long time will begin when the charges of perjury and forgery against Mae C. Wood, the former newspaper woman and lawyer of Omaha, who sued United States Senator Thomas C. Platt for divorce, will be laid before a grand jury.

Unusual public interest has centered
in the Wood-Platt case chiefly on account of the prominence of the senator, whom Miss Wood made the defendant in her suit for divorce. With the infirmities of age heavy upon him, Platt was obliged to go upon the witness stand and to undergo cross-examination by opposing counsel.

Miss Wood's suit involved many sensational charges and it was fortified
by documentary evidence until Justice O'Gorman declared there was evidence of forgery and that he believed Miss Wood had committed perjury to sus-tain her charges. Her case rested mainly upon a certificate which she averred
was given her on the night of her alleged marriage to Platt in November, 1901, and upon a copy of a letter which she insisted she received from Platt,
in which he appeared to acknowledge
her as his legal wife.

Senator Platt's denial of the alleged marriage was supported by the affidavit
of a woman who explained the letter of acknowledgment by saying that she obtained the senator's autograph
on a blank sheet of paper and gave it to Miss Wood, but it was not until the printer of the blank form of the marriage certificate testified that the form was not printed until three months after the alleged marriage that Miss Wood's case collapsed and the justice dismissed the suit and ordered the plaintiff committed on charges of forgery and perjury.

Miss Wood was taken to the Tombs prison on Thursday. During her stay there she has manifested cheerfulness unusual in a person committed under such serious charges and has endeavored to comfort herself by her conclusion, which she expressed at the time of her arrest, that the burden of proof now rests upon those who are prosecuting her and that it will be more difficult to convict her than to overthrow her action for divorce.

For several days it appeared that the woman was without friends, but this was disproven on Saturday, when bail to the extent of $5000 was offered by a surety company. This offer could not be accepted, owing to the lateness of the hour when the tender was made,
but it probably will be repeated today.
Rumors that Miss Wood is supported by friends who are possessed of strong resource were revived by the offer of bail, but her counsel declined to disclose their identity, and Miss Wood has made no public mention of such friends if she has them.

Although Platt testified that it cost him $10,000 to get possession of the letters he wrote to Miss Wood, he has since been quoted as saying: "I am sorry for the woman, but she undoubtedly deserves punishment."

Both Platt and Miss Wood are quoted as denying a rumor that the senator's agents had something to do with the offer of bail for her. But Miss Wood asserts that since her commitment she has been asked whether she would plead guilty to the perjury charge if she were paid for doing so
and that she informed her questioner
that she would die in jail first.

Should an indictment be returned against Miss Wood it is not improbable
that Platt will be a witness.

THE MARCH OF PEACE

Accelerated by Approval of Many Treaties by the Senate

GREAT GAIN FOR ARBITRATION

Newfoundland Fisheries Question and Dominion Boundary Dispute Are Disposed Of—Japan In Group of Nations Committed to Arbitration

Washington, May 25.—With little discussion and less publicity, the United States senate has approved during this session thirty-seven treaties—more in number, if not in importance, than had been ratified during the twenty years preceding. In making effective so many agreements with the nations, international advancement has been made along three distinct lines.

Twelve nations have agreed by treaty with the United States to arbitrate future disputes, which is taken to mean nothing less than that the world has now been established on the plane of arbitration. The foundation for continued friendly procedure in adjusting questions with the Orient is believed to be contained in the treaties with and the legislation in respect to Japan, to which is to be added the friendly visit of the fleet to that part of the world. A basis of settlement has been arrived at with Great Britain, by which the long-standing and disputations questions between Canada and the United States are assured of satisfactory adjustment.

To these important international accomplishments, directed by Secretary Root, may be added a number of lesser magnitude. The territory available as asylum for the fugitive from justice has been further restricted through extradition treaties with Spain, Portugal, Uruguay and San Marino, while naturalization treaties have been concluded with Peru, Salvador and Portugal.

The gain for arbitration is regarded as a distinct victory for American diplomacy, initiated by the instructions to the American delegates to The Hague conference. The result so far is the approval of general arbitration treaties with Great Britain, Japan, France, Italy, Spain, Switzerland, Mexico, Portugal, Netherlands, Sweden and Denmark. Besides the general arbitration treaty, eleven of the international treaties resulting from The Hague conference were approved. They include agreements on these subjects:

Recovery of contract debts, opening of hostilities, laws and customs of war on land, rights and duties of neutral powers, submarine contact mines, bombardment of naval forces, naval war and the Geneva convention, right of capture in naval war, discharging projectiles from balloons, and the final act of the peace conference.

As to the Orient, the important accomplishment is bringing Japan into the group of nations committed to arbitration. Besides this are the conventions with that country which guarantee in Korea and China protection for inventions, trademarks and copyrights. Then there is the good fellowship which is manifested in the manner this government is preparing to participate in the Tokio exposition in 1912. The paramount question for adjustment between the United States and Japan is that of immigration, and it is the desire that the negotiations which have been going on with gratifying results may continue free from influences of prejudice or passion.

In the adjustment of the Canadian questions a century and a quarter of strife will be brought to an end. But greater even than this is regarded the moral effect on the world of the two great powers making practical use of the arbitration principle. This principle is to be invoked in adjusting the Newfoundland fisheries question. It is freely admitted that, with the increasing population of both countries and the continuance of the vexations which arise on the Newfoundland banks, the alternative of a settlement would be the maintenance of two great naval fleets in those waters, one by Great Britain to enforce her interpretation of the laws and the other by the United States to maintain the rights of American fishermen. The Hague tribunal will settle this dispute.

The Dominion boundary dispute is adjusted for the first time and for all time, according to the belief of officials, which, in itself, is regarded as a great accomplishment. A commission of experts will run the lines according to the specifications of the treaty agreement. The inland fisheries are to be regulated, and steps are to be taken to increase the supply by a joint commission. An agreement regulating salvage and the exchange of prisoners was also concluded.

In but one instance did the senate fail to comply with the request of Secretary Root on the question of treaties. It failed to approve the convention making international regulations for the receipt and transmission of wireless messages. It is predicted that this treaty will be agreed to later.

Long Embargo to Be Lifted

Caracas, May 25.—President Castro has issued a decree that in view of the fact that no new cases of the bubonic plague have appeared during the past eight days at La Guaira, the port will be opened to United States and European trade, beginning May 25, and to coastwise and interior trade on May 29.

GOT OUT IN A HURRY

Occupants of Tenement Houses

Barely Escaped Death From Fire
Athol, Mass., May 25.—Two buildings, in which were five stores and a number of tenements, were burned early today. Some of the occupants of one of the buildings had to be removed through the windows, but all escaped safely. The fire started in a three-story wooden building owned by Robert J. Simpson occupied on the ground floor by stores. The upper stories were occupied by tenements. This building was practically consumed, while a story and a half wooden structure belonging to the Charles H. Tyler estate and occupied by the grocery store of Arthur H. Bowker was also burned.

The tenements in the Simpson building were largely used for lodging house purposes, and the many occupants who were asleep when the fire was discovered at 12:30 had to get out hurriedly, some of them without saving any of their effects. Two women who were unable to make their exit by the stairway were taken down ladders by the firemen. The total loss is estimated at $40,000.

Overdue Full Rigger Is Safe

Boston, May 25.—Hindered in her passage by strong head winds and at other times becalmed, the British full-rigged steel ship Pass of Balmaha was picked up off Thatcher's island and towed into Boston harbor by a tug, twenty-four days overdue. The ship left Leith, Scotland, April 1, in ballast for Boston. Beyond being buffeted by heavy seas a part of the passage, the crew suffered no trouble from the delay, the ship being well provisioned.

Dartmouth Excels in Athletics

Brookline, Mass., May 25.—A well balanced team of athletes won for Dartmouth the New England intercollegiate championship for the third successive year. Dartmouth finished with a total of 40 points, with Bowdoin second, 19 points; Wesleyan and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology tied for third place at 18 points; Williams won 16 points, Amherst 15, Brown 10, Maine 4, Trinity 3, Tufts and Vermont 1 each.

Schooner Cut In Two

Boston, May 25.—During a thick fog, steamer Governor Dingley, from Portland, Me., for Boston, collided with and cut in two the little schooner Arthur Clifford eight miles to the eastward of Thatcher's island. The schooner's crew of two men were rescued by a boat sent out from the steamer. The Clifford was in ballast, bound from Boston to Portland for cargo.

Sunk to Prevent Destruction

Bridgeport, Conn., May 25.—The thirty-five-foot cabin power boat Canessa of Greenpoint, L. I., which put into this port for gasoline, caught fire while at a wharf and was saved from being destroyed by some boys who, with the two men who were aboard, capsized and sank the boat. One of the men was burned severely about the face.

Exercise For Cavalry Troops

Burlington, Vt., May 25.—Major Mercer, commanding officer of Fort Ethan Allen, has received orders from the war department to march on May 27 with seven troops of cavalry and to proceed to Felt Plains, N. Y., to take part there in the national army maneuvers. The march overland will begin May 27 and Felt Plains will be reached on June 12.

Killed by Live Wire

Accident in Hurdle Jumping

Boston, May 25.—Miss Katherine Roosevelt of this city, a relative of President Roosevelt, was thrown from her horse while jumping hurdles at the Country Club races, the horse falling upon her and breaking her left ankle.

Uncle Sam Watching the Congo

Brussels, May 25.—The American government is closely watching the Congo developments. Passive support is being given to Great Britain, whose negotiations with Belgium have the following general objects: First, freedom of trade and suppression of many existing concessions; second, the suppression of forced labor by the negroes and generally the substitution of a regime in conformity with the humanitarian aims of the Berlin treaty.

To Be Welcomed With Bonfires

Sydney, Australia, May 25.—Arrangements have been made for the British, Australia and China squadrons to meet the American fleet of battleships, on the occasion of its visit here, some miles outside of Sydney. Huge bonfires will be lighted on the headlands on the receipt of a flashlight signal, notifying the watchers that the fleet has been sighted.

Exertion Burst Blood Vessel

St. Louis, May 25.—Anxious to make up for an error previously committed, John R. Parry, an amateur baseball player, put forth great effort in a long throw from deep left field to the home plate during a game between two local baseball teams. He burst a blood vessel and fell dead as the ball reached the catcher and put out the player who was trying to steal home.

Against Ocean Mail Subsidies

Washington, May 25.—The house wrestled again with the subject of mail subsidies to steamship companies and once more recorded itself against the proposal by the vote of 145 to 154. The debate was very lengthy.

Opening of Whitmore Trial

Newark, N. J., May 25.—Last Christmas night, near the desolate Lamp Black swamp in Harrison, a suburb, Mrs. Helena Whitmore was murdered and her body, stripped of clothing, was thrown into the foul pond, where it was found the following day. Theodore S. Whitmore, husband of the murdered woman, was placed on trial here today, charged with the crime. A chain of circumstantial evidence has been forged against Whitmore, it is declared, by Prosecutor Garven, but Whitmore's attorney says he is confident that the accused man will be acquitted.

Traffic Held Up by Rain

Muskogee, Okla., May 25.—Not a railroad in Oklahoma is in operation as a result of heavy rains and cloud-bursts in various parts of the state during the past three days. The last road to suspend operations was the Missouri, Kansas and Texas, which was forced to quit yesterday when the bridge on the main line at Eufaula went down. The main supplying natural gas to the Indian Territory part of the state was carried away from the Clarksville bridge and the supply of gas for Muskogee and several other cities has been entirely cut off.

Suicide of a Murderer

New York, May 25.—Returning to the neighborhood from which he had fled after killing Miss Nina E. Doane by shooting in her grandmother's home in Brooklyn, Kansas made way with himself on Fulton street by shooting himself in the breast. His body was found lying in the street several hours after he had killed Miss Doane, and wounded her intended husband, Thomas Faulkner.

Persians Given Time to Settle

St. Petersburg, May 25.—The emperor and the viceroy of the Caucasus have sanctioned an extension of the time limit of the Russian ultimatum in the case of the Persian bandits, demanding the paying of an indemnity for their depredations, Persia having assured Russia that whatever measures might be necessary will be taken to fulfill the Russian demands.

Attainment of Full Manhood

New York, May 25.—Taking as his theme "A Full Grown Man" for the baccalaureate sermon, beginning the 154th commencement of Columbia university, Rev. Paul R. Frothingham of Boston spoke of the one-sidedness of modern American life and declared that the full growth of character can only be obtained by the development of moral and spiritual attributes.

Government Majority Reduced

Brussels, May 25.—Parliamentary elections were held yesterday to replace eighty-one members of the chamber of deputies and forty senators, whose terms of four years have expired. Complete returns are not available, but, contrary to expectations, the results so far indicate that the government majority will be reduced considerably.

Death of Actor Putnam

New York, May 25.—Boyd Putnam, leading man this season for the Lillian Russell company, died at Irvington, N. Y., from Bright's disease, which developed during a nervous breakdown. Putnam became ill early in March and retired from the stage. He was 43 years old and had been on the stage for twenty-one years.

The Observations
In the Daily Walk

The last week of May.

Memorial Day next Saturday.

The City Council Committee on Licenses will meet tonight.

An eight-page Daily Ledger will be issued on Friday, but no paper on Saturday.

The double tracking of Hancock street will be well along toward completion by Saturday night. The new tracks between Music hall and School street were in use Sunday.

Edward Flaherty has resigned his position as driver of Hook and Ladder 3 of West Quincy to accept an appointment as mounted officer of the Metropolitan Park Commission.

The state executive board of the steam engineers' union will meet next Sunday at 955 Washington street to arrange for the state convention at Quincy, Sunday, June 14.

Special Officer Whelan has been detailed for night duty at Wollaston in addition to the regular officer. An additional officer will go on duty at Houghs Neck commencing May 30.

The funeral of the late William Russell of Billings street was held Sunday afternoon and attended by many friends and relatives. Rev. H. G. Megathlin of the Park and Dows church officiated.

F. F. and H. Everett Crane entertained a party of gentlemen friends from Holyoke and this city at their summer cottage at Post Island, over the weeks end. All pronounced it a very enjoyable time.

Morris Fitzgerald, father of Chief of Police Thomas Fitzgerald of Weymouth, passed away at his home on Phillips street, Weymouth, this morning. He was 80 years of age. He leaves two sons and a daughter.

As far as possible teams should avoid Hancock street between School street and City hall, using Chestnut and Elm streets or Washington and Elm streets. During the work of double tracking the street is very much congested.

Judging from the excellent use that the Civic Betterment committee in Atlantic have made of their fund, it would seem that any venture to raise money for further improvement of Atlantic would meet with hearty approval and generous help.

Capt. Daniel Higgins tells the true story of the grounding of the schooner in Town river last week; he reports that in leaving the dock of the Johnson Lumber Company the wheel rope became jammed, with the result that the boat was ashore before it could be cleared.

Miss Beatrice Penley, who underwent an operation at the Boothby Hospital Boston, several weeks ago, is improving rapidly and returned to her home at Wollaston last week.

The first round for the Wollaston golf championship on Saturday resulted in victories for George Wright, S. B. Read, A. H. Goodale, W. L. D. Doten, G. H. Russell, J. E. McLaughlin, H. B. Driver and A. B. Hathaway. Second round Memorial day.

Mrs. L. A. Patterson of New Bedford visited friends in this city last week.

Miss Mabel Drew of Walker street spent Saturday and Sunday at Hanson, Mass.

Rev. Henry Albert Coolidge of Billings street has been ill during the past week.

H. G. Olson of Hancock street left last week for a two months' sojourn at California.

The Round Robin club dined at the Quincy House, Boston, on Saturday evening followed by whist.

Mrs. Louise Lawrence of Pepperell, an accomplished pianist, is the guest of Mrs. B. M. McLeod of Arlington street.

Mr. Wollaston lodge, I. O. O. F., No. 80, will hold a strawberry festival in Odd Fellows' hall on Thursday evening. All are welcome.

The Misses Sadie and May Melzard of Newtonville were guests of Mrs. Charles Cherrington of Clive street over the week end.

Mrs. W. F. Sidelinger has returned to her home on Washington street after a successful operation for appendicitis at the City Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton G. Wager of New York are visiting Mrs. William Russell of Billings street. Mrs. Wager was Miss Ethel Staten and has spent many summers in Atlantic.

One Thousand for Alliance.

Some young woman has lost a thousand dollars by not conducting a successful matrimonial campaign against George B. Dabney, whose father's will leaves a bequest of $1,000 to the woman who should be engaged to marry his son at the time of the testator's death, says the Boston Journal.

This was made public by the filing for probate last week of the will of Lewis S. Dabney, for many years a prominent attorney, who married a daughter of the late George T. Bigelow of Quincy.

Mr. Dabney's will gives $1,000 to the Boston Legal Society. The remainder of his estate, after providing for his employees in sums varying from $100 to $700 he gives to his children, George B. Dabney, Frederick L. Dabney and Caroline Miller Dabney. It also contains the clause that if his son George shall be engaged to marry at the time of the testator's death the young woman shall receive $1,000.

Report says George is not engaged.

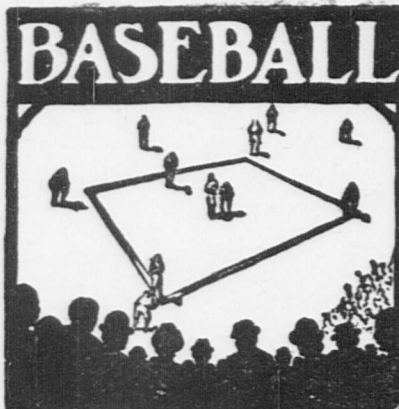

Shipyard Men
In Auto Accident

Charles Burgess, Charles Erickson and Charles Shaughnessy of Quincy Point, and John J. Cronin of Neponset, were injured Sunday night by being run down by an automobile driven by F. H. Burrage at Hingham. The four men were driving in a one horse carriage toward Hingham and the automobile was going toward the beach. The two met head on, the horse going onto the automobile in which were Mr. Burrage and Miss Pitkin.

The carriage was badly smashed, and the occupants all more or less injured. Cronin the most seriously, being unconscious. It is thought he was injured internally. Shaughnessy received a cut over the right eye and Burgess and Erickson received scalp wounds and bruises. Mr. Burrage and Miss Pitkin escaped with slight bruises.

The injured men were taken to the Hingham police station where they were attended by physicians. Later they were taken to their homes. The three Quincy men are employed at the Fore River Shipbuilding plant. Half a million people welcomed the battleships Vermont, Rhode Island, New Jersey and other ships of the Atlantic fleet at Seattle on Saturday, coming from Oregon, Idaho, Montana and Canada. In the evening the battleships were illuminated. The fleet will remain at Seattle until Wednesday.

The gunboat Gloucester, which will be the home of the Massachusetts naval militia this summer, arrived in Boston from Portsmouth on Sunday. She is in command of Capt. James H. Dillaway.

June Magazines.

The June number of the New England Magazine is one of which New England should be proud. The cover is in touch with the season, the month of flowers, and there are also several full page photographs of nature by Thomas E. Marr. All the articles have a New England flavor:—Boston as a world port, by Thomas F. Anderson; Whaling, past and present, by Albert C. Church; Our National resources in the White Mountains, by Philip W. Ayres; views of several New England men on the great issues of the coming Presidential campaign. There are other articles richly illustrated, and in typographical appearance the New England is among the best. Charles Everett Beane is the new editor, and the new management promises to realize the new England to its proper place.

Suburban life for May is replete with strong, attractive and well-written articles, while the illustrations and the general make-up entitle it to be called one of the handsome numbers of this beautiful publication ever issued. The leading article is an entertaining account of a visit to the suburban home of Dr. Henry van Dyke, the famous author and preacher. This article is prefaced by a delightful bit of word painting from the pen of Dr. van Dyke.

Coursing blood and the call of the outdoor world! Only the very brightest of fiction can now hold the interest—such a story, for instance, as the complete novel in the May Lippincott's: "The Pirate of Alastair." Rupert Sargent Holland, the author, will be pleasantly remembered as the writer of that clever book, "The Count at Harvard." He has invested his new tale with a healthful outdoor atmosphere. You will feel that you too would like to be on that remote corner of the Maine coast, taking part in such stirring adventures as befell Felix Selden.

The baseball batter and catcher on the front cover of the June American Boy will excite interest and amusement with every one who loves the national game. In variety and interest the contents of this number will please every reader. The opening chapters of a splendid serial, Bred in the Bone, or Born an Electrician, by Edwin J. Houston, one of the foremost authorities on electricity, is given, and promises to be both entertaining and instructive.

Roy Randall tells in the Technical World Magazine for June "How the dirt flies at Panama," and there are other illustrated articles on subjects of modern engineering scientific and popular interest. A story of some local interest is that of George Frederic Stratton on "The battleship that slept." A channel for ships marked by a chain of electric lights on harbor bottom is also shown and an article on the drainage of swamps of the country is illustrated. Published at Chicago.

Uncle Remus's Magazine and the Home Magazine have now consolidated and are published by the Sunny South Publishing Co. of Atlanta, Ga. Uncle Remus continues his talk with the children, and there are several letters from children in different parts of the country, also illustrated stories and poems and departments. Mary E. Bryan conducts the "Open House."

McCall's Magazine for June has the latest fashions and the usual departments. Interesting illustrated articles are the June wedding and its decorations, wedding anniversaries, costumes for a fashionable wedding and home decorations.

A Tie at Soccer.

There was bloodshed at the association football game at Fall River on Saturday when Riley of Gorhams kicked Fleming of the Fore River in the head, probably accidentally. Riley, however, played a very rough game, and at one time a policeman was called to remove him from the field. The score was a tie, one to one. Robert Gore of New Bedford was referee. About 1000 were in attendance.

The season's trophy at the New England Kennel club at Braintree was on Saturday awarded to Archibald Blanchard, who had four wins to his credit at the weekly shoots.

J. B. Crabtree, secretary of the U. S. Revolver Association, Springfield, Mass., has issued a call for subscriptions to send a revolver team to the Olympic Games. He estimates that the expense will be $250 per man. The rules permit the entry of twelve individuals from which four must be selected as the team representing the country from which they come. Points will count the same as in the rifle contest, and should America send a revolver team there is little doubt it would be victorious.

PAUL J. REVERE POST 88, G. A. R.

DEPARTMENT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

GENERAL ORDER No. 2.

In compliance with the laws of our Order, our established custom, and general orders from headquarters, the comrades of this Post will observe Saturday, the thirtieth day of May, as Memorial Day.

Comrades, let us observe Memorial Day with reverence and thoughtfulness. Let us bring our fairest blossoms, and with tender and loving thoughts, place them upon the graves of our departed comrades. See that not a single soldier's grave be forgotten. Let the flag they so dearly loved wave over each. Let us conduct the services of the day in such a manner that the young may be impressed with its sacredness and learn to cherish the memory of those who sacrificed so much for their country.

"Reverence for the dead is one of the noblest sentiments of the human heart, and especially should all true Americans cultivate this sentiment for the memories of our brave Union soldiers, who freely offered their lives that our country might not be torn asunder and that justice and equal rights might everywhere prevail. The grave of every true Union soldier is a shrine of liberty."

They are answering the roll-call on the shadowy fields of Death, the roster's being lessened and the ranks are growing thin; But long as in the land they saved is blood and brain and breath The laurel crown of Memory their names must ever win.

The fervor of devoted hearts they to their country gave When youth was at its brightest and life had highest worth, To wipe from its escutcheon the shadow of the slave And make it stand refulgent as the fairest land on earth.

They are passing, they are passing, the valiant and the true Enlisting in eternal ranks, the new-made graves will tell, They are passing, they are passing, off is heard the sad tattoo And the solemn, echoing volley with its message of farewell.

On Sunday May 24th, the Post will assemble at headquarters, at 10 o'clock A. M., in full uniform, for the purpose of attending divine services at the Presbyterian Church, corner of Water and Quincy streets. SENATOR JENNEY

Prominently
Mentioned For President of
The Senate

Hon. Charles F. Jenney of Hyde Park, who has represented this district with marked ability for two years, is a candidate for reelection, and also one of the prominent candidates for president of the Senate of 1908. President Chapple is about to retire and there are already four candidates for his place: Charles F. Jenney of Hyde Park, Elmer A. Stevens of Somerville, Allen Treadway of Stockbridge and James F. Shaw. Probably Senator Shaw is leading today, but is by no means sure, and Senator Jenney has better endorsements.

The Boston Advertiser says: "The entrance of Jenney into the field comes as a surprise to some, because as his district is a two-term district it was not supposed that he would run again. But all opposition to his candidacy has vanished. It is generally recognized that he is a man of such unusual ability that it would be a great mistake not to suspend the two term rule."

Practical Politics says: "Sen. Jenney of Hyde Park is of an entirely different mold. He is a good lawyer, takes a broad view of men and measures, and rarely hurries to a conclusion. He lacks something of the fire and sparkle of his younger colleagues and at times manifests a tinge of radicalism, not found in the man from Manchester. As chairman of the judiciary committee he has played an important part in the legislation of two sessions. Before coming to the upper branch he had served a year in the lower branch, having been a member of the house of 1886. He is a convincing speaker and, when warmed to his subject, has few superiors in debate. He has a distinct and distinctive following on Beacon hill."

Quincy men who expect to succeed Senator Jenney do not take kindly to his reelection. Representative E. C. Hultman, and ex-Representatives Edward Sandberg and R. R. Freeman are in the field for the senatorship, but if Norfolk county can be honored by the presidency they should step aside one year. It would be no mistake to reelect Senator Jenney, even if he should not be elected president.

Sixty Years Married.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Payne of Randolph observed on Monday the 60th anniversary of their marriage in vigorous health. Both were born in Randolph, the former in 1826 and the latter in 1829. They were married May 25, 1848, by Rev. Calvin Hitchcock, pastor of the First Congregational church. Mr. Payne is a veteran of the Civil war, and was in the shoe business until 1888. They have one son living, E. Lawrence Payne. Mrs. Payne's maiden name was Paine. S. Howard. She is a member of Capt. Horace Niles Wooten's Relief Corps.

South Quineys Reorganized.

The South Quincy base ball club will start the season Memorial Day with a strong team made up of well known local players. Forbes or Whiting will do the catching, with Finn or Kolson for pitchers. Jim Birnie will cover first base, Jack Duffy second, Cadman short, and Dunn third. The outfield will be covered by Hoyte in left Oswald in centre and Duffy in right. Dave Davis will manage the team and hopes to give the South Quincy fans the best kind of baseball with the strongest teams as opponents. Mr. Davis formerly managed a strong team in Newark, N. J., and thinks he can make good in Quincy.

Fleet Entered For Quincy Cup

The sonder boat Bandit, designed by Edward A. Boardman for C. H. W. Foster as the challenger of the Manchester Yacht Club for the Quincy Challenge cup, which is held by the Corinthian Yacht Club, has done much to help out the interest in the sonder class and local yachting generally, says the Herald, which comments as follows: Had it not been for the challenge from the Manchester club and with a new boat, there would not have been half the interest in the coming races for the cup.

Following close upon this challenge came a challenge from the Boston Yacht Club with the Ellen, owned by C. P. Curtis, Jr., and a challenge from the Quincy club with a boat owned by Charles Francis Adams, 2d, which will probably be his sonder boat Manchester. Then the Eastern Yacht Club challenged and Vice-Commodore F. Lewis Clark's Spokane II, will be its representative.

This means four fast boats in the races for the cup. The Corinthian Yacht Club will have the Vim for a defender and probably the improved Corinthian, owned by Benjamin C. Tower, and perhaps one more boat which will contest in trial races for the honor of defending the trophy.

The Bandit is a typical Boardman designed sonder boat and is in appearance an improved Manchester. She has shown quite a bit of speed in her trial spins about Marblehead and should make a good bid for the cup. However, the Spokane II, will be a dangerous boat, for she has been greatly improved by her skipper, J. Lewis Stackpole, while all the other boats will be tuned up and put into the best possible condition before the races in August.

The fact that the boats have come out this season to race for the cup means that there will be a good fleet from which to select defenders to race against the German sonders next year, while the boats will also be raced in local regattas during the season.

The Manchester Yacht Club lost the Quincy challenge cup to the Corinthian Yacht Club two years ago when the Windrim Kid, owned by F. G. Macomber, Jr., captured the trophy for the club. The Corinthian club successfully defended it last year with the Sally VIII, against the Manchester, which was the challenger of the Quincy Yacht Club.

With the new Bandit in the racing, there will be plenty of interest in these little racing boats.

Grand Army Flowers.

Contribution of flowers are requested by Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., for Memorial Day. If the children will make the flowers into bouquets and tie them they will prevent considerable waste, and facilitate the work of the committee. Flowers will be collected at the schoolhouses Friday, May 29.

The Granite
Manufacturers
Insist on Written Agreement

The joint committee of the Granite Cutters' Union and the Granite Manufacturers' Association met Monday afternoon to sign the agreement. But when Mr. Duncan's letter giving the interpretations on the National Council's decisions on the disputed points was read, it was very much different from what was decided, according to the testimony of five different persons, including the attorney J. W. McAnarney. Further, as the Cutters' committee claimed the letter of interpretation should come from the Quincy branch, and that they would send it after the agreement was signed, and as the Cutters' committee claimed they had no power to sign anything else but an agreement embodying their construction, there could be no signing of the bill.

"The manufacturers' minds" says President Miller, "continually go back to 1905, when they took a verbal interpretation of a certain article, and signed an agreement with that verbal agreement not in the bill, and in three days Mr. Duncan took his committee before a justice of the peace and swore that he never made it. So the manufacturers will not stand for any more verbal agreements. What is agreed on will go into the agreement, and while the manufacturers have done everything possible, consistent with honor, yet they have no notion of varying from this position, for a contention that is poorly settled is only ground for continual future strife."

"While the decision of the National Council were very distasteful to the Quincy Manufacturers' Association, and they repudiated the decision of the illegal council, yet when the council was rightly constituted we are prepared to accept their decisions and constructions, but no one individual interpretation."

"Rumors are rife that if it was not for certain members of the manufacturers executive committee, or certain individuals, the trouble could be settled. Foresters Dance.

A very pretty dancing party was held Monday evening at Hibernian hall, under the auspices of St. Mary's branch of the Irish National Foresters. Miss Mary E. Costello, C. R., was the floor director, and Miss Helen Flaherty, S. C. R., was assistant. The committee of arrangements included: Miss Helen Griffin, Mrs. Katherine Griffin, Miss Agnes L. Colligan, Mrs. Margaret Morrissey, Miss Cecilia Ogle, Miss Mary Morrissey, Mrs. Katherine McGinty, Miss Agnes McGinty, Miss Madge Donaher and Mrs. Abigail Sullivan. Dancing was enjoyed until midnight.

Lincoln Monument.

A Washington dispatch of Monday in a Boston paper says: The House committee in library today ordered a favorable report on the bill which appropriated $4,000,000 for the purchase of 38 acres of land in this city and $1,000,000 for a monument to Abraham Lincoln. The land is to be used in the improvement of the Capitol grounds. The Lincoln memorial is to be located somewhere on the ground to be acquired. Speaker Cannon is known to favor the measure, and it is almost sure to pass the House.

Hot Today.

The temperature at noon today was 86 degrees, which makes it the hottest day of the season. The nearest approach to this was May 19, when the temperature at noon was 83 degrees. The warmest May day last year was May 16 when 79 degrees was recorded, and not until June 18 did the mercury at noon reach a higher point than today.

Unknown Man Mysteriously Hurt

As Thomas Fay of Penn street was walking along the railroad track shortly before 8 o'clock Monday night he found an unconscious man, evidently an Italian lying between the tracks near the School street bridge, with his head resting on the inward rail. Realizing that an inward train was due in a few minutes he pulled the body from the tracks to a place of safety, and then ran to the police station and notified Sergt. Barry.

Sergt. Barry sent two officers with the ambulance to the scene and the man was taken to the police station. There he partly revived, but could only murmur the name Toney and Boston. His face was badly bruised, and his face and clothing were covered with grease, as was also his hair. In his pockets was a purse containing $12.13, and near the body was a bundle of working men's clothing.

It is thought that he must have jumped or fallen from the outward train due in Quincy at 7.49, as Mr. Fay says this train passed him just before he found the body. Possibly he might have been struck by the outward train.

He was taken to the City Hospital where it took two physicians two hours to clean him and dress his injuries. Although seriously injured, the physicians said he would probably recover.

At the City Hospital this noon the man was still unconscious and was said to have concussion of the brain.

Just Jotted Down
By Ledger Men

The street railway tracks on Water street are being repaired.

The School Committee will hold its monthly meeting this evening.

Work on the extension of Crescent street to Copeland street does not seem to progress very fast.

Mt. Wollaston cemetery will be closed to automobiles all day Memorial Day, and to carriages after 10 o'clock in the morning.

West Quincy is looking for twenty-minute trips on the street cars when the double tracking is completed on Hancock street.

The City Council Committees on Finance and Public Buildings will meet Thursday evening and the Committee on Fire Department on Friday evening.

The adjourned grade crossing hearing will be held next Monday morning. It is thought by that time the city plans will be ready that the hearing may go on.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Waterhouse of Lincoln avenue have issued cards for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Gertrude Tobey Waterhouse, and Mr. Earle G. Newman.

Mrs. E. C. Butler and Mrs. George W. Morton are delegates from the Woman's Alliance of Quincy this week to the meetings of the National Alliance in Boston.

The Grand Army request the children to take bouquets of flowers to school on Friday morning, when they will be collected to decorate the soldier's graves on Memorial day. The flowers should be tied up into bouquets to prevent waste.

Unless a rush job is done this week Hancock street through City Square will not be in very good condition for the Grand Army parade on Memorial Day. The street railway is anxious to have its new track in use on the holiday and is pushing the work along.

THAW STILL INSANE

Court Says White's Slayer Must Remain In Asylum

BEST FOR PUBLIC INTERESTS

Thaw Balks at Returning to Matteawan and May Make No Appeal From Decision If Allowed to Go to One of the Other State Hospitals

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 26.—Harry K. Thaw loses in his appeal for liberty. Supreme Court Justice Morschauser has decided that White's slayer is still insane. He finds that "confinement will best serve the public interests." Apparently, Thaw has become resigned to the failure of his plea.

Pending the signing of the papers of recommitment, which probably will not be done before a week from next Saturday, Thaw will occupy Sheriff Chandler's suite in the county building here. In the meantime an effort will be made by Thaw's attorneys to induce District Attorney Jerome to consent to the commitment of the prisoner to one of the state hospitals other than Matteawan.

It is said that in event of Jerome giving his consent to such a change no appeal will be taken from Morschauser's decision. Even if an appeal were taken it could not be argued before fall, so there appears to be no doubt that Thaw will continue under strict restraint during the summer at least.

Both points brought up by Thaw's attorneys are decided against him. The justice declares that Thaw is now insane and should not be allowed at large, and he further declares that the commitment to the lunatic asylum by Justice Dowling after the last trial of the case was entirely legal.

Thaw's lawyers will next apply to the court for permission to place Thaw in some other institution than the Matteawan asylum, and, by stipulation with the district attorney, the prisoner will be kept in jail until Morschauser renders a decision. The justice is holding court at White Plains this week and will not be able to hear the application before next week.

In his finding, Judge Morschauser says: "I am satisfied from the evidence adduced before me that the mental condition of Harry K. Thaw has not changed, and I find he is not sane, and it is so manifest as to make it unsafe for him to be at large."

"Thaw had the opportunity in the trial to introduce evidence of his mental condition at that time, which he did not do."

"Bearing in mind that the usual punishment for the act which led up to the detention of said Thaw is death or a long term of imprisonment, and that said Thaw escaped the consequences of such act solely by reason of his existing mental condition, I do not deem it proper to allow Thaw his freedom, suffering as he is from some form of insanity, with the possible recurrence of an attack similar to that which the jury believed he was suffering with when he killed Stanford White."

"In view of the existing mental condition of Thaw, the safety of the public is better insured by his remaining in custody and under observation until he has recovered, or until such time as it shall be reasonably certain that there is no danger of a recurring attack of the delusion, or whatever it may be."

Careless Georgia Officers

Cuthbert, Ga., May 26.—The coroner's jury which sat in the killing of W. W. Eaton by Henry Melton returned a verdict of murder against the slayer. Melton, who was present at the inquest, but not under arrest, retired when the jury retired, but failed to return with it. The people of the neighborhood are loud in criticism of the officers allowing a man on trial practically for murder quietly to walk away while the verdict is being made up.

No Trace of Missing Student

Cambridge, Mass., May 26.—Harvard authorities have received no information which would lead to the whereabouts of Reginald S. James, a medical student of the class of 1908, who mysteriously disappeared on May 22. He is the son of Edward B. James of this city. Because he has been studying unusually hard during the year the members of James' family have begun to fear that he has become a victim of overstudy.

Charged With Disgracing Church
Rochester, May 26.—After dissensions in St. George's Episcopal church, which have continued for some months, Rev. George G. Richmond is to resign Oct. 1. This was determined at the third of a series of hearings on charges brought against the rector by vestrymen of the church. The charges against the rector were that he had by public utterances and by letters to members of his vestry brought disgrace on his church.

Jailed For Permitting Gambling
Havana, May 26.—The alcalde, the chief of police, the city treasurer and seventeen of the officials of Nueva Paz, who were arrested on the charge of permitting public gambling, were sent to jail in default of $90,000 bail. It is alleged that the gambling devices which were allowed to operate in the city of Havana during the carnival are now making Nueva Paz a gambling centre.

BORDEN REDUCES WAGES

Cut Equivalent to That of Other Fall River Employers

Fall River, Mass., May 26.—M. C. D. Borden has announced a reduction in wages of 17.94 percent, equal to the reduction which went into effect yesterday in the other mills here under the agreement in his Fall River Iron Works company mills.

It has been Borden's announced policy for some years now to pay in his mills the market rate of wages, no more and no less. He has not taken the initiative in making changes, but followed promptly the schedule fixed by the other manufacturers.

Notices announcing the reduction were posted with notices announcing that the mills would resume full time. Five thousand operatives are affected. The American Printing company, owned by Borden, resumed full time running. No change in wages was announced there.

Both the Iron Works mills and the American Printing company have been shut down for four weeks on alternate weeks this spring, the curtailment by the Iron Works company mills amounting to 3,230,000 pieces.

The new wage agreement between the cotton manufacturers and the Textile Council which will be in force until next November became effective yesterday. Under the agreement the 25,000 operatives accept a wage reduction of 17.94 percent. The mills here have been running on short time for several months, but it is expected that the production will be increased considerably next month.

The cut in this city swells the number of cotton operatives in New England whose wages have been reduced this spring to about 170,000.

Usurping Sultan Is Defied

Fez, May 26.—Mula Halid's envoys have returned here with a letter from General Bagdadi, chief of the army of Sultan Abd-el-Aziz, announcing his intention to bombard Mequinez. The usurping sultan became furious at the defiance and placed Bagdadi's brother under arrest. He is now engaged in raising an army among the neighboring tribes with the avowed purpose of exterminating Bagdadi and his forces.

Suit Against Tobacco Men Fails

New Orleans, May 26.—A suit brought by local tobacco firms charging the American Tobacco company with being a combination in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law was dismissed by Judge Saunders in the United States circuit court here. The plaintiffs demanded nearly $70,000 damages for what they alleged were unfair methods of competition. Saunders held that no law had been violated.

Swamp Blocks American Car

Paris, May 26.—A special dispatch to The Matin from Nikolsk, Russia, says that the American car in the New York-to-Paris automobile race, after covering about fifteen miles of the road from that city under the greatest of difficulties, was confronted by an impassable swamp and forced to return to the nearest village. The German car is proceeding over the sleepers of the trans-Siberian railroad.

The diplomatic mission of the delegation will be taken up with Root on Friday.

ABSOLUTE DIVORCE

Granted Alfred Vanderbilt's Wife
In Supreme Court

NO PROVISION FOR ALIMONY

Woman May Marry During Lifetime of Vanderbilt and Is Given Custody of Their Only Child—Vested Testified as to Defendant's Misconduct

New York, May 26.—Mrs. Ellen F. Vanderbilt was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from Alfred G. Vanderbilt by Justice O'Gorman in the supreme court on the report of David McCure, the referee who was appointed to take testimony and determine the findings in the suit instituted by Mrs. Vanderbilt. O'Gorman confirmed the report of the referee that Vanderbilt was guilty of misconduct and directed that Mrs. Vanderbilt be granted a judgment of absolute divorce.

The divorce decree provides that Mrs. Vanderbilt may marry during the lifetime of Vanderbilt, but prevents him from marrying during her lifetime. The custody of William H. Vanderbilt, the only child of the marriage, was awarded to Mrs. Vanderbilt. No provision was made for alimony in the decree, nor was the subject alluded to in the report of the referee. The referee's report shows that testimony was obtained from Vanderbilt's valet as to misconduct by his employer on a railroad train a year ago last October in Virginia.

Mrs. Vanderbilt was Miss Elsie French, daughter of the late Francis O. French, president of the Manhattan Trust company and a member of the directorates of several railroads. She was married in January, 1900, to Vanderbilt, who inherited upwards of $900,000 from his father, the late Cornelius Vanderbilt.

The crisis in the domestic affairs of the Vanderbilts happened in April last, when Mrs. Vanderbilt filed an action for divorce against her husband within an hour after he sailed for England.

It was stated that the couple had not been living together for several months. Shortly before the institution of the suit, Mrs. Vanderbilt, who had occupied Oakland farm, Vanderbilt's country place at Newport, went to the home of her brother in Tuxedo, N. Y. Vanderbilt is now in England, where he is engaged in coaching.

Warships in Seattle Harbor
Seattle, May 26.—The harbor of Seattle presented a beautiful marine picture to the large crowd of people assembled from the northwest states. Eleven war vessels lay in a wide crescent. Thirty thousand schoolchildren visited and overran the warships. The most important social event attending the visit of the battleships took place at the Rainier club, where Rear Admiral Sperry and his senior officers were entertained at an elaborate banquet.

Professor Bowden Ousted
Cincinnati, May 26.—The resignation of Professor Bowden from the chair of philosophy in the University of Cincinnati not having been presented, as demanded by President Dabney, that chair has been formally declared vacant by the university trustees. The trustees declare that Bowden's manner of life as well as his teaching is destructive of the family, the foundation of human society.

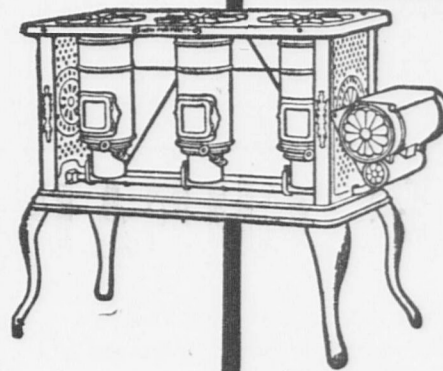

King Edward's Visit to Russia
St. Petersburg, May 26.—There is a possibility that King Edward will prolong his projected visit to Russia and visit Emperor Nicholas at Peterhof. The popular interest in the visit of the English king and the hearty approval voiced by the entire press of Russia has given birth to a desire that he make a more extended sojourn. The matter is now under consideration.

Cuban Elections In August
Havana, May 26.—Governor Magoon has issued a decree that the combined provincial and municipal elections shall take place on Aug. 1, each province electing a governor and eight councilmen and the municipalities electing an alcalde and a proportionate number of councilmen. Dallas Partly Under Water Dallas, Tex., May 26.—Four lives lost, more than a million dollars' worth of property destroyed, 4000 persons homeless and telegraph and telephone wires west and southwest put out of commission, are the results of an overflow of Trinity river. Part of the city is under several feet of water and thousands have lost their household effects.

French Income Tax Scheme

Wayne "30"

Live Agents Wanted

Owing to the increased demand for Wayne "30" automobiles, we have decided to build 300 additional cars of this popular type. These are now coming through—we can positively make deliveries of the first fifty in ten days.

Now, we can sell every one of these cars in four or five large cities—as we have been doing. But we have other ideas, other aims.

We are planning to build 6,000 cars next year—have the facilities to do it—and the work is already under way. That means we'll need a large selling force—an agent in every town over 5,000.

We want these 300 Wayne "30" cars to be the missionaries which will create a demand for the 6,000 we will build next year. See our point?

We want to distribute this season's output—these 300—over as much territory as possible instead of concentrating them in a few metropolitan centers.

Satisfied users are the best advertisements—every Wayne will do its part in carrying the news of Wayne quality wherever it goes. Even to those who knew the earlier Wayne models this 1908 product will be a revelation and a delight.

We want a personal representative—a man of good standing—to represent us in your town. Large capital is not necessary—neither is a garage nor repair shop.

Very little capital, but a large amount of energy and selling ability, are the requisites—to the man who possesses these, here is an opportunity of a lifetime to get in business for himself—one that has a wonderful future.

Write today; send references; tell us about yourself; if satisfactory, we will get together quickly. We won't hold you up on deliveries and we'll stand back of the product—remember, we count on these 300 to sell 6,000; there's the buyer's guarantee—and yours.

Now is the selling season—today. Business has been great since the sun came out—if you don't share in the hay-making, it's your own fault.

Write—now!

DESPERATE THIEVES

Attempted to Rob Bank Messengers in Broad Daylight

A SHOWER OF BLACK PEPPER

Blackjack and a Knife Also Brought Into Play In Effort to Secure Valises Containing $43,000—Waitress Plays Important Part In Capture

New York, May 26.—In broad daylight, and in one of the most densely populated portions of the city, three men made a daring attempt to hold up and rob a trio of bank messengers as they were carrying $43,000 in cash from one of the bank's branches to its main building.

Black pepper was showered upon the messengers, one of them was hit with a blackjack and another slashed with a knife in the desperate effort of their assailants to seize the money and to escape with it before the arrival of assistance.

That they failed to get clear with the valises filled with coin and bills which the bank employees were carrying was due to the stubbornness with which the messengers resisted the attack and to the bravery of a young Polish waitress in a nearby restaurant, who so impeded the leader of the attacking trio that he was easily captured by two policemen who came to the rescue.

The messengers were employees of the Jefferson bank and were on their way from the branch at Clinton and Houston streets to the main bank on Canal street. While on First street three men jumped upon them and threw pepper in their faces. The leading assailant attacked Samuel Edelman, who carried the bulk of the money, grabbing his money bag and attempting to run with it. The other assailants directed their efforts at Joseph H. Velsor and Abraham Stern, the other messengers.

Edelman tried to shake his assailant off, but was falling badly from their pummeling when Mrs. Eva Javornicka, waitress in a First street restaurant, who had seen the attack from the restaurant window, ran out of the door and grabbed the leader of the attacking band by the arm. She clung to him and screamed so loudly for help that a patrolman came running up, frightening the other two men away, and was right at the heels of the man who had attacked Edelman by the time he had managed to shake himself free from the woman. The fugitive was chased into the arms of another policeman before he had run a block.

The prisoner, the messengers and the money, which the messengers had managed to retain intact, were all taken to a police station, where Edelman's assailant was locked up and the injuries of the messengers were given attention. Velsor, whom one of the trio had hit with a blackjack, was found to have abdominal injuries, a depression of the skull from a blow, probably with the same instrument, besides injuries to the eyes from black pepper. Edelman had knife slashes on the wrists and Stern was nearly blinded from the pepper.

The money, of which $30,000 was in bills and the remainder in gold and silver, was turned over to a bank official, who this time carried it in a closed carriage. As the main attack was made on Edelman, who carried the bills, the police believe the robbery was planned by someone who knew the bank's method of making its daily transfers from branch to main office.

The man arrested gave his name as Calmo Riccobono, a plasterer. The police, while looking for the two men who escaped and their possible confederates, arrested Riccobono's father, Giovanni Riccobono, and his two brothers, Salvatore and Damaeno Riccobono.

Currency Discussion Revived

Washington, May 26.—Currency legislation was the chief topic of discussion between leaders of the senate and house yesterday. The revival of the discussion came unexpectedly and led to all sorts of rumors of probable agreement between the conferees on the Aldrich-Vreeland bill looking to the enactment of a measure at the present session. Many Republican members of the house do not seek to disguise their fear that if congress adjourns without passing an emergency currency bill the failure to take action will be disastrous to the majority.

Was Old and Despondent

Fitchburg, Mass., May 26.—Despondent because he was in ill-health, and so old his doctors extended to him no hope, Thomas C. Upton, 89 years of age, and one of the most prominent and respected citizens of Fitchburg, ended his life with a pistol. Upton was the founder of the Fitchburg Co-operative bank, and owned much property here and in Florida. He had many private trusts to administer. His nearest relative is a niece.

Not a Victim of Violence

New York, May 26.—The body of Mrs. Helen Hart of this city was found in the waters of Little Hell Gate under circumstances such as to lead at first to reports that she was the victim of foul play. It is believed that she committed suicide. Mrs. Hart had been a widow for four years. She was mentally affected at times.

A MYSTERIOUS TRAGEDY

Shot Fired Through a Window

Pierces the Brain of a Woman

Manchester, N. H., May 26.—A mysterious crime took place here last evening in the shooting of Miss S. J. Robinson, employed as house-keeper for George H. Sturdivant.

The woman was called to the door of the house where she lived with Sturdivant, corner of Cohas avenue and Mammoth road, near the old city reservoir. She had scarcely passed a window and was about to look out when a shot crashed through the window and she fell to the floor mortally wounded with a bullet in her brain. The shooting occurred about 9:30 o'clock.

Sturdivant was sitting in the room with Miss Robinson at the time, he says, and when she was shot he ran to where Miss Robinson was lying upon the floor, and found her dead. The house is located in a lonesome place and there are few neighbors.

These were notified by Sturdivant of what had taken place and the Manchester police were notified by telephone. A detail of officers were sent to the scene as quickly as possible, and they are now looking for the murderer.

Miss Robinson was engaged by Sturdivant as his housekeeper about two weeks ago. They at once moved into the house, which had been uncuppled up to that time. But little is known of either Sturdivant or Miss Robinson in Manchester.

Indicted Lawyer Disappears

Boston, May 26.—William F. Mitchell, a Boston attorney, who was reported missing from the Portland steamer Bay State when she arrived in Portland, Sunday, was under indictment on a charge of forging a mortgage note, and his case was to have come up yesterday in the superior criminal court. It is thought that this fact may have led him to commit suicide. There is also the theory that the clothes were left in the stateroom for the purpose of conveying the impression that he had jumped overboard, and that he may, instead, have gone ashore.

Subpoenas For Railroad Men

Boston, May 26.—Subpoenas have been issued by the United States circuit court against the officials of the Boston and Maine and New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad companies in connection with the bill in equity filed by the United States government in this city, seeking to dissolve the New Haven road from its street railway and Boston and Maine holdings. The services will be made today.

Boston, May 26.—The Massachusetts supreme court sustained the constitutionality of the law of 1907 which provides that life insurance policies shall be in a certain form, and also decides that insurance companies cannot issue new forms of policies without the consent of the insurance commissioners.

Not Approved by Aldermen

Boston, May 26.—Mayor Hibbard's first attempt to consolidate city departments since the defeat of his bill at the hands of the legislature was held up by the board of aldermen. The Democrats, with one exception, were opposed to the amendment to the ordinance providing that the public grounds department be consolidated with the park department.

New City Hall on Old Site

Portland, Me., May 26.—By a vote of at least four to one the citizens of Portland expressed their wish that the city hall, burned the first of this year, be replaced on the same site on Congress street and that it contain an auditorium. It was proposed to build it in Lincoln Park, near the new county courthouse and the federal courthouse which is to be constructed.

Sufferer Ends Own Life

Princeton, Mass., May 26.—Stephen H. Davis, aged 59, shot himself through the mouth with a revolver at the home of A. T. Grow. Death occurred instantly. He had been a sufferer from St. Vitus' dance for many years and it is believed he became despondent.

CAUSE AND CURE OF APPENDICITIS

THE SIMPLE REMEDY THAT EFFECTS THE CURE

Professor Blanchard of the French Academy of Medicine has spent a great amount of time studying that dread disease—Appendicitis, in company with Professor Metchnikoff, he has carefully examined numerous cases, and has reached the conclusion that the cure is not the knife. In more than forty cases the symptoms of Appendicitis disappeared after the patients had been treated for worms.

There are, no doubt, many persons suffering from worms who are erroneously attributing their trouble to some other cause. A few doses of Dr. True's Elixir are sufficient in most cases for the complete expulsion of the worms. The presence of these parasites is easily recognized by the following symptoms:—Indigestion; flat tongue; offensive breath; variable appetite; hard and full belly with occasional gripings and pains about the navel; heavy, dull eyes; itching of the nose; short dry cough; grinding of the teeth; starting during sleep; slow and frequent fever in children—convulsions and bed wetting. Dr. True's Elixir will not only expel the worms, but will build up the whole system as well.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR THE OLD FAMILY REMEDY

has been in constant use for more than half a century. Even though worms may be present, Dr. True's Elixir prevents their growth and is an invaluable remedy for the relief of stomach ills. Its marvelous tonic qualities brings back a feeble and impaired digestion; purifies and enriches the blood; quickly regulates a disordered liver.

Dr. True's Elixir is used and endorsed by physicians and hospitals all over the country. Read what Mrs. Joy says of Dr. True's Elixir:—

CENTRE ABINGTON, MASS.
Dr. TRUE:—"I wish to inform you of the success I have had in using one bottle of your Elixir. I gave it to my children, and after the third dose one of them passed a long round worm. Shipbuilding Strike Over

London, May 26.—A general ballot of the men involved in the shipbuilding strike was held and resulted in favor of accepting the terms offered by the employers. Work will be resumed May 29. The shipbuilding dispute has been one of long standing, and in its last stages took the form of a lockout by the employers. This lockout affected all the yards of northern England and in the end involved 75,000 men directly and a quarter of a million indirectly.

Result of Oklahoma Flood

Oklahoma City, Okla., May 26.—Seven persons are dead, about 450 are homeless, thousands of acres of lowlands are inundated, hundreds of houses are washed away or damaged, railroad and wagon bridges are gone over a large area of the southern part of the state, several railroad bridges are damaged and the tracks of nearly every railroad company operating in the state are disarranged as a result of heavy rains and overflowed rivers.

Alabama Vote Pleases Johnson

Birmingham, Ala., May 26.—Governor Johnson of Minnesota, en route to Tuscaloosa, Ala., remained here over night. In answer to a question as to the recent Democratic primaries in Alabama he said that the result was a happy disappointment. "It is certainly gratifying," he said, "to receive between 30 and 40 percent of the vote for presidential nomination in a state which I never before had the pleasure of visiting."

Fog Handicaps Shipping

New York, May 26.—Dense fog banks which have been sweeping in from the Atlantic for several days, caused two coastwise steamships to run upon the shoals that fringe the New Jersey coast, caused a collision between two steamers in the harbor, generally snarled ferryboat service in the harbor and kept two trans-Atlantic liners hugging their anchorage off Sandy Hook all last night.

Looking Toward Adjournment

Washington, May 26.—Working under heavy pressure, with an eye single to adjournment at the earliest possible moment, the house yesterday disposed of a great amount of business. Early in the session it became manifest that a better spirit of feeling obtained between the majority and minority, in consequence of which several bills were passed by unanimous consent.

GRANITE CAR LOAD.

The quarry owners won an important victory on Monday when Interstate Commerce Commissioner Protout of Vermont announced at a continued hearing in Boston that he would recommend a reduction of the minimum load allowed in shipping granite. The present minimum is 40,000 pounds and the quarrymen say they frequently are unable to get cars large enough and still have to pay for 40,000 pounds. It is thought Mr. Protout will ask for a reduction to 36,000 pounds.

The estimate of the cost of coal necessary to move the fleet from San Francisco to Hampton Roads, by way of Honolulu, Manila and the Suez Canal, has been reported by the chief of the Bureau of Equipment as amounting to $2,039,000. The Navy Department has been in receipt of unofficial communications from the Australian government, offering to furnish without cost the coal required during the visit of the command in Australian waters. Of course the government could not think of accepting such an offer, and all arrangements have been made to use American coal for the entire cruise.

PAUL J. REVERE POST 88, G. A. R.
DEPARTMENT OF MASSACHUSETTS.
GENERAL ORDER No. 2.

In compliance with the laws of our Order, our established custom, and general orders from headquarters, the comrades of this Post will observe Saturday, the thirtieth day of May, as Memorial Day.

Comrades, let us observe Memorial Day with reverence and thoughtfulness. Let us bring our fairest blossoms, and with tender and loving thoughts, place them upon the graves of our departed comrades. See that not a single soldier's grave be forgotten. Let the flag they so dearly loved wave over each. Let us conduct the services of the day in such a manner that the young may be impressed with its sacredness and learn to cherish the memory of those who sacrificed so much for their country.

"Reverence for the dead is one of the noblest sentiments of the human heart, and especially should all true Americans cultivate this sentiment for the memories of our brave Union soldiers, who freely offered their lives that our country might not be torn asunder and that justice and equal rights might everywhere prevail. The grave of every true Union soldier is a shrine of liberty.

They are answering the roll-call on the shadowy fields of Death, The roster's being lessened and the ranks are growing thin; But long as in the land they saved is blood and brain and breath The laurel crown of Memory their names must ever win.

The fervor of devoted hearts they to their country gave When youth was at its brightest and life had highest worth, To wipe from its escutcheon the shadow of the slave And make it stand refulgent as the fairest land on earth.

They are passing, they are passing, the valiant and the true Enlisting in eternal ranks, the new-made graves will tell, They are passing, they are passing, oft is heard the sad tattoo And the solemn, echoing volley with its message of farewell.

On Sunday May 24th, the Post will assemble at headquarters, at 10 o'clock A. M., in full uniform, for the purpose of attending divine services at the Presbyterian Church, corner of Water and Quincy streets. M. the Post will assemble at headquarters to attend services at Bethany Church, corner of Hancock and Chestnut streets and all allied societies and the public are invited to be present at this service.

PHYSICAL DIRECTOR

For High School
Elected at Meeting of the School Committee

At a meeting of the Quincy school committee Tuesday evening a communication was received from the Quincy Women's club in regard to a system of school savings banks in the schools of the city. The committee voted to approve of the system, provided it could be established satisfactory to the board.

A communication was also received from the Citizen's association asking if the school children could take a prominent part in a Fourth of July celebration in the city. The committee directed its secretary to inform the association that the committee was in sympathy with the movement, provided cooperation of the children could be secured. This however was doubtful as the schools will have been closed several weeks at that time. The superintendent will investigate, however, as to what support the children of the public schools will give such a plan.

PHYSICAL DIRECTOR.

The board then took up the matter of a supervisor of physical training at the high school, and elected Ernst Hermann to that position. Mr. Hermann will commence his duties at the opening of the fall term. He is a man thoroughly educated in the science of physical training, being a graduate of a German school and of the leading physical training schools of this country. He has had a large experience in public and private classes of both sexes. He has also written books on the subject of physical training, invented games for school room exercises, and has had charge of construction and equipment of playgrounds. He comes to Quincy very highly recommended by such men as Dr. D. A. Sargent of Cambridge, Prof. Sedgwick of the Institute of Technology, Carl L. Schroeder director of the Hemmway gymnasium at Harvard and others.

ELECTION OF TEACHERS.

The standing committee unanimously recommends that the name of Anna L. Woodward be dropped from the list of teachers in the schools of this city.

It also recommends that the following named teachers be placed on tenure:

High School—Annie H. Cheever and Alice A. Todd.
Adams School—Lucy B. Page.
Coddington School—Walter H. Bentley, master.
Cranch School—Annie C. Healy and Edith G. Coyle.

Massachusetts Field (Wollaston District)—C. Ralph Taylor master.
Quincy School—Laura B. Tolman (Master's assistant) and Florence M. Howe.
Willard School—Lula R. Payson, (Master's assistant).

The following were elected for one year:

High School—Leslie L. Cleveland, (head master) Melvin T. Holbrook, (sub-master), Charles H. Stone, Herbert B. Cole, John F. Roache, William H. H. Peirce, Marie C. Bass, Lilla R. Birge, Flora M. Shackley, S. Marion Chadbourne, Isaac Goldard, Sarah C. Ames, Evalia A. Salsman.

Ninety Degree Day.

Again today is the record for May broken. Tuesday with the mercury at noon registering 86 degrees was the hottest day of the season. There was a cool breeze, however, which tempered the air. Today at noon the mercury registered 90 degrees. There was an absence of a cool breeze, and the air was oppressively hot and sultry. Light summer clothing was in demand, and black derby hats were laid away until fall.

Bailey chairman of the nominating committee reported for reelection as directors for three years the following names: F. W. Crane, Dr. E. R. Johnson, D. King, N. G. Nickerson, J. A. Sparrow was elected to take the place of Geo. E. Thomas.

Reports of the year were read and ordered published. It will appear in a later issue of the Ledger.

After some routine business the meeting adjourned.

Flags Removed From Soldiers' Graves

Several of the flags recently set at the graves of soldiers of the Civil war in the cemeteries of the city by the Grand Army have been ruthlessly handled, so much so that the hearts of the veterans are sad, and they would like to make an example of the offenders.

This is particularly true at the Hancock cemetery in City Square, where flags have been moved from one grave to another, some destroyed and others stolen. In today's issue Paul Revere Post offer a reward for the arrest and conviction of offenders of the past and the future.

To remove flags and flowers from soldiers' graves is contemptible business, and it is hoped guilty persons may be discovered. It is an insult both to the flag and the G. A. R. veterans.

SECRETARY DUNCAN

Replies to John L. Miller's Statements
Of Yesterday

Editor of the Daily Ledger:

The statement in the Quincy Ledger, printed yesterday, evidently emanating from Mr. Miller, president of the Quincy Manufacturers' Association, is misleading. My letter to the Manufacturers last Monday, was not an individual interpretation of the decision of the joint council in Boston, last Friday, but was in reply to a letter from the Quincy Manufacturers, asking when a letter they claimed they were advised would be furnished by me in reference to that conference, might be expected.

My reply, in substance, set forth that the letter to which they referred was, in accordance with the terms of the understanding at the Boston meeting last Friday, to be sent by Quincy branch of the G. C. I. A., and not by me, and in so informing them, my letter contained a statement of the causes which led up to the desire for such a letter being furnished by the Quincy Granite Cutters' Branch.

On this point Mr. Miller's committee had full and official information from their own National Executive Committee, in a letter over the signature of Robert D. Smith, its secretary, which was delivered to the Quincy Manufacturers' Executive Committee last Saturday, the last paragraph of which read as follows:

"Upon these two subjects last mentioned we have assurance that a letter will be directed to your Association, by the Quincy branch of the G. C. I. A., to be accepted as defining the scope and purpose of the articles or to be considered as a supplementary part of the agreement."

Nothing was said therein that I should furnish the Quincy Manufacturers any letters or information whatever, and why they wrote asking when such a letter from me might be expected, must be known only to themselves, but in response to their inquiry, I courteously replied, showing that the letter they referred to was to be sent by Quincy branch.

Mr. Miller's desire to have everything in black and white meets with the approval of every granite cutter in Quincy. The latter never gave and never relied upon verbal agreements. The latest among the many ingenious points raised by Mr. Miller's committee to the pending settlement, occurs over a clause in the original settlement, limiting the time of a visit by the granite cutters' business agent to any yard in working hours, to five minutes. Their executive committee at last Friday's meeting raised the point that it could be construed to mean that that officer could put in five minutes with each man in the stone shed, and they asked for an expression of opinion on the meaning of the phrase, and were told it was never so intended, and that it meant that the duration of the visit was limited to five minutes, unless with the employer's consent to remain longer. This they agreed to, and asked that when Quincy branch met, to have a letter sent to the Quincy Association so stating. This is all there is to it, and Quincy branch was so directed by the Granite Cutters' Executive Council.

Mr. Miller's statement in your issue of yesterday, stated that the letter of explanation I sent to his committee in reply to that committee's enquiry, "was very much different from what was decided, according to the testimony of five different persons, including the attorney, J. W. McAnarney." Where Mr. Miller found this information, if he found it anywhere outside of his own imagination, is a mystery, for attorney J. W. McAnarney did not participate at all in that conference.

Mr. Miller's statement that there was a verbal interpretation of a certain article in 1905, and that "in three days Mr. Duncan took his committee before a justice of the peace

The only baking powder
made with Royal Grape Cream of Tartar
No Alum, No Lime Phosphate

and swore he never made it" is absolutely false. I never went with any committee before a justice of the peace in connection with that subject. I did not serve on the committee, but half a day, as a substitute for an absent member and had no further connection with or responsibility for that committee.

No verbal agreement was entered into in the few hours I served on the committee, but it will suffice to simply state that Mr. Miller's reference to the subject is absolutely without foundation in fact. If there were fewer misstatements used and fewer "ghosts" raised by the representatives of the Quincy Granite Manufacturers' Association relative to the pending dispute, there would have been a final and satisfactory settlement between them and the Quincy granite cutters long ago.

I would not have entered into this controversy through the columns of the Ledger, had it not been that twice within the last few days Mr. Miller has in an unfair and unwarranted manner assailed me personally and to have remained silent might have been construed at least by those who do not know us, to mean that I acquiesced in his misstatements.

FOR A NEW ALLIANCE

Time Considered Ripe For Franco-British War Treaty

PROPOSITION OF PARISTEMPS

French Army of Inestimable Value
to England In Event of War—Military Considerations Weigh Heavily In Diplomatic Combinations

Paris, May 27.—The speeches exchanged in London between President Fallieres and King Edward have attracted much attention from the French press, and The Temps says it considers the time to be ripe for the substitution of an Anglo-French alliance instead of the present entente, provided that the British army be radically reorganized in order to render it capable of energetic action on the continent. Otherwise, the paper says, the benefits of the alliance would be one-sided and in favor of England and consequently inadvisable.

The Temps recognizes that the cordial relations between France and Great Britain, as now manifested, are likely, in the event of a crisis, to breed
identity of interests, but it thinks it dangerous to rely upon moral understandings.

"Forced to choose between Germany and Great Britain," The Temps declares, "France chooses Great Britain.
We can with dignity live on correct
terms with Germany, but the past forbids us going further. As for the future, Germany only wants what we cannot grant, namely, the admission of German funds to the Paris Bourse.
On the other hand, the greatest objection to a British alliance has disappeared with the reconciliation of our ally, Russia, with Great Britain.

"From the English standpoint this alliance is desirable. England, throughout her history, always has felt the necessity of continental alliance and continental support. The French army would be of inestimable value to Great Britain in the event of war, but would British support be equally advantageous to us?

"British naval victories would not drive a single cannon from our frontier.
It would be different if the British army was completely reorganized so as to render it capable of a powerful land division—in other words, if Great Britain became for France a second Russia.

"The day upon which Great Britain, discarding Mr. Haldane's insufficient plan, gives the country a modern army;
the day upon which Great Britain remembers that Napoleon fell at Waterloo and not at Trafalgar—that day all far-seeing Frenchmen will become partisans of the British alliance, the purpose of which would be to complete and enlarge that system of pacific defense which did not result from the Franco-Russian alliance of 1891.

"To those who express surprise,"
The Temps concludes, "that military considerations weigh so heavily in this argument, we observe that the value of diplomatic combinations for peace is measured by their efficacy in war."

Inclined to Resist Russia

London, May 27.—A special dispatch to The Times from Teheran, referring to the Russian ultimatum which has just been extended and which demands
the payment of an indemnity for the degradations of Persian bandits, says that the Persian parliament is unanimous in its opposition to Russia. Excitement at Teheran is intense, and there probably will be a rupture in the relations between the two countries.

Caldwell Is Gradually Sinking

New York, May 27.—The extradition proceedings in the case of Robert Caldwell, who is wanted in England for perjury alleged to have been committed by him when a witness in the famous Druce case, has been further adjourned until July 28, owing to the receipt of a report from the superintendent of the Manhattan state hospital stating that Caldwell appears to be failing gradually, both mentally and physically.

Strike of Pittsfield Hackmen

Pittsfield, Mass., May 27.—Owing to the refusal of all the liverymen of this city to sign the union scale of wages that had been in force for a year up to May 1, the Hackmen's union last night voted to strike. About sixty men, the full force of hackmen in the city, are affected.

Congressman Peters Much Better

Washington, May 27.—Representative Peters of Massachusetts, who has been ill of typhoid fever and whose life
at one time was despaired of, is convalescing, and unless some unforeseen complication arises he will be able to leave for his home in a week or ten days.

Troops Will Remain In Cuba

Washington, May 27.—As a result of several conferences between President Roosevelt, Secretary Taft and General Bell, chief of staff of the army, it has been decided not to withdraw any of the United States troops from Cuba at the present time.

Taunton Mills Cut Wages

Taunton, Mass., May 27.—A cut of 10 percent in wages has been announced in the New England cotton yarn mills
in this city, but the management says that there is a prospect of steadier
work in the immediate future.

PERKINS SCARED JUDGES

Jerome Says They Were Afraid to Indict Morgan's Partner

New York, May 27.—In his defense
of his administration, District Attorney Jerome, among other sensational statements, declared that the attempts to indict George W. Perkins, Morgan's partner, for his $50,000 political contribution, gave the judiciary of New York
a terrible fright.

"The judiciary of New York," he said, "was as scared as anybody else
because it was on the one hand J. Pierpont Morgan's partner, and on the other hand the yellow journals were yawning and yawling."

"There has been no more humiliating spectacle in the history of the country since the days of the boodle aidmen of 1884."

Regarding the charge which relates to the $24,000 which Thomas F. Ryan received from the Metropolitan Securities, Jerome said that in 1903 several men began a bear campaign in Wall street against Metropolitan Securities.

"It was," Jerome said, "important to those who controlled the Metropolitan road at that time to find out as soon as possible the source of these bear rumors. Thomas F. Ryan spent some $24,000 of his own money for detectives and in other ways to clear up the matter. Subsequently the Metropolitan Securities company repaid to Ryan this $24,000, a perfectly legitimate proceeding, in my judgment."

Mr. Jerome then took up the matter of the investigation into the methods of the American Ice company. "At the most," said Jerome, "if it transpires that I erred in the 'ice trust' matter it can be only an error of judgment on my part."

Did Not Perform Marriage Ceremony

New York, May 27.—Justice of the Peace Eubenbender stated officially before the board of health in Hoboken
that he performed no marriage ceremony for Anna Gould and Prince Helie de Sagan. A complaint had been filed against the justice, setting forth that there was reason to believe he had performed the marriage early in April last
and had failed to comply with the provisions of the law requiring that a marriage certificate be filed with the clerk of the health board within thirty days
after the ceremony.

Home Rule For Scotland

London, May 27.—Another of the pledges given by Winston S. Churchill during his recent electoral campaign in Dundee has borne quick fruit and a "home rule for Scotland" bill was introduced in the house of commons by Duncan V. Pierce, who explained that the main object of this bill was to devolve to a legislative body in Scotland
the power to make laws on matters relating exclusively to that country. The house voted in favor of allowing the bill to go to its first reading.

Murat Wounds Two In Duel

St. Petersburg, May 27.—Two duels were fought here between Prince Napoleon Murat, now captain in the Chevalier guards, a crack Russian regiment,
and two brothers named Plen, well known in exclusive social circles of this city. Murat's quarrel was with both brothers, and he elected to fight them in succession. He wounded both his opponents, one of them seriously, but escaped unscathed himself.

Mackerel Hug Canadian Shore

Halifax, May 27.—The Canadian fishery protection cruiser Canada reports a fleet of twenty-five American mackerel off Sambro, N. S. Several schools of mackerel have been sighted,
but the fish are inside of the three-mile limit and the Americans cannot reach them. Six large whales were sighted some miles off Sambro and it is thought that they are forcing the mackerel in towards the shore.

Arbitration Fails at Cleveland

Cleveland, May 27.—"The street railway strike will proceed," says Vice President Behner of the Railway Men's union. President Dupont of the Municipal Traction company says the strike is broken. An effectual stop was put to all further efforts at arbitration
by the declaration of Dupont that he will arbitrate nothing that may interfere with the men now at work.

Central American Court of Justice

Cartago, C. R., May 27.—The Central American court of justice was inaugurated here yesterday with representatives of Salvador, Guatemala,
Honduras and Nicaragua in attendance.
The United States and Mexico also are represented by W. I. Buchanan and Enrique C. Creel, respectively, who, however, have no official connection with the permanent tribunal.

Shot Daughter's Suitor

Monroe, N. C., May 27.—Mrs. James
Thomas fired a charge of buckshot into William Luther as the young man was leaving the Thomas home with his 15-year-old daughter, Margaret, making good a threat to punish the young man unless he stayed away. Thomas was seriously wounded. Mrs. Thomas' objection was that her daughter was too young to receive suitors.

Prohibition In Tarheel State

Raleigh, May 27.—North Carolina was carried for state prohibition by a majority that is estimated at from 40,000 to 42,000. The Prohibition ticket carried 78 out of the 98 counties by majorities approximating 48,500. The anti-Prohibition ticket has 20 counties
by majorities approximating 5600.

NO RECONCILIATION

But Evelyn Thaw Drops Suit
For Annulment of Marriage

WAS AN "UNWILLING PARTY"

Thinks Demented Husband's Situation Demands Her Loyalty—Has Right to Some Financial Recom-
pense For Her Sacrifice

New York, May 27.—Evelyn N.
Thaw, through her counsel, has withdrawn the suit which she instituted
some time ago for the annulment of her marriage to Harry K. Thaw. The motion for withdrawal was sanctioned by Referee Deyo and the case was declared discontinued, without costs to either party to the suit.

Immediately following the dismissal of the action, Daniel O'Reilly, personal counsel for Mrs. Thaw, issued a formal statement in which he declared that Mrs. Thaw had been an unwilling party to the proceedings from the first.
It was only because of pressure on the part of her husband's relatives that she had any part in such a proceeding,
said O'Reilly, and that she withdrew
the action because she believes her husband's present position demands her loyalty.

"There has been much misrepresentation as to Mrs. Evelyn Thaw's notice in first bringing an application for an annulment, and then subsequently discontinuing the same," said the statement. "Mrs. Thaw reluctantly made such an application in response to pressure brought by relatives of her husband; she withdraws from the action at this time because she believes her husband's present situation demands from her a loyalty to his interests, and that it would not serve any good purpose to prove at a time when he was attempting to gain his liberty
that he was insane when he married her. Especially is this true in the light of the unfortunate conclusions of the last proceedings."

Mr. O'Reilly declined to give the name of the relative who had brought persuasion to bear upon her to institute the proceedings for the annulment of the marriage.

Mr. O'Reilly was quoted as saying that there had been no reconciliation between Harry K. Thaw and his wife and that Mrs. Evelyn Thaw wanted none. He added that Mrs. Evelyn Thaw thought she had a right to some financial recompense for the sacrifice
she had made in Thaw's behalf.
O'Reilly said that some step of that kind might be taken, but he would not indicate what form the movement would take.

Franklin Bartlett, counsel for Mrs.
William Thaw, made denial to Lawyer
O'Reilly's statement that Mrs. Evelyn Thaw had made application for an annulment of the marriage in response to pressure brought by relatives. Bartlett said:

"As counsel for Mrs. William Thaw,
I desire to say that, so far as she is concerned and any other relative with whom I am acquainted, I know of no pressure being brought by relatives of Mrs. Evelyn Thaw's husband to bring about an annulment of the marriage. I am at a loss to understand how any pressure could be brought to bear against this young woman."

"The position of the family in regard to this young woman is very simple and very just. Mrs. William Thaw desires that this young woman shall be treated not only fairly, but generously,
and she is now being paid $1000 per month, which, in my opinion as a lawyer of experience, is far more than any court would allow her for her maintenance and support, either as alimony or otherwise, and it is a more generous allowance than such as would be appropriated if based on Harry Thaw's income or measured by her station in life."

Held For Blowing Safe

Dover, Me., May 27.—Frank Brown
and Clarence Alward, arrested at Milo Junction and brought here on suspicion of being the burglars who blew the safe in the railroad station at Greenville Junction, but failed to secure the contents, were bound over to the supreme court in the sum of $1000. Being unable to furnish bail, they were committed to Dover jail. Although they entered a formal plea of not guilty,
the officers say they practically admitted their guilt.

English People Like Fallieres

London, May 27.—At Buckingham palace last night a great state ball was given in honor of President Fallieres of France. This was the culminating feature of a busy day of entertainment spent by King Edward's guest.
Everywhere Fallieres has gone he has been greeted with the greatest enthusiasm. The scene within the walls of Buckingham was one of exceptional brilliance. There was a great display of jewels and orders.

Reds Kill a Russian Spy

Geneva, May 27.—The police are investigating what appears to be the execution by the Russian revolutionary committee of a man named Naidoff, thought to have been a Russian government spy. Naidoff was shot to death by a complotist whose description is known. He is still at large and a search of all Russian revolutionary centres in Switzerland has been ordered.

Bryan Suggests That He and Taft Should Work For It

SOMEWHAT LATE, HOWEVER

Republican Candidate Replies by Quoting His Earlier Opinions on the Matter and Expressing the Hope That the Bill Would Pass

Washington, May 27.—When Secretary Taft reached his office yesterday he found a number of newspaper men charged with inquiry as to what answer he intended to return to the invitation from William J. Bryan to join him in an effort to secure the enactment of a bill requiring publication of campaign contributions. The secretary replied that he had not seen any communication from Bryan on this subject, and it was several hours later before the telegram reached him, as follows:

"I beg to suggest that as leading candidates in our respective parties, we join in asking congress to pass a bill requiring publication of campaign contributions prior to election. If you think best, we can ask other candidates to unite with us in the request."
"W. J. Bryan."

Secretary Taft had meanwhile had a talk with the president at the White House and was prepared upon his return to the war department to give out for publication his answer as follows:

"Your telegram received. On April 30 last I sent the following letter to Senator Burrows, the chairman of the committee on privileges and elections of the senate:

"I sincerely believe that it would greatly tend to the absence of corruption in politics if the expenditures for nomination and election of all candidates and all contributions received and expenditures made by political committees could be made public both in respect to state and national politics. For that reason I am strongly in favor of the passage of the bill which is now pending in the senate and house, bringing about this result so far as national politics are concerned.

"I mark this letter personal because I am anxious to avoid assuming an attitude in the campaign which it is quite possible I shall never have the right to assume, but so far as my personal influence is concerned, I am anxious to give it for the passage of the bill."

"Since writing the above, in answer to inquiry, I have said publicly that I hoped such a bill would pass."
"W. H. Taft."

A Reply From Bryan
Lincoln, Neb., May 27.—Mr. Bryan received Secretary Taft's telegram yesterday afternoon. He sent the following reply:

"I am very much gratified to receive your telegram and trust the publication of your letter will add the weight necessary to turn the scales in favor of the measure. Elections are public affairs and publicity will help to purify politics."
"W. J. Bryan."

Mr. Bryan wired Senator Culberson and Representative Williams as follows: "Please secure copies of my telegrams to Secretary Taft and his reply concerning campaign contributions. His letter to Senator Burrows may enable you to secure action on the bill."

Public Sentiment Insistent
New York, May 27.—Perry Belmont, president of the national publicity law organization, speaking of the correspondence between Secretary Taft and W. J. Bryan, said in a statement: "To the members of our organization the correspondence of the two leading candidates for presidential nomination demonstrates that the movement for publicity of campaign contributions has reached the point, and public sentiment has become so insistent, that both parties will be required, whether congress passes a publicity bill or not, to disclose the amounts contributed to the national committees and the sources from which they are obtained during the approaching campaign."

Autoists Did Not Give Names
Brookfield, Mass., May 27.—Henry Mathewson, aged 84, was probably fatally injured when an automobile owned by a Mr. Jenks struck a heavy cart and, bounding to the side of the road, knocked down Mathewson. In the automobile with Jenks were his chauffeur and another man. All were thrown out of the machine and considerably cut and bruised, but went away without giving their names.

Eight New Methodist Bishops
Baltimore, May 27.—The Episcopal election of the Methodist Episcopal general conference of 1908 is now a matter of history. The new bishops, in the order of their election, are as follows: Rev. W. F. Anderson, Rev. Dr. J. L. Nuelson, Rev. Dr. W. A. Quayle, Rev. Dr. C. W. Smith, Rev. Dr. W. S. Lewis, Rev. Dr. E. H. Hughes, Rev. Dr. Robert McIntyre and Rev. Dr. F. M. Bristol.

McGovern's Fighting Days Over
New York, May 27.—Terry McGovern of Brooklyn and Spike Robson, the English featherweight, fought six rounds here last night. It was a tame exhibition. No decision was rendered, but under any conditions the fight probably would have been declared a draw, although Robson plainly had the better of it toward the end.

MILK STANDARD LOWERED

Massachusetts House Orders Bill to a Third Reading

Boston, May 27.—The last hope of pure milk legislation this year was lost in the house with the passage of a bill to lower the standard of milk. After an all day fight in the legislature between the farmers, the bill went by and the senate will refer it to the next general court, where the bill providing for a board of inspection has gone.

The Gates amendment changes the dual rate on milk to a uniform rate of 12 percent of solids the year around, with 3 percent of butter fats. Gates explained that there is a universal demand among farmers for a lower standard or for no standard at all except that of purity. He claimed that milk having a high percentage of butter fats is unhealthy, and asserted that more children have died because of drinking the milk of Jersey cows than have died of diphtheria.

The Holstein cow, which has raised the trouble in the legislature over her inability to give a high standard milk, received a bouquet from Dr. Oliver, who said that Holstein milk, with its low percentage of butter fats, is healthier than the rich milk of the Jersey. The Gates amendment was adopted on a voice vote, and the bill was ordered to a third reading.

Head Stuck Fast In Mud

Cumberland, R. I., May 27.—John Chandler, 45 years old, rented a farm in this town recently. Yesterday one of the men who boarded with him went to the well to draw a pail of water. As he let down the pail he saw Chandler's feet above the water and after calling for help the body of the man was hauled to the surface. Coroner Marshall decided that while reaching down for a pail of water Chandler lost his balance and plunged down head-first, driving his head deep into the mud at the bottom of the well.

Dangerous Testing of Cows

Boston, May 27.—"I claim that the testing of cows in Brighton is one of the direct ways of spreading disease," said Ernest L. Libbey, speaking as retiring president before the New England Live Stock association at the annual meeting here. "The idea of using the same thermometer over and over again in taking temperatures without cleaning it, first on an old sick cow and next on a fancy new milk cow," he said, "is enough to condemn the test as it is now applied at Brighton."

Going Into Missionary Work

Dover, N. H., May 27.—The resignation of Rev. George E. Hall, D. D., a Congregationalist divine, as pastor of the First Parish church, is in the hands of the church authorities. Hall resigns after a pastorate of twenty-five years in order to accept the position of secretary for the western district of the American Missionary association, to which he has been appointed.

Paddle Brought Up Man's Body

Lynn, Mass., May 27.—While Ernest H. Cates was canoeing with his wife on Flax pond last night, his paddle brought to the surface the body of Edward H. Richards, a latter, 40 years old, of this city, who had been missing since May 12. Richards' wife died about a year ago, leaving him with four children, and he had been low-spirited since her death.

Was Rhody's Oldest Convict

Providence, May 27.—The oldest prisoner in the custody of the state of Rhode Island, Moses H. Grinnell, who was given a life sentence for the murder of Charles H. Thomas at Tiverton, in 1880, died at the state prison yesterday. Grinnell was 95 years of age. The Thomas murder created considerable interest about New England at the time.

Alleged Embezzler a Suicide

Newtown, Conn., May 27.—Charles H. Northrop, former town treasurer, who has been under indictment for alleged embezzlement of $4000 of the town funds, took his life by hanging from the banister of the second floor of his home. Northrop was 49 years old, a graduate of the Yale Divinity school. His trial was to have soon come up at Bridgeport.

Close to Settlement In Full

North Attleboro, Mass., May 27.—Charles G. Bancroft, receiver of the Jewelers' National bank of this town, which closed its doors after the mysterious death of its cashier, Frederick E. Sargeant, announces that he will pay a 30 percent dividend to depositors early in July. This will bring the total of dividends already paid up to 90 percent.

Resignation of Chief Justice

Providence, May 27.—The Rhode Island general assembly closed last night, having held a record session of seventy-nine days. On the closing day the assembly received the resignation of Chief Justice William W. Douglas of the supreme court, who retires from active service. The resignation entitles Douglas to full pay for life.

Octopus Exceeds Contract Speed

Newport, R. I., May 27.—The final trials of the submarine boat Octopus were held here under the direction of the board of survey and inspection. While official figures were not obtainable, it is believed that the Octopus exceeded her contract speed of 10½ knots an hour.

Policeman Sent to Prison

Young Men's Christian Association

OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and requests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. FAX, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title - City Hospital of Quincy)

INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy have just applied for donations and bequests for the endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve all in the hour of need will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams Street, Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, 213 Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

To Print What Might Have Been Said

Washington, May 27.—The two floor leaders of the house occupied the centre of the stage yesterday and performed their usual feat of charging each other with responsibility for the conditions at present existing in that body. An order was presented by Mr. Payne granting five days' leave after adjournment in which to print in the Congressional Record the remarks that might have been, but were not, made on the floor. He took occasion to arraign the Democrats for their filibuster. Mr. Williams accused the majority of doing nothing at the present session, and opposed the order because it gave members no opportunity to reply to statements. The order was adopted.

Compromise Currency Agreement

Washington, May 27.—The senate and house conferees on the currency bills held three meetings yesterday, and at the third reached a tentative agreement on which will be based the compromise agreement which the Republican members of the conference hope to reach. The probability of the reporting of a compromise bill to the two houses of congress is now considered a certainty.

Picture Excited His Ire

Paris, May 27.—A man who gave the name of Ebner attempted to destroy Renouard's allegorical picture, "The Trial of Dreyfus," in the salon of the Societe des Beaux Arts. The picture was considerably damaged, but it can be repaired. Ebner, who was placed under arrest, told the magistrate that he was a Nationalist and was unable to control his indignation at the sight of the picture.

Seattle Folks View Naval Parade

Seattle, May 27.—Rear Admiral Sperry landed 3000 men, who made a Seattle holiday by parading through the streets of the city. The sailors were accompanied by a land force of coast artillery and infantry from four forts and local militia and civic societies.

Hole In Schooner's Bottom

Canso, N. S., May 27.—Fishing schooner Crofton McLeod struck a rock at the entrance of this harbor and knocked a hole in her bottom, filling immediately. The crew had not time to save their belongings. The vessel had on board 600 quintals of codfish.

EDITORIAL.

General Confidence is making a tour of the North, South, East and West.

Congress refused to pay much attention to the President's latest message until the country did.

Mr. Morgan says our financial crisis is all over, and he ought to know.

As another sign of returning confidence, Frank Gould and his wife have kissed and made up.

A Chicago man used a $100 check as a bottle stopper. The average Chicago man uses checks as bottle openers.

"Is there anything harder to get than money?" asks an exchange. Mr. Bryan would probably answer in the affirmative.

Richard Croker announces that he will not come to America until after the presidential election. He need not hurry, even then.

The need of Memorial Day to inculcate patriotism is still apparent, when the Grand Army feels called upon to offer a reward to check the assaults on the flag, reported in the cemeteries. They have the same trouble nearly every year, and it is not surprising if the old veterans get mad.

Early Season
At Houghs Neck

Lightship No. 92 passed Houghs Neck Tuesday afternoon on her way to the Fore River. Quite a large crowd gathered on the shore to watch her.

Building seems to increase as the warm weather comes. Twelve new houses have been started since Monday, four of them are to be built on Rock Island.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Hart are at the Midland.
The lake at Pandora park has been cleaned out and is very pretty to look upon.

The official news of the Houghs Neck Associates will be printed in this column. The members of the association should have a copy of the Ledger to keep in touch with the progress of the association. A full account of tonight's meeting will be printed tomorrow.

Mrs. Taylor has opened a home bakery at the corner of Shennen and Sea streets. Try her once.
William J. Tilley's hedge has been trimmed. It is one of the prettiest on the beach.

The health committee of the Houghs Neck associates have started work in earnest.
There is a movement on foot to get a public landing. The efforts of the residents in the past have not been very successful, but the men in charge of the present movement are experienced in this line of work, and it looks as if they would succeed.

There will be a meeting and supper of the Houghs Neck associates tonight. Many city officials are to be present.
There will be dancing at Pandora hall every evening. Winchester orchestra Wednesday and Saturday evenings till June 17, Houghs Neck orchestra other nights. J. A. Graham manager.

AMONG THE CLUBS

On Tuesday June 2, the monthly meeting of the Philanthropic committee of the Quincy Women's club will be held at the club house at 2 P. M. A conference of charities will follow at 3 o'clock at which time Miss Zilpha Smith, a coworker of Dr. J. R. Brackett's will speak and answer questions on charity organization work. All charity workers are cordially invited to be present.

The next meeting of the Quincy Day Nursery association will be held at the Women's club house on Tuesday, June 24, at 2.30 P. M.

The May meeting of the Hospital Aid association will be held Thursday afternoon at three o'clock in the chapel of First church, City Square. A cordial invitation is extended to all women.

Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution hold their last regular meeting for this season on Monday afternoon June first at the home of a Randolph member, Mrs. Patience C. H. Braley. Quincy members will take the Brockton electric in City Square at quarter past one and join the Braintree ladies at South Braintree at quarter of two, for Randolph.

Dr. E. N. Hardy is to speak on "The Religious Training of Children" at the Mothers' meeting on Wednesday afternoon in Bethany chapel. Mrs. Laurence H. Sturtevant will sing, Miss Laura Herrig render violin solos and there will be an entertainment under the direction of Mrs. F. E. Williams. There will be an informal reception for mothers and children and tea will be served at four o'clock. It is the last meeting until October and it will be made especially entertaining for those attending.

A meeting of the executive board of the Quincy Women's club will be held on Thursday morning June 4 at ten o'clock at the club house. As it may be the last meeting of the summer all members are urged to be present that important business may be discussed preparatory to the club season in the fall.

Club women are reminded that Wednesday June 3d is donation day at the Pond home and if they cannot go out to Pondville on that day they can send articles to either Mrs. C. W. Guy or Mrs. Thomas Fenno, who will see that they are sent. This very worthy object receives a most liberal support from all over the country.

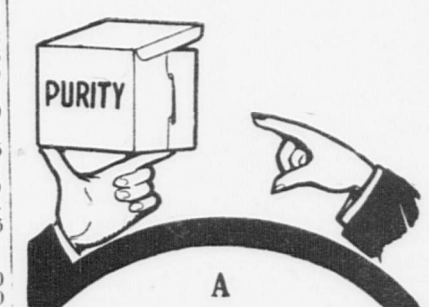

CLUB NOTES.

Forestry and tree preservation will probably be a vital issue at the biennial of the National Federation of Women's clubs in Boston in June. Thousands of the club women are intensely interested in the forestry question, and these cannot fail to appreciate the concise way in which Enos A. Mills of the United States forest service has told in a recent article of the uses of living trees. He says "they charm us with their beauty. Give place for rest and inspiration. Prevent violent climatic changes. Form a good wind-break. Are

By invitation of the New England Women's Club the sixteenth annual meeting of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs will be held in Boston. As 1908 marks the fortieth year of the New England Women's Club and the fifteenth of the Massachusetts Federation, the club will celebrate the two anniversaries by an evening meeting tonight in the South Congregational church at eight o'clock. There will be brief addresses by Miss Lucia Peabody, Mrs. Philip Carpenter, Miss Florence Everett and others. A special feature will be the first public performance of a group of songs written by Julia Ward Howe, president of the club, and honorary president of the federation. Miss Marion Hay will be the singer. Mrs. Howe's fine musical ability has never before been brought to public notice, and the present celebration, falling upon her eighty-ninth birthday, affords a most fitting occasion for introducing her to her fellow citizens in the new character of a musical composer. Admission to the church will be by purple tickets only.

Thursday morning at ten o'clock in the same church will be held the annual meeting for the election of officers, the presentation of annual reports and any other business that may properly come before the convention.

Club women who are not delegates will need for admission to all sessions the yellow federation tickets, which they may obtain from their club secretary. The white tickets for reserved seats, which have been issued for the quarterly meetings, will not admit to the annual meeting.

Scenic Theatre.

The Scenic will give a special holiday matinee on Saturday, being Memorial Day, and will close its vaudeville season at the end of the performance that night, but on next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, June 1st, 2d and 3d, Manager Donovan has secured, by special request of several of the Scenic patrons, the original pictures of the Frank Gotch and Geo. Hackenschmidt World Championship wrestling contest, and the Tommy Burns-Gunner Moir International Boxing Contest, which are most thrilling and interesting from start to finish. Every detail of both contests will be minutely described by a capable announcer. This is something that Quincy has never had an opportunity of witnessing before, and it is a rare chance to see the most realistic reproduction of these bouts up to date, in fact two exhibitions for the price of one admission. The price of admission has been fixed very low. They are only here for three nights.

Newsy Budget
From Shipyard

News from Newport says that the Octopus, built at Quincy, has again exceeded contract speed.

The steam trawl Spray built at Quincy arrived at T. Wharf, Boston, on Tuesday with a large catch—14,000 pounds of haddock, 14,000 pounds of cod, 3,000 pounds of hake, and 200 pounds of other fish.

Although four of the Quincy built warships are now with the Atlantic fleet on the Pacific ocean, there are three others to enter the new Atlantic fleet. A Washington dispatch to the Transcript says: Pending the return of the Atlantic battleship fleet on Feb. 22, the Navy Department has decided to form a new Atlantic fleet. The new battleships Mississippi, Idaho and New Hampshire, the armored cruisers North Carolina and Montana, and the cruisers Chicago, Des Moines, Dubuque, Paducah and Tacoma, with the scouts Chester, Birmingham and Salem will be assembled about Aug. 1 under a commander to be selected by the President. The battleship Mississippi, under Captain John C. Fremont, is at the League Island Yard, practically ready for service. The New Hampshire, to be commanded by Captain Cameron McR. Winslow, will be available after the trip to Quebec in July, and the armored cruisers North Carolina and Montana are ready for any service which can be assigned to them next August.

From Aug. 8 to 17 the naval militia of Massachusetts, Maine, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York and the Hoboken division of New Jersey, will assemble on the auxiliary cruiser Yankee and the gunboat Castine in Gardiners Bay, Long Island, to participate in a series of competitive drills. This information was given out by Commander Charles C. March, U. S. N., who is in Newport to attend the trials of the submarine Octopus in Narragansett Bay. He will be in command of the naval militia. A flotilla of submarine torpedo boats and a flotilla of surface torpedo boats will accompany the ships and will be used in the practice.

The ocean-going tug Concord met with an embarrassing mishap on Monday in the lower harbor. Just as she was nearing quarantine with two coal barges in tow, the Sunbury and Havana, which she had brought from Norfolk, her shaft began to revolve at an amazing rate. As soon as the engines could be stopped, it was discovered that her propeller had taken leave. How it had slipped off was impossible to say, but the vessel was helpless. She whistled for assistance and the tugs Peter W. French and Mercury responded.

New Contracts At Shipyard

It will be good news to Quincy to learn that the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. has been awarded another government contract. This time it is to build eight of the twelve ocean going tugs recently authorized by the government. A telegram announcing the award of the contract was received Wednesday night. The tugs are to be 90 feet long and will have a displacement of 275 tons. They will be required to develop a speed of 10 1-2 miles. The first of the boats must be delivered in December, and the last by the 5th of February next year. The contract price was $471,400. The tugs will be used by the War department for towing and other work.

The second turbine engine of the scout cruiser Salem was given a turning over Wednesday, and was very satisfactory. Although full headway of steam was not turned on she made 330 revolutions per minute and could have been run up to 400 if desired.

The Salem will leave the works next Wednesday for Provincetown to standardize her screws. She will then go into dry dock at Charlestown to make ready for her official trials. An effort will be made to beat the speed of the Chester.

May 29 will be the first anniversary of the launching of the scout cruiser Birmingham at the Fore River shipyard. Wednesday she left Key West for Guantanamo.

Telegraphic news in other columns today reports the bombardment of the monitor Florida, the tests of the submarine Octopus, and the visit of the Atlantic fleet to Tacoma, Washington.

The new 16,000 ton battleship Michigan, first of the Dreadnought class was successfully launched at the plant of the New York Ship Building Co. at Philadelphia on Tuesday. Her sponsor was Miss Carol Barnes Newberry of Detroit, daughter of the assistant secretary of the navy. Admiral Capps in speaking of the Michigan says: "She is really as strong as the Dreadnought, and foreigners say what it does not become us to say—she is stronger than the Dreadnought. She has the same broadside strength and is an improvement on the British ship in many ways, although she is not as strong as the Delaware and the North Dakota, which will be 20,000-ton ship."

PARKWAY BRIDGE

Resolve Looking To Connection Of Quincy And Boston Parkway

An extension of the Quincy bay shore reservation to Columbia road Boston, is contemplated in the resolve adopted in the Legislature on Wednesday. It was a substitute moved by Representative Mildram for the resolve introduced earlier in the session for a new bridge to be built by Boston and Quincy in place of the present highway bridge over the Neponset river between Neponset and Atlantic.

The new resolve as engrossed reads:

Resolved, That the Metropolitan Park commission is hereby authorized and directed to investigate the desirability of constructing a new bridge across the Neponset River between the cities of Boston and Quincy at or near the location of the present bridge, and to report the result of the investigations to the next General Court not later than the second Monday in January. Said commission shall consider the most suitable location of said bridge with reference to the various uses to which it may be put and also with reference to any existing or proposed boulevards in the vicinity of either approach to said bridge, and make estimates of the expense of said structure and approaches, including the draw required in said bridge. They shall also investigate and make a separate report upon the advisability and probable expense of taking and constructing a state highway in that part of the city of Boston, formerly Dorchester, from Columbia road at a point east of the Plymouth division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad to said Neponset River.

A Quibble Over Walking Delegate

It looks now as though the strike of the granite cutters, which has been in progress for two weeks, might be settled before the end of the week.

As the agreement now stands there is but one point from the manufacturers' side of the question that remains unsettled. That is the question of the right of the walking delegate, or business agent as he is called, to visit the yards.

This matter was fully discussed Wednesday evening at a largely attended meeting of the Granite Manufacturers' Association.

While the article in question seems plain enough, the manufacturers claim that there are several interpretations that can be put upon it.

It now reads: A business agent of the union may visit a yard and talk with a workman for five minutes, and no longer, unless permission is given by someone in authority.

The Manufacturers claim that this can be interpreted to mean that a business agent may enter a yard, talk five minutes with a workman. That he can leave the yard and ten minutes or so later return and talk five minutes more with another workman and so on throughout the day if he desires.

The cutters claim that such is not the intention of the clause, and that its interpretation is that the business agent can only visit a particular yard once or twice a day.

This is as the Manufacturers desire it but they want the clause so specific that there can possibly be but one understanding.

According to the sentiment expressed at Wednesday night's meeting of the Manufacturers, if this clause is so worded that it will state explicitly that a business agent shall not visit any yard but once a day, it will be satisfactory.

According to the verbal interpretation put upon it by the cutters that is what it means.

It now only remains to be seen if this clause can be worded as desired. As soon as that is done the Manufacturers are ready to sign the bill and agreement.

MAYOR IS IT

Ex-Mayor Bryant Says He Was And Mr. Shea Now Holds Reins

The first monthly supper and meeting of the Houghs Neck Associates was held in LaBrecque Cafe on Wednesday evening. The event was the most successful one ever held by the associate. The big dining room was hardly large enough to hold the great number of members and the invited guests.

The business meeting was opened by Henry W. French. Mr. French went over the work of the various committees and dealt mostly on the street lighting business. About 8.30 ex-Mayor Charles M. Bryant arrived in his auto in company with Councilman Gelotte and Walsh, also William Norteman and R. Y. Woodbury.

At 9 o'clock the supper was served, and the members and guests, all hungry by this time, ate with a relish. At 9.30 the chairman of the ways and means committee, A. F. Baird, arrived with Mayor Shea. When the Mayor entered the cafe a mighty cheer was tendered to him, and he was escorted to the private table reserved for the guests.

Henry French the chairman spoke of the harm to Houghs Neck if the Boston boat was discontinued as threatened. Mr. French ended his remarks by introducing William Cavanagh, president of the Houghs Neck and Boston Steamboat Company.

Mr. Cavanagh said in part: "We have been running the boat to Boston for seven years. It has been a losing game with us from the start. Every year the directors have had to go into their own pockets and settle the bills. The people of Houghs Neck do not want the boat or they would have patronized it more. The city officials do not want the boat as they have refused us an express license."

Mr. M. T. Connors, business manager and treasurer of the company put a proposition up to the members. A motion was made to appoint a committee to look into the matter and report to the members through the secretary by Saturday, whether the proposition was worth considering.

Mayor Shea was next introduced and said: "Fellow members of the Houghs Neck associates, there are many things the Mayor can do for Houghs Neck and many things he cannot. He can fix up your streets, and we have already had signs made for the streets, something that was needed badly. The mayor cannot give you street lights, that is up to the Finance Committee. Personally I think that you need them and sincerely hope that you will get them."

Ex-Mayor Bryant was the next speaker. He said, "gentlemen, I object to the statement of the Mayor. The Finance Committee don't amount to anything. The mayor is 'it'. He can get you those street lights. Don't let him fool you for a minute. When I was 'it' I laid the way for just such an occasion, by asking for more money in the budget. The Mayor is it, and he can get it for you."

The Mayor asked Mr. Bryant where he could get the money.

Mr. Bryant replied by saying, "Get it from your miscellaneous city expenses."

The Mayor replied saying, "I have no right to use that money for street lighting."

Mr. Bryant—You can do as you please with that money, ask the City Solicitor.

The Mayor—I am glad to get you on record as saying that. Did you do what you wanted with that money when you were mayor?

Mr. Bryant—Yes. Mr. Bryant continued saying, I don't think that Houghs Neck can get all they ask this year, but I think if the Mayor and the Finance Committee can get together there is very good prospect of getting some street lights.

Mr. French—Let the Mayor and the Finance Committee fight it out. I think that the result will be that we will get a large portion of what we asked.

Councilman Gelotte said I am in favor of giving Houghs Neck some lights. I think that they are sorely needed. I will do my part towards getting them. (cheers.)

Councilman Walsh said—Mr. Bryant asks the Mayor to use his miscellaneous city appropriation for lights. I would like to remind Mr. Bryant that when the budget reached the Finance Committee the first thing Mr. Bryant did was to cut off $1000 from the Mayor's miscellaneous expenses.

Three cheers were given to the Mayor and the members of the Finance Committee present.

Shortly after 11.30 the supper came to an end. The members voting it the best time in their lives.

Mr. Bryant invited Mayor Shea to ride home in his auto.

MONITOR IS SHELLED

Florida Withstood Heavy Gun Fire From the Arkansas

WAS NOT VITALLY INJURED

Important Lessons Learned From Real War Demonstration—Victory
For Turret Construction and New Woven Pipe Military Mast

Old Point Comfort, Va., May 28.—
The biggest navy gun, the heaviest projectile and the highest explosive known, combined with close range and deadly aim, were allowed to work their full havoc on the turret plate of the monitor Florida. The result is declared to be a victory for turret construction, and this, notwithstanding the 11-inch hardened steel plate was blackened and broken, the seams of the turret sprung and the rivets and screws loosened and twisted.

It was not five minutes after the terrible impact that the finely balanced mechanism of the turret was being worked with perfect ease and the 12-inch gun on the left side was trained at will. Inside the turret the havoc was much less apparent than from the outside. Examination showed that of the many delicately adjusted instruments for fire control, sighting and operating the turret, few, if any, were out of working order.

Then followed a futile attempt to destroy the newly designed fighting mast erected on the stern of the Florida. After five shots from the Arkansas' guns had gone ripping through it, the mast
still stood firm.

"Forty shots would not bring it down
and no enemy would waste ammunition and time shooting at it," was the expert comment.

The scene of the real war demonstration was Hampton Roads. The Florida lay with her nose pointed out through the Virginia capes about four miles from Old Point Comfort. She had steam up and a large American flag floated astern. Most striking in her appearance was the "leaning tower" on her stern, the woven pipe military mast resembling a huge waste-paper basket.
One top of its 125 feet of height was a broad platform, where two dummy sailors fashioned from boards stood bravely, looking down on two more dummies of the same pattern on the turret forward. One of the two big guns which protrude from this turret had been removed and a "cripple" gun occupied its place.

Just 342 yards on the inside of the Florida lay her sister ship, the Arkansas. The distance looked cruelly close as the big guns on the latter ship prepared to take unerring aim.

The turret of the Florida was slowly swung around so that her guns and those of the Arkansas looked squarely at each other. More than an hour of gun training followed. Then the "big noise" came, two crashes so close together that it sounded like one. The 12-inch projectile had hit its target.
What was left was a big, black wound.
Just to the right of the right hand gun
there was what looked like a hole. The officers went to the Florida at once, but before they got there her crew had come up from the hold and were looking over the damage.

The plate had been broken through from the gun port to the edge just above and just below where the shell struck. The broken piece had been driven into the turret several inches,
but not through the plate, so that no
hole was actually made. The detonation was somewhat imperfect, as was evidenced by the quantity of sulphur-
like powder which covered the break and mast. This failure to realize the full strength of the powder is regarded as injecting the only uncertain element into the test.

Officers entered the turret at once and its mechanism was operated, the turret being swung completely around each way, and the left hand gun trained. The right gun, the "crippled gun" in place of the regular one which had been removed for the test, of course could not be trained; besides the broken plate had wedged against it.
This, the officers said, would not have prevented the gun being fired, although it would have interfered with the sighting.

But the turret bore the evidences of a fight. The paint along the seams had disappeared, many of the seams were sprung, bolts were loosened and screws lay around. A board dummy inside was intact, and the opinion of officers was that, even with the terrible impact, the gunners in the turret would not have been injured.

The first shot at the fighting mast
was fired from one of the 4-inch guns of the Arkansas, and, besides piercing an iron plate target at its base, cut one of the supporting pipes and injured
others. The second shot from the gun cut two tubes a little higher up on the other side of the mast. The third shot missed, and then a four-inch explosive shell, exploding high up near the top of the mast, shook the structure and tore asunder a number of the tubes; but the mast seemed as stable as ever.
The fifth and last was a solid shot from the big 12-inch gun, aimed so as to hit the mast on its outer rim on the side leaning towards the water, the structure having purposely been tilted at an angle of ten degrees to make it easier still. This terrific shot tore holes through many of the supporting tubes,
but the mast still stood firm.

BOSTON TRAWLER SUNK

Eighteen Men Drowned When Steamer Crashed Into Her
Yarmouth, N. S., May 28.—Fishing schooner Fame of Boston was run down and sunk while cruising off Cashes Bank by the steamer Boston of the Dominion Atlantic Railway steamship line, in command of Captain Mc-Kenzie.

The Fame left Boston with twenty-three men, two of whom were saved from the wreck. One other had been landed, and two were away in a dory at the time of the disaster. This would make the total loss of life eighteen.
The others, including Captain Fahey, went down with the schooner.

The accident happened in a thick fog which shut out the schooner from view of the steamer's pilothouse. Those in the Boston's pilothouse and the watch forward did not see the schooner until within 200 feet. The steamer's engines were reversed, but could not stop her headway.

The sharp prow of the steamer sliced
the stern of the Fame and she sank in three minutes. The Fame was struck aft of the main rigging.

The Boston was stopped and a boat immediately lowered, but owing to an accident to the falls it capsized. Two more, however, were sent off, and after rowing back a short distance one of the men of the schooner, Pitts, the cook,
was found floating about, supported by a life belt. Clark, the other survivor, was swimming in the wreckage and was hauled on board the lifeboat in an exhausted condition. There was no trace of the others.

Offenders of Public Decency

Los Angeles, Cal., May 28.—In the prisoners' dock in police court with six business and professional men, all accused of an offense "against public decency," Peje Storck, a pianist, known throughout Europe and America,
pleaded guilty to being "an idle, lewd
and dissolute person," and was sentenced to serve six months on the chain gang. Of the other men arrested one pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve six months on the chain gang,
two were released on bail and the others
secured postponements.

Wrote Letters For Whitmore

Newark, N. J., May 28.—With the closing of the state's case against Theodore Whitmore, charged with killing his wife, the prosecution developed startling testimony when Frederick W.
Elliott swore that two days after the body of Mrs. Lena Whitmore was found in a swamp near Harrison, N. J., he had written two letters to Mrs. Whitmore's sister, Mrs. Schmitter, at the instigation of Whitmore, and signed them
"Lena."

Preparing to Outline Platform

Washington, May 28.—At least a tentative draft of the Republican national platform will be prepared in Washington. Already arrangements are making for conferences on the subject. Participating in the platform conference will be President Roosevelt, Secretary Root, leading Republicans in both branches of congress and others who will take a conspicuous part in the convention and subsequent campaign.

Counting Ballots of 1905

counting of the ballots cast for W. R.
Hearst and George B. McClellan for after a delay of more than two years.

The contents of two ballot boxes were counted yesterday and resulted in a net gain by Hearst of twenty-seven votes in the two precincts counted. The count will not be completed for about six weeks.

A DEMAND FOR $1000

Threatening Letter Sent to a New Hampshire Man

EARMARKS OF BLACK HAND

Money Was to Be Placed in News paper and Left in a Certain Spot
—Men Who Came After It Arrested
and Held For Blackmail

Laconia, N. H., May 28.—On a charge of attempted blackmail, Burton J.
Emery, aged 40 years, and L. D.
Muzzy, aged 25, were bound over to the grand jury for a hearing in the local court. The two men are accused of having tried to extort money by means of a threatening letter sent to Walter H. Pitman, one of the managers of the Pitman Manufacturing company, a large hosiery concern in this town.

Pitman received a letter alleged to have been sent by agents of the Black Hand society, ordering him to put $1000
in an old newspaper and leave it at a certain spot about a mile from the city on the bank of Lake Winnisquam at 11:30 a. m. on May 27. Pitman was warned in the letter that if he disclosed
the contents of the letter to the police
he would not live a year.

Chief of Police Harvell and Captain Hoadley concealed themselves in some bushes near the spot. After Pitman had left a newspaper package in the cove designated in the letter the policemen saw two men in a boat near the place, and finally saw one of the men step ashore from the boat, pick up the newspaper which Pitman had dropped and, finding that it contained no money, threw it away. Later, it is said, the other man also came ashore and looked at the newspaper. The two men got back into their boat and rowed away, but were intercepted by a call launch containing Harvell and Hoadley, who placed them under arrest.

In court both men pleaded not guilty,
but probable cause was found and they were held for the grand jury.
They were unable to secure the required bonds of $1000 each and were remanded to jail. Muzzy has been employed in a factory here, while Emery had worked as a barber at different times.

Jerome Defends His Record

Elizabethtown, N. Y., May 28.—With an apology, which was at the same time a defense for having treated somewhat flippantly the charges against his administration of the district attorneyship of New York county, William T.
Jerome finished his argument in his own defense before Commissioner Hand. This concluded the hearing. Jerome went over his own record in private and political life and adduced circumstances which, he considered, explained the animus of the charges against him and why he had been justified in not taking them seriously.

Revival of Woolen Business

Providence, May 28.—Nearly all of the Olneyville mills of the American Woolen company, which owns thirty plants in New England, are starting additional machinery, and the outlook
in that section of the city is brighter than at any time since last October.
Since the financial panic until recently
the company has been running at less than 50 percent of its capacity.

Wilhelmina to Honor Diplomat

The Hague, May 28.—David J. Hill,
the American minister to The Nether-

Queen Wilhelmina June 1, and will then present his letters of recall. He is going to Berlin to succeed Charlemagne Tower as American ambassador there. Queen Wilhelmina purposes to offer Hill the grand cross of the Order of Orange-Nassau.

Charged With Grand Larceny

Syracuse, N. Y., May 28.—George C.
Ryan of this city, a member of the New York brokerage firm of T. A. McIntyre & Co., for which receivers were recently appointed, was arrested here on a charge of grand larceny in the first degree. Ryan, accompanied by his attorney and a detective, left for New York.

Devastation by Tornadoes

Wichita, Kan., May 28.—Ten dead,
twelve injured, of whom six may die,
hundreds of head of cattle killed, a vast acreage of crops destroyed and many buildings wrecked, are the results of a series of tornadoes that visited Alfalfa county, Okla. Every obstruction was levelled.

Killed in Baseball Game

Wickford, R. I., May 28.—Robert
W. Pierce, 15 years old, catcher for the North Kingstown high school baseball team, was hit over the heart by a foul tip and died before medical aid could reach him. Death was due to paralysis of the heart, caused by the blow.

Young Fishermen Drowned

Canso, N. S., May 28.—David Richardson and Freeman Feltnate, two young fishermen, were drowned by the capsizing of their boat. They left their homes to tend lobster traps and some hours later their boat, badly battered, was found on the beach.

EVELYN THAW'S TURN

Makes Answer to "Threatening and Insulting Statement"

STICKS TO HER STATEMENT

Insists That the Marriage Annulment Proceedings Were Begun at Behest of Thaw's Relatives and Claims to Have Undeniable Proof

New York, May 28.—That the relations between Evelyn Thaw and her husband's family are strained to the highest tension was made apparent when she gave out a statement vigorously assailing "the insincere attitude assumed toward her by Mr. Thaw's relatives since the beginning of his trouble."

The statement followed an exchange of formal statements between Mrs. Thaw and Franklin Bartlett, counsel for Harry K. Thaw's mother, which were given out after the discontinuance of the proceedings which Evelyn Thaw had begun for an annulment of her marriage. She declared at that time that she had practically been forced to begin the action by pressure exerted by her husband's relatives and that she withdrew her suit because she believed her husband in his present predicament merited her loyalty.

Mr. Bartlett, acting for Mrs. William Thaw, later gave out a statement in which he denied emphatically that either he or any of Thaw's relatives had anything whatever to do with the institution of the annulment suit. He said Mrs. William Thaw desired that Evelyn Thaw be treated generously and that at the present time she is given an allowance of $1000 a month.

In her reply young Mrs. Thaw reiterates that the annulment suit was begun at the behest, persuasion and solicitation of Bartlett and A. R. Peabody, representing the Thaw family, and declares that she has written proof to back up her statement. Mrs. Thaw's statement in full follows:

"In answer to the threatening and insulting statement issued by Colonel Bartlett, in the name of Mrs. William C. Thaw, Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw has this to say: That the statement is in keeping with the insincere attitude assumed toward her by Mr. Thaw's relatives since the beginning of his troubles."

"Daniel O'Reilly now reiterates that the annulment proceedings were begun at the behest, persuasion and solicitation of Colonel Bartlett and A. Russell Peabody, representing the Thaw family, and so that the question may not be discussed further, I have in my possession the undeniable proof in the handwriting of a member of the family, and that there is so much proof is known to Colonel Bartlett and A. Russell Peabody. Mrs. Thaw deprecates a newspaper controversy, but will resist as long as she is able such an attack as was contained in the interview issued by Colonel Bartlett."

"There is a place for the proper adjustment of Mr. Thaw's family affairs, but that place is not in the columns of the daily press, notwithstanding that the counsel who are harassing her have, at the least provocation, sought to air their views at her expense through this channel. This may be one of the many methods to influence her husband so that he may be more pliable to their desires."

New President of Peru

Lima, Peru, May 28.—Augusto B. Leguia has been elected to succeed Dr. Pardo as president of Peru. Leguia is 45 years of age and for a long time was engaged in the life insurance business. In 1903 he was minister of finance in President Candamo's government, of which Pardo was premier, and when Pardo became president Leguia was appointed premier. He retired to take part in the campaign for the presidency.

An Emergency Currency Bill

Washington, May 28.—An emergency currency law is assured. The currency question held its place yesterday as practically the only subject of consideration at both ends of the Capitol, and when both houses adjourned the compromise bill which was drafted by the Republican conferees had received the sanction of the house and had been presented to the senate, where it will also be passed when the vote is reached.

Going Under Water For Long Test

Newport, R. I., May 28.—The submarine torpedo boat Octopus was put through various tests off Portsmouth yesterday under the direction of the United States naval board of inspection and survey. These tests are said to have been satisfactory. Today the Octopus went to sea for a service test of twenty-four hours. All her crew will be obliged to remain on board throughout this test.

Fruitless Hunt For Missing Ship

BRYAN DELEGATES WIN

But New Hampshire Democrats

Downed a Bryan Resolution

Concord, N. H., May 28.—The Democrats of New Hampshire met here in state convention, adopted a platform of party principles and elected four delegates-at-large to the Democratic national convention in Denver. No alternates-at-large were elected, the convention voting that the delegates-at-large be authorized to name their own alternates.

The platform calls for an immediate revision of the tariff, and demands that the currency laws "be so amended that there shall be at all times enough money of undoubted security in circulation to meet all legitimate demands at reasonable rates." The platform also favors the election of United States senators by popular vote, publicity of campaign contributions, government control of corporations and the protection of labor against the undue issuance of injunctions.

An attempt was made to insert in the platform a resolution favoring the presidential candidacy of Mr. Bryan, but this was defeated by a most pronounced majority. The Bryan supporters, however, were victorious in electing as delegates-at-large the men on their own ticket.

Well Known Men Arrested

Boston, May 28.—Inspectors from police headquarters arrested six well known steel men on charges of conspiracy to defraud the city of Boston. The charges are in connection with some contracts for city work, it is understood. Those arrested are A. E. Cox, treasurer, clerk and a director of the Atlantic Works; D. D. Russell, treasurer of the James Russell Boiler Works company; J. E. Lynch, a member of the firm of the Hodge Boiler Works; C. F. Koopman, Jr., a member of the firm of the Cunningham Iron Works; D. N. Andrews, president of the Boston Bridge Works, and C. N. Pitts, secretary of the New England Structural company.

Student's Body Found in River

Boston, May 28.—The body of Reginald S. James was found in the Charles river, on the Cambridge side, by Patrick McNulty, a draftsman. No marks to indicate foul play were found on the body, and every indication points to suicide. James was a medical student at Harvard university, in his fourth year. He was 28 years of age. He had become despondent over excessive study, and it is known that for several weeks past he had been under a physician's care for nervous trouble.

Merger Bill in Legislature

Boston, May 28.—A bill authorizing the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad to hold stock of the Boston and Maine until July 1, 1910, and to acquire additional Boston and Maine stock, but not to vote on the same, the board of railroad commissioners being made trustees with the right to vote the stock, was agreed upon by the committee on railroads of the legislature. The bill was at once reported to the house.

Noted Trotter Sold at Low Price

Reedville, Mass., May 28.—W. J. Lewis, 2:06 1/4, holder of the world's trotting race record for three consecutive heats, was sold at a horse auction here for $1200. While this noted gelding is a candidate for the $50,000 American trotting derby next August, yet buyers were afraid of taking chances of bidding, as last season he was not raced on account of an ailing ankle. He showed in the sale ring apparently sound.

Alleged Perjury in Divorce Case

Worcester, Mass., May 28.—Harry A. Murphy, Miss Nellie M. Decker and Mrs. Mary A. Balch, all of Ludlow, Vt., but formerly of this city, were arraigned in court here and pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging perjury in connection with a divorce case against Mrs. Balch two years ago. Bail of $1000 was furnished by the women, but Murphy failed to obtain any and was sent to jail.

Newport, R. I., May 28.—The body of Benjamin G. Steenson, a private in the United States marine corps, who was drowned on Feb. 16 while attempting to save the life of his comrade, John M. Edge Trimmers Cause Shutdown

Spencer, Mass., May 28.—The fine shoe department of the Isaac Prouty & Co. factory shut down last night as a result of a strike of nine edge trimmers who went out because they were not granted an increase of 2 cents a dozen. Rubber Shop to Close For Good

Milford, Mass., May 28.—The officials of the Milford Rubber company announce that the factory will be shut down next Friday night. The company will not again resume business in Milford, the closing being attributed to unsatisfactory trade conditions. The factory has been in operation twelve years.

Presbyterians Discuss the Bible

Kansas City, May 28.—An attempt to procure a record endorsement of the standard American revised edition of the Bible as the best version before the American public, and commending its widest usage among Presbyterians, aroused the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America to a spirited discussion and the attempt failed by a narrow margin. A motion to table the resolution was adopted, 217 to 211.

HOLIDAY NOTICE.

Saturday, Memorial Day, will be observed as a holiday at the office of the Daily Ledger, no paper being issued. An eight-page paper will be printed on Friday with many of the Saturday features. See paper of Monday for three days news.

EDITORIAL.

Representative Eugene C. Hultman has announced his candidacy for the Senate. He has made a good record in the House, had no record in promotion.

Governor Johnson is said to be a base ball enthusiast, but Colonel Bryan is onto his curves.

Judge Gray's friends say that he "is in the hands of destiny." Perhaps, but destiny does not control the delegates.

The motto has been restored to the gold coin, but the coins have not been restored, not so you would notice them.

"Are Merry Widow hats paid for by the yard or the piece?" asks a reader. Chances are that many of them are not paid for at all.

The Metropolitan Park Commission is the proper one to consider the new bridge over the Neponset river, as it should be a parkway bridge. The present bridge should remain and take care of the general traffic.

London Punch predicts that Mr. Bryan will be elected president this year. Still, some folks contend that Punch never prints a good joke.

Young Quentin Roosevelt is well posted on the batting averages of all the leaders in the base ball leagues. Admiration for the bigstick appears to run in that family.

The election of a physical director for the Quincy High school means much for the development of pupils who will enter the school next September. Physical training is very essential.

Half the Illinois delegates to the Denver convention are to go in automobiles, as guests of Roger Sullivan. They had better look out for tacks and broken glass in the neighborhood of Lincoln, Neb.

Hancock Street.

Acting under orders of Commissioner Bainbridge, the street railway tracks on Hancock street are being raised. In some places, especially where the street was low, fully six inches. Under the order granting the location, the street railway has to grade the street outside its rails in conformity to the street. This means that the muddy places on this part of Hancock street will disappear and when the job is completed the street will be in better condition than it ever was. If something could only be done to Hancock street on the westerly side between City Square and Neponset bridge it would be a good thing. Although this is the main thoroughfare, the street today is in a wretched condition.

The Observations
In the Daily Walk

Dr. William Everett will preach at the First church Sunday morning. There will be a mass for Matthew Doyle at St. Johns church Friday morning.

Past base ball at Merrymount park on Saturday at 10 A. M.—Makaria vs. North Dorchester.

Rev. D. M. Wilson of Northfield, formerly of Quincy, will preach at the Wollaston Unitarian church Sunday morning.

Deacon Charles Sherburne is at work on the Children's Day concert for Sunday morning, June 14, at Quincy Point.

The Fore River Male Quartet are to sing appropriate selections at the special service at the Point church Sunday evening, May 31.

It has been some years since Quincy held a Fourth of July celebration and the Citizens' Association are moving for a celebration this year.

Persons attending the performance at the Scenic tomorrow evening will be presented, free, with a ticket good for one ride on steamboat running between Houghs Neck and Nantasket Point.

The advertiser for a second hand piano has received several answers although inserted Saturday for the first time. They came from Milton and Braintree as well as Quincy, showing that the Daily Ledger is read in the surrounding towns.

Owing to a delay in the arrival of the tanks necessary for operating the stereopticon for the lecture by Senorita Huidobro at First Church chapel last evening, the lecture was postponed. Announcement of date will be made later.

Pleasant preparations are being by special committees, for the annual banquet and meeting of the East Norfolk C. E. union, which gathers at 6.30 for its banquet and at 7.30 for its addresses next Monday evening at the Washington Street Congregational church, Quincy.

Why not move those "dead" cars near Music hall to a point nearer Elm street? Now it is impossible for one team to pass another where the cars stand, and they obstruct the view as well as the street. Near Elm street it would be possible for teams to go both sides of the cars.

Cornelius M. Duggan of Atlantic, a member of the Quincy Board of Health was on Wednesday elected high junior conductor of the Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters. The new high chief ranger is Chas. E. Bonning of Malden. A large increase of membership was reported. It was voted to become affiliated with the National federation. Voted not to admit women to high court.

G. W. Gragg, the druggist at Quincy Point, is displaying in his windows this week relics and photos of the civil war which attract a great deal of attention. Mr. G. is a member of T. W. Hyde Camp 46, Sons of Veterans, Bath, Me., his father and grandfather having taken part in the service in '61-'65. He will parade with the Milton Camp S. of V. Memorial day by invitation.

The Fresh Air Camp association has been presented with a new, up-to-date, Edison Mineograph, for its use. Such valued gifts are appreciated by the officers of the Fresh Air Camp association. Donations of hammocks, swings, tents, awnings, canvas rope, heavy duck, or sailing, can be made use of by the Fresh Air Camp association of Quincy and Weymouth. Persons willing to donate such articles for the use of the association may write to the secretary Charles H. Johnson, Hancock street, and a team will call.

Piping Stolen
From Shipyard

The police have been busy for the past few days trying to locate the party or parties who stole a boat from Houghs Neck, and also upwards of 400 pounds of composition piping valued at 40 cents per pound from the Fore River shipyard.

The boat which belonged to J. L. Harvey at Houghs Neck was stolen sometime Saturday night, and two night at least must have been needed to carry away the piping from Fore River plant.

On Wednesday, Chief Burrell and Inspector Goodhue, who have been working on the case, found the boat beached near the city bath house at Quincy Point.

A search in the woods in the immediate vicinity resulted in the finding of the tubing that had been stolen. It was thought that the parties would come in teams to carry off their plunder on Wednesday night. Officers were secreted near the place where the tubing had been hidden and they remained on watch from Wednesday afternoon until this morning. The parties had evidently become wise, for they failed to appear.

It took fourteen innings at Merrymount park on Wednesday afternoon to decide the game between the Quincy High and Medford High schools. At the end of the fifth innings the score stood 5 to 4 in favor of Medford. The visitors added another run in the eighth, but were shut out in the ninth. Quincy, however, scored two runs in the ninth tying the game. Then it was that both teams played ball. Out they went in the one-two-three style until the fourteenth inning, when Medford made a run and Quincy was shut out.

The features of the game were the fine pitching of Bates and his home run dive in the second. Quincy now has a winning combination and should walk off with a majority of the games in the future.

The Quincy Grammar school won in a 10-inning game from the Massachusetts Fields school on Monday.

The batteries for the M. F. S. were V. Stevens and A. Stevens, Sass taking A. Stevens place in the second inning. For the Q. G. S. the battery were Duggan and Gould. Hadlock in the last of the tenth placed a splendid hit between pitch and third with Gould on third knocking in the winning run. H. Hill in the fifth inning gave the decision that Sass of the M. F. S. was out on third base, but Sass said he was not out. This delayed the game somewhat, but it was found that the umpire's decision was correct.

Memorial Day Nuisance.

Editors Daily Ledger:
 Quincy's police make a fine showing in the Memorial Day march to the cemetery but could they not render a greater service by patrolling the route and protecting property?

The buxsters which line the streets and take up their stand along Valley and Sea street should be made to move on as the crying of their wares disturbs the solemnity of the occasion and the sale of peanuts and fruit litters up the street and cemetery so that it is a sorry spectacle after the service is over. Let us have a peaceful, dignified Memorial day from now on.

UNION FIELD DAY.

The I. O. O. F. Grand Union Field Day Association comprising over 100 Subordinate and Rebekah Lodges Encampments and Cantons, and representing over 10,000 members of the I. O. O. F. are enthusiastically working out plans and perfecting arrangements for this their third annual outing and field day, which will be held at the Point of Pines, on Saturday, June 27th, where the committee expect to entertain at least 20,000 people. It is the intention of the general committee, consisting of over 500 members, to spare no labor or expense to make this field day a grand success and beat their own record of last year when about 15,000 people passed through the gates at Point of Pines, and spent a most enjoyable day. All trains between Boston and Lynn are coming to look upon this day as a sort of fraternal holiday for their order and are all working toward that end.

Special arrangements will be made and conveniences supplied for the comfort of family and basket parties wishing to spend a day at the beach. Baskets being checked and sent for all trains between Boston and Lynn will stop at the Point of Pines on June 27th, and every possible arrangement for comfortable and safe transportation provided.

There will be one continual round of pleasure from 10 A. M. till 10 P. M.

The executive officers of the grand union field day association are as follows: President, Nelson I. Southwick; 1st Vice President, Wm. W. Schofield; 2d Vice President, John H. Joyce; Secretary, Miss Nellie M. Cate; Treasurer, Chas. H. Green; Finance Committee, Gen. Edgar H. Emerson, Major D. S. Knoles and Major Henry F. W. Cate and Mrs. E. C. Learned. The above officers are the same as last year with the exception of the secretary and the last four named, who were added this year.

Mayor O. C. Emerson will have H. Emerson will take care of the dance of the music and Gen. Edgar ing. W. H. Morgan will look out for the fireworks and the prize drill will be managed by Major Geo. H. Wiley. Athletic sport W. J. Moore. Mrs. E. C. Learned is the official photographer and Nathan H. Benson will take our pictures. Major John Howard will make the boys play ball and Mrs. Mary F. Southwick will attend to the prizes. Wm. W. Schofield committee on printing. A. J. Toole committee on press. The business standing popularity and wide acquaintance of those having charge guarantee a grand union outing and field day this year.

No Hucksters Wanted.

Editor of the Daily Ledger:
 On Saturday we pay our respects to our veterans of the Grand Army, and Spanish War. Appealing to those who attend these services for the love of the day—in all regard for decency—do not patronize the huckster carts until out of the cemetery.

The whole solemnity of the occasion is spoiled while the different organizations are carrying on their services to have right in their midst loud talking, eating and otherwise disturbing those who go to hear. Mr. Chief of Police, it is up to you, not to allow these same hucksters to monopolize the streets and sidewalks unless a good distance away from cemetery entrance. They ruin the dignified effect of the whole procession, as it passes down the street, to have to march through a lane where every conceivable kind of wares are sold. In no other city or town is this allowed. Keep them a proper distance from the grounds where our loved ones are buried.

West Quincy Cemeteries.

The Hall and St. Marys cemeteries at West Quincy never looked better than at the present time. For some weeks workmen have been cleaning the walks and mowing the lots so that they are now attractive. The Hall cemetery is a private corporation and its owners take pride in having it look well. At the St. Marys cemetery the monuments that were tipped over and defaced some months ago have been repaired, and many of the lots now have regular care.

Eastern Steamship Trips.

The weather of last week was such as to make everyone consider the desirability, if not the actual necessity of a summer vacation. It has given a decided impetus to excursion travel on every arm of the Eastern Steamship service.

It goes without saying that the various divisions of the Eastern Steamship Company offer excellent opportunities for either a short or a prolonged excursion on the bosom of old ocean. Whether one elects to make the trip on the Portland division, the boat leaving Union wharf for Portland every evening (Sunday excepted) at 7 o'clock; the Bangor division, for Rockland, Bangor, and all intermediate landings; the Kennebec division for Bath, Augusta and intermediate points, or the International division for Portland, Eastport, Lubec and St. John, N. B., the result, in point of comfort, of accommodations, excellence of service and cuisine, and the general delights of a sea trip is the same. On the Bangor division the steamers City of Rockland and City of Bangor are in commission and leave alternately Foster's wharf every evening (Sunday excepted) at 5 o'clock, while on the Kennebec division a steamer leaves Union wharf every Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening at 6 o'clock.

The delights of an all day sea trip are to be had on the International division which now has two sailings a week from Boston for St. John, Monday and Friday at 9 A. M. from Union wharf. The magnificent steamship Calvin Austin does service on this division, stopping at Portland, Eastport, Lubec and St. John on the Monday trip, but omitting Portland on Fridays' trip.

One of the surest evidences of the great popularity of these Eastern Steamship excursions is the undoubted public approval and the extraordinary patronage.

Athletic Meet

The dual meet between Quincy Y. M. C. A. and Milton has been changed from Saturday at 9 A. M. to 2.30 P. M. of the same day at Milton. There was a misunderstanding as two ball games were planned on the field for the morning of the 30th.

It is hoped a good crowd will go from Quincy to witness the meet. A splendid athletic field has been prepared for the meet by the Cunningham estate, and the events will be hotly contested.

He sees when their footsteps falter, when their hearts grow weak and faint; He marks when their strength is failing, and listens to each complaint; He bids them rest for a season for the pathway has grown too steep, And, folded in fair green pastures, He giveth his loved ones sleep.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Waterhouse of Lincoln avenue have issued cards for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Gertrude Tobey Waterhouse, and Mr. Earle G. Newman to be held on Tuesday evening, the sixteenth of June at 8.30. Because of the popularity of the young people and the hospitality of the Mr. and Mrs. Waterhouse the event is of unusual interest at Wollaston and vicinity.

The engagement is announced this week of Miss Alice Caroline Rogers, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Rogers of Quincy to Mr. John E. Cortell of Jamaica Plain.

Club women throughout Massachusetts are much pleased over the election on Thursday of Miss Georgie A. Bacon of Worcester to the presidency of the Massachusetts Federation of Women's clubs. Miss Bacon has been untiring in her efforts to make the biennial in June a success. She is a born leader, clear headed, womanly and gracious. In accepting the honor she made a pretty speech and was the recipient of a beautiful bunch of Killarney roses from the women of Worcester.

STRIKE IS OFF

The Granite Manufacturers And Cutters Reach Agreement

The strike of the granite cutters, which has been in progress for several weeks has been declared off and the men will return to work Monday morning.

The final act in ending the strike took place this afternoon at 1.30, at which time the agreement was signed at a joint meeting of the executive committee of the Granite Manufacturers' Association and of the Granite Cutters' Union.

The strike was brought on by the refusal of the Manufacturers' Association to sign the agreement as decided upon by the Arbitration committee.

The local committee readily came to an agreement early in the year upon all but a few points, which were the closed shop clause, apprentice clause and business agent clause. These were referred to the National Executive committee representing both the association and the union.

The finding of the committee was repudiated by the manufacturers on the ground that the committee was not properly constituted and because the acceptance of it would make them liable to civil suits at law if a man was refused work simply because he was not a union man.

The refusal to sign this agreement containing these articles brought on the strike.

Last Friday the National Committee again took up the matter, and the articles in relation to employment of union men were so changed as to eliminate the liability of the manufacturers.

Since that time the matter has been hanging fire as the manufacturers wanted interpretations of the several clauses in writing.

The last of these clauses was that in relation to visits of the business agent to yards.

The manufacturers desired this clause in the agreement to read that a business agent could visit a yard but once a day and talk to a workman but five minutes. Thursday afternoon the wording of this clause was so changed that it was acceptable by both parties interested. The agreement would have been signed Thursday night had it been possible to get the two committees together.

A joint meeting, therefore, of the two executive committees was called for 1.30 this afternoon. At this meeting the agreement was read, and promptly signed by both committees.

As stated above the men will return to work Monday morning, and prospects for business are good.

The Cutters' union will hold a mass meeting later this afternoon to ratify the agreement.

At a meeting of the Granite Manufacturers' Association this week President John L. Miller tendered his resignation as president of the association. By a rising vote, however, the association refused to accept his resignation.

WRECK OF THE FAME

Survivors Landed by Steamer
Which Sunk Their Craft

TWO STORIES OF DISASTER

Steamer Captain Says Foghorn Was Sounded at Short Intervals, but Schooner's Cook Did Not Hear It
Until Vessels Were About to Crash

Boston, May 29.—Edward C. Pitts, cook, and John Clark, seaman, the only surviving members of the crew of the Boston fishing schooner Fame, who were aboard the schooner when she was run down by steamer Boston while cruising off Cashe's Bank, 104 miles east of Boston light, on Tuesday night, arrived in Boston yesterday on the Boston. Pitts and Clark both live in East Boston. Both men were very weak.

Clark was met by his sister, who took him directly to his home. He obeyed the instructions imposed upon him at the gangplank to say nothing of the circumstances of the accident until he had conferred with the attorney of the Eastern Fishing company, which owned the Fame.

Pitts was met by his wife, who went with him to the office of the Crowninshield at 70 Long wharf.

Shortly after the Boston docked at Long wharf Captain McKenzie, commander of the steamer, made the following statement regarding the circumstances of the accident:

"I had cleared Cashe's Bank and thought I was well away from all vessels. Leaving the bridge to Third Officer Sweeney, I went to lie down, but had only been below five minutes when we struck her. We were sounding our foghorn at one minute and a half intervals. The weather was very thick and the sea was running high. Pitts says he did not hear our horn. Neither did we hear that of the Fame.

"We were going at a little better than half-speed, or, say, about fourteen miles an hour, and we did not see the schooner's lights until we were less than 200 feet away. We put the helm hard down, with full speed astern. We stopped in the wreckage and launched three boats. The first one was lost.

"Nearly all our passengers were on deck at the time. I don't think more than seven or eight men got on the deck of the schooner before she sank. The rest went down with the vessel. The Boston rode right over the schooner's quarter and she sank almost immediately."

At the office of B. B. Crowninshield, agent of the Eastern Fishing company, which owned the schooner, a full statement of the affair was taken from Pitts. The statement given out by Crowninshield is as follows:

"It was blowing a good breeze, and the schooner was sailing slowly on her starboard tack with three lower sails. Pitts, who had just finished setting his bread, came on deck to take a look around before turning in. He was worried about Joe Welch and Daniel McGregor, who were lost in the dory last Monday. He was leaning against the nest of dories when he noticed a small light.

"Up to that time he had not heard a sound of any kind. Between the time when he first sighted the light and when the steamer struck the schooner, a space during which he could have counted a hundred, the steamer's horn sounded three times. The schooner was blowing two horns constantly. The Boston cut the schooner astern of the main rigging and sliced the stern completely off.

"When it became inevitable that they were to be struck, Pitts ran to the forward companionway and yelled to the men below to come up and bring an axe to free the dories from the grips. The fishermen were slow in responding and only about half of them reached the deck. These failed to bring either a knife or an axe. Pitts, however, leaped into the topmost dory of the nest.

"When the vessel sank about three minutes later, her prow went up at such an angle that it was impossible for him to keep his position and he jumped into the rigging. His head was caught in the net and he was dragged some distance under water before he finally succeeded in freeing himself. When he came up he looked around, but all he could see was the lights of his companions as they struggled in the water. He thinks there were about six or seven of them. He knocked against a trawl buoy, and seized it. He also got two oars under an arm and it was by means of this wreckage that he kept afloat until reached by the steamer's boat about an hour later, as he was told by the steamer's people. He remembered nothing from a short time after he was in the water until 4 o'clock the next morning."

Lost In Fog—Escaped Shipwreck
Highland Light, Mass., May 29.—Joseph Walsh and David McNally, the two members of the crew of the fishing schooner Fame who at the time of the accident were away from the schooner in their dory, landed at Race point last night, apparently little the worse for their experience. They had been unable to get their bearings and after having spent more than twenty-four hours in their little boat in the thick fog they were picked up by schooner Grace Davis and landed here.

Cinderella's Mask.

By ETHEL BARRINGTON.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

As the sound of sleigh bells broke the quiet of the room Miss Mercer clinched her teeth to keep back threatening tears.

"I couldn't stand on that foot for one minute, let alone dance," she exclaimed to her younger sister's governess, who stood slim and silent before the fire.

"I am truly sorry," the latter replied. "Jane said you sent for me to help you."

"What can I do?"

"Take my place in the minuet."

"Oh, no; no; I couldn't do that!"

"You'll have to," groaned Miss Mercer, with decision. Being fond of Augusta Park, she treated the young dependent with confidence and consideration beyond her position, but expected in return cheerful yielding to her own whims or comfort. "I'll write to Aunt Enid explaining the accident to my ankle and that you will take my place, so that the dance need not be abandoned. It's fortunate you played for some of the rehearsals and can wear my gown."

"I really cannot!" Genuine distress rang in the protest. "The dancers are all your friends. I am not in society!"

"When I wanted you to play the other night you made no fuss. Regard it as an act of charity if it helps you, but go."

"Not to Mrs. Fitzray's. I won't enter her doors!"

The invalid raised herself on her elbow, regarding in astonishment the flushed cheeks of the other girl.

"That sounds as if you held some sort of grudge against aunt, and I doubt if you ever met her."

Augusta shook her head. "Don't be a goose then," Miss Mercer shifted her cushions with a little moue of pain.

"Bring that low chair and let me talk to you. Now listen," she coaxed when her directions were obeyed. "It would be wickedly selfish not to save the situation. Aunt's masked ball has been looked forward to as one of the events of the season. Our minuet of 'holly and mistletoe' is to be the piece de resistance. Aunt will never forgive me if I am the cause of its being cut out."

"It would be ridiculous for one in my position to take part in it," objected the governess.

"Who will know or care so long as they get their fun?"

"If it were only somewhere else,"

Augusta faltered, whereupon Miss Mercer turned the averted face toward her, holding it firmly by the chin to study the expression.

"You are keeping something back," she accused. "Be honest! Oh—it's not possible!"

She half started up from the lounge, to drop back, breathing quickly. "So you're the girl," she said. "You might have trusted me."

"There was nothing to tell. I would not marry into a family where I was not wanted."

"Morgan said he would choose his own wife, and my cousin is not one to change where his affections are concerned. Of course I now understand your refusal of my request, but you must reconsider the matter. No one can recognize you with a mask, and you can leave directly after the minuet. I'll mention no name, merely write my aunt that a friend has consented to substitute. She'll be too busy to be curious."

Thus it happened that when the ball opened Augusta, a mere nobody, was among the envied debutantes who participated in the minuet. She was thrilled at being in the house of the man she loved and the possibility of learning how it had fared with him during the three years of silence that had buried their happy courtship.

When Morgan's parents had discovered his attachment for an unknown college student bitter scenes had ensued, resulting in the young man leaving Harvard to win independent success in life.

Augusta's pride forbade her corresponding with him, and after graduating she supported herself that her father might be free to educate her sisters. That the Mercers were related to the Fitzrays she had not discovered for some months, and after the first shock of the knowledge she decided to retain her position, there being only formal intercourse between the families and therefore small chance of her identity being discovered.

The brilliantly illumined ballroom was crowded when the eight young couples swept into the center, the men in picturesque "square cuts" of green and scarlet, the girls in gauzy white, with frosty spangles and garlands of mistletoe. Augusta, relying on her mask, entered into the dance with a grace and spirit that caused many of the spectators to single her out for favor. Rising from a deep courtesy, her eye was drawn to one of the guests who regarded her intently. Something in the broad shoulders, the firmness of the chin, visible beneath the black mask, set her heart beating wildly—this to be followed by a sudden chill of the blood when she remembered that Morgan had a brother.

Nervous with alarm, she never knew how she followed the intricacies of the dance, though she must have acquitted herself well, since of the flowers that pelted the dancers at the end a generous share fell at her feet. Then, silent among a laughing throng, she realized that her part in the festivities was at an end. Pride and duty demanded her withdrawal.

"I have secured your trophies," announced some one at her side as she reached the hall, and with a thrill of joy she knew that Morgan had indeed returned. To leave before he had recognized her became of vital importance. Yet how tear herself away when her whole heart was in a tumult for his presence?

"You will permit me," he begged, taking her card. "I'm sure the next is a waltz."

Augusta, shaking her head, endeavored to slip away.

"You can't vanish so," he challenged, dropping his mask. "Will you follow suit or must I wait the witching hour of 12 to solve the mystery?"

"Mystery?" repeated Augusta in a curiously muffled voice.

"But one girl dances like you," he bent over her eagerly. "Were it not impossible I should think—"

"Thought at a masquerade?" Augusta teased; but, knowing that he spoke of herself, she grew reckless and, despite the risk of delay, yielded to his plea for just one waltz.

The first led naturally to a second, after which, because she could not single out Fitzray for favor, she permitted others to fill her card.

Many dances were "halved" among important partners, since about her hung the fascination of real mystery, which with most of the masks was but a pretense. Augusta drifted in the intoxicating of the hour, forgetful of everything save her lover's presence. For supper he secured a tiny table to themselves.

Strangely interested in his companion, yet knowing his suspicions to be wildly improbable, he impatiently awaited the striking of the clock. As the first silver chime rang through the room the guests, amid gay raillery, threw off their masks.

Augusta, casting one startled glance about her, sprang to her feet, then ignominiously fled, like Cinderella of old, leaving Fitzray to stare at her empty chair. Reaching the hall a moment later, the young man caught a glimpse of vanishing drapery on the stairs.

Imagining that the girl must return, he waited with the best grace he could muster, but at the sound of wheels outside he flung wide the hall door just in time to see a carriage disappearing with all speed, while before the servants' gate lay a small object dark against the snow—the slitten mask that had baffled him.

In the Mercers' schoolroom next morning lessons dragged as never before, and the pupil wasted no regrets when her governess was summoned to her sister's room.

"Say something," demanded that lady after having informed Augusta that her cousin had been to see her. It seemed he had been so successful in business, winning such golden opinions from his employer, that a partnership was promised.

"Uncle is so proud," she concluded. "He declares himself willing to receive Morgan's chosen wife. After which news I couldn't fib. It scarcely seemed to your interest, and you'd better go down to him."

Instead of following this advice Augusta dropped on her knees beside the lounge.

"It's been so lonely—I'm so happy," she whispered incoherently.

"Morgan didn't look overstocked with patience," Miss Mercer warned as she pushed the girl gently away. "Come back directly he's gone," she commanded, and as the girl turned, with a smile, before closing the door her face was beautiful in its tremulous happiness.

Left alone, Miss Mercer lay quite still, watching the hands of the clock slowly making the circle of the dial. "I wonder," she mused whimsically, "are fairies human enough to feel a wee bit lonely after they have brought the lovers together?"

Saved the Vase.

The little son of an English gentleman, in mischievously playing with a vase, managed after several attempts to get his hand through the narrow neck and was then unable to extricate it. For half an hour or more the whole family and one or two friends did their best to withdraw the fist of the young offender, but in vain. It was a very valuable vase, and the father was loath to break it, but the existing state of affairs could not continue forever. At length, after a final attempt to draw forth the hand of the victim, the father gave up his efforts in despair, but tried a last suggestion.

"Open your hand!" he commanded the fearful young captive, "and then draw it forth."

"I can't open it, father," declared the boy.

"Can't?" demanded his father. "Why?"

"I've got my penny in my hand," came the astounding reply.

"Why, you young rascal," thundered his father, "drop it at once!"

The penny rattled in the bottom of the vase and out came the hand.

Some Famous Faces.

Napoleon, with a face as if it had been modeled from a Greek cameo, was never, in Talleyrand's judgment at all events, quite a gentleman. He gesticulated too much and was altogether too violent for the correct taste of the great noble trained under the old regime. Perfection of body is not necessary, either, for many misshapen men have been dignified even when they were not, like the Duc de Vendôme, princes of the lilies in days when that distinction meant so much.

Little men and wizened men have both inspired awe, for great soldiers trembled at Louis XIV. frowns, and no man received without weakened knees a rebuke from William III. The protruding underlip of the Hapsburgs has never detracted from their majesty, and Victor Emmanuel, who, for all his good manners, always suggested to the onlooker a bull face to face with the matadore, was for all that every inch a king.—London Spectator.

RABIES MADE APPEARANCE

Draghounds Tied to a Post One by One and Bullet Sent Through Brain as Friend Attracted Their Attention

Hamilton, Mass., May 29.—Never before in the history of country clubs was such a scene enacted as occurred here at the exclusive Myopia Hunt club. The entire pack of draghounds, suspected of hydrophobia, was shot and killed by Dr. Reardon, the club's veterinarian, after the kennel keepers had fled the scene.

One by one the beautiful dogs were tied to a post. One of the boys whom the dogs knew was stationed in front of the animal. As the boy called to the dog and the animal looked up in response, Reardon sent a bullet crashing through his skull.

The dreaded hydrophobia appeared among the dogs on Wednesday of last week, when two or three of the pack were seen to be listless and partly paralyzed. Many showed a disposition to slink away to hide. Then one by one they began to die.

Dr. Reardon was called to examine the dogs and at once concluded that an attack of rabies had broken out. The body of one of the dogs that died was sent to Boston for examination by Dr. Frothingham, the government expert.

Upon examination of the spinal column, Frothingham reported a decided case of rabies. A hurried consultation was called of the executive committee of the club when the precarious condition of the kennel in such close proximity to the stables was made apparent.

Immediate action was decided upon and, at the advice of Reardon, President Bush ordered that the entire pack be sacrificed in an effort to exterminate the dread disease.

The pack was one of the finest in New England and has been shown many times. It was noted as one of the finest "drags" having been perfected under the direction of George Mandell, the master of the hounds, who at present is in Europe.

The entire pack, consisting of fifty-two dogs, averaging about three years old, was shot and their bodies cremated. The kennels will be thoroughly disinfected and everything that came in contact with the dogs will be burnt before introducing any new dogs to the kennels.

At present there is not a dog on the grounds. Even the pet fox terriers of Joe Barrow, the assistant kennel keeper, were killed to eliminate the spread of the disease.

Dr. Reardon said it was the first time in the history of clubs in this country that he knew of where rabies had broken out among the dogs, necessitating the killing of the entire pack. Just how the dogs at the Myopia Hunt club became infected with the disease is not known.

The Myopia club is the oldest of its kind in New England. It has existed since 1882. The fox is seldom pursued by the Myopia men for the reason that the country near is scarcely suitable for the purpose.

The pack killed were English fox hounds, which had been trained to drag. Their killing had so much effect on the kennel keepers that none of them witnessed the killing.

Whitehead Torpedo to Hit Monitor Washington, May 29.—The next of the destructive tests to be made upon the monitor Florida is fixed for June 10. On that date the Florida will be attacked by an American Whitehead torpedo which will be directed against a spot on the hull about six or eight feet below the waterline. The torpedo is expected to sink the Florida at the first attempt. The vessel will easily be raised, owing to the shallow depth of water where the test will occur.

Mohmand Uprising Quelled Simla, May 29.—The British punitive expedition has ended its campaign against the warring Mohmand tribesmen, and General Willcocks will return to Indian territory at once. This unexpected rapid collapse of tribal opposition removes what quite recently seemed a threatening situation, possibly involving an Afghan war. The British losses in the eighteen days of the campaign were seventy-eight killed and 153 wounded.

Women Buying Railroad Shares Philadelphia, May 29.—Checks for the regular semi-annual dividend of the Pennsylvania Railroad company were mailed yesterday to 59,415 shareholders, the greatest number in the company's history. CONVICTED OF CONSPIRACY

Fine of $10,000 Will Be Imposed Upon a Maine Publisher

Portland, Me., May 29.—A fine of $10,000, the maximum amount, will be imposed upon George F. Terry, the proprietor of the Waterville mail order publishing house, who was convicted on two counts for conspiracy to defraud the government of postage, according to an announcement by Judge Hale in the United States district court. This case has been of interest throughout the country, as it was the first to be prosecuted under the new ruling of the postoffice department.

The announcement was made at the conclusion of evidence and arguments for mercy on the ground that if Terry should be sent to jail it would result in total blindness and possibly cost him his life. Judge Hale stated that it was not the purpose of the law to deprive a man of his life or eyesight, and that there was an alternative sentence of which he would take advantage. He advised the counsel that at the proper time he would impose the maximum fine of $10,000.

Mills Going on Full Time Providence, May 29.—The B. B. & R. Knight company posted notices yesterday in its cotton mills in ten Rhode Island and four Massachusetts towns announcing that full-time schedules will be resumed on Monday. The mills of the company have been running forty-four hours weekly for ten weeks. Under the full-time schedule they will be in operation fifty-eight hours a week. The company employs 6000 persons. The Crompton company's cotton mills at Crompton, which have been running four days a week, the Warwick mills of Centerville and the Warwick company of Warren have also adopted full-time schedules.

To Collect Missing Lawyer's Bond Boston, May 29.—William F. Mitchell, a lawyer, who was thought to have committed suicide by jumping from the Portland boat Bay State last Saturday, was defaulted in the superior criminal court and the court ordered that his bond be collected. The trial of Mitchell on the charge of forgery in uttering a mortgage claimed to have been worthless was set for last Tuesday.

Shaw's Wealth Was Overestimated Boston, May 29.—Sidney K. Singer, the conservator for John O. Shaw, whose financial affairs became greatly tangled some months ago, filed a final account of Shaw's estate in the probate court yesterday. In this account the value of the estate is given as $39,223.14. The value of the estate, however, has been estimated as high as $250,000 by Shaw's friends.

Children Struck by Train Dighton, Mass., May 29.—Two boys were injured, one probably mortally, when they were struck by an express train at a crossing here. Although the street gates were closed the children started to run across the tracks in front of the train. Manuel Fassich, 4 years old, is not expected to live. Marion Rogers, 8 years old, was less seriously hurt.

Show Horse Put to Death Beverly, Mass., May 29.—Forest King, the $15,000 show horse, owned by William H. Moore of New York and Beverly, which had taken prizes at many horse shows all over the country, was shot, having dislocated a shoulder by a fall. A New York veterinary was summoned in an endeavor to save the animal, but without avail.

Boy Killed in Hoisting Machine Portland, Me., May 29.—Robert W. Logue, 11 years old, while playing on a machine that is used for the hoisting of sand by means of an endless chain into a sifting machine, was caught in the chain and before the machine could be stopped both of his thighs were fractured and his skull crushed. He died in a short time.

Amalgamation of Baptists North Scituate, R. I., May 29.—At the final session of the annual convention of the Free Baptist churches of Rhode Island the proposal to unite with the Baptists was approved by a vote of 47 to 5. The vote approves the project for the union of the two denominations in this country.

Case of Mistaken Identity Haverhill, Mass., May 29.—Mrs. Mary Lucas, who was arrested on Saturday, charged with being a fugitive from Illinois justice, and who has been detained in jail since that time, was discharged from custody yesterday. Sheriff Morris said that Mrs. Lucas' arrest was due to mistaken identity.

Dynamiters Wreck Pipe Line El Paso, Tex., May 29.—Dynamiters wrecked the big pipe line that conveys water from Bonita mountains, N. M., to Carrizozo, N. M., where all the engines of the El Paso and Southwestern railway system are supplied. This pipe line, which diverts the entire supply of the Bonita river, cost $1,000,000.

Norment Instead of Loeb Washington, May 29.—Clarence F. Norment was elected president of the Washington Railway and Electric company, to be effective June 1 next. This is the position to which it was expected a few months ago William Loeb, Jr., secretary to the president, would be elected.

Law Calls for Big Bed Sheets Guthrie, Okla., May 29.—Governor Haskell has signed the hotel inspection bill, commonly known as the nine-foot sheet bill, because of the provision that the upper sheet on all hotel beds must be long enough to turn back two and a half feet over the other covers.

PAUL J. REVERE POST 88, G. A. R.

DEPARTMENT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

GENERAL ORDER No. 2.

In compliance with the laws of our Order, our established custom, and general orders from headquarters, the comrades of this Post will observe Saturday, the thirtieth day of May, as Memorial Day.

Comrades, let us observe Memorial Day with reverence and thoughtfulness. Let us bring our fairest blossoms, and with tender and loving thoughts, place them upon the graves of our departed comrades. See that not a single soldier's grave be forgotten. Let the flag fly so dearly loved wave over each. Let us conduct the services of the day in such a manner that the young may be impressed with its sacredness and learn to cherish the memory of those who sacrificed so much for their country.

"Reverence for the dead is one of the noblest sentiments of the human heart, and especially should all true Americans cultivate this sentiment for the memories of our brave Union soldiers, who freely offered their lives that our country might not be torn asunder and that justice and equal rights might everywhere prevail. The grave of every true Union soldier is a shrine of liberty."

They are answering the roll-call on the shadowy fields of Death, The roster's being lessened and the ranks are growing thin; But long as in the land they saved is blood and brain and breath The laurel crown of Memory their names must ever win.

The fervor of devoted hearts they to their country gave When youth was at its brightest and life had highest worth, To wipe from its escutcheon the shadow of the slave And make it stand refulgent as the fairest land on earth.

They are passing, they are passing, the valiant and the true Enlisting in eternal ranks, the new-made graves will tell, They are passing, they are passing, oft is heard the sad tattoo And the solemn, echoing volley with its message of farewell.

Mrs. Gunness May Be Alive La Porte, Ind., May 29.—Attorneys representing Ray Lamphere received a postal card mailed in New York, but unsigned, saying Mrs. Gunness might be found at 323 Seventeenth street, Brooklyn.

New York, May 29.—Investigation at the Brooklyn address, where a postal sent to La Porte from New York said Mrs. Gunness might be found, brought to light a story of a mysterious woman lodger who occupied a room in the house about three weeks ago. She gave her name as Mrs. L. E. Gard, but was also known as Mrs. Ames. The Brooklyn police are trying to locate her.

Object to Anti-Anarchist Law Madrid, May 29.—Former Premier Prndergast and other Liberal and Republican leaders addressed a monster mass meeting last night for the purpose of protesting against the government bill for the repression of terrorism. A few days ago the senate passed a law against anarchism and terrorism, providing for the creation of special tribunals with power to expel from the kingdom persons suspected of aiding the anarchistic propaganda. The law also provides measures for the repression of newspapers publishing articles relating to anarchism.

Famous Racehorse is All In New York, May 29.—Having borne the colors of James R. Keene thirteen times to victory and never having suffered defeat, Colin, which horsemen generally considered the greatest racehorse ever bred in this country, if not in the world, broke down yesterday after a fast workout and probably never again will face the barrier. The injury was sustained when the colt made a fast trial in preparation for the $25,000 Belmont stakes. After he pulled up it was found that he had bowed both front tendons.

Fear of Massacre by Turks Athens, May 29.—Many women and children fleeing from the island of Samos have reached Smyrna. They represent the revolution there to be most critical. It is feared that the Turkish reinforcements now on their way to the island will start a general massacre. A proposal that the powers dispatch warships to Samos is being urged. The principality of Samos exists under the guarantee of France, Great Britain and Russia.

Battleship Went on Rocks St. Petersburg, May 29.—The Russian battleship Peter the Great, which ran on the rocks Wednesday night in the Gulf of Finland, was refloated last night without assistance. The battleship made her way in safety to Revel. The extent of the damage to her hull has not yet been ascertained.

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and requests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Olive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

special commission appointed by the Superior court, will be held at City Hall, Monday morning, at 10 o'clock.
During the past few months the

was called.

The plans that will be presented by the city are a modification of the cations have been made will not be made public until presented at the hearing.

Inspection By Board of Health

The Board of Health accompanied by Inspector McKay made another round of the Syrian boarding houses
Thursday night, visiting five places
on Newcomb place, Main and South streets.

Some of the houses had been visited before, and orders given to thin
the boarders out, and the visits to these places was to see how well the orders of the Board of Health had been obeyed.

In the house on South street the board found 22 men quartered in eight rooms.

In a house a 156 Main street, 22
men were found occupying five rooms.
In one of the small rooms there were two beds occupied by three men
one woman. This woman was a sister of one of the men but they were occupying the same bed. This couple Inspector McKay placed under arrest for lewdness. In court they pleaded guilty and their cases were placed on file on payment of costs which

The program of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., for Memorial Day is much the same as in recent years. In the morning the Post will hold exercises in the cemeteries at West
Quincy and in the afternoon at Mount Wollaston cemetery.

It is a long day for the veterans,
as the general orders of Commander
J. D. Williams require members to assemble at 7 A. M. Early in the morning details of members will decorate the graves at Mount Wollaston,
the Hancock and English cemeteries,
the cemetery of the National Sailors and also the graves of Paul J. Revere and Samuel W. Spear at Mt. Auburn
cemetery.

At 9.30 A. M. the Post will leave headquarters for West Quincy marching as far as Franklin street, with Finnish band as escort.

At the Hall cemetery at West Quincy
the Sunday school and pastor of the Hall Place M. E. church will take part in the exercises, the children singing, and Rev. C. H. Raupach making an address.

At the Catholic cemetery Rev. A. F.
Roche, the pastor of St. Marys church will conduct the services. Camp Boyd L. S. W. V., will hold special services at the grave of John A.
Boyd.

The Women's Relief Corps and Ladies Aid Society will serve the noon luncheon to the veterans at Fax-

At 3 P. M., an hour later than usual, the Grand Army will leave headquarters for Mount Wollaston.
The line of march may be varied some because of the street railway work on Hancock street. The Finnish band, Braintree drum corps and probably the Boy's Brigade will be in line as well as the Grand Army, Spanish War Veterans, Woman's Relief Corps,
Ladies Aid Society city officials, police and others.

At the cemetery exercises will be held at the Soldiers' Monument, the grave of Lieut. Edward Bumpus, and the Grand Army lot.

The general orders of Paul Revere post 88 will be found in full on one of the inside pages of the Daily Ledger.

Memorial Day
In the Schools

Memorial Day exercises were held at the High school during the first hour this morning. They included the singing of patriotic airs. Head Master Cleveland made brief remarks
and introduced Col. Charles H. Porter, who spoke for twenty minutes on war time reminiscences. The exercises closed with singing "America."

There was no regular program for the observance of Memorial Day at the Woodward Institute today. The pupils, however, were assembled in the hall half an hour before recess and sang patriotic airs. Col. Charles H. Porter who called at the school on business, was introduced and spoke briefly.

Memorial Day exercises are being held this afternoon in all of the public school buildings of the city. Each school will be assisted by a member of Paul Revere Post, G. A. R. who will address the pupils.

The new horseless combination hose and chemical wagon for the central station is due any day now.

The new police automobile is catching a lot of automobile drivers who are exceeding the speed limit.

The odor of oil one gets on the main streets is not very pleasant, but it is very effective as a layer of dust.

The new granolithic sidewalk on Adams street, East Milton, is greatly appreciated.

The Thursday Evening club wound
up its weekly gatherings for the season
this month, and the club will take a vacation until September.

The floral plot in front of the quarters of Hose 2 at East Milton has been fixed up for the season. Geraniums will be set out later.

R. A. Hardwick has just sold for the Quincy Savings bank, the Babcock occupy the estate.

Railroad Men in Politics.

The order of Railroad Station
Agents which includes 85 per cent.
of the station agents of New England,
has extended to New York and will soon include most of the agents in that state.

The scope of the organization was explained to a number of station
agents who attended the meeting at Albany, N. Y., recently and they became members at once. The object of the organization is set forth in the resolutions which were adopted,
as follows:

"Whereas, much of the enacted and proposed legislation directed against the railroads of the country by the national Congress and the Legislatures of the several States is becoming a serious menace to the railroad employe, as well as to the employer and stockholder, and

"Whereas, this sentiment has taken the form of a maddening frenzy and political demagoguery, halting the wheels of progress and of commerce,
therefore be it,

"Resolved, that the Order of Railroad Station Agents, in convention assembled, representing 85 per cent.
of the agents and bonded employes
of the New York Central, Delaware & Hudson, Boston & Maine and the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad systems, fully and sensibly realizing the true status of the present railroad situation, in which the property or adversity of the employer is conversely reflected in the like condition of the employe, do pledge ourselves as individuals and as an organization to enter the field of politics, in the municipality, in the State and in the nation with the end
in view of securing the election to public office of those not inimical to our welfare and prosperity as railroad employes."

BETTER THAN SPANKING.

Spanking does not cure children of bed-wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people trouble with urine difficulties by day or night.

TREATMENT OF WOOD FLOORS

How to Clean and Wax Them Properly.

A common fault among maids in cleaning floors of either soft or hard wood is in wetting a larger portion at a time than can be dried with a cloth before it soaks into the wood. In the latter case it will be streaked and never take the same polish afterward that one will when dried by hand.

In cleaning there should always be three cloths—one for washing, the second for drying and the third for the final going over, for the second rapidly becomes damp. Afterward the condition of the wood will be much improved for the final work if wiped with kerosene, but the least possible quantity of the oil should be used, says Woman's Life. This is not itself a polish, but is to prepare the wood for the shine.

A floor should never be waxed without first dusting and removing any spots. If the wood is faded in places rubbing with a preparation of seven ounces of boiled linseed oil and one ounce of alcohol will help to bring back the color, but the application
must be made many times and rubbed thoroughly. Grease spots, of course, will come out with an application of good soapy water, but this wash must be well taken off at once, as soap destroys the gloss finish. When such a stain is well dried rub the spot with the linseed oil mixture given above before waxing.

Waxing a soft or stained floor is a particular piece of work that depends much for success upon the quickness with which it is done. The wax should be melted in a warm bath and a dan-del cloth used to put it on. The application should be rubbed in, a little at a time, and worked rapidly and hard to get it spread evenly over the surface before hardening or absorption begins. Polish again with a dry dan-
del. The whole floor should be gone over in sections, rubbing with the grain of the wood. It will be well to finish at the door, so that one may leave the room without walking through it and leaving tracks. A soft floor stained should not be stepped on for twenty-four hours.

A wax finished floor should never be washed, the cleaning consisting of dusting first and when necessary wiping with a damp cloth wrung in turpentine. Waxing should be done immediately afterward. One part of the floor may be waxed without doing all
by polishing the spot, afterward rubbing, especially at the edges, until the color goes into that already there.

How to Have a Good Lawn.

Simply apply in the early spring a liberal sprinkle of good commercial fertilizer. Manure brings weeds, and,
though there are bound to be some anyway, you will have fewer if you use the commercial fertilizer, says Harpers Weekly. A few weeds will not hurt the appearance of the lawn if the mower is run over it with sufficient frequency. This should be done when the grass is growing well about three times a week. Use a good mower;
keep it well oiled and it will be a pleasure to use it. Have the blades set high enough to leave from one and a half to two inches of grass height.
If you mow the lawn as often as suggested, do not rake up the clipped grass, but let it remain, as it will settle among the growing stalks and form mud, which will help to fertilize the soil.

The only way to get weeds out, if you are determined to do it, is to take them out by the roots, one by one. If the weeds are plantain you need not take the trouble. They are there to stay.

How to Clean Walls.

Burlaped or papered walls may be brushed with a warm broom covered with a hood of cheesecloth, which must be removed and shaken when dusty. Breadcrumbs and a pencil eraser will remove many ugly marks from wall paper. Magnesia often removes grease marks. A weak solution of borax and water will remove the greasy black stains that mar delicate wood or paints. Use kerosene in the water when wiping varnished woodwork. No difference how good a furniture polish you use, always rub off
every particle of grease with dry cloths or it will accumulate dust, and the dust is more difficult to remove than the grease.

How to Take Raw Eggs For Strength.

Raw eggs are blood makers and may be taken in any way one wishes. The simplest method of getting them down is to take a shallow wine glass, put in a drop of clear lemon juice and then break the egg in this, taking care not to injure the yolk. Over this put about four drops of lemon, scattered, to make the egg go down easily with one swallow. This is readily accomplished if the head is held back and the contents of the glass tossed into the back of the mouth. Eight eggs a day are none too much when one is trying to recuperate.

How to Make Safe Hair Dye.

The following is a harmless hair
dye: Two ounces of alcohol, two ounces of green tea, two ounces of garden sage. After straining keep tightly corked to prevent evaporation. Apply the dye with a toothbrush after shampooing
the hair and rinsing it in cold water.
Then remove any stain from the scalp
with a sponge dipped in warm water.

How to Open a Bottle.

Wind a piece of tape or narrow ribbon once around the neck of the bottle; then, holding the bottle firmly,
draw the tape rapidly back and forth.
The friction thus created heats the neck of the bottle, causing it to expand, whereby the stopper is loosened
and may be readily withdrawn.

C. E. Banquet At Wollaston

The banquet of the C. E. Society of the Wollaston Baptist church on Thursday evening was a grand success. All arrangements were made by the Social committee of which Miss Bessie Drew is chairman.

About fifty were seated at the tables. The place cards and menus displayed the careful work of William Bullock. The guests of the evening were the pastor and wife, Rev. and Mrs. E. D. Webber, and H. W. Blair who has recently returned from South Africa.

After the dinner the toastmaster, Charles Roach, president of the society, introduced the speakers, and there were responses to the following toasts:

Pilgrims Progress,—Rev. E. D.
Webber.

The Traveller,—H. W. Blair.

Little Women,—Miss Drew.

The Heathen Chinee,—Mr. Barbour.

The Newcomb,—Miss Salisman.

The Goodnatured Man,—Mr. Bullock.

Midsummer Nights Dream,—Miss
Sheldon. This was a clearly written poem portraying the future of the society.

Miss Hardy's music was a pleasing feature of the evening.

D. A. R.

Susannah Tufts chapter, D. A. R., met with Mrs. Frank O. Wellington, Monday, May 25th. Being the annual meeting many members were present,
and elected the following officers:

Vice Regents—Mrs. Frank O. Wellington and Mrs. Harriet B. Bachelder.

Recording Secretary—Miss Sarah
A. White.

Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Fred
T. Cate.

Treasurer—Miss Lucy M. Crane.

Registrar—Mrs. Charles T. Crane.

Historian—Mrs. Orrin Babe.

Executive Committee—Miss Anna
Hayward, Mrs. James Doan, Mrs. A.
G. Bowditch.

Music was provided by Miss Susan
Baxter, who gave a group of songs.
Refreshments were served and a social hour followed with many plans proposed for an outing but none fully met with the approval of all, but during the summer we hope for two or three outings.

At a meeting of the state officers,
D. A. R., Monday afternoon, Mrs.
Masury, state regent, appointed Mrs.
A. G. Bowditch as chairman of finance committee.

Mrs. A. G. Bowditch was a guest at the Laughton studio, Boston, when the Minute Men Chapter, D. A. R., entertained Mrs. A. L. White, hostess.

Factors of Safety

The human body is a wonderful machine, provided with muscular, nervous and mental energy far in excess of normal needs. In health, the organs and tissues can do double their usual amount of work without strain or friction, because they have stored energy to meet the extra demand.

When you feel "all tuckered out," these factors of safety are nearly exhausted and you need to resort to

BEECHAM'S PILLS

to renew the supply of energy, wherever it may be called for.
Indigestion, bilious attacks, constipation, loss of sleep, ner-

Quincy, May 27

Whatever you do, don't nag.
If you have any grievance, anything to object to, out with it freely, forcibly, like a man. Then put the subject to one side.
Constant dropping may wear away a stone, but constant nagging on a woman's part only drives the man away out of hearing or excites his contempt.
Besides, if you waste your strength in petty efforts you will not be able to make a strong impression when you need to do so. MAUD ROBINSON.

A Distinction With a Difference.
Ollie James, the giant Kentucky congressman, was making a political speech.

"I want to ask you a question,"
shouted a man.
"Well, my friend, what is it?"
"I want you to tell this gathering
what is the difference between Grover Cleveland and Theodore Roosevelt."
"Nothing simpler. Mr. Cleveland is too sedate to hunt, and Mr. Roosevelt is too restless to fish."

EXAMPLE.
We scatter seeds with careless hand
And dream we ne'er shall see them more.
But for a thousand years
Their fruit appears
In weeds that mar the land
Or fruitful store.

The deeds we do, the words we say,
into still air they seem to fleet.
We count them ever past,
But they shall last—
In the dread judgment they
And we shall meet.

I charge thee by the years gone by,
For the love's sake of brethren dear,
Keep thou the one true way
In work and play,
Lest in that world their cry
Of woe thou hear.

—John Keble.

Porouses.
"That is a pretty big buckwheat cake for a boy of your size," said papa at breakfast to Jimmy-boy.
"It looks big," said Jimmy, "but really it isn't. It's got lots of porouses in it."

A Tragedy Averted.
A gentleman unexpectedly took a friend home to dine with him. Before dinner his wife took her husband aside and impressed upon him that when the sherry in the decanter was exhausted
he must not ask his friend to take any more, as there was none in the house.
The husband promised to remember and act with all due discretion. When the sherry was exhausted, however, the husband in a fit of mental aberration pressed more upon him. The wife looked distressed, and the visitor declined. After the visitor had departed the lady said reproachfully to her husband, "How could you press him to take more sherry when I had already warned you there was none in the house?"
"I am very sorry, dear," said the patient husband, "but I forgot all about it."
"How could you?" she replied.
"What do you suppose I was kicking you under the table for?"
"It wasn't me you kicked," said her husband.

A "Leetle" Absentminded.
Rufus Chouteau once endeavored to make a witness give an illustration of absentmindedness.
"Waal," said the witness cautiously,
"I should say that a man who thought he'd left his watch to hum an' took it out'n his pocket to see if he had time to go hum to get it—I should say that that feller was a leetle absentminded."
—Everybody's.

He Knew What He Wanted.
The family were gathered in the library, one of the windows of which was open.
"That air"—the father began.
"Father, dear, don't say 'that air'!
Say 'that there,'" the daughter admonished.
"Well, this air"—he again attempted.
"Nor 'this ere'! 'This here' is correct," he was told.
The old gentleman rose, with an angry snort. "Look here, Mary," he said,
"of course I know you have been to school and all that, but I reckon I know what I want to say, an' I am going to say it. I believe I feel cold in this air from that air, an' I'm going to shut the window!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Hurry Order.
As she examined her Thanksgiving
turkey she asked her little son:
"Did the butcher tell you this turkey was quite fresh?"
"No'm. He just said to hurry home with it as fast as I could."

A Definite Date.
During the money stringency lately
a certain real estate man, having nothing else for his clerk to do, sent him out to collect some rent that was overdue.
The clerk, being of Swedish nationality, had his peculiar twang in his speech.
Returning from his trip, the Swede seemed very jubilant.
The proprietor, noticing his smile,
said, "Well, what luck did you have?"
and the clerk answered, "Purty good."
"Well, did anybody pay you?"
"Yans, Smith he pay, and Yones he say he pay in January." "Are you sure Jones said he would pay in January? He never before has made any such promises."

"Well, I tank so. He say it bane a dam col day when you get dot money,
and I tank dat bane in January."—

The Play Went On.
In the early days of the last century Thomas Hill, a great-uncle of the late Thomas Hill, president of Harvard university, was occupying an end seat in a theater at Jersey City. Directly in front of him sat a diminutive Frenchman, who found his enjoyment of the play greatly diminished by the fact that an overgrown man in front of him persisted in wearing a tall silk
hat. He tried to look around the hat and over the bulky shoulders, but only to his discomfort. Finally he tapped

the man on the arm, saying, "Ef you please, sare, would you be kind enough to take off your hat?" No attention was paid to this protest, and he reiterated his request. Still the big man paid no heed. Mr. Hill's attention was attracted, and, taking his cane, he knocked the silk hat off into the aisle.
Instantly the man, his face red with wrath, rose to his feet and began to pull off his coat. The audience also rose, expecting to see a fight. The play stopped, the actors crowding to the front of the stage. Mr. Hill deliberately stood up, displaying his six feet two inches of height and his magnificent proportions, and said in a clear voice heard all over the theater, "My name is Thomas Hill, tanner. If you wish satisfaction, come to my office tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. Here is my card." The other slunk out of the house. Then Hill, with a sweeping gesture, exclaimed in a stentorian voice, "The play may go on." And the play went on.—Lippincott's.

Modesty Forbade.
A lady once asked Lord Brougham
at a dinner party who was the best speaker in the house of lords. Lord Brougham promptly and emphatically answered, "Lord Stanley, madam, is the second best."

Her Way of Taking Them.
At a dinner party the coachman was called upon in an emergency to assist in waiting upon the guests, among whom was a very dear old lady. The coachman, in passing the vegetables,
comes to the deaf lady.
"Peas, mum?" says Jehu.
No answer.
"Peas, mum?" (louder).
Still there was no answer from the old lady, who at this moment lifts her ear trumpet interrogatively toward the man.
Glancing down and seeing the tube
he ejaculated in a whisper: "Well, it's a rum way of taking them, but I suppose she likes it. Here goes!" And down went the peas into the ear trumpet.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Wealth and Marbles.
"Why get together any more money?"
asked a friend of the late Russell Sage, "You can't eat it. You can't drink it. What good will it do you?"
"Ever play marbles?" Uncle Russell asked.
"Yes, when I was a boy."
"Couldn't eat 'em, could you? No use to you, were they? What did you play marbles for?"

He Kept the Secret.
When the teacher was absent from the schoolroom Willie Jones wrote on the blackboard:
"Willie Jones can hug the girls better than any boy in school."
"William, did you write that?" asked
the teacher upon her return.
"Yes, ma'am."
"Well, you may stay after school as punishment."
"Got a licking, didn't you?" asked
one boy when Willie came out.
"Nope."
"Got jawed?" asked another.
"Nope."
"What did she do?"
"Shan't tell, but it pays to advertise."

Good Little Girl.
A Christian mother was once showing her little girl, about five years old,
a picture representing Jesus holding an infant in his arms, while the mothers were pushing their children toward
him.
"There, Carrie," said her mother,
"this is what I would have done with you if I had been there."
"I would've been pushed to Jesus; I'd go to him without pushing."

Malicious Adiposity.
"Fat men are no account for soldier-ing," said the late General Shafter.
"They pant, they wheeze, they snort,
they choke, they grunt, they groan,
they waddle, they slouch through the world. Not a particle of good on earth, fat soldiers. Would not have one of 'em around if I could help it."

Bottled.
"Everything was fine," said the farmer when he got back home from his first visit to the city—"everything was fine except the light. They kept the light burning in my room all night long, a thing I ain't used to, and I couldn't sleep on account of it."
"Why didn't you blow it out?" asked his wife.
"Blow it out? How could I? The blame thing was inside a bottle!"

A Logical Sentence.
A lawyer defending a man accused of housebreaking said:
"Your honor, I submit that my client did not break into the house at all. He found the parlor window open and merely inserted his right arm and removed a few trifling articles. Now, my client's arm is not himself, and I fall to see how you can punish the whole individual for an offense committed only by one of his limbs."
"That argument," said the judge, "is very well put. Following it logically,
I sentence the defendant's arm to one year's imprisonment. He can accompany it or not, as he chooses."
The defendant, with his lawyer's assistance, unscrewed his cork arm and,
leaving it in the dock, walked out.

The Quincy Daily Ledger.

FRIDAY, MAY 29, 1908.

If you will come in and ask to see the La France Flexible Welt for Women, we will demonstrate the characteristics of this model in a manner which will speak volumes.
It makes possible something that has long been every woman's ideal—a shoe of extreme beauty and grace, combined with absolute ease and comfort to the foot—a triumph in shoe-making.
It makes no difference whether you sit still, walk, or stand on tiptoe in these shoes, they follow the motion of the foot without the slightest discomfort to the wearer. They are good shoes, too, in every sense of the word.

HEALTH

In Childhood

means health in later years. As the child builds the adult shall be. Weakly, neglected children do not grow to vigorous man and womanhood. Childhood complaints yield easily to proper treatment—but they do not correct themselves. The weak stomach, pallid complexion, listless bearing, irritable temper, disturbed sleep, speak plainly of the ailments common to children, most of which have their origin in disordered stomach and bowels.

The greatest safeguard to children's health is

Dr. True's Elixir

For indigestion, irritability, constipation, poor appetite, peevishness, fevers, stomach and liver troubles and worms it is unequalled. Parents of two generations have relied upon it. It restores sound, vigorous health when nothing else will. First it removes the cause, then aids nature to repair the damage; builds anew the waste, enriches the blood and sends a glow of health and vigor to every organ and tissue of the body. At all druggists, 3c. Write for free booklet: "Children and Their Diseases."

HOLIDAY NOTICE.
Saturday, Memorial Day, will be observed as a holiday at the office of the Daily Ledger, no paper being issued. An eight-page paper will be printed on Friday with many of the Saturday features. See paper of Monday for three days news.

The Observations In the Daily Walk

Howard Eaton has returned from Chattanooga Tenn. and finds his shore property in excellent condition.
Maurice E. Kilpatrick is constructing a new building on Newbury avenue at the southerly side of the engine house.
A new feature will be introduced at the dancing party of the Squantum Yacht club on Saturday evening, when a vocal solo and piano solo will be given during intermission.

A rare treat is in store for the members of the Makaria Fraternity and any of their friends who care to be present, on Sunday at 12 M. to listen to a very interesting talk on Russia by Mrs. Delano.

A verdict to sustain the will was given in the Norfolk Superior Civil court on Thursday in the case of Mary A. Carey executrix, vs. John B. Carey, et al. of West Quincy, to establish the validity of the will of the late Patrick Carey.

At the Washington school, Quincy Point, this afternoon, each child received a flag. They were contributed by G. W. Gragg, the druggist. Over 500 flags were used. The kindergarten school was remembered with flags.

Each succeeding day notes awakened interest in Atlantic real estate and the pride which residents manifest in care of their property is rewarded by bright surroundings on every hand. It would be invidious to mention particularly, but new comers are well pleased.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Haines of Spear street, are leaving tonight for Canada by way of Niagara Falls. They will visit Mr. Haines' mother and sister, after which they will enjoy a trip through the Thousand Islands and down the St. Lawrence, intending to be away about three weeks.

The street watering car made its appearance again this morning.

Rev. Benjamin W. Atwell, D. D., will preach Sunday morning at St. Chrysostom's church.

Dimock & Patten of Wollaston, are building an addition to Mrs. John O. Holden's house on Adams street.

Mrs. Elmira Barstow, Miss E. B. and Mr. C. H. Barstow have moved from Clay street to Standish avenue.

The office of the City Auditor at City Hall has been connected with the office of the City Treasurer by speaking tube.

The holes on the west side of Hancock street between City Hall and Adams street are being filled with crushed stone.

One of the best games of the holiday will be that of the Makaria and North Dorchester teams at Merrymount park at 10 A. M.

Mrs. May Flowers, of Newcomb place, has received from Vallejo, Cal., a box of beautiful roses from her daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Deaver.

The new track on the west side of Hancock street was connected Thursday afternoon so that cars could run through. A quick job is being done, and the double track will soon be in use.

The regular monthly meeting of the Quincy Day Nursery Association will be held at the Women's club house at half past ten Tuesday morning, June 2, instead of in the afternoon as previously announced.

The Wadsworth house on Presidents hill is boarded in and looks slightly. Architecturally it will be an ornament to the hill, the outline at this early date being particularly pleasing.

Many Ball Games On the Holiday

Several base ball games are announced for Memorial day in this city, all the parks and playgrounds being in use.

10.30 A. M.—Bryant A. C. vs City Point.

Scores of base ball games played Saturday will not be published hereafter unless the scores reach the office before 9 A. M. on Monday.

New Parkway Open.
Secretary Woodbury of the Metropolitan Park Commission informs us that the Boulevard is now open as far as finished, entrance being had just off the Atlantic street bridge.

Newsy Budget From Shipyard

The German Navy League numbers 1,018,590 members, according to its just published annual report. The league's monthly organ, Die Flotte, has a circulation of 375,000 copies. "Navy exhibitions" were organized last year in seventy-eight towns of at least 5000 population each. In addition 300 elementary school teachers and 2000 children from all parts of the country were conveyed to the chief German ports at the expense of the league to gain an idea of what the German navy is accomplishing, besides similar excursions for adults. Is not this a pointer for us Americans?

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Boston Theatre.
The popularity of a book play is shown by the great interest that is being manifested in "In the Bishop's Carriage," which will be produced at the Boston theatre next week. The story of the play is that of a young woman thief who in her endeavor to get away from the police, steals a lady's cloak and hides herself in the Bishop's carriage. When the Bishop enters the carriage he doesn't at first discover the girl and is driven to his home in the outskirts of Philadelphia. Finally he discovers her and this is the first scene. The efforts to reform the girl by the young Lawyer Latimer, the appearance of the girl's former lover who breaks into the house where she happens to be, the police station scene and others make the play alive with interest from the rise of the curtain to the drop.

Keith's Theatre.
There is only one animal act in vaudeville worthy of being used as the headline feature of a bill at Keith's and that is Barnold's famous troupe of monkey and dog pantomimists, which is to lead next week's program. When first presented at Keith's a year ago this troupe was immediately recognized as something new in its line and scored a remarkable hit. The troupe is now in better shape than ever, while the original intoxicated canine still causes uproars of laughter. The sketch feature will be presented by Jane Kennark, James Horne and Frederick Murray, all three great favorites in Boston. They are to play that bright comedieta, "The Way to Win a Woman."

Majestic Theatre.
"Lili" Mose, the coming attraction commencing an indefinite engagement at the Majestic Theatre, Boston, Monday, June 1st is heralded as a new departure in the musical comedy line, inasmuch as it has a unique thread of dramatic plot running entirely through the piece. The story follows the fortunes of a young Italian singer who has emigrated to this country and become enamoured of a young American heiress and follows her afterwards on a trip across the water where he has the ill fortune to get into trouble with the Gendarmes, in protecting the girl from a ruffianly assault. He is obliged to escape on a sailing vessel and then find his way back to America. His resources all gone and with apparently no friend in the world, Lili Mose, but eventually he secures a position that enables him to keep his head above water until such time as he can prove nobility of birth and station and clear himself from the trouble he got into in Venice. An attachment springs up between the young girl whom he rescued, which is not approved by her parents, but eventually all things end well for the young couple and the Italian secures his fortune and estates.

Castle Square Theatre.
With "Carmen" as the attraction, the Castle Square theatre begins on Monday the third week of the summer opera season. The choice of "Carmen" has been made in response to persistent requests for its revival. It is one of the strongest and most brilliant of modern French operas, and it has made the reputation of more than one singer. The cast for the revival at the Castle Square will include Miss Louise Le Baron in the title role, George Tallman as Don Jose, and J. K. Murray as Escamillo. It will be sung on Monday, Tuesday and Saturday evenings, and at the Wednesday matinee, the opera for the remaining performances of the week being "Faust," with Clara Lane and Helen Darling as Marguerite.

SONG FOR THE HEROES.

A song for the heroes, sweet and clear, For those we love for those most dear, For them that fought that we might live, For them the flowers we twine and give, For Freedom's sake for souls so brave, For vanished forms, beneath the grave, We place the flowers upon the soil, We look to Heaven, and to God.
